It's 'put up or shutdown' for Cohasset Heights

Py Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Unless a liability insurance plan is forthcoming, Cohasset Heights landfill will be closed by next week.

Prompted by an angry group of residents at Monday night's meeting, health board members decided that if an insurance policy is not in their hands by 4:30 March 5, the commercial dump will be shut down. The closure is permitted, according to the board's special counsel, Michael Leon, because it will constitute a violation of the landfill's amended site assignment.

A special meeting of the board will be scheduled that evening to either call for a shutdown, or to review the policy which will insure the town against possible damages caused by the commercial landfill. Since October, the board has requested a copy of the policy or a certification that a policy is in place.

Atty. Antone Moerhke, representing Cohasset Heights Ltd., had assured the board it would receive the policy. But he was absent from Monday night's health board meeting. Atty. Becky Bachman, an associate for Atty. Moerhke, said she had tried in vain to obtain a copy of the document. But because the insurance broker was out of town, she was unable to receive satisfactory answers regarding the whereabouts of the policy.

"This is Atty. Moerhke's area of expertise,"Bachman stated. "I do not have the contract in order tonight. I do not have the final answers because people are away ."

Special Counsel Leon noted that the process of obtaining an insurance binder is not such a complicated, lengthy procedure. "I'm very concerned," he stated. "Because there's no excuse for this."

Water commissioner Ronald Goodwin urged the board to take immediate action against the landfill. Board member John Burns agreed they had been "more than lenient."

By virtue of the May site assignment, the health board is allowed to issue a "drop-dead" date in which the insurance policy would be required in hand. "There's no reason why a certificate can't be issued by the agent. It only takes a matter of days. If we don't have a copy of this insurance policy, then it is a violation of the site assignment," Leon stated.

Board member Burns suggested that if a copy of the policy is not forwarded to the board by 4:30 p.m. March 5, they will schedule a special meeting at which they will vote to close the dump.

For some residents, March 5 can't come soon enough.

"If it's been this long," Fair Oaks Lane resident Mike

Merrill honored as Chamber's business leader

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Andrea Merrill was recognized by her peers Feb. 18 as a local business leader.

In recognition of her business ethics, public and personnel relations and her service to the community, the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce presented Merrill with the second annual Forrest E. King Memorial Award.

Merrill is a real estate broker with Hallmark 100, a development partner in Distinctive Homes Trust, and has worked as a volunteer at the Cohasset Consignment Shop for 16 years, serving as manager there for the past five years. She also is a member of the community garden club.

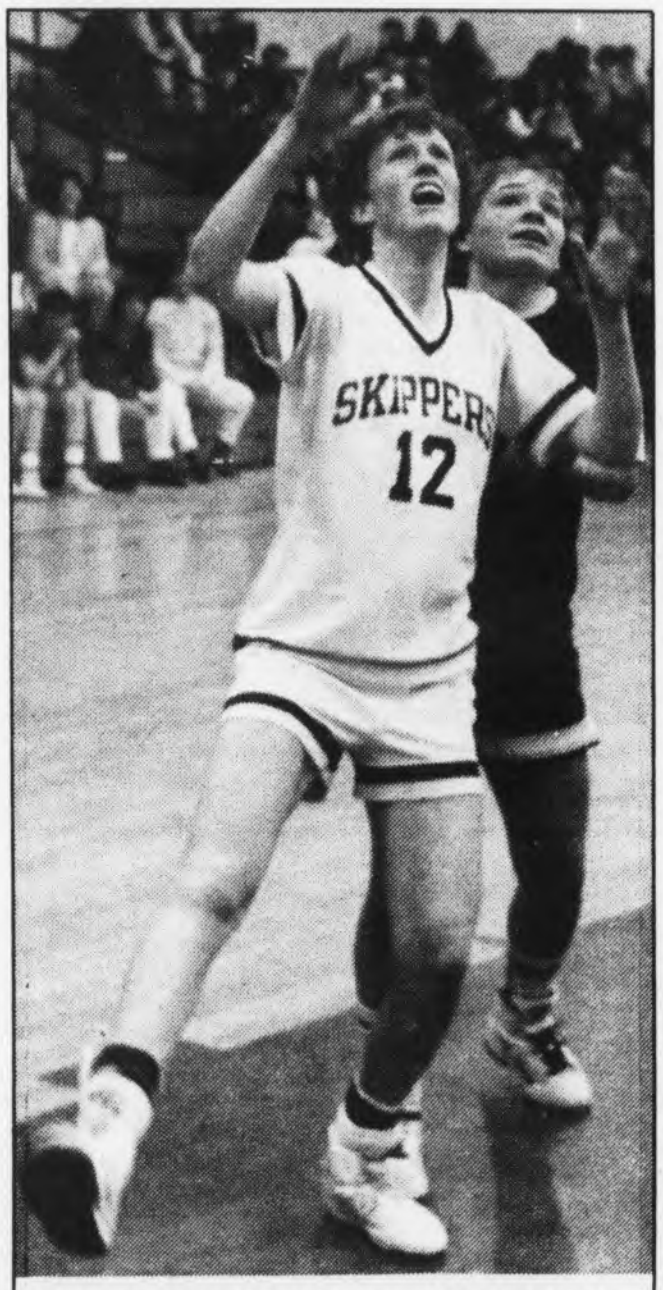
"I find it very humbling," Merrill said of the honor, "because whatever I've done, I've done because I've enjoyed it. I've enjoyed working with people. I like business.

"In all my years in the business world," she noted, "the only way I could work, was honorably. I would never ask anyone to do something I wouldn't do myself."

Merrill said she feels honored to have received the King award, which is named for the late Forrest E. King, owner of King Jewelers and one of the founders of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

"I don't feel I've been doing anything anyone else wouldn't do," she said. "I've just tried to contribute what I could."

Merrill has contributed much in her volunteer service at the consignment shop. As manager there, she coordinates 100 employees, and has made the shop a successful source of revenue for the Social Service League.



The league is a non-profit organization, which works with the community, sponsoring health guidance seminars, staffing the shuttle bus and providing counseling and other social services.

"I also spend a considerable amount of time at Hallmark 100," Merrill said. "That's also a service to

The field is crowded as candidates begin activity for local election

It promises to be a busy few weeks as 26 candidates have tossed their hats into the political arena. There will be contested seats on many boards, including selectmen, sewer commission, and assessor.

Friday is the last day for candidates to submit nomination papers for the April election.

For the first time in recent memory, there will be six candidates vying for two seats on the board of selectmen. The candidates include: Martha Gjesteby of Old Pasture Road, Lillian Murray of 28 Margin Street, Robert Beggan of 4 Sankey Road, Thomas Churchill III of 4 Bound Brook Lane, Burtram Pratt of Ripley Road, and Robert Davenport of 135 Sohier Street.

James Lagrotteria of 104 Howe Road will be challenging incumbent assessor Warren S. Pratt of 56 Red Gate Lane.

And sewer commissioner Edward M. Guild of Jerusalem Road will be running against Lot W. Bates of Red Gate Lane for a three-year seat on that commission.

Other candidates include political newcomer Alfred S. Moore Jr. of 101 Fair Oaks Lane who is running for a five-year seat on the planning board. Incumbent L. Christine Bassett did not seek re-election.

There will be three candidates for three, three-year terms on the library board of trustees. Roslinde Dole of 24 Howe Road, who earlier announced her intention to run for a seat on that board, has withdrawn her nomination. She informed the town clerk last week that she will not seek office.

The three candidates include incumbents Sheila Evans and Doris McNulty. Edward Atkinson of Elm Street has announced his candidacy for a seat on the board of trustees.

William Baird of 55 Red Gate Lane is a candidate for a three-year term on the board of health. Incumbent C. Michael Bliss is not running for re-election.

Water commissioner William Montuori of Brewster Road, is unopposed in his bid for re-election to that board.

Nancy Sandell of Stevens Lane is the only candidate for a three-year term on the school committee. That seat is being vacated by incumbent Richard Conley of Holly Lane.

There are three, five-year seats available on the recreation commission. Candidates include incumbents Mary Muncey and Theresa England Duggan. Donal' Staszko of Beach Street will be vying for a seat on the commission.

Joseph Andrade of 276 Cedar Street will be a candidate for a three-year unexpired term on the commission. That seat was vacated by the resignation of Robert Beggan. He is a candidate for selectman.

Housing Authority incumbent Ralph Perroncello of Pleasant Lane is a candidate for re-election. That is a five-year term.

Other unopposed candidates include Moderator William Weeks of Border Street, Town Clerk Frances Marks of Hill Street, Treasurer-Collector Elizabeth Ripley of Old Pasture Road, and Highway Surveyor Harold Litchfield of Beechwood Street.

Step raise policy

According to town bylaw, a department head or supervisor must determine if a town employee is entitled to a step raise increase. It is not the responsibility or authority of the personnel committee, town counsel ruled.

Atty. Richard Henderson, responding to an inquiry from the personnel committee, explained that according to Chapter 41 of the General Laws, the town has adopted a personnel classification and compensation plan which states that all rate changes must be recommended by a department head or supervisor. According to the law, "progressions through the rate changes are not mandatory and shall be on the basis of performance and ability, as recommended by the department head or supervisor. All adjustments shall be approved in advance of the effective date by the Personnel Committee."

The employees' performance evaluation must be completed by the department supervisor, who will recommend that an employee receive a salary step increase. The evaluation will be forwarded to the personnel committee in advance of the employees' anniversary date so the salary increase is effective in a timely manner.

"In conclusion," Atty. Henderson stated, "the determination of entitlement to merit increases rests with the department head or supervisor, not the Personnel Committee."

Addition costs

Architect Brett Donham has estimated it will cost $47,000 to complete the design and to receive construction bids for the proposed town hall addition and renovation project.

The architect prepared the revised cost estimates in time for the April town meeting warrant. An article requesting appropriations for the project's design is included in the warrant. It was rejected by town meeting last year.

According to Donham, there has been an extraordinary rise in construction costs since the article was denied by town meeting last year. The new estimate includes costs for completing the design, preparing construction drawings and specifications, preparing bid documents, advertising and receiving construction bids. The architectural and engineering costs will be about $40,000, he estimated.

Donham noted that if the items were completed separately and were not part of a complete package, they would cost a great deal more than his itemized list amounting to $47,000.

Whitney Woods litter

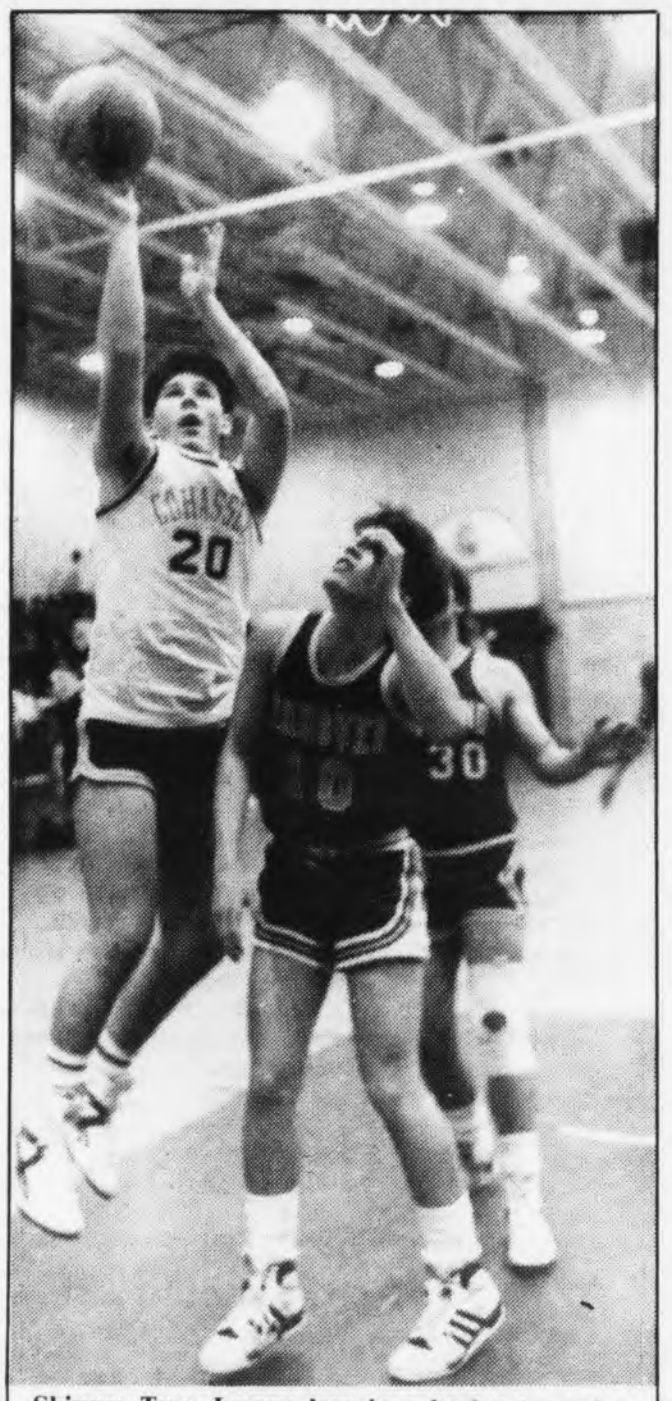
An agreement has been reached between the Trustees of Reservations and Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill to clean up the litter at Whitney and Thayer Woods Reservation.

The litter is strewn over the Reservation's land from the adjacent commercial landfill. Under the agreement, CHL will pay the cost of hiring two workers for ten, eight-hour days to complete the intial cleanup. Thereafter, two people will work two days each month to keep ahead of the continuous litter problem.

According to an estimate completed by the Trustees, the initial cleanup will cost CHL $1,421. Thereafter, the annual cleanup cost to the commercial landfill will be about $3,410. The estimate was proposed by the Trustees, although a firm cost will not be calculated until the project actually begins.

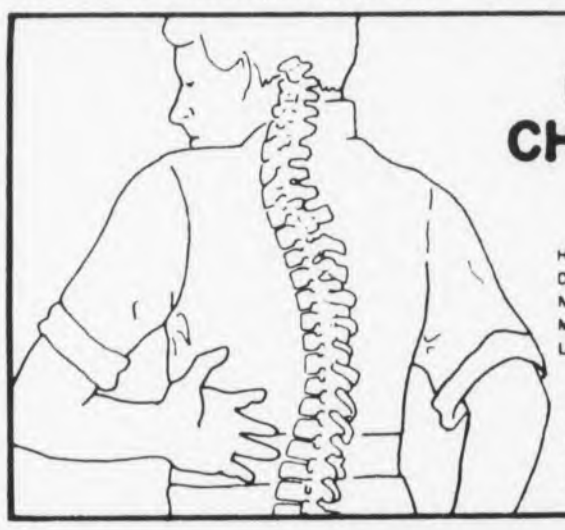
Under the terms of the agreement, the Trustees will hire and supervise the workers, and CHLwill pay the cleanup costs.

The Trustees notified selectmen last week about the agreement. They noted the work will begin as soon as the snow is gone from the property.



Voter registration hours

There will be special registration days for the April town meeting and town election.



Evening registration sessions will be held the second and third week before the close of registration. The special times include Tuesday, March 10, 7:30 to 9 p.m. and Tuesday, March 17, 7:30 to 9 p.m.

There will be a Saturday registration on last Saturday before close of registration,March 21 from noon until 8 p.m.

Monday, March 23 is the last day for registration for the town meeting and town election. The hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Skipper Tom Larson lays in a basket to seal a division victory in last week's All-Star game. Bryan Edwards also had a spectacular game for the winning team.

Sullivan said, "then why can't thy prove it (the insurance policy) exists within two days? If something happened there tomorrow, we'd have to find out about it. We keep extending, and extending and extending. We should have had this policy eight weeks ago. The drop dead date was three months ago."

Health board chairman C. Michael Bliss explained that if the policy is not presented to the board, the members will issue an enforcement to close the landfill. "Then we will go to court the next day," he added.

Landfill operator Paul Barry said he has not received a copy of the policy, although Atty. Moerhke has assured him it does exist.

Health board chairman C. Michael Bliss explained that if the policy is not presented to the board, the members will issue an enforcement to close the landfill. "Then we will go to court the next day," he added.

Special counsel Leon noted, "DEQE will be very interested to see a violation of the site assignment," noting that enforcement of the closure would not require police assistance. The attorney noted that insurance coverage should include the proposed treatment facility which is being designed to treat the leachate from a proposed expanded area within the landfill.

There was more bad news Monday night for Cohasset Heights. Camp, Dresser and McGee engineer Ralph Preble reported that well monitoring tests conducted by the landfill engineers, GHR Associates, were burdened by procedural problems.

The health board has employed CDM to conduct split-samples of the well sites because of the erratic test results completed by GHR. Preble reported to the board Monday night that "there are some problems with the sampling. They are not stopping to think. It's not that they're inexperienced, but some aspects of their sampling is not being followed through and they're not watching what they're doing," he stated.

Preble figured after watching the sampling by GHR, that the landfill's engineers, "just didn't think" while taking the samples. He agreed with operator Paul Barry that the erratic results do him more harm than anyone else.

In answer to a question whether contaminated chemicals are reaching Brass Kettle Brook, Preble said at this time there is no evidence to suggest that. But William Baird of Red Gate Lane recommended that tests should be conducted to quantify how much water leaves the landfill to the town's water supply.

Fair Oaks Lane resident Mike Sullivan suggested that two engineering firms be employed to work independently on the project. "With something this dangerous, we should have another independent engineering firm analyze the potential damage to our water supply," he stated.

Landfill operator Barry, after sitting through an hour-long discussion, finally broke his silence, stating he was "wound up."

"In ten years we have not hurt the water supply and I can't see we will," he said. "I've remained since last May kind of at ease. Now I see a lot of new faces out of the woodwork, every time there's someone new. I'm trying to run a good landfill. No one wants pollution. I've spent a lot of time to try and be sure Lily Pond is safe. There are no detours to hide it. I have nothing to hide. GHR is paid to do the job right. Now I'm nervous with the answers tonight. I do not want Lily Pond damaged.

"My brother (John) and I do not want to ruin the water supply. We're relying on GHR. I do not want to contaminate Lily Pond. And BFI (Browning, Ferris, Inc.) does not want to be out there being part of ruining a water supply. They are taking trash off your streets. These are services we all need. We're being depicted as a Frankenstein, and somewhere along the line we should be given a pat on the back," he added, noting that when the insurance document is produced within ten days, "I'll be as satsified as you. "

Landfill air samples include two chemicals

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Tests have not been completed, but two chemicals have been identified in recent air quality samples taken at Cohasset Heights landfill.

Although no conclusions can be formulated until the results are analyzed, a state engineer acknowledged that a high concentration of the two chemicals would be toxic.

Toluene and xylene, chemicals commonly found in petroleum products such as oil and gasoline, have been identified in the air samples taken at the commercial landfill. Complete analyses indicating the level of concentration, will not be complete for a week or two.

Tom McGrath, an air quality engineer for the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) Air Quality Division, said the chemicals are frequently found at landfill sites. "Even though it is not legal," he stated, "you often find oil thrown into landfills. There are a lot of chemicals floating around landfills - it's a background condition of most landfills."

The tests were conducted two weeks ago by the state Air Quality Division upon request by the local health board. The board had been receiving a series of complaints from residents regarding the disturbing odor on Rte. 3A which appears to eminate from the Crocker Lane landfill.

At this point, McGrath emphasized, the tests are inconclusive. No conclusions can be expected from the state for another week or two. "Our whole objective here is to find out if there are toxins in the air. If the odor indicates there are toxic materials, then it will require further monitoring by the town. But that is going beyond my responsibilities with the testing," he stated.

If the tests indicate there are no toxins in the air, the town will simply have to deal with a "nuisance" odor, he added.

The three location samples, taken upwind and downwind of the landfill and surrounding neighborhood, must undergo a series of analyses. There is a preliminary screening and a finer analysis. Simply because the two chemicals were identified, does not mean the source is the landfill, McGrath explained. Only more detailed testing will determine the possible source of the chemicals.

In the meantime, Cohasset Heights Ltd. has retained consulting engineers, David Gordon Associates, to complete air sample tests at the landfill. Gordon told the health board Monday night that initial tests at the site have proven inconclusive. The odor has not been apparent since they were hired, Gordon stated.

The two engineers have been testing air samples at the leachate tanks, attempting to enclose the odor in a sampling trap. The tests run for four hours on a 48-hour interim.

Gordon termed the smell an " illusive odor. Some call it oil, a solvent, sewerage, or rotten egg. We have no firm hold on this yet. But it's got to be pretty strong if people can smell it in their cars in the winter."

When Carlton Howorth of Fair Oaks Lane suggested they test the air from his backyard, Gordon replied that a swampy area behind Riddle's market contains a raw sewerage smell.

Health board member John Burns suggested the air tests be conducted at the corner of Rte.3A, and King Street be tested. Health Agent Joseph Godzik concurred that most complaints seem to focus on that location.

"That's as good a place as any," he commented," with Fair Oaks averaging as many complaints."

Gordon said the concept of a night time smell is not indicative of a landfill-type of problem. If an odor emanated from a landfill, he testified, it would be continuous, not simply a nightly occurrence. "It doesn't ring dump to me," Gordon stated. "How come we're not smelling it in the daytime?"

Burns suggested that the smell could be caused by the daily removal of the landfill's leachate. He suggested the engineers sample along Rte. 3A.

"I still think the landfill is a prime suspect (causing the odor)," Gordon stated, "but I'm questioning things that don't ring dump."

The two engineers will continue to work on the problem until a solution is devised. Landfill operator Paul Barry is eager to find the source, Gordon said, noting he is open to suggested locations for sampling.

Courses offered in furniture refinishing

The Cohasset Recreation Department is in the process of developing a three or four-week, two-hour per-week course in the art of furniture refinishing, to be taught by Ken Sargent of the Cohasset Country Workshop.

The program may not begin for a couple of months. But the department is trying to get an indication of how many people might be interested in this type of program, in addition to the kinds of furniture they would likely bring to class. This information will enable us to develop a program that will meet the needs of all participants.

Call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for further details and information. Your input will be essential to the development of the program.

Health board sets smoking ban for town

There will now be no-smoking areas designated in every restaurant and municipal building in Cohasset.

The board of health voted Monday night to enforce a smoking ban in at least one section of every restaurant and town-owned building. The policy, prompted by the surgeon general's warning that secondary-smoking is dangerous to one's health, will take effect next month.

The health board held a hearing on the proposal Monday night. Two local restaurateurs attended the meeting, but voiced no strong objections to the proposal. Paul Logan, owner of Hugo's Lighthouse, explained that with a seating capacity of 600, it may sometimes be difficult to enforce a non-smoking section, because "people want a seat now, and they want the best seat available."

Board members noted that on a busy night, the non-smoking section can be moved from a previous location. There is no rule that states a non-smoking area has to be in the same location every day. The board emphasized enforcement of the policy will be flexible and variances to the rule will be available.

Francis Coffey, owner of the The Red Lion, said that in a limited seating facility such as his, cordoning off 25 percent of that total for non-smokers is a "serious problem." He recommended that the non-smoking area in that restaurant be limited to a small room at the rear of the building.

Board chairman C. Michael Bliss noted that all restaurant hostesses should be instructed to tell customers where the smoking and non-smoking areas are located. "If your patrons want a non-smoking area, I suggest your waitresses be truthful to their question and put them in that area," he stated.

Both businessmen inquired why the health board selected only restaurants to enforce the partial smoking ban. Health Agent Joseph Godzik suggested that in restaurants, the public is more likely to remain for longer periods of time. Customers linger at restaurants, whereas they leave a store more quickly, he said, explaining there is then no need to enforce a non-smoking area within a shop.

Dr. Bliss noted however, that it is against the law to smoke in a grocery store. Dr. Godzik suggested that Cohasset might take the lead in Massachusetts and ban all smoking in all public buildings. The idea was not endorsed by the board members.

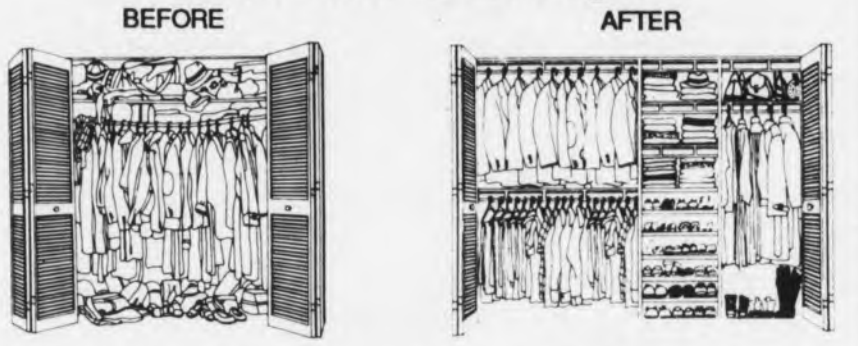
Schools will be under the same restriction as restaurants and town-owned buildings. School principals will designate a smoking area for those employees who desire to smoke while in the building, the policy states.

Dr. Godzik said he will ensure the enforcement of the smoking ban during his inspections at local restaurants.

Town workers wishing to light up will have to request permission from their department head or school principal. Special smoking areas must be designated for the employees. Smoking will also be prohibited during meetings of municipal boards and committees governed by the open meeting law.

Restaurant owners will have to post signs to direct their patrons seated in a non smoking area to refrain from smoking, and arrange seating so existing physical barriers and ventilation systems minimize the effects of smoking in a smoking area upon persons in an adjacent non-smoking areas.

According to the board, any restaurateur who permits smoking in a designated non-smoking area shall be subject to a fine of not less than $25 or no more than $100 per offense.



Furthermore, the wilful failure of the restaurateur to comply with any provisions of the regulations would be subject to a fine of up to $200 for each day of noncompliance and/or suspension of any license issued by the board of health.

The smoking prohibition also would not apply in cases in which an entire room or hall is used for a private social function and, during the course of the function, is not subject to the full control of the proprietor or person in charge.

Restaurateurs may seek variances from the board from some provisions of these regulations, if they feel enforcement would be a "manifest injustice."

Advisors and school board about $50,000 apart

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The school committee and advisory committee do not see eye-to-eye on the school budget this year.

"Your budget, as it is now, is very high compared to other town departments, and to what we feel the town has to spend," advisory committee member Jane Goedecke told the school committee Monday.

"Much of the disparity here, has to do with salaries," she said. "In fact, the cost of living increase for town employees in general, we think is too high. All of our money this year is going to salaries. Nothing will be left over."

Goedecke explained, the advisory committee expected an increase of 6.6 percent in school salaries, per the contract agreed upon by the school dept. and the teachers association. Salary adjustments projected in the school budget, however, show an eight percent increase.

With each percentage point representing about $40,000, the difference between what the advisory committee expected and what the school dept. projected amounts to about $50,000, according to Supt. Stephen Hart.

The school dept. will seek approval of $4,855,710 in operating funds for fiscal year 1988, $3 million of which is slated for salaries. The budget figure shows a $363,584 increase over last year's appropriation of $4,492,126.

The $50,000 disagreement between the advisory committee and the school committee regarding salaries, represents about 14 percent of the school budget's total projected increase.

Hart explained, the advisory committee did not take into account step increases of some teachers and aides, or the return of teachers who were on leave, replacing lower-salaried substitutes.

"We need to do a lot of paring," Goedecke told the school committee. "Don't go into next week's meeting thinking this will be easy."

Hart noted, the school dept. is inclined to select "materials" for elimination from the school budget, before salaries or programs.

"We feel we have adequate staff for our programs," Hart said. "We hope not to have to cut any programs and we're hesitant to go lower on staff, but everything has to be looked at when you're dealing with that amount of money."

The school committee concentrated Monday on the departmental budgets for art, music and foreign language.

The art dept. is seeking $800 worth of new equipment, including two 35mm cameras, a potter's wheel and a kiln. Teacher Colleen Lucas also has proposed the addition of an art and music history course.

The music dept. has requested $1,925 for a "boom box" cassette deck, a drum machine and four keyboards. Teacher Steve Shirosky explained, the department has only three keyboards for its popular keyboards class.

"Maybe we should look at Hingham and Scituate," commented Joseph Nedrow, school committee chairman. "Where they offer a course in the fall, maybe we could offer it in the spring and buy some of this equipment jointly. We have to keep looking for ways to stretch those dollars."

The foreign language dept. will continue its book-buying program to "keep teachers from getting bored and keep the teaching technology up to date," according to dept. head Paul Narkiewicz. The program has a price tag of $2,218.

Hart addressed the special needs budget, noting the dept. plans to purchase a new computer. "Special needs tuition costs can be staggering to a small community," he said. The combined tuition costs for day school, residential school and the summer program amount to $153,334. Special needs transportation costs are projected to be $22,500.

Residential tuition costs, projected at $45,030 are partly reimbursed by the state at present. That reimbursement has been proposed for passage into law, but it is not now guaranteed.

"I wish I were optimistic that everything we've proposed is approved,"Hart said, "but we have to look at the realities."

Aside from the regular school budget, the school dept. voted to insert three articles into the April town meeting warrant, with a total price tag of $580,000.

The schools are looking for $80,000 for the purchase of three school buses, two 65-passenger buses and one 9-passenger vehicle.

The school dept. also is seeking $200,000 for the replacement and repair of "the window wall of the front sections of the two classroom wings of the senior high school," and for the installation of "light-controlling devices" for the same areas.

Finally, the dept. will ask Cohasset voters for $300,000 to renovate seven science laboratories in the junior/senior high school.

According to the advisory committee, school repairs rank fifth on its list of priorities, behind sewers, a transfer station, police/fire station renovations and a town hall addition.

The school comittee and advisory committee will lock horns Monday, March 2, at 9 p.m. to try to work out a budget compromise.

"At our next meeting," Nedrow said, "we will either agree to disagree, or we'll hit a bogey."

In other business, the school committee denied "with regret" a request to extend a leave of absence for Ruth Dalbeck, a music teacher at Deer Hill School.

Dalbeck has been absent since the beginning of the school year. The committee agreed, she could return in three weeks or apply for a position in the future without prejudice.

UMass application deadline

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-3rd Plymouth District) released information this week regarding applications for freshman admissions next fall to the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

"High school seniors who are interested in attending U. Mass.-Amherst should be sure that their applications reach the Admissions Office by the March 1 deadline," explained Rep. Murray. "Because of the brisk competition for acceptance, the Admission Office is strict about the March 1 cutoff date. It would be a shame if individuals were eliminated from consideration due to late applications."

Applications for undergraduate admission are at an all-time high. While 19,954 students applied to U. Mass-Amherst last fall (a 9 percent increase over 1985, a 50 percent increase over 1982), only 11,972 (60 percent) were accepted.

"The University's reputation for quality is growing rapidly, causing a dramatic increase in applications and higher standards for acceptance," said Rep. Murray.

The SAT scores of entering freshmen are on the rise. Members of the Class of 1990 have an average combined SAT score of 1022 which is 17 points up from 1985, 50 points up from 1982, and 100 points above the state and national average.

"For those individuals interested in transferring to U. Mass.-Amherst next fall, the date to remember is April 1," concluded Murray.

Merrill a liason for business . . .

Presently, Merrill is working to bring a Hollywood-style preview of "The Witches of Eastwick" to Cohasset.

"We're planning a preview for sometime this spring," she said. "We're in the talking stages now with Warner Brothers. If we get the chance for that special evening, the proceeds will go to benefit the community."

ine community, really. It introduces new residents to Cohasset, providing tax revenue for the town and volunteers for organizations such as the Boy Scouts, library and consignment shop.

"I feel whatever you do in business is recycled back into the community," she explained, "Business provides the citizens of the community with the opportunity for personal growth, and the means by which they can enhance themselves and their surrounds."

Merrill said she has enjoyed working as a member of the board of directors of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

"It provides a good liaison between the town and the business community," she said, "They should be able to work together towards retaining the unique charm that is Cohasset and yet, keep abreast with the natural growth that's going on here."

Merrill has chaired and co-chaired the popular White Christmas festivities for the past couple of years for the chamber. "I think the community has enjoyed it. It's a lot of work."

Candidates Corner

Lot W. Bates announces

To the Voters of Cohasset:

I am announcing my candidacy for the Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners. My name is Lot W. Bates, son of Lot E. Bates who is the present Water Commissioner.

I am thoroughly familiar with the construction of on-site sewer systems and public sewer facilities. For seventeen years I worked with a local contractor specializing in excavating and installing leaching areas and sewer connections. I also worked on the construction of a large municipal sewer plant in Danvers, MA., the Cohasset Water Treatment Facility and was super-intendent of a major school building in Plymouth, MA.

As you are well aware, the planning and construction of proper sewer facilities for Cohasset is years behind schedule This grossly neglected town program should be accelerated and aggressively pursued and I would like to take part in the process.

Much has been said about the Hull connection, but essentially no detail has been presented to the public. I want what is the best solution for Cohasset. If the Hull connection is economically feasible and will take the necessary gallonage for the foreseeable future, it ought to be pursued. If not, an alternate plan must be devised.

One of my first concerns is the Hillside and Veteran's Development, along with other top priority areas which are inundated with sewer problems.

I was born in Cohasset, graduated from Cohasset High and East Coast Aerotech. I am deeply concerned with the welfare of my native town and I want to have a part in solving what is probably its most pressing problem.

Lot W. Bates

around town

☐ Wasn't it nice to see Andrea Merrill rewarded for all of her efforts "around town"! She certainly is a busy gal, between her real estate work and her work at the Consignment Shop. (Next time you go by the shop, take a look at the window, that's all of her handiwork, beautifully done!) She received the Forrest E. King Memorial Award, given in honor of the late Forrest E. King. The Chamber of Commerce voted on the honor, which consists of one "who demonstrates the highest standards of business ethics, management, employee and public relations and civic responsibility." Mr. King's daughter, Valerie, presented Mrs. Merrill with the award.

☐ Derby Academy held elections recently, and announced that Patricia Leggat was voted vice president of their Board of Trustees. She has been a member of their board since 1983.

☐ That Cohasset girls'basketball team just keeps winning! Over the vacation they played in the Hall of Fame Tournament held at Massasoit Community College and came out the champs! They surely are to be congratulated, and we wish them well in the state tournament. They play their first game tonight, go see this team of wonderwomen in action, you'll be glad that you did! Check the paper for the time, the place is CHS.

☐ Teddy Cox will be celebrating his "Jack Benny" (39th) birthday on March 2, and he has chosen a nifty place to do it. He will be at Disney World in Florida and hopes to get in a few rounds of golf with fellow Cohassetites while he is staying there. Have a wonderful birthday and a nice vacation, Teddy.

☐ Congratulations to Steve Keating, the last of Margaret and Gerard Keating's "brood" to be married. He will marry Cynthia Chase in the summer... Margaret will be like the little young lady that lived in the shoe, when it comes to remembering all of the children's anniversaries, their children's birthdays, etc. And she will do so happily, of that we are sure.

Scott Lyon vigorously disposes of the remaining snow which covered the multitude of stairs at St. Stephen's. (Alan Chapman)

☐ Tonight is a good night for all of you senior citizens, you get to see the Cohasset Dramatic Club's presentation of Present Laughter. The van will drive you there, and it sure sounds like a grand production. Everyone can get in on the fun over the weekend, be sure to include it on your agenda.

☐ The list keeps growing for voters to chose from in the up-coming election. We will have to study the candidates and make our decisions, so begin now!

☐ Just ask a busy person.... Karen Kirkendall is now a real estate broker for the Gallery 360 office as well as being with the Chutemodelling agency in Boston, as well as being an aerobic instructor and soccer coach for the recreation department, a board member of the Parent School Organization and a member of the Athletic Review Committee for Cohasset High School. She supports lots of the various school functions....She is amazing!

☐ John Larkin Thompson is another busy man! He will serve as this year's United Way of Massachusetts Bay's top volunteer. He was recently elected chairman of the Board of Directors at United Way's annual meeting. He does a lot of work for this most worthy cause!

☐ Tomorrow is the deadline for the South Shore Art Center's gallery selection committee. They invite all of you professional photographers, artists and craftspeople to submit your work for jurying. Five artworks must be submitted by those of you working in painting, drawing or pastels and 10 pieces in sculpture, photography and crafts. For further information call the South Shore Art Center at 383-9548.

☐ Finally, best of luck to all of the teams as they head into the States this week. We are proud of all of you for your efforts, you and your coaches are to be praised! Win or lose, you are to be commended!!

☐ Dudley Bryan of Cohasset High School won an Honorable Mention award in the regional competition of The Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards program, the first step in a statewide and national art competition.

The program is sponsored by The Boston Globe and administered by The Artists Foundation in Boston, a non-profit organization committed to the promotion of the creative arts.

☐ Let us know your news, there should be plenty of vacation news to report and everyone loves to hear about it.

A time to listen

The town election is upon us. And it appears to be a hectic one.

With six candidates for selectmen, this promises to be a busy season. As many people have noted, elections, like the weather, seem to arrive in cycles; one year there is a draught, and the next year it's a flood.

Why would anyone want to run for public office? There are as many reasons as there are personalities in this town. Some people are simply altruistic. They are grateful for the life they have here in Cohasset, and simply desire an opportunity to express that gratitude. Even in this opportunistic age, there remain many people who love to give. They are happiest when they are helping others, when they join neighbors in a common effort.

There are many gifted people in this town. They love to join friends in organizations and committees. They are intelligent and seek opinions and expressions with other knowledgeable persons. For the most part, volunteer organizations in Cohasset are thriving because of the spirit of community, of giving and of generosity in our neighbors.

And this is still the main reason why residents seek public office. They genuinely care about this town and aspire to nothing more than sharing their knowledge and experience with others.

Members of a town board or commission should always be aware that they are no more worthy than the people they serve. They are sitting upon that committee only to serve, to listen and to assist. Lofty attitudes and selfish platitudes have no place in the government of our town.

Surely, there are those who aspire to public office for more insignificant reasons. There are those who feel an empty sense of power by guiding a segment of our population. There are those who feel election to public office is cause for a personal crusade, without regard to public welfare.

Cohasset is not unique and there will always be those sorts of selfish leaders in every community. A place on one committee is viewed as a stepping stone to more powerful positions within the town.

But those people are a minority, we feel. Looking over the list of candidates, we see neighbors whose only aspiration is to step forward and help. From a local businessman to a longtime resident; from an engineer to a corporation manager, there are many people in this town with the expertise and knowledge to keep this town on course.

For the next few weeks, it will be our privilege to publish statements from the local candidates. We urge all our candidates to take advantage of this forum and to openly address the concerns and issues of our community.

And it is up to their neighbors, the voters of this town, to remain aware of how those issues are debated. It is surely bound to be an interesting few weeks in Cohasset.

Good luck to us all.

Robert Durkin, CHS football co-captain, was recently honored by Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray with a resolution passed by the House of Representatives.

Durkin honored for record season

Majority Leader of the Massachusetts House of Representatives Charles F. Flaherty recently congratulated Robert Durkin, co-captain of the Cohasset "Skippers" varsity football team.

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, 3rd Plymouth District, presented the resolution to Robert recently in the House Chamber. Phil Pisano, his coach, and John Durkin, his father, attended the ceremony. A full House of Representatives gave Robert a standing ovation for his outstanding achievements.

The Resolutions read as follows:

Whereas, Robert Durkin the Co-Captain of the Cohasset "Skippers" Varsity Football Team broke the 20 year old record of Walter Sweeney of 124 points scored in the season by scoring 190 points, the most points scored since 1978 and the second highest point total in the State of Massachusetts, and he gained 1416 yards in the 1986 season; and;

Whereas, Robert Durkin is an outstanding scholar maintaining a 4 point average in his school work at Cohasset High School; and

Whereas, Robert Durkin is an outstanding young man, modest and humble crediting his coaches and teammates for his sucess; and

Whereas, Robert Durkin has brought great credit upon himself, his parents, his school and his team; therefore be it

Resolved, that the Massachusetts House of Representatives congratulates Robert Durkin on his outstanding achievements and extends its sincere best wishes for continued success in his future endeavors.

TV should not succomb to deception

(The following is a statement prepared by M. Rita Burke of Windy Hill, a board member of "Morality in Media of Mass. Ed.)

To the editor:

I have high hopes that TV will devise a constructive method to combat the life-death threat of AIDS and will not succumb to the false notion of condom advertising as "safe sex."

After the relentless efforts of Planned Parenthood, condom information does not need to be advertised. The profiteers in this flawed effort will be the sexual industry complex and TV stations; certainly not the public.

The viewers will be the big losers for they will be forever marred after having to witness the wholesale public surrender of "good behavior." George Will, the columnist, called such a sellout "an Appattomatox." A decision by TV to accept condom advertising would be another landmark decision such as the Jan. 22, 1973 legalization of abortion decision by the Supreme Court. The fallout to date is twenty million plus abortions and abounding immortality.

TV condom advertising gives approval for all kinds of sexual behavior. It was promiscuity that caused our present problems.

We in the viewing audience expect TV to embark on a constructive effort to combat the AIDS crisis. We desperately need this powerful medium to tell the true facts about AIDS and then to beam the message that we must change our sexual behavior. We need to be told that we cannot simply proceed as before with only a slight modification-a condom-to counter the AIDS debacle.

Viewers live today with the awful fruits of moral liberation and sex proliferation all about them. They look for the media's help in the face of the facts to improve the situation.

1) One in ten has venereal disease.

2) Twenty million Americans afflicted with incurable herpes.

3) One out of four American girls will be sexually molested before age sixteen.

Letters

4) One and a half million AIDS carriers.

5) Suicide rates up 400 percent in the 15-19 age group in the last ten years.

TV has all the tools to effect change in the moral climate in America. You have it within your expertise to raise and lower the quality of your programs. Give us some decent programs if you want to affect the spread of AIDS. Writers, producers, directors all should use their talents to wean the public off the steady TV diet of sexploitation.

The desired effect can be achieved when script writers are paid to produce materials that include profiles in courage and evidence of the good use of will power in the face of temptation. Now, with one and one half million AIDS carriers in our midst, can we afford any other message?

Education Secretary, William Bennett has said it is the strong family that will bring success in school, not more tax dollars. He says research is needed to determine what has caused the traditional family to "unravel." I believe the steady diet of anti-family TV programs, in addition to the distribution of contraceptives to our children without our knowledge or permission, has contributed to family breakdown by interfering with parents' right to so inform.

Our Strategic Defence Initiative against AIDS and moral decadence is the strong family unit. TV writers can use their skills to strength and protect this irreplaceable bulwark.

We must dispel the myth that the behavior of a human being is pre-determined like the animal who cannot say no when tempted. When society learns to say no to illicit sex, drugs, excessive eating and drinking, happy days will be here again.

Please say no to condom ads and yes to decent programs.

New nation's problems demanded drastic action

By David Wadsworth
Chairman, Constitutional Bicentennial Committee

Two hundred years ago, in 1787, the fledgling United States of America embarked upon an experiment in nation-building which is being celebrated this year as the Bicentennial of the American Constitution.

In the years following the successful ending of the Revolutionary War the victorious new nation was governed by a loosely-knit form of government called the Articles of Confederation. Under the Articles the administration of government had been vested in Congress, and the states remained soveriegn entities.

New York City was the meeting place of the Congress and was the nation's capitol.

By the mid-1780s, the new nation's problems seemed only to continually worsen, and the Congress, its power to govern never intended to be strong, appeared unable to reverse the national drift toward chaos. Solutions to the problems afflicting the United States seemed further away than ever, and the nation's keenest minds feared that the final collapse of the Confederation was but a short time ahead.

In 1786 a call went out from the Annapolis Convention for a gathering of all the states to deal once and for all with the worsening situation. By the early months of 1787, most states already were choosing delegates for a meeting to be held in Philadelphia that summer.

In Massachusetts, still reeling under the impact of Daniel Shays' insurrection, Governor James Bowdoin on February 19 instructed the state's legislature to prepare to elect a slate of delegates to represent the Commonwealth at the coming Constitutional Convention. The names chosen were Judge Francis Dana, Nathaniel Gorham, Caleb Strong, Eldbridge Gerry and Rufus King, all prominent and respected leaders within the state, and their appointments were made on March 3 of 1787.

To the north, New Hampshire chose John Pickering, Benjamin West, John Langdon and Nicholas Gilman. Connecticut elected three representatives, Dr. William Samuel Johnson, Mayor Roger Sherman of New Haven, and Judge Oliver Ellsworth.

Of the 13 states, only Rhode Island, center of anti-nationalist feelings, failed to send a delegation to the Philadelphia Convention, its legislature hopelessly deadlocked on the matter when the time came to elect names to represent the state.

Of the twelve delegates chosen from New England, Dana of Massachusetts, Pickering and West of New Hampshire failed to attend the Convention. Gerry and Strong of Massachusetts and Ellsworth of Connecticut attended but never signed the finished document.

Among the illustrious national leaders from other states who attended and participated in the Constitutional Convention of 1787 were New York's Alexander Hamilton, Pennsylvania's Benjamin Franklin and Gouverneur Morris, and Virginia's James Madison and George Washington.

The delegates who participated in the Philadelphia Convention were "nation-builders" in every sense of the word, and from them came a new and revolutionary concept of government that was at once both world-shaking and uniquely American.

Solid waste proposal includes local incentives

By Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray

The House Ways and Means Committee this week reported out a $283 million solid waste disposal management plan. The proposal is expected to reach the House floor early next week.

The bill would enable the state to create a funding program to attack the problem of landfill contamination of public drinking water supplies and the present inadequate capacity for solid waste disposal. It would require testing of resource recovery facilities every 90 days and the installation of acid gas scrubbers. All incineration operations would be required to set aside 3 percent of all tipping-fees for the upgrade of pollution control equipment.

Elements include $160 million for a Waste Management Incentive Grant Program to allow DEQE to make grants to municipalities or districts for up to 90 percent of the costs of cleaning up existing and potential public water supplies contaminated by landfill leachate. Grant money may also be used to pay for 50 percent of the costs of regional landfill construction.

Fifty-million dollars is targeted for zero percent interest loans for landfill closing activities tied to a regional solution, as well as for the expansion and construction of regional facilities that would accept residential waste.

Twenty-five million dollars would be used by DEQE to award grants to cities or towns or districts for recycling projects.

Twelve and a half million dollars wold be an addition to the state superfund for DEQE to carry out emergency clean-up of hazardous waste sites, including contaminated landfills.

Twelve and a half million dollars would fund cleanup costs of contaminated, non-hazardous landfills under the provision of Chapter 21H.

Ten million dollars is for DEQE assessments of pollution caused by landfills and other disposal facilities.

Seven million dollars is for DEQE to create yard waste and leaf composting projects and to award grants to municipalities for such projects.

Three million dollars is for the Department of Food and Agriculture to create an agricultural composting program.

Three million dollars is for building an acute toxics laboratory for the testing of environmental contaminants.

There are various proposed changes to municipal finance laws to allow communities to sell revenue bonds to finance solid waste projects and to hold certain solid waste facility construction projects' costs outside the general debt limit of a municipality.

There's a proposed change in the solid waste facility siting procedure as it exists in Chaper 111 of the General Laws. A board of health would be required to base its siting approval on statewide criteria to be promulgated by DEQE. Its decision would be appealable under the provisions of Chapter 30A, the administrative procedures act.

Dramatic Society's 'Present Laughter' opens this Friday

At 8 p.m. Friday, the curtain will go up on the first of three regular club presentations of this popular 20th century comedy directed by Judy Holmes of Hingham. A second showing will take place Saturday at 8 p.m. Friday evening, March 6, rounds out the general admission performances of "Present Laughter," with a final benefit performance for the South Shore Region of the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Head Injury Foundation scheduled for Saturday evening March 7. Tickets for the three regular Dramatic Club nights are $4 and will be available at the door on those nights, also are available at Fleming's, Cohasset Center, or at the Hingham Square Book Store in advance. For information about the special benefit evening, please call 848-5353 ext. 338 or 410 or 383-9991.

Judy Holmes, one of the South Shore's leading amateur theater directors and an accomplished actress in her own right, most recently appeared on the Cohasset Town Hall stage in last November's memorable "Alice in Wonderland" as the "White Queen." In December of 1984 she directed the Dramatic Club's production of an English "panto" version of "Cinderella." In this production she directs the Town Hall premiere of the popular Noel Coward comedy.

Thursday, Feb. 26 there will be a special dress rehearsal of "Present Laughter" to which Senior Citizens are invited at no charge, as guests of the Dramatic Club. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Stage settings for "Present Laughter" are by Arthur Johnsen, and lighting effects are by Clark Young. Plan to see this highly entertaining production of Noel Coward's perennial favorite "Present Laughter."

Sarah de Lima (on couch), Joan Scorgie and Ginny Barcomb react to a scene in this week's rehearsal of "Present Laughter."

As park services increase, so will traffic

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The state will study Wompatuck traffic this spring to determine the impact on local roads, as the park looks to expand its offerings and increase use.

Jack Lash of the Dept. of Environmental Management told the Wompatuck Advisory Council Thursday his department will contract with an engineering firm for the traffic study.

"This study will inform the DEM as to the possibility of another access road into the park," he said. "Also, it will answer some long-standing questions regarding existing traffic patterns near the park, and whether or not Wompatuck is a major cause of traffic congestion on any local roadways."

Traffic presently moves into and out of Wompatuck via the Union Street access road. A Free Street Association has been formed to keep tabs on the traffic situation, because much of the park traffic flows to and from the Park from Route 228 via Free Street.

The study will figure into the state's larger program of expanding Wompatuck facilities to encourage greater use of the park. The DEM will spend at least $1 million upgrading the park over the next few years.

The addition of 604 acres to the park, of what used to be U.S. Army and General Services Administration land, has put the park planners at DEM in high gear. While it presently is busy working with other agencies removing hazardous debris from the area, the state is planning for the future.

First, the DEM will link Wompatuck's roads, trails and pathways with those on the former military land. The planners have recommended the new parcel for use by groups, such as scouting organizations.

The park planners hope to improve the present campground over several years, adding playground facilities for families with young children. No sports facilities are planned for adults, however the DEM is looking to create open space for "frolic," such as frisbee and softball games, Lash said.

A peanut-shaped, three-acre pond for swimming will be developed at Wompatuck's campground. The DEM has not decided whether the swimming area will be made available for day use, or whether it will be left for campers, he added.

"On one hand", he said, "when campers roll out of bed in the morning and see 300 heads bobbing in the water, they might not be too happy, especially since they had paid for it as campers.

"On the other hand," Lash added, "opening the swimming area to day use would increase use of the park. The question is undecided. Our plan is not set in concrete."

He noted, "If it is opened up to day use and becomes popular, traffic may get to be too much to handle at the controlled entrance, and we might have to set up a second entrance."

Lash said he believes there is room for such expansion.

If the pond is made available to the general public, it could be used in the winter for skating, Lash said. The DEM is interested in expanding programs year-round, to attract new patrons to the park.

Programs already scheduled for March include: A winter owl walk; a presentation on the past and future of the harbor islands; a lecture by the supreme medicine man of the Wompanoag Indians; and a discussion on new technology in cross-country skiing.

Traffic Officer Robert Myers of the Hingham Police Dept. keeps statistics of accidents in town and accident prone areas.He told Lash his biggest concern regarding DEM's plans, is the impact at the end of Free Street at Route 228.

A traffic light is needed there, Sgt. Myers said, but it costs $100,000 and the town meeting turned it down.

Lash commented, "One hundred thousand dollars is an awful lot for a traffic light. But if our traffic study says it is needed, I wonder if the state would supercede the town?"

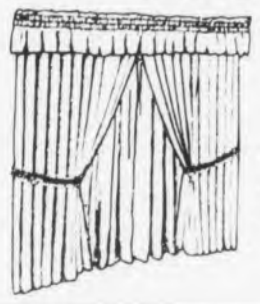
The DEM will hold a hearing at Wompatuck Park, when the traffic study is completed.

Local ice fishing

All the angles and tips about ice fishing will be shown Sunday, Mar. 1 at 5 p.m. on the cable television channel, New England Sports Network.

The cable program will be featuring a half-hour show in ice fishing at Wampatuck State Park. The program will feature Cohasset's Mark Trask, owner of Trask Tackle, as guest host. Local fishermen will include Sheldon Sladen, Ricky Barrow and Bobby Healy of Cohasset, and Eric Aronson of Scituate.

The program, which highlights the variety of fishing techniques throughout New England, featured ice fishing at the Hingham state park. The filming for the program was completed last week.



Filmed by Steve Dority of Pembroke, the ice fishing segment will instruct fishermen in the various methods and explain what fish can be caught during the winter season. The program's host is George Doucette.

Guild runs for re-election

Edward M. "Ted" Guild announced he will run for re-election to the Board of Sewer Commissioners.

Guild is an advocate of limited sewering to permit controlled development while preserving the character of the town. He was elected to fill a one-year unexpired term in 1983 and was re-elected to a full term in 1984.

Guild has been the commissions' designated representative on legal matters and has been instrumental in negotiations with the State working towards acceptance of the waste water plan approved by the June 1984 Special Town Meeting. Under a negotiated accommodation agreement, the State has agreed to refrain from its previous efforts to fine the Town while a mutually-satisfactory waste water plan is being evolved.

Guild is also active in the negotiation of an inter-municipal agreement with Hull, under which Cohasset would purchase a portion of the under-utilized Hull waste water treatment plant, and Hull would agree to accept Cohasset's waste water and septage in a long-term contract.

Guild is a Vice President of Ionics, Inc. in Watertown. Ionics designs, manufactures, installs and operates specialized water treatment systems.

Murray on issues

"I consider the Cohasset Heights landfill the most critical issue in Cohasset today. Should town boards press the state harder to try and solve the question of suspected pollution?" stated Martha Gjesteby at a recent gathering announcing her candidacy for selectman.

Gjesteby is a candidate for one of two 3 year terms for selectman.

A resident for 27 years she has served the town in many ways over that period of time.

She is a former planning board and a two-term school committee member. Gjesteby served as secretary on both boards. Also she was appointed to the capital budget committee and tri town committee-transportation.

Since 1981, Gjesteby has been Cohasset's representative to the metropolitan area planning council. Last year her peers elected her treasurer of the council, and also she participates in the land use, transportation and legislative committees. Recently, she was on the search committee that appointed the new director of the council.

Gjesteby is also a member of the citizen's advisory committee to study the feasibility of the restoration of the Old Colony railroad, and is a member of the joint regional transportation committee which is a citizen's advisory group.

Volunteer activities in the community have always been a part of her life. Some of these are three year director-membership Cohasset community center; chairmanship of the communication council of Cohasset schools, community garden club board and Cohasset boosters.

Her personal background includes education in the Boston public schools, and B.S. in chemistry from Simmons College. She is secretary on the board of the family company. Martha and Arne, her husband, live on Old Pasture Road and are the parents of four children who graduated from Cohasset schools.

"Cohasset is a special place to live in. My experience and dedication on the various boards and committees have given me a background necessary for the office of selectman. I look forward to the challenge of serving all the people of Cohasset as selectman," she concluded.

Murray holds fundraiser

Lillian M. Murray greeted a host of guests at her fundraiser last Saturday evening at American Legion Hall in Cohasset.

Murray, the first announced candidate for selectman in Cohasset thanked those in attendance.

Speaking to the group Murray said, "Along with residents of the community, we are gravely concerned about our drinking water. The taxpayers of Cohasset have spent a great deal of money to ensure a plentiful and safe water supply. The commercial landfill in Cohasset could be a potential source of pollution to our water reservoir." Murray also said, "We should have the right to close this operation down and have the DEQE determine the causes of the odors which have permeated a quarter of our town." She would like to see the town have their own monitor at the landfill. Murray said she knows that this is under the Board of Health, but feels the selectmen can work with that board to push for a solution to the problem.

Selectmen candidate Murray said, "We should have quarterly meetings with elected officials, department heads, members of commissions and committees. Meetings such as these will develop communication and dialogue between all the officials of the town and will, hopefully prevent crisis in our town government."

Murray also said she is concerned about the ever increasing number of law suits with which Cohasset is involved.

The candidate said that she has served the community throughout her years at Cohasset High School and since her graduation. (Murray is a 1975 graduate of Cohasset High.) She discussed the fact that she is the third generation of her family to serve her town and wants to be a selectman, to continue to serve the people of Cohasset.

Murray said, "I welcome open participation from everyone in my campaign."

Gjesteby candidacy

I am dedicated to quality in education-in the administrative and teaching staff and in a broad curriculum. I see the need for planning for the year 2000; setting goals, prioritizing them and revising the curriculum to meet them. I find it necessary to address the issues of the faculty regarding low morale, lack of respect and low salaries; to address the difficulty in attracting qualified teachers from a shrinking pool, and in retaining our teachers as the pull to private business becomes stronger. I would like additional exposure of our faculty to the influence of educators outside Cohasset, to new ideas and teaching methods, and to encourage our teachers and administrators to share their knowledge with their colleagues.

I am committed to Cohasset as an independent school system, with small classes and a staff and cirriculum which will meet the needs of all students. Obviously, in a small system this is costly, and we must make sure we have utilized our physical space and our staff in the most financially responsible way.

We need to generate a new spirit in which learning is important. We need to lobby at the local, state and national level that unequivocally, learning is important, scholarship is important, education is important. I feel it is essential to communicate with the taxpayers and to keep them informed about our philosophy; our programs and our goals. We need to be reminded of how not only at the local level we benefit by having an excellent school system, but also at the national level for cultural, social and economical reasons. We all profit from producing well educated children: they will affect our future and the future of the world.

I have trust in peoples' ability, both as Cohasset taxpayers and educators, to unite in support of maintaining an excellent school system. I feel the perspective I have gained from my experience in education at the public, private and international level, in addition to my sincere love for children, will help maintain a superior educational system, and keep it the top priority in Cohasset.

I will be available to meet you, answer questions and hear your concerns before the next PSO meeting at 7:30 p.m. March 12. I need to know what you are thinking, so we can address it together.

Obituaries

Carl Rose

A funeral service was conducted last week at the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home for Carl A. Rose, 94, who died Tuesday, Feb. 17 at South Shore Hospital. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Mr. Rose was the owner and operator of the family-owned Rose Carpentry and Building Co. of Cohasset. He was a life member of the Prospect Masonic Lodge in Roslindale and was a member of the Sixty Plus Club.

He lived in Cohasset for the past 60 years. Born in South Boston, Mr. Rose lived in West Roxbury for 30 years before he moved to Cohasset.

He leaves his wife of 65 years, Louise (Luippold) Rose; a daughter, Irene Knell of Florida; eight grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. He was the father of the late Charles Rose.

A Masonic service was conducted last Friday.

Memorial donations may be made to the Masonic Home, P.O. Box 1000, Charlton, Ma. 01507.

Ann Garvey

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday in St. Anthony's Church for Ann M. (Donahue) Garvey, 56, who died Sunday at South Shore Hospital after a long illness. Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne.

Born in Boston, she lived in Hyde Park before moving to Cohasset 14 years ago.

Mrs. Garvey leaves her husband, Robert Garvey; a son, Scott M. Garvey of Cohasset; a daughter, Jean E. Garvey of Cohasset; and a brother, Brian Donahue of Norwell.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home in Milton.

Frank Migliaccio

A funeral Mass was celebrated Saturday in St. Anthony's Church for Frank J. Migliaccio, 75, who died last week at South Shore Hospital. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Mr. Migliaccio was a native of Cohasset and attended Cohasset schools. He worked at the Fore River Shipyard for 20 years before his retirement 20 years ago.

He was an employee of the Cohasset water Department for 12 years.

He leaves his wife, Katherine (Monahan) Migliaccio; a son, Nicholas D. Migliaccio of Huntington Beach, Calif.; two daughters, Marie F. Tilden of Scituate and Kathaleen A. Palimeri of Marshfield; eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Donations may be made in Mr. Migliaccio's memory to the Cohasset Community center Building Fund, 3 N. Main Street, 02025, or to the Hospice of the South Shore, P.O. Box 334, Braintree, 02184.

Joseph McCarthy

A funeral Mass was celebrated Monday in St. Anthony's Church for Joseph M. McCarthy, 63, who died Friday at home after a brief illness. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Mr. McCarthy was born in Boston and lived in New Jersey before moving to Cohasset 20 years ago. He was a state senior systems analyst for the Solomon-Carter, Fuller Mental Health Center in Boston.

He was a graduate of Boston English High School and Boston College. Mr. McCarthy served in the U.S. Navy for three years.

He leaves his wife, Margaret H. (Joyce) McCarthy; a daughter, Ann M. McCarthy; three sons, Paul J. McCarthy, Gregory J. McCarthy, and David J. McCarthy, all of Cohasset; a brother, John J. McCarthy of Silver Spring, Md.; three sisters, Katherine Moriani of Cedar Grove, N.J., Mary J. McCarthy of Quincy, and Joan M. Toracco of Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Scholarship Fund, Cardinal Cushing School and Training Center, Hanover, 02339.

DON'T LET THE NEW TAX LAW CONFUSE YOU ABOUT IRA'S
The Tax Reform Act Does Not Affect Your IRA Contribution for 1986 Income
The fact is: you still have until April 15, 1987 to take advantage of all IRA benefits for 1986.

PAYING LESS TAX IS STILL AS SIMPLE AS A PHONE CALL
Pick up the phone. Or come into one of our offices. That's about all it takes to reduce your taxes on 1986 income. And a bank IRA is still the best way to build substantial retirement income safety! Guaranteed to grow and fully insured.
What Is An IRA?
A personal tax-sheltered retirement plan available to all wage earners under the age of 70½. So even if you already have a pension plan, you can still have your IRA.
EARN MAXIMUM INTEREST RATES
Rates vary and are subject to change. FDIC and DIFM protected.
What's more, not only do you reduce your tax liability for 1986 but you also earn.
It really is as simple as a phone call or visit to your neighborhood Cohasset Savings Bank.
So call. Or visit. And we'll tell you all you need to know about IRAs and earning substantial interest. And getting customized rates.
Guaranteeing your retirement security.
It's easy. It's smart. So call.

Dance, games for disabled

Learning and developmentally disabled young people from 13 to 25 are invited to an afternoon of dancing and games sponsored by the high school youth group of the United Church of Christ, Norwell (on Route 123), Sunday, March 8, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Bucky Donaher, a professional square dance caller who has called dances for all ages and abilities, will lead easy circle, line, and square dances. Everyone will be a beginner!

A donation of $2 is requested. Reservations are important, and guests are encouraged to bring a friend.

Please call the church office, 659-2887, before Thursday, March 5, for information about this event and future socials for the developmentally and learning disabled.

Golden Tape Awards

American Cablesystems community television of Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Scituate, announce the Third Annual Golden Tape Awards hosted by Channel 7's Mark Wile.

This year's black-tie event, to be held March 10 at Hugo's Restaurant in Scituate, includes thirteen judged categories such as best educational program, best community event and best producer. Awards will be presented by area judges and American Cablesystems representatives in recognition of outstanding producers and shows presented on the South Shore this year.

The Golden Tape Awards will be telecast live on cable Channel 12, Tuesday, March 10.

Roadrace registration

Plans have begun for the eleventh Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The event will be held Sunday, April 5 at 1 p.m.

The entry fee will be $7. Tee-shirts and refreshments will be given to all entrants. Registration is limited to the first 800 runners and registration ends March 31. The event attracts runners from all of New England, though the majority are from Scituate and Cohasset.

The race has become a ritual of spring and this year a Walk for Fitness will again be held at 10 a.m. for those not ready to race the scenic 10 k course. The event is sponsored by the Rotary Club and is under the direction of Peter Logan and Roy Fitzsimmons. All proceeds from the race go to support the many in town recipients of the Club's donations.

Applications are available by writing PO Box 36, Cohasset Mass. 02025 (enclose a SASE) and at many merchants around town including Harbor Liquors, Good Sports, Colonial Pharmacy and Cohasset Liquors.

Riding club awards dinner

The Cohasset Riding Club will hold its annual Dinner and Awards Night Friday, Feb. 27, at the First Parish House Hall. The pot luck dinner will be at 6:30 p.m. with presentation of awards following dinner. After dinner entertainment will be a movie. All members and guests are welcome.

Combined chamber meeting

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold a combined meeting with the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, March 11 at Kimball's By the Sea. Special guest speaker for the evening meeting will be John Cole, recognized authority on the subject of early New England homes and building construction.

Historical Society members are invited to hear Cole's illustrated talk which will begin at 7 p.m.

Cole, of Ipswich, Mass., founder of John F. Cole & Associates, is an appraiser, broker, researcher and restoration consultant, and an authority on the subject of preservation covenants relating to historical properties. He has an extensive knowledge of numerous aspects of historical properties, and a deep interest in their preservation.

The Cohasset Historical Society is working with Cole to develop a March 11 program based on local historical buildings and emphasizing the town's unique architectural heritage. Society members have been invited to attend his talk by special arrangement with the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce President Wayne Sawchuck. The early evening meeting is the first in a series of Historical Society evening programs planned for the months ahead.

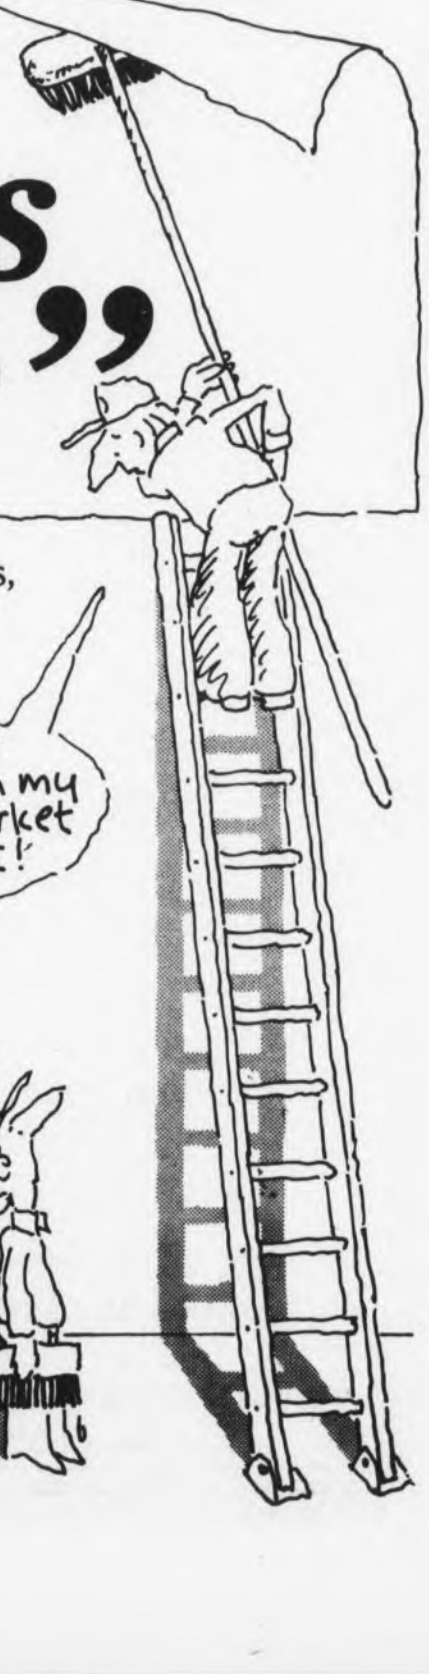
The succeeding program, planned for April 21 will be the Society's spring dinner meeting having as its guest speaker Dr. William Fowler of Northeastern University, whose subject will be the U.S. Constitution. Prof. Fowler will present a talk titled "To Form A More Perfect Union", exploring the origin and drafting of our nation's most important document, written 200 years ago this year.

The Society's May meeting will feature a look at art and artifacts from the Society's own historical museums, taken from the extensive collections found in the Maritime Museum, Capt. John Wilson Historical House and the Caleb Lothrop House.

Cohasset performance

Seats are still available at the March 7 performance of Noel Coward's "Present Laughter" to be presented by the Cohasset Drama Club. The performance will benefit the South Shore Region of the state's chapter of the National Head Injury Foundation.

Tickets include a champagne reception that will be held at Kimball's By The Sea immediately after the performance.



Prizes which include a weekend in Ogunquit, Maine, gift certificates to local restaurants, and sporting goods will be raffled that evening.

The National Head Injury Foundation is an advocacy organization designed to help support the families of the head-injured.

Those who want to purchase tickets for "An Evening of Champagne and Laughter" should call Ms. King at 848-5353, extension 338 or 410, or the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Head Injury Foundation at 898-7114.

"Hub's top savings rate: 6.25%"
—The Boston Herald September 5, 1986

At a time when other banks are actually reducing rates, a passbook savings account that pays more than most money market accounts is big news:

The Hibernia Savings Bank now pays 6.25% on its regular savings accounts. (That's an annual yield of 6.54%, based on continuous compounding.) It takes $100 to open one and you only need to maintain a balance of $10 to earn the rate.

That's better than my money market account!

If you like the convenience, safety and simplicity of regular passbook savings —and want rates that are better than most money market accounts — stop by and open an account with Hibernia.

It will be good news for both of us.

Dramatic Club tryouts

Open tryouts for Michael Cristofer's "The Shadow Box," the Cohasset Dramatic Club's spring show, will be held at the Cohasset Town Hall,Sunday afternoon, March 1 from 2 until 5 p.m. and on Tuesday evening, March 3 from 7 to 9 p.m. Harry Heineman will direct with Bob Julian as associate director. Play dates are May 1, 2, and 3.

"The Shadow Box" is about three people who are terminally ill — Joe, Brian, and Felicity, and how they and their families cope. They live in three different cottages on the grounds of a sanitarium.

These are all good parts, and of about equal length and importance. There is also the part of the Interviewer, but we only hear his voice, he never appears on the stage. Although the subject matter of "The Shadow Box" may sound depressing — and may, in fact, depress some people — over all the play is an affirmation of life.

Scripts are available for sign out at the Pratt Memorial Library in Cohasset.

Unicorn Singers concert

The Monks of Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham invite the public to join them in the Abbey chapel of sacred music sung by the widely respected Unicorn Singers to mark the beginning of the Lenten season. The concert will begin at 4 p.m. on Sat., March 7.

The highlight of the program will be a centennial performance of the hauntingly lyrical Mass in D Major, Opus No. 86 of Antonin Dvorak, for chorus, solo quartet and organ. First performed in 1887, it was commissioned by a personal friend of Dvorak for the consecration of the family chapel on his estate in Southwest Bohemia. It will be sung in the original version with organist Carolyn Curtis accompanying. The Glastonbury chapel setting is similar in size to the space for which it was originally intended 100 years ago.

The program will include as well, the Missa Brevis of Dietrich Buxtehude, Henry Purcell's 8 part anthem "Hear My Prayer" and the electrifying Mass in G Major by Francis Poulenc. The latter work, written in 1937, is noted for an exquisite soprano solo featuring Denise Rachel. It concludes the a cappella first portion of the concert.

If you wish to attend please call the Abbey at 749-2155, since seating is limited. A donation at the door to help defray production costs is suggested.

Those attending the concert will be invited to join the Hingham Monks, if they wish, in singing Vespers of the Lenten season at the conclusion of the performance.

The same program will be repeated Sunday, March 8, at 4 p.m. at Saint Stephen's Episcopal Church on Cohasset Common.

Irish dancers to entertain

Irish step-dancing — which is possibly the origin of tap-dancing — is danced with arms held by the sides with an unsmiling earnestness. At Hugo's Lighthouse on Friday, March 13 — that's a Friday night from 9:00 p.m. 'til 1:00 p.m., you will see step-dancing done by award-winning dancers from Maura Nevin's South Shore School of Irish Dancing done in traditional costume.

The Cohasset PSO (Parent School Organization) is sponsoring "St. Patrick's Fling", which will also feature the WINDJAMMER band, a raffle of Irish treasurers, free hors d'oeuvres and a special prize for the "greenest person.

Tickets are $20 per couple and can be purchased at the door or from: Claudia Story, 383-6976; Ralph Kidder, 383-6873; Bernadette Stockinger, 383-2061, or from any PSO board member.

March 13 will be the "wearin of the green" at Hugo's!

Area rugs needed for the parsonage - to cover those beautiful newly refinished floors. Please call Judy Ritts (383-1422), if you have any rolled up and stored somewhere.

Needed: The donation of a used Apple II (e or c) computer for use in the office until research on what is required to meet our needs is complete (possibly mid-summer). If your office or home is upgrading, this is a great opportunity to be of service to your church's more effective ministry! Do call the office if you can help or have any leads.

New Members to be taken in during worship Sunday, March 1. If you have interest (or know of someone who might), please contact the church office right away. We will conduct an orientation meeting for those who join on March 1, those interested in future membership and the confirmation class sometime in early April.

News of the Community:

H.O.W. Helping Other Widows And Widowers: H.O.W. is a group of widows, widowers and supportive friends who help themselves by reaching out to others. We meet twice a month (usually the first and third Tuesdays) at 7:30 p.m. at Old South Union Church (across from South Shore Hospital). It is a non sectarian group. We have both educational meetings on topics of concern to widows and widowers and mutual support group meetings. Transportation can be arranged. For more information, please call Mary (335-3862) or Nancy (383-0987). Please come if you feel you need help or are willing to reach out and help others.

Lutheran services

House of Prayer Lutheran Church, 916 Main Street, Hingham, will celebrate The Transfiguration of Our Lord on Sunday, March 1, with worship service at 9:15 a.m. Word and Sacrament on this day invite us to turn toward Lent and Easter, that we might share Christ's light. Pastor Alan Grant's sermon topic will be "57 Varieties." Cantor for the service will be Volker Hausin.

Coffee will be served following the service. Sunday School and Adult Forum will begin at 10:40 a.m. The Adult Forum for the next six weeks will be a journey through the book, "The Road Less Traveled" by Dr. M. Scott Peck. In his book, Dr. Peck a practicing psychiatrist, suggests ways in which confronting and resolving our problems—and suffering through the changes—can enable us to reach a higher level of self-understanding. Dr. Peck discusses the nature of loving relationships: how to recognize true compatibility; how to distinguish dependency from love; how to become one's own person; and how to be a more sensitive parent.

To mark the beginning of the Lenten season, Holy Communion will be celebrated on Ash Wednesday, March 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Coming Event at House of Prayer: Saturday, March 14, 7:00 p.m.—"Irish Night"—Save the date and be sure to sign up early for a traditional Irish dinner with all the trimmings followed by special entertainment with a true Irish flavor!

Beechwood Church services

The Beechwood Congregational Church invites everyone to worship Sunday morning at 10:45. Pastor is Stephen S.J. Hall. Child care is provided.

The Sunday School meets from 9:30-10:30 a.m. Children in grades K-8 are invited to attend. Friends are always welcome.

The church will hold its annual "World Day of Prayers" fishchowder luncheon Friday, March 6 from 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Children in grades 6-12 met with Pastor Hall Sunday evening to discuss plans to start a youth fellowship. Any young people in that age bracket from the neighborhood are welcome to come next Sunday at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Come make plans and have some fun.

The altar flowers this past week are given in loving memory of Emma Damon whose ministry of music provided joy from this congregation for many years. Let us be grateful for her life and be thankful that she chose to share her talents with us.

Pastor Hall will be at the church Saturday morning from 9:30 a.m.-12 p.m. as usual. Drop by, say hi, and share your thoughts for more growth here at Beechwood Church. Things are happening!

Playoffs begin this week for CHS teams

By Lisa Schumaker
Mariner Correspondent

It's tournament time once again, and the girls' basketball team is ready! After finishing the season with an impressive 18-2 record, Cohasset was seeded as the top team in the state in Division 3, and is favored to win the entire state tournament.

In preparation for the playoffs, the Skippers participated in the Hall of Fame Tournament held at Massasoit College over February vacation. The girls won the tournament decisively by crushing Hingham and Plymouth Carver.

With these two victories, the girls proved that they are ready to play and beat the winner of the Blue Hills/Harwich game. This contest will mark the quarterfinals of the tournament and will be held in Cohasset on Thursday. Cohasset will be looking toward Maureen O'Leary, Cindy Spooner, and Margie Murphy for leadership in this game and in the tournament. Hopefully, the Skippers will be able to fulfill their final goal and bring home a state championship title for the first time in the history of Cohasset girls' basketball

BOYS' BASKETBALL

After being plagued with many injuries all season long, the boys' basketball team was very happy to find itself seeded fifth in the state tournament. Despite suffering many setbacks, Cohasset finished the regular season with a record of 16-4 and finds itself with a home-court advantage in the opening round of the tournament when the Skippers face Holbrook on Wednesday. If the boys beat Holbrook, they will most likely play Medway, the team favored to win the entire tournament.

Coach Ed Minelli feels his team's skills are very good, and that only injuries can hold his team back from winning everything. Injuries have plagued starter David Shumaker practically the entire season, and they have also slowed down Michael Smith, Tom Carson, Bryan Edwards, and David Shultz. Minelli believes that rest and help from off the bench will both be imperative in order to keep Cohasset's playoff hopes alive. However, Minelli is still very optimistic about the tournament and feels a third straight state championship is very much within Cohasset's grasp.

HOCKEY

Yet another Cohasset team willbe participating in the state tournament, the hockey team! With a record of 12-6-2, the boys were seeded eighth in Division 2 and face the ninth seeded team, Durfee in the opening round of the tournament. If the boys beat Durfee they will face the top team in Division 2, Canton, on Friday at Boston University.

The boys will be looking toward the backbone of their defense, goalie Pete Sandblam,for leadership in the tournament. Cohasset is also expecting great games from Craig Mulcahy, Dan Pompeo, and Todd Fitz-patrick in the tournament. All the boys on the team have worked very hard all season long and hopefully their diligence will pay off in the playoffs.

WRESTLING

The Cohasset wrestling squad participated in the Division 2 South sectional tournament this past weekend and did very well. The Skippers placed three wrestlers in championship matches and one wrestler, Doug Bennet, walked away from the tournament with the South sectional title and qualifed for the state tournament. Liam Stanford and Glen Froio both made it all the way to the finals of the tournament and were both within one match of capturing titles for themselves.

Three-week seminar on coastal resources begins March 10

A three-week seminar on coastal resources will be held March 10, March 17 and March 24 at the Ventress Memorial Library, off Route 139, Marshfield.

The program is sponsored by the Mass. Audubon Society's South Shore regional center, 2000 Main St., Marshfield.

Ken Rebak of the department of marine fisheries will speak about the North River salmon project at the first meeting.

Speakers for the following sessions will include Janet O'Brien of Hanover, executive coordinator for the North River pollution control project; Michael Hickey, a shellfish biologist for the Mass. Division of Fisheries, and representatives from the state Office of Coastal Zone Management and DEQE.

For additional information, call the South Shore headquarters at 837-9400.

Back in early November, one of our watermains broke. Flooding our Greenhouse Cafe and spoiling our oak floor that we were so proud of.
So, now the time has come for us to tear it up and fix it (and while we're at it we're going to change a few other things in our restaurant).
We're going to Re-Open ON APRIL 1st with a brand new Happy Harrigans, but in the meantime we'll be telling you about our changes here in our ad. So watch this space.

1st place—Trevor Stockinger; 2nd place—Benjamin Chittick; 3rd place—Tara Gallagher, Jill Rossi, Doug Ellinger.

Open Space
1st place—Katie O'Sullivan; 2nd place—Jessica Pyfrom; Danny Baird; 3rd place—Kathleen O'Brien.

CHS career lecture series

As part of the Career Education Program at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School, the PSO and the CHS Guidance Department have continued a Guest Speaker Program for the third year through the academic departments. The purpose of this program is to expose students to a variety of job/career possibilities available to them.

The speakers, who are mostly local residents, address a class in the academic area which closely relates to the skills necessary for that career. In this way, students may begin to understand the importance of their subjects as the foundation for successful careers.

The following is the kind of information the speakers are asked to relate to the students:

1. A description of the job, the working conditions and the present range of salaries;

2. The educational and/or technical training required to be successful in the field that is being described;

3. A description of how the speaker reached his/her present position. An outline of what a student must do to obtain a similar position;

4. The prospects of opening in the particular field over the next five to ten (5-10) years;

5. The personal qualities or character traits which help an individual to be successful in occupation.

The speakers usually bring a handout, chart, graph or audio/visual aid which may help the student to have a better understanding of the career being presented. The "aid" can help the students to stay focused on the topic and thus, be able to relate to the career more easily.

Additionally, students who study with Dr. John Packard in the Audio-Visual Department, videotape the presentation for use in the classroom.

Jean Reidy and Cynthia Hurley, PSO representatives for the Senior High School, have been instrumental in recruiting speakers for this program.

English Class Career speakers spoke in the fall. The month of February has been devoted to Math Career Education. The following speakers contributed to this very valuable endeavor: Ernest Grassie, C.P.A.; John Rolandelli, Market/Finance in Business; John Seavey, Engineer; Chris Ford, Realtor; Jack Bryant, Engineer; Jack Conroy, Peat Marwick Partner; Roger Crafts, Computer Business; Ruth Mullen, Bank Manager; Nancy Kinchla, Telecommunications; Richard Stevens, Bank President.

In March, speakers will be focused on careers in Science. If you feel you can contribute a bit of direction to students in a quandry — please get involved in this very beneficial endeavor.

Students, teachers and parents are all enthusiastic about the Career Lecture Series and hope it will continue each year.

For more information on this very worthwhile project, contact the CHS Guidance office at 383-6102.

Family film fun

The Cohasset PSO (Parent School Organization) will present an afternoon of family fun in the showing of the recent Walt Disney blockbuster movie "The Flight of the Navigator."

The film will be screened at the CHS Auditorium, 143 Pond Street on Sunday, March 8 from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The plot, appealing to every age group, concerns a twelve-year old boy who befriends aliens from outerspace and becomes the navigator of their spaceship.

Admission is $2; refreshments will be available. For more information call: Ralph Kidder, 383-6873.

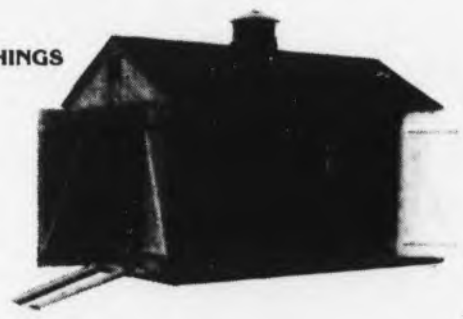
What a great way to spend a wintery Sunday afternoon the entire family can enjoy. Mark the date on your calendar now — Sunday, March 8!

"Eddie was Here"

There will be an audition and rehearsal Saturday, Feb. 28, from noon until 6 p.m. in the Senior High School Library, and again on Sunday, March 1, 1987, from noon until 6 p.m. in the Cohasset High School Auditorium, for those students interested in trying out for parts in Eddie was Here, a dramatization on the harmful effects of drugs and alcohol, which will be presented to students on Monday, March 2, 1987.

The play is the real life story of Eddie LaRiviere, an all-state pitcher from Narragansett, Rhode Island, whose long term involvement with drugs and alcohol eventually caused his death at the age of sixteen.

The play is being sponsored by the Cohasset Junior/Senior High School S.A.D.D. Chapter and the Cohasset High School Peer Counselors. These two groups are actively soliciting donations, private or commercial, in an effort to raise the $1,500 cost of production.



The show will be presented Monday, March 2, in two performances for students in grades seven through twelve (7-12); grades 7, 8, and 9 — periods 1 and 2, and grades 10, 11, 12 — periods 3 and 4, and a performance for the community will begin at 7:30 p.m. that same evening.

Nancy Sandell

I love children and have been involved in education for over 20 years. I attended the University of Minnesota and graduated in 1966 from Winona College with a Bachelor of Science in Education. I taught first grade in the public school system of Minneapolis, and then moved to Cambridge, where I taught in the Medford school system.

In 1969-1973, my husband and I were houseparents at the Dana Hall School, a private girls school in Wellesley, Mass, where I counseled and parented 30 girls each year.

Moving to Cohasset in 1973, we were here 8 months before moving to Rome, Italy. For six years, I was involved in volunteer work at the American Overseas School of Rome, and Kendale International School.

Upon returning to Cohasset in 1980, I was involved in the following:

Nancy Sandell

-President of the Senior High Communication Council
-Started the school news page in the Mariner
-Helped establish the AFS chapter and was vice president of the adult chapter.
-Helped form the Parent School Organization (PSO)
-President of the PSO in 1982 and 1985
-Currently Metco Host Family chairman for the PSO

I am married to James Sandell, an architect, and we have four children. Mason, a freshman at Dartmouth College and a graduate of Cohasset High School; Anna, an eighth grader at the High School; Jessie, a second grader at the Osgood School and Morgan, a kindergar t ner at the Osgood School.

Coffee for Murray

Mrs. Jean Manganaro, 67 North Main Street, will be hosting a coffee for selectman candidate Lillian Murray.

The coffee will be held Tuesday, March 3 at 10:30 a.m. Anyone who would like to attend and hear the candidate's views is invited.

Attention: Mary Fortuna

Dear Mary,

As you know, we recently signed a space contract with The Journal to promote our 'Conway Country' Classics Division which markets our more expensive properties in Eastern Massachusetts.

What you don't know, and the reason for this letter, is to tell you how pleased we have been with the number of inquiries we have been receiving and the caliber of respondents. Our ads run each Friday and not only are calls received that day but continue on for some two to three weeks after the ad runs. (A gentleman outside of New York City called last Thursday on a Cape Cod listing that was advertised the first week in August).

We offer brochures on most of the properties we advertise with you. This seems to be catching on as people are beginning to ask about other properties and the availability of the brochures.

And just one last note...I'd like to thank you and your staff for being so easy to work with. Everyone is always cooperative and willing to help.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Bond

The Wonderful Adventure

My name is Jonathan Chase, and I'm going to tell you about the adventure my dog, Mike, and I had when we went for a walk in the woods one day.

It was the beginning of May. Mike and I were going for a walk in the forest at the top of the hill. I packed a lunch for both of us. Mike got two dog biscuits and I gave myself a roast beef sandwich and a half-pint carton of milk. After we packed, we set off on our journey.

Mike was all excited and so was I. We were waiting all week for this day and what a wonderful day it was. I could feel the hot breath of the sun warming my back as we walked along the path. Mike was barking and jumping around, all excited about the trip.

After a while, I got hot and tired, so I stopped in a sunlit clearing to eat lunch. I handed Mike his two dog biscuits as I gobbled down my lunch. After lunch I lay down on the soft grass and gazed at the cloudless sky and told myself what a wonderful day it was.

Mike and I got up and continued our journey across the hill. We heard running water so we ran ahead. We came to a small trickling brook. I looked at the beautiful site nature made. Mike started barking. I looked up to see what he was barking at. My mouth dropped open at the sight. The sun's streams of golden light broke through the trees to shine onto a glistening gold harp.

I exclaimed, "It's true! The gold harp of infinite wishes really does exist!" I rubbed Mike's head and ears since I was so excited. I crossed the brook at a fjord and made a warm and loving wish for all. I wished that there would be peace on earth or at least peace in the U.S. or in the state of Wyoming where I live. The harp played an enchanting little melody and disappeared.

Mike and I returned and I never told anyone about that day until now.

Doorways To Anywhere

John Jones sat on his bed. "Why do we have to move?" he grumbled to himself. "Dad's job is fine here, he doesn't need a new one, especially if it means moving to Connecticut." He moved to the window and looked out over the familiar Boston landscape. John had lived in Boston ever since he was born. He loved his town and knew every brick and stone of his neighborhood. "Now," he thought, "Dad has to go and get this darn promotion." John just finished sixth grade and was really looking forward to junior high. His mother died when John was three years old. John left the apartment. On the way he yelled to his dad, telling him he was going next door.

John's best friends, Matt and Greg, lived in the next apartment building. He told them about his father's new job. The trio was soon pretty depressed.

"When are you moving?" Matt asked. John thought for a minute, then said, "I think Dad said something about next week, so I would have time to enroll in the school and make some friends there." They fell silent again.

"Hey, maybe your dad would let us visit you before school starts." Greg burst out.

"Yeah, that would be neat! I've never been to Connecticut before," said Matt.

John asked his dad about it when he got back. Mr. Jones said the boys would be welcome.John didn't mind the move so much now. It was all arranged for Matt and Greg to come for three days after the Joneses had had time to settle into their new home.

John and his dad spent the rest of the week packing everything into trunks, boxes, etc. The U-Haul men came and trucked it all off. The Jones' car followed close behind. In about two weeks everything had been given a place and John and Mr. Jones were settled in.

"Hey, this is really cool." said Matt, looking out over the land. The house was kind of small, but big enough for two. It had stained shingles and tan shutters and trimming. There were fields and woods around the house and a street leading to town. Mr. Jones would be working as an overseer in an outlet of his company. John hadn't explored the two acres of land Mr. Jones now owned so the boys planned to do it together. Soon after lunch on the first day, John, Matt and Greg set out. They planned to explore the fields first, then the woods.

"I think I remember seeing some old railroad tracks. Want to check it out?" John suggested. The others were game so they went in the direction of where John thought the tracks were. A brisk breeze reminded them that autumn was coming, but it was still reasonably warm.

"I found them!" Greg, a little ahead, called out. The others ran to join him. They had been following the tracks for an hour when suddenly Matt said, "What on earth is this!" John and Greg, who had been looking at a bird's nest, caught up with him. The thing looked like nothing they'd ever seen. It looked like a platform on wheels with a sail.

"The wind's blowing in the right direction, let's take a ride," Greg suggested. At first John was doubtful, but the other two persuaded him. So they unfurled the sail, give the sail-car a little push and off they went.

"This is fun!" John said. "But what's it for?" he pointed to a button.

"Probably it's just the brakes or something. Press it and see," said Greg. So John did. Before they knew it, they were on the same track, on the same vehicle, but definitely somewhere else. The track now seemed to be on a big pile of stones. It seemed to lead straight into clouds ahead.

"What the....." John said. All of them stared around taking in the change. Meanwhile the sail-car whizzed along, though the boys couldn't feel any wind. Eventually it stopped in front of a castle that looked like it was straight out of a fairy-tale. The boys got off.

"What're we supposed to do now?" wondered Matt. As if in answer to his question, the castle gates opened. The boys exchanged glances and went in. They found themselves in a great hall with many, many doors. The boys couldn't see an end to the walls.

"Welcome," said a voice. John, Matt and Greg looked fearfully about them.

"Who're you?" said John.

"You might say I'm the keeper of this castle," explained the keeper.

"Where are we anyhow?" asked Greg. The keeper thought and said, "This is no time, and no place. Somewhere beyond time and space."

"What do you mean?" questioned John.

"This is the doorway to all times and places. On each door you see a number. They each represent the year where you want to go. If you enter one, there will be doors marked with the names of galaxies. If you enter one, you will find doors with the names of planets in that galaxy. If you enter one, there will be doors labeled with the names of countries of that planet, etc. When you find the door with the time and place you want to go, enter it, and you will be there." The boys talked to the man some more. He explained how to go to John's house. John, Greg and Matt lost no time. They soon found their year, said good-bye and thank-you to the old man, and went through the door. Without too much difficulty they found all the right doors. Suddenly, they found themselves back in John's room!All three turned instinctively to close the last door, but it wasn't there. They rushed to the windows and door in John's room to make sure they were really back.

"That was the most bizarre thing I've ever been through!" exclaimed John.

"Same here!" agreed Greg. Matt nodded.

Although the boys tried to remember, the weird experience gradually vanished from their minds. By suppertime they thought they had just gone exploring and come back in again. The only time any of them recalled the adventure was in dreams.

Ship Wreck

"Where are we!" exclaimed Steffiny, shivering from the cold.

"We don't know, for the eighty-seventh time!" said Danny, sick of answering the same question over and over. While Steffiny, Danny, Jessica, June and Steven were sailing out on the little boat they made, an enormous storm blew over. And before they knew it, they were on an island that they had never even heard of. They had no way of getting off the island because their boat had floated away, or the pieces that were left, and they couldn't see any houses, except for a huge mansion.

"Let's go see if anyone lives there," said Steven. "Maybe they can help us, I mean if there is anyone there."

So off they went. The mansion was very dirty as they walked in. But when they closed the door and it was silent, they heard water running. "Let's go see who is in there," said Danny.

"All right," the rest of the scared kids said in a tired kind of way.

But to their surprise, when they walked in, they found a beautiful waterfall, and the most beautiful harp they had ever seen.

When Danny approached the harp, an evil witch popped out from behind a rock.

"Welcome, my darlings," said the evil witch. "I'm so glad to see you!"

"Who are you?" asked Jessica.

"I am the owner of the harp AND this castle! And you must stay in the dungeon, until you guess my name." And with that the witch let out a great big laugh, and the kids were in the dungeon.

In the dungeon, a little boy was crying.

"Who are you, and why are you crying?" asked June.

"I am Jonathon, and the witch put an evil spell on me. Someone must guess her name, which I already know, and then I am free."

"We will get you, and us free! What's her name?" asked June.

"Annamariafondalea," announced Jonathon. And with that the kids yelled her name at the top of their lungs. All of a sudden everyone was near the harp.

"Play me!" cried the harp. So Danny played 'Mary Had A Little Lamb," and they were sitting in their classroom doing math.

The Magical Harp

Long ago, there was a tale of a harp, a magical harp. It was said that the harp would take three wishes of the person who found it. Now, no one believes this tale.

"Granny, tell us the tale of the harp," Sam asked.

"Please!" Jenny said.

"OK, OK, calm down. You've heard the tale many times."

"A long time ago, it was said that there was a stream, and on a rock in the middle of the stream, was a magical harp that would take people's wishes. But, no one knows if this tale is true.

"Also, if someone finds the harp they should not move it or doom will come to them!"

Later, Jenny and Sam were discussing the harp. They decided they should go find it. They walked out into the deep, dark night. They walked many miles that night. Soon, dawn was breaking.

"Let's stop," Jen complained.

"No, we must keep going." They walked and walked. Around mid-morning Jenny stopped.

"Look, the harp!"

They ran forward and waded into the water. When they got to the harp they looked at it for a moment in awe.

Then, Sam stepped forward and grabbed it.

"Now look what you've done!" Jen exclaimed. Something pulled them into a fury of darkness.

"Help!" Jen yelled. They rolled around in this deep mist for what seemed hours. Finally, the pull let go. Jen looked around.

"We're home!"

Never had they been so glad to see home. They climbed up to their bedroom window. Then they went downstairs.

"You certainly slept late. It's almost noon." They sat down and ate breakfast quietly.

"Granny, did you know that some tales are true?" Sam said.

"Oh, yeah," she replied.

"Yes" the two children said in unison. They looked at each other and laughed.

A Deadly Melody

"Once again," said the newscaster, "another child, Debbie Yarlen has disappeared in Connecticut. She was last seen a week ago from today. It really is a mystery, these disappearances. If anyone has seen Debbie please call 1-800....."

"Shut that TV off!" said a ratty old woman sitting in a chair. "Kidnapping, kidnapping, kidnapping. That's all you ever hear about these days," she said as she got up from the chair and flung her long gray braids to her back. She stood there for a minute looking at her grandson. "Camaron Smith did you hear me?" the woman asked. "Huh, what?" asked Camaron.

Politicus — by David A. Mittell, Jr.

More than a 'Break in Transportation'

One of the nice things about this beat is that once a year I can write about a vacation and have the deviation from my given assignment overlooked in the suite of executive offices where ex-writers are made. As 1986 was a year in which a civilized trip — that is to say a train trip — could not be offered, my 1986 vacation turned into a winter-1987 retreat to a warm climate: California.

Going by train, which I have here reported ad the nauseam of the opponents of restored commuter rail service hereabouts, is for me a patriotic therapy, an antidote to depression that is yet to fail to work its magic. The train is the way to smell the roses of America in a form that frequent flyers will never understand. The essence of it is not seeing a live bald eagle from 75 yards against a Rocky Mountain backdrop, as I did; the essence of a long-distance train trip is getting reacquainted with the goodness and decency of the average American.

I cannot resist parenthetically adding that the single exception to excellent service in seven thousand miles aboard Amtrak was a 20-minute wait for a freight train to pass in Central Massachusetts. It seems that Conrail, no longer needing two sets of rails to handle freight between Framingham and Albany, New York, is, with the acquiescence of the Dukakis Administration, in the process of reducing to a single track. That means that passenger service west of Framingham is worse in 1987 than it was in 1986, and will be worse still come 1990. Whether such short-sighted state transportation thinkers are qualified to supervise the reconstruction of our own Old Colony Railroad is extremely problematic.

In his charming, curmudgeonly way, my father once dismissed California as completely understood by the term "break in transportation" — in other words a place where people trying to get as far away from where they came from as they could were obliged to stop by the Pacific Ocean. There is, I think, great wisdom in that observation. It explains California's political intensity in both its right-wing and left-wing manifestations. The left, with its cornucopia of soothsayers and "alternative lifestyles," is explained by the simple break in transportation: were there a land bridge to Hawaii one may be reasonably certain that the crazies of the left would have collected there.

On the other hand, right wing political intensity — for instance the conservatism that was eventually personified by Nixon and Reagan — can be explained by the fact that people who settle far from kith and kin tend, out of insecurity, to hold an exaggerated nostalgia for the life and values that were left behind.

All of that is probably valid. But I found California, and particularly Southern California, which I have never visited but had always looked down my long Yankee nose at, to be much more than a mere "break in transportation."

To begin with, there is the climate. Southern California in February is better than summer, it is spring; for the weary snow shoveler it is a magic time warp forward to Patriots' Day. What I found most pleasing about the climate was not the temperature but rather the smells, smells that now that I am back in the land of yellow snow I will not know again until late April.

I also found Los Angeles to be more pleasant than its given status in my preconception. The downtown, such as it is — for Los Angeles is a sprawling city with a surprisingly modest "center" — is the pits. When the bankers go home the hookers and drug dealers come out, and downtown L.A. makes one grateful for the physical and cultural renewal that has taken place in Boston since 1960.

But outside of its financial district/combat zone, Los Angeles is built to a pleasing scale. The notorious sprawl of the city has been turned to advantage, for there is not a great deal of sky-obscuring high-rise. Moreover, many of the low and mid-rise buildings that fill The Valley (I got strange looks when I inquired exactly what valley is is) have a strong Spanish influence. It is an influence that can be unspeakably hideous when Taco Bells metastasize in New England villages, but is paradoxically quite beautiful in its native context.

Another factor that makes Los Angeles pleasing are the mountains that make The Valley and keep the smog. In these mountains rich people have built houses where houses shouldn't be built — just as there shouldn't be houses on Blue Hill or on Mount Wachusett. Yet these mountains, even with their houses, give tinsel town a grounding in Mother Earth that is not appreciated when we of the East go to the movies or watch the Lakers on T.V.

* * * *

I explored California by car for eight days from San Diego to Mendocino County north of San Francisco, and from Monterey on the coast to the San Joaquin Valley that runs down the middle of the state and which is where most of our winter vegetables are grown. (Clint Eastwood's Monterey Police turned me away at the entrance of the famous 17-mile drive; it was the weekend of the Big Conglomerate — formerly the Bing Crosby — Golf Tournament.)

Eight days is obviously only enough time to glean a smattering of impressions. Among those I will remember:

. . . Even as it allegedly sinks into the sea, California is being created. I visited communities east of San Francisco the size of Weymouth that didn't exist five years ago, and I saw vineyards that, sadly, will be neighborhoods this time next year.

. . . Californians are friendly and tolerant. They did not seem to react to my strange accent, dress, and manner, but they gave me the impression that they would greet Charles Manson with the same nonchalant cordiality. "Everybody came here from somewhere — it doesn't really matter where" seems to be their credo. But I missed the local character one finds in Americans in other parts of the country such as the deep South and Northern New England.

. . . Neither the Mexican influence in San Diego and Los Angeles nor the gay influence in San Francisco is quite as pronounced as what the boob tube would have you believe.

. . . However, one does encounter a persistent undercurrent of Marxist rhetoric among a strong minority of people who were young in the early 1970's. Such people, who by the way make me mad as Hell, are present in small numbers in Greater Boston; but they seem to have gathered in larger numbers in California — your break in transportation again — where they can be heard on the radio by day and in bars by night.

. . . More attractive than the Marxists are folks whom I would put in the category of "archaic modern classics." For instance, there are places north of San Francisco where long straight hair parted in the center is still worn by beautiful young women as it was everywhere 15 or 20 years ago. In a restaurant one evening I had a poignant moment when, holding a menu at arm's length, as I now have to do to make it out, I saw a girl of 20 or so who strongly reminded me of someone I loved a long time ago. I looked at her. She looked at me. She looked away.

. . . In the same category of "modern classics:" You see cheerful codgers with long, scraggley, grey beards driving psychedelic Volkswagens, codgers and Volkswagens alike looking as though they have been on the road since Woodstock.

. . . Of course, the psychedelic Volkswagens and their denizens are the exceptions. Most of my generational colleagues there are, as they are here, full participants in the bi-coastal prosperity that marks the Reagan years. But there are distinctions. Whereas in Manhattan the stretch limousine is the ubiquitous status symbol, in Beverly Hills without question it is the Mercedes convertible. One wonders if ever we will have a political leader who will be able to reconcile the Mercedes convertible with the psychedelic Volkswagen, and more importantly," bicoastal prosperity" with trouble in the heartland of America. I hope so.

A column, like a 2 1/2-week vacation, like eight days in a state that if it were a country would have one of the dozen largest gross products in the world, is much too short. I must return to California. But next year, God willing, I will return to Colorado to that frozen Rocky Mountain river where I saw my first live bald eagle.

A Stone's Throw —— by Paul Steven Stone

And now, a word from your local power authority . . .

Dr. Boris Gudonov explaining that the atmospheric disturbance seen in the Kiev area was merely sandblasting at a local elementary school.

Announcer: Dr. Boris Gudonov, Energy Consultant to the Party Presidium, speaks for the Coalition For Reliable Russian Energy.

Dr. Gudonov: The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is using electricity at an alarming rate. If we are to have the energy we need to complete our next two or three five-year plans, we need to use all available energy sources: oil, wind, hydroelectric, solar, nickel cell batteries and, yes, nuclear.

Announcer: The Coalition For Reliable Russian Energy is a non-profit, totally objective group of concerned citizens organized to help Russia meet its energy needs within a climate of mutual trust, cooperation and nuclear fantasia.

Dr. Gudonov: A few of you, particularly those in the Kiev area, may have heard reports of a minor disturbance around the Chernobyl nuclear facility. As you can see from this photograph of a child picking daisies outside the Chernobyl plant, those reports were entirely erroneous.

Announcer: If you're as concerned as we are about anti-nuclear fanatics and losing electrical power during satellite transmissions of Dallas, write to: The Coalition For Reliable Russian Energy, Barnyard Building, Chernobyl, USSR.

Dr. Gudonov: Listen, do you know how much it cost us to build Chernobyl? Someone's in a lot of trouble if we have to turn it into a gymnasium, Comrade. A lot of trouble.

Announcer: This broadcast was paid for with ruples donated by impoverished energy users like yourself. Any connection between the Coalition For Reliable Russian Energy and USSR corporate and political interests is entirely in your own mind.

The Dragon's Dungeon —— by Claire McDonough

The other lane always moves faster on the expressway

"Why is it," I asked the Dragon, "that no matter which lane I get in on the expressway, I wind up staying in one spot the entire "Ted and Janet" program while everyone else from the South Shore has driven to Boston, consumed three cups of coffee, done two hours of work and made an exciting date for lunch?"

"I think it's one of Murphy's Laws," he sympathized. "Like 'When things just can't get any worse, they will.' "

"Murphy was an optimist," I retorted. "Do you realize it took me four hours to get home during the last snow storm? My speedometer never once registered any acceleration. I was in the high speed lane. Later I heard that a friend who drove home in one of the local lanes made it in 35 minutes. By the time I got home, she had cooked and eaten dinner, done an hour of aerobics, enjoyed a relaxing bath, and was half way through 'Gone With the Wind. "

The Dragon shrugged. "Why didn't you change lanes?"

"I've tried that," I snapped. "I learned one of the eternal verities. Not only does the other lane always move faster, if you change lanes, the lane you were in before immediately speeds up and the lane you moved to comes to a grinding halt. Works every time.

"One day I even tried leaving the expressway. After all, I grew up in Dorchester. I figured I could take a shortcut and get to work ahead of everybody. Let them come in and hear me making an exciting lunch date.

"You know what happened? Every street I remembered as being two-way was one-way. The other way. Except for one. That was closed for construction, so it was no-way."

"At least you learned something," the Dragon consoled me. "A shortcut is the longest distance between two points."

I agreed. "But," I added, staying in the same lane can be pretty frustrating. Not only does everyone fly by you, if a space does open up in front of you some little car cuts you off and the driver makes a rude gesture.

"I used to try to leave an adequate space between my car and the vehicle ahead of me, but I got cut off so many times that one day I wound up on the Cape instead of in Boston."

I brightened. "I did learn some new words, though. The man in the car behind me had been in even a bigger hurry than I was, and he hates the Cape."

"Look," the Dragon suggested, "why don't you stop fighting it. Just think of the time you're driving as your chance to catch up on the issues of the day. You can expand your knowledge of how people think. Acquire some human interest stories. Listen to a talk show. You'll come home refreshed and relaxed."

I stared at him in disbelief. "Refreshed and relaxed? Are you out of your mind? Have you ever listened to Jerry Williams?"

He had the grace to blush. "I wasn't thinking straight," he admitted. "Maybe you can find some soothing music. Sooth the savage breast. Knit up the raveled sleeve of care."

I shook my head. "Whenever I find music that I like, someone tells me that if you play it backward it says something unspeakable. I'm not sure what the effect is if you listen to it frontward, but I don't want to take any chances. If the 'Mr. Ed' theme isn't safe, I don't know what is."

"Okay," he said, "why don't you play some self-improvement tapes? You could change your whole life."

"That remark," I said icily, "implies that there's room for improvement. Any anyway, most of these tapes are subliminal. You only hear the sound of the ocean or something, while at another level your subconscious is picking up all this good advice.

"But we only have their word for it that we're getting help with weight reduction or self-image or whatever. How do we know they're not really telling us to buy more tapes? And heaven only knows what they're saying backward."

The Dragon threw up his hands. "I give up. There just doesn't seem to be a solution to your problem."

"Maybe there is," I told him. "I find I'm at a standstill long enough to read a lot of bumper stickers and even write down the more interesting ones. Like 'You're ugly and your mother dresses you funny.'

"Yesterday I saw a really great one. 'Stop Continental Drift.'

"Now there's a movement I'd stand in line to support. If I could figure out which line was going to move faster."

FROM THE KITCHEN

by JOAN PINKHAM

Country favorites and down-home Yankee foods

When Grandma was a girl and Dad a farmer, breakfast would often incude a huge wedge of hot apple pie and a chunk of Vermont cheddar. Southerners would never dream of breakfast without grits (coarsely ground white corn) and "pain perdu" (lost bread), is a favorite way to start the day in New Orleans. The Southwest offers eggs with tortillas and hot chilies, while in the Northwest the breakfast treat may be fresh poached salmon.

Fried catfish and hush puppies in Georgia, oysters in Virginia and for Down-Easters in Maine, a bowl of lobster chowder is often welcomed. Any time of the day is perfect for this chowder that is so delicious that this is a second time you have read Sue Freeman's recipe for

BAKED FISH CHOWDER

2 lbs. skinned haddock
4 potatoes, cut small
2 onions, cut small
1/2 C butter
2 1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. dill weed
1 small bud garlic
Celery tops
1 oz. vermouth or white wine
2 C each boiling water and light cream

Put everything except cream in large deep casserole. Cover and bake at 375 for one hour. Remove from oven. Add warmed cream. Stir. Serves 6 to 8.

The Ladies of Marshfield Hills got together a booklet of "150 Tested Receipes" way back in 1901 Just reading the ads in the worn, bespattered little collection is fun. The George F. Welch Co. of Scituate suggested in their ad that the good cook should "have a supply of convenient utensils in her kitchen and pantry."

B. O. Strong of Court St., Plymouth advertised ladies' separate waists and skirts, hosiery and wrappers, while a full-page ad told of J.D. Gilman Ladies' and Gentlemen's Restaurant, "being located on a direct line from the New Southern Station in Boston to Washington Street at the corner of Arch and Summer Sts."

E.W. Hall & Son of Marshfield Hills not only sold Goodyear Gold Seal Rubber Boots, but hay and grain and was established in 1853. One good cook who modestly signed her recipe simply "S.H." told how to make

GRIDDLE CAKES

One pint flour, one fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoonful soda, one scant pint sour milk or cream, one egg well beaten. Bake on a hot, well greased griddle: turn when full of bubbles and bake on the other side till they stop puffing. Sour milk is best for griddle cakes. And here is how F.H.S. made

ENGLISH PAN CAKES

Make griddle cakes, as above, the size of a pie plate, spread with butter and sugar and a little cinnamon, or with orange marmalade and pile one upon another. Cut like a pie.

Breakfast buffs who relish this first meal of the day, know that it is serious business. Nutritionists agree that it should never be skipped and should include 1/4th to 1/3rd of our daily food requirements. Napolean was able to polish off a breakfast of two hors d'oeuvres, two soups, one roast, one side dish, desserts and coffee. Franklin D. Roosevelt liked corned-beef hash topped with a poached egg and Thomas Jefferson served hot breads, cakes, cold meat, bacon and eggs, fried apples, waffles and batter cakes. A nice way to start a wintry weekend morning would be with Gigi McLean's

APPLESAUCE BREAD

1 1/4 C sweetened applesauce
1/3 C sugar
1/4 C dark brown sugar
1 large egg
1/3 C melted butter
2 1/4 C all-purpose flour
2/3 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ea. nutmeg and cinnamon
1 C coarsely chopped nuts
3/4 C raisins

Place first five ingredients in large bowl. Beat until brown sugar is dissolved. Mix together next four ingredients. Add to butter mixture, a little at a time, until batter is smooth. Fold in nuts and raisins. Spoon into well-greased pan. Bake in 350 oven for 1 hour, 10 min.

March 1 is the deadline for pesticide exclusion program

March 1 is the deadline to request "exclusion of property" during public area-wide pesticide spray programs.

This is the fourth year of the exclusion program which is based on regulations enforced by the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture to answer concerns about public exposure to pesticides.

Property owners must send a certified letter to their town or municipal clerk requesting that their property be excluded from area-wide pesticide application programs, such as mosquito or gypsy moth (by airplane or by truck).

The letter should include the following: Name, address and telephone number of the property owner, who the abutters to their property are, what spray programs they would like to be excluded from, and the method by which the property owner will identify the property line.

For ground spraying every 50 feet should be marked with either orange surveying tape or paper plates. For aerial spray programs, the property line should be identified by helium-filled balloons to be supplied by the town, district, or persons paying for the spraying.

Designations for exclusion will be effective from April 1 to March 31, 1988.

Those people who desire to be excluded from certain applications may need to contact their appropriate local health officials to determine what applications are planned for their community and to ensure that an exclusion mechanism has been established.

Copies are available from the Pesticide Bureau. Questions concerning the regulations may be addressed to the Pesticide Bureau, Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston, MA 02202, phone 727-7712. For more information, contact Janet Bond at 727-3031 or Janet Christensen at 727-3018.

Photographs taken by staff photographers and appearing in the Mariners are available for reprints.

Photos are printed black and white on glossy paper either 5"x7" size or 8"x10". Orders should be phoned in with date of publication, the page number on which it appeared, and if possible, the name of the photographer.

When reprints are ready, you will be contacted (usually about two weeks) to pick them up at the Mariner office on Main St. (Rte. 3A) in Marshfield, or the Braintree-Weymouth office, 720 Union Street, Braintree, at your convenience.

Prices are $7 for 5"x7" and $9 for 8"x10". We recommend reproduction in 5"x7" except for special purposes.

PRAYER THROUGH APPLICATION OF HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I may attain my goal, you who give me the Divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you, even and in spite of all material illusion. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine.

The person must say this prayer for 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the favor requested will be granted even if it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after the favor is granted without mentioning the favor. Only your initials should appear at the bottom. J.M. (2/25)

A Prayer to the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit, you who made me see everything and showed me the way to reach my ideal. You, who gave me the divine gift to forgive and to forget the wrong that is done to me and You who are in all instances of my life worth me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for your love towards me and my loved one. Persons must pray the prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish. After the third day wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as this favor is granted. I will never stop trusting in God & His power. M.B.D. (2/25)

Writing contest entries from the sixth grade

"I asked you to shut off the TV," the old wrinkled lady said.

"Oh, I'm sorry grandma I was just thinking about all of those sudden disappearances. There must be around five people missing now and it sort of scares me," said Camaron.

"Oh, Camaron," said the woman in a gentle voice, "don't think about it. Anyway it's late Camaron, we best get some sleep," said grandma.

That night while Camaron lay in bed with his dog Red, an Irish Setter lying on the floor by his side, Camaron dreamt. He dreamt first of his mom and dad and how they died in a train accident while coming home from California. Camaron seemed to remember how he felt when he had to move to Connecticut to live with his grandmother when his parents died. He remembered his old house in Nevada, how big it was. Thoughts about his new home and his new life with grandma flickered into his head. Then he slept peacefully for a time.

But then in about an hour those horrid feelings about the disappearances came back into his body, the same ones he had before. The feelings combined and turned into a nightmare! In his nightmare he saw a stream, just a plain ordinary stream, except it had a harp sitting on a rock near the stream. Suddenly the harp began to play a dreary high pitched saddening melody. The people who disappeared appeared abruptly and the melody seemed to put all of the people into a trance for they all walked boldly as stiff as a board over to the harp. The melody began to get louder and louder and suddenly the stream seemed to open up and it sucked in all of the people. Blood gushed up from the hole in the water.

Camaron woke up in a cold sweat, panting. Red woke up too and seemed to say "What's wrong?"

"I'm alright," said Camaron, "but a little shaken up." "It was awful," said Camaron to the dog. "It started out," said Camaron, "with this stream and ....." And the boy began to tell the whole dream to the dog. Strangely enough the dog seemed to listen!

That morning after Camaron fed Red he had breakfast with grandma. Grandma knew something had happened that night and she asked what it was. But Camaron insisted that nothing was wrong. In school Camaron found himself daydreaming about the harp and the stream. But finally it was time to go home.

Camaron found the same nightmare awkwardly coming back that night and all the nights that followed. On a Friday morning Camaron decided that these nightmares were too much. So he decided that he and Red would go out early Saturday morning (tomorrow) and they would go find the stream that was in the nightmares so Camaron could prove to himself that there was no harp and no stream that opened up and that his dreams weren't really true. And possibly after this the nightmare would go away.

That day school went by fast for a change. And soon Camaron found himself sitting on his favorite seat riding home on the bus. Just then Camaron remembered how he said he was going to find the stream. A powerful chill of fear flew into his body. But as fast as it came in Camaron sent it out of him.

That night Camaron was acting a little like himself again knowing how foolish this dream business was. Grandma noticed the change and she wrinkled up her face into a smile to show her happiness.

Camaron went to bed early that night. He slept like a baby without any dreams until now. The nightmare still came! In the morning after the dream was over Camaron found himself tossing and turning in his bed covers on the floor with Red licking his face.

"This is it," said Camaron in a rage as he got up from the floor, "this dream is making me flunk school, and it makes me act weird and it even makes me fall off of my bed at night!" "Come on Red, we are going to find that stream right now so I can be normal again," said Camaron.

Camaron was dressed in a snap. Since it was still dark out a bit Camaron grabbed his flashlight and he grabbed Red's leash. After Camaron got on his jacket, put on Red's leash, and turned on his flashlight they were off. As soon as Camaron left the front door he knew almost instinctively which way to walk towards the stream. The two trudged through fields, jumped over puddles, and walked miles and miles and miles.

Now it was broad daylight for they were walking for hours. Finally Camaron heard the sound of water. "This has to be the stream," cried Camaron. As they approached, Camaron realized that it was indeed the stream in his dreams. At that very moment Camaron saw a hideous sight. The harp!! Not being able to move because of his superior amount of fear Camaron stood there until the harp began to play that same melody! "No, this isn't happening," screamed Camaron in a mystifying almost bone shattering voice. At this point Red was barking ferociously. Camaron found himself walking toward the harp, closer and closer. He tried as hard as he could to stop walking but the music seemed to take control of his body. Now he could see the water opening up, like his dream. Each step, Camaron made a louder shreak of agony until he found himself dropping down into the hole. As he looked down he saw the corpses of the missing five people!!

Up above on level ground the melody stopped, the stream closed and went back to normal and Red in complete fright ran off.

"Once again," said the newscaster, "a sixth child, Camaron Smith, is now reported missing. He was last seen four days ago in Connecticut. His dog was found but not the boy. Please we need your help if you....."

The Kingdom Of Sweets

John stepped out of the door as the first light of dawn was breaking. The clean, white snow was falling thick and fast and it looked like there was a mist over the sea. He stretched a few times and began to run. "This is ridiculous," he muttered to no one in particular. "Absolutely ridiculous!"

Huffing and puffing he reached the town dock where he had agreed to meet Jane and Andrea. There they were, holding a bedraggled little boy by one hand. In the other was the boy's ancient "pet blankie."

"Hi! We leavin' now?" Paul screamed out his greeting.

"Shut up! Yeah, we're leavin'. C'mon. The boat's down at the jetty. Quiet now!"

The air was crisp and the four children were shivering with cold by the time they reached the jetty. John hopped aboard their homemade craft and swiftly hoisted the mainsail. Andrea, Jane and Paul shoved the little boat onto the tracks that led out to the raging sea.

"Everybody says it's not true, John," complained Andrea. "But it is! I know it is! We saw it. There's an island. With a castle!"

"Well, if there's an answer, we'll find it there," he answered doubtfully.

They had reached the open sea now, and the bitter, angry waves were like swords piercing their skin.

After several hours the water became warmer and calmer. The snow ceased and a warm summer rain fell. Sticking out their tongues and "looking ridiculous", as John said, the children tasted the raindrops and squealed with delight. Chocolatey raindrops!

"It's true! It is! There really is a Kingdom of Sweets!"

"Taste it, John! There is!" Tentatively John stuck out his tongue.

"No sir! You liars! I don't taste a thing. Nope!"

Andrea, Paul and Jane looked at each other, shocked. Was John "too old" to taste the sweets? He was thirteen and often made fun of them when they made up stories. He hadn't wanted to come, anyway.

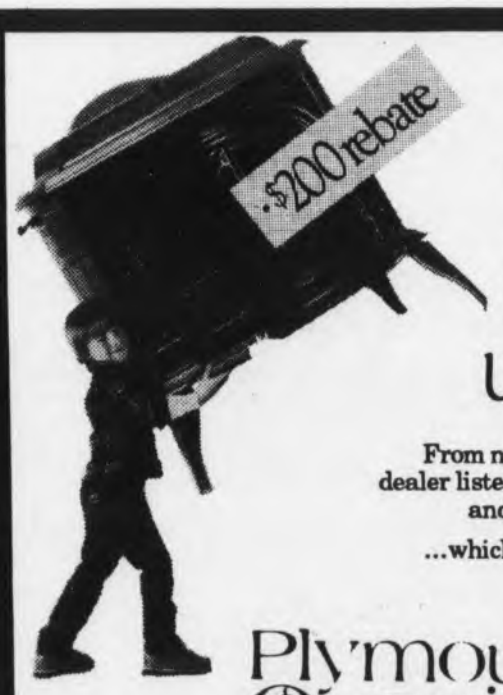
The beautiful castle was appearing on the horizon. Its turrets poked the fluffy, white clouds from which the chocolatey rain fell.

John docked the craft perfectly and they leaped onto the chocolate pier. The castle stood tall and shimmering in the sunlight. The three kids sprinted eagerly to the gate while John lagged behind.

The days they spent at the Kingdom of Sweets were all a blur for John. The others would call to him, "John, John! Taste the peppermint grass!" or "Taste the candy cane gate!" He would bend over to taste and he would see air, no sweets.

Meanwhile, Paul, Andrea and Jane stuffed themselves with all the cake, candy and ice cream they could hold.

Occasionally, they would catch a glimpse of the enormous queen or the bulging king through the frosted windows of the palace. Afraid of looking as grotesquely fat as the rulers of the Kingdom, the reluctant children had to leave. They would never forget their glorious visit.



Epilogue

The legend of the Kingdom was passed on to children and grandchildren for generations. The Kingdom has had many brave young visitors since those first few. Children have tried to return again the again to that magical place, but it is a fact that once you reach thirteen the magic is gone, just as John discovered, long ago.

Town and developer agree to Stop & Shop plan

By Jane Lane

A 24-hour Super Stop and Shop will open its doors on Rte. 3A by the fall.

An agreement was reached late Friday afternoon between the town and attorney Charles Humphreys, representing developer Donald Staszko, which gives a green-light to the supermarket after a three-year battle.

After obtaining all necessary permits to construct the 48,500 square-foot building, the developer was rebuked by the planning board. Congested and hazardous traffic would be created by the supermarket, the members stated in their decision Nov. 20, 1985.

Staszko appealed that decision to Norfolk Superior Court where it was scheduled to be heard last week before Judge Joseph Fitzsimmons Jr. But after lengthy discussions which occurred over a three-day period, an agreement was reached between the town and the developer.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson called the judgment, "a very good deal for the town. It's a very good settlement for everyone." He added that the approved building will be a vast improvement over the abandoned and unmaintained property there.

The supermarket will be located on land owned by Staszko and formerly occupied by the Cohasset Motors auto dealership and an autobody shop. Entrance into the site will be opposite from the south King Street exit on Rte. 3A.

The planning board reviewed last week a set of conditions upon which approval could be granted. Two days of negotiations between attorneys Humphreys and Henderson concluded in the final agreement signed Friday afternoon by Judge Fitzsimmons.

Atty. Humphreys said he is "very pleased" with the agreement, which he noted, is the result of three years of work. "And not a step of the way has been easy. But in the end, it proved that we could reach an accord, an agreement with the town which we believe everyone in this town will be happy with," he commented.

The attorney, who represented Staszko throughout the

Tired of losing financial battle, Winter Garden owner sells property

After fighting inflated insurance costs for the past two years, the owner of the Winter Garden skating rink gave up a losing financial battle and sold the property.

A retail boat outlet will replace the familiar Rte.3A building by the beginning of April. Despite attempts by the owner, parents and youth hockey organization members to keep the rink, a deal has been struck between rink owner James Hoban of Cohasset and Richard Garvey of Scituate.

It was a choice between selling the property or going bankrupt by July, Hoban admitted.

Garvey has signed a purchase and sales agreement with Hoban. The rink owner was reportedly asking $1.3 million for the property which is zoned light industry.

Pending results of an engineering study required by the state, Garvey said he expects the deal to be finalized and renovations completed to the building by the first of April. Garvey has purchased a franchise business, Bay Liner Boats, which features 18 to 20-foot pleasure crafts. An owner of Garvey Oldsmobile of Norwell, Garvey said this business will be entirely separate from his car dealership and he will be the sole proprietor.

For the past year and a half, Hoban entertained bids to purchase the rink which has been a Cohasset landmark for 20 years, and its adjacent acreage. And despite his preference to retain a skating rink, Hoban said the skyrocketing liability insurance costs prohibited

The Tree & Park Department has lost a maroon and black book which contains locations of Cemetery Lots. If found please contact the Selectmen's office at 383-0228.

Return town census

Town Clerk Frances Marks requests that all town census forms be returned to her office immediately.

Compliance with this state requirement provides proof of residence to protect voting rights, housing for the elderly and related benefits as well as providing information for selection of jurors.

Also included in the census mailer is a form for the dog licenses which are due April 1. Be advised that proof of rabies certificate must be presented to obtain a dog license.

If any resident has not received a form or has any questions, call the town clerk's office for assistance, 383-0187.

Landfill deadline

If a copy of the insurance policy for Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill is not forwarded to the town by 4:30 p.m. March 5, the health board will likely vote to revoke its operating permit.

If a copy of the insurance, or a certification stating the policy exists is not given to the town by the attorney representing the commercial landfill, the board of health will call an emergency meeting at 6:30 p.m. March 5. The deadline for the insurance policy is 4:30 p.m. that day. If the policy is not given to the town's special counsel, Michael Leon, or to the board, the health board may vote that evening to revoke the landfill's license to operate.

The health board voted last week to give Cohasset Heights Ltd. ten days to produce the document. That deadline ends at 4:30 p.m. The board members stated last week that although they have repeatedly requested the document, it has never been produced. Saying they have been continually lenient to the landfill owners, the board voted last week to set a deadline which ends March 5.

Sewer contract okayed

The state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering Division of Water Pollution Control (DWPC) has approved a six-month contract between the sewer commission and a private consulting firm hired to supervise the wastewater treatment plant.

The sewer commission signed a contract with YWC Inc. of Medfield to operate and maintain the sewer treatment plant on an emergency basis extending to June 30. The commission had voted to suspend the town's plant supervisor, Manny Salvador, in late December. He has been on suspension with pay since that time. No date has yet been scheduled regarding Salvador's disciplinary hearing.

The YWC staffing includes a fulltime, 40 hours a week chief operator named James Riley. He is a grade four certified operator. He will be assisted by Roger Goudreau, another grade four certified operator. Weekend and holiday coverage of the plant will alternate between the two operators. Part-time laborer William Ney will continue in that capacity for YWC.

The contract, which actually began Feb. 23, will conclude the end of June. At that time, the DWPC stated, it would have to see a copy of a second contract if the agreement was extended.

Assessor Pratt dies

Funeral services will be held Thursday, Mrach 5 at 2:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church for Warren S. Pratt, 74, a Cohasset assessor who died Monday morning. The six-term member of the board of assessors died after suffering a heart attack.

Private burial services will be held at the Cohasset Central Cemetery.

Mr. Pratt was a founding partner of D.S. Kennedy Company, antenna manufacturers. A well-known resident of the town, he was first elected to the board of assessors in 1969 and was re-elected to that position five more times. He had just recently filed nomination papers for a seventh three-year term on the board. The remaining candidate is James Lagrotteria of Howe Road.

He was born in Cohasset and lived here all his life. During Monday night's selectmen's meeting his close friend, Selectman Rocco Laugelle, asked for a moment of silence in Mr. Pratt's honor.

He graduated from Cohasset High School in 1930, studied architecture and worked in a Boston architectural firm.

He had been an apprentice meat cutter in his high school days and returned to that trade, working for the A and P and First National markets then located in Cohasset Village.

In 1944, in partnership with Donald S. Kennedy and Gilman B. Wilder, he founded the D.S. Kennedy Co., manufacturers of metal radar and electronic equipment. They bought and enlarged the old Story Grain Mill on South Main Street and later built the Whitney Hill plant, now occupied by Webb-Norfolk Conveyor.

Mr. Part left the Kennedy Co. after it was merged with another firm. For several years he owned and operated Bailey's Delicatessen, now the Log and Line Restaurant. He also worked for W.C. Vaughan Company in Boston, a hardware manufacturing owned by his late brother, Elmer H. Pratt.

Mr. Pratt was a Senior Active member and past president of the Cohasset Rotary Club, and had been a trustee of the Second Congregational Church.

He leaves his wife, Leona (Bruce) Pratt; a son, Bruce W. Pratt of Cohasset; a daughter, Alison Alessi of St. Petersburg, Fla.; and two grandchildren, Philip Pratt and Kristin Alessi. He also leaves three brothers, Dr. John J. Pratt and Burtam J. Pratt of Cohasset, and Edwin H. Pratt of Spring Hill, Fla.; three sisters, Mrs. Edna F. Pratt of Cohasset, Mrs. Marietta Baynard of Tarpon Springs, Fla., and Mrs. Louise Winsor of Mont Vernon, N.H.

In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory may be made to the Second Congregational Church, Cohasset Rotary Scholarship Fund or the Cohasset Historical Society.

HAVE YOU BEEN MEANING TO SEE A CHIROPRACTOR?
A lot of people know someone who's seen a chiropractor and had good results. Often they've been meaning to see one themselves...about a nagging back problem ...a stiff neck or persistent headache ...or numbness in their arms, hands, or legs.
At LEWIS CHIROPRACTIC CENTER we specialize in locating the cause of pain or numbness and restoring good health through gentle re-adjustment of the spine and vertebrae. Often, conditions which have plagued patients for years are improved after only a few visits—without resorting to drugs or surgery.

New logo added to Center renovations

There's soon to be a new look at the Community Center. So it was only natural to look for a new logo to accompany the other alterations.

Office manager Judy Volungis explained that the Community Center is striving to reach people of all ages. It is a community center, filled with activities for people with varied interests. That was the idea she wished to convey in the center's logo, which will be used on all stationery and official material.

The center is about to undergo a major facelift this summer. The $300,000 renovation project will add more space to accommodate an increased classload and a broader variety of subjects.

A contest was held for about a year and a winner was selected at the January meeting of the board of trustees.

The winner was Sue Buckley of Forest Avenue. A graphic artist, she is currently production manager at WearGuard in Norwell.

As Volungis explained, the board members were all enthusiastically supportive of Buckley's simple and appealing logo. "It seemed to incorporate just what we were trying to do here. It said in a whimsical, cute way that the Community Center is for everyone. It's not just a nursery school or a senior center - it's for everyone. This is a busy place, and Sue's drawing really depicted that."

Buckley's winning entry shows energetic smiling children and adults lifting up the roof of the center. It shows a fun place, literally brimming with happy people.

Buckley became aware of the contest one night as she came home from work. Her mother told her about the contest. Within a half-hour, the idea was formulated, although she took her time refining the graphic print.

"My mother showed me the newspaper article about the contest and she thought I'd get a kick out of it," Buckley said. "Of course, the deadline was the next day so I really had to get to work."

Her winning design is a "good way to show, in a humorous manner, that the Community Center is a place supported by everyone in this town. People of all ages attend the classes, and they support the place."

The 1980 CHS graduate is also a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Art. She is presently involved in designing a complete in-house catalogue for WearGuard.

As a young girl in Cohasset, Buckley attended ballet and craft classes at the Community Center. Her Brownie troop also met at the North Main Street building.

"I don't have much time for courses any more," she said, although Buckley has had experience teaching a childrens's workshop in Quincy, a course she would someday like to duplicate in Cohasset.

"It's all a matter of time," she said. "Maybe I could do something like that somewhere down the road at the Community Center. It was a blast - something I would love to do in Cohasset."

Another interest of Buckley's would be to design and produce the center's catalogue. As she explained, the catalogue is often the only method the center has to communicate its offerings to the public. An attractive design would be an asset to the success of the course selection, she noted.

Volungis said the board of directors understood that whimsical theme, and agreed it was vital to the link between the center and the community.

The fact that it depicted an overflowing crowd of members also appealed to the directors. Currently, the Community Center is enjoying its biggest membership year in history. There are currently more than 1,200 members at the center. "It more than doubled last year," Volungis explained. "It's from the increased programs and the increased interest. We provide the place and the unique programs that draw people to us. "

For her winning entry, Buckley was awarded $50 by the board of directors.

Town, developer agree to Stop & Shop plan lengthy permit process, believes the final plan approved last week is "a much better product than we originally presented to the town. We are now satisfied that many will like this plan. There are always going to be people who view this as whether they want a store to go there or not. But this is a business district and a proper business will now be located there.

"It will be," he continued, "a plan with superior drainage, wetland protection and traffic safety as a result of a very intense look by the town boards as they are required to do. The level of engineering that has gone into this plan is astounding. In the final analysis, we proved that the project will be done better with some real refinements. It's a better product than we originally presented and those who care to notice, will indeed notice."

The agreement signed Friday by the town and the developer's attorney, contains a list of 10 conditions which must be met before construction begins. The first condition is the installation of traffic signalization at the site entrance and the King Street intersection opposite from the store's entrance. This signalization has been approved by the state Department of Public Works and was designed by traffic engineers for the developer.

The developer, according to the agreement, will also install minimum- required traffic signals at the intersection of Sohier Street and Rte. 3A.

The developer is also required to provide and install traffic signal hardware at the intersection of King Street north and Rte.3A when approved by the DPW. The traffic signals will be installed on pedestals, bases and conduits.

Other conditions of the agreement include a provision that no structure to store equipment be constructed on the roof of the building. All mechanical heating/air conditioning equipment is to be placed below the grade of the building.

The parking lot light standards and fixtures will be the same approved by the planning board at the Bergson Restaurant site on Rte.3A. And a chain link fence will be maintained by the developer to prevent pedestrian and vehicular traffic between the site and the parcel of land abutting the site to the north.

The developer must also submit a written statement from Stop and Shop, specifying that all exterior lighting will be reduced in late evening and morning hours. the building, according to designs filed by architect Summer Schien, will be constructed of cedar shingles and brick.

Atty. Humphrey said it was important to the developer to present a plan which met every objective cited by the town. "We still have to live in this town," he stated, "and it's better to gain the ultimate acsent of the town. There was no need to force this on the town. It was our objective to do this with the consent of the town, which we ultimately did."

John McWeeney, spokesman for the real estate division of Stop and Shop, said the super-supermarket is expected to be open 24 hours a day and from noon to 6 p.m. Sundays.

The corporation has a lease with Tedeschi Realty for their other Rte.3A location which they will terminate once the larger building is constructed. "We have to close that store," he stated. "We couldn't expand to the extent we needed at the other location, so that's why we sought this new site."

The corporation now owns 33 super Stop and Shop stores, which he said, have received "tremendous acceptance" from their host communities. "The acceptance has been so phenomenal, we are replacing all our conventional stores with the larger markets," he stated.

McWeeney said studies indicate the supermarket will draw customers from Cohasset, Scituate, Hingham and Hull and Norwell.

After three years of seeking final approval, developer Staszko said he would like the community to see this plan in a positive manner. After battling to obtain final town approval, Staszko said the sleepless nights have been worth it. He believes the town will accept a well-done plan - a proper use of the land under the highway-business district. "I take great pride in this town and the work I have done here. I will take great pride in this building and the landscaping that will surround it. It's going to be a very nice improvement to that property," he said.

A resident of Cohasset for the past 21 years, Staszko said he views the past three years as a positive, enriching experience.

He was a pilot during the Vietnam War and says his experience overseas has taught him not to take liberty for granted.

"I'm really lucky to live here and what I did, everyone has a right to do," he commented. "I hung in there because that's my right, just like everyone else has. I came out whole, because I felt I was right to do what I set out to do.

"I feel I'm very lucky to live in this country. A lot of people don't realize how lucky they are. I've been through hell in another land, but what other country would allow someone like me, who believes they're right, to hang in there and follow the letter of the law, and be vindicated? I really appreciate what we have in this country and no one should take that for granted. It's a right every American citizen has."

Troop 28 Boy Scouts

Cohasset's Troop 28 B.S.A. honored Scout Sunday by attending the service at St. Stephen's Church. The Scouts were warmly welcomed by Rev. Cutler and the parish members. The Scouts and the Scoutmaster, Merle Brown, Assistant Scoutmaster John Bryant and Chairman Peter Lelecas formed a procession down the aisle ending with the flag presentation.

The senior patrol leader, Nicholas Lelecas, spoke to the parishioners about the importance of reverence in Scouting. The Troop also had the pleasure of meeting Rev. Ochola Ongombe, Provost of the Anglican Cathedral in Kisumu, Kenya. He was visiting and also officiated at the service.

Feb. 23 was the Court of Honor for the Boy Scouts. They were visited by Pack 38 Cub Scouts, the Webelos. (These Cubs are our future Boy Scouts of 1987). Three Boy Scouts, Mark Lavange, Nicholas and Michael Lelecas are awaiting the National Conference Board of Review to become Eagle Scouts. (The Eagle award is the highest award given in Scouting).

Many Scouts received their Merit Badges during the ceremony: Chris McElroy received his Citizenship in the Nation and Citizenship in the World Merit Badge. John O'Leary received his Hiking Skill Award and advanced rank to Second Class. Mark Sechen received his First Aid Skill Award, Family Living Award, Citizenship and First-aid Merit Badge. David Farrag received his Citizenship in the Nation.

Sale of familiar Rte 3A site

completion of a sale.

Affected by the loss of a skating rink will be the 400 young hockey players from Cohasset, Hull, Norwell, Scituate and Marshfield in the Seahawks organization. Members of the Winter Garden's Silver Blades figure skating club and the Ice Skating Institute of America (ISIA) skaters will have to transfer to other rinks on the South Shore. Athletic directors throughout this area have been warned of a possible sale, and are also making plans to schedule games and practices elsewhere.

Employees of the rink were warned recently of the possibility of a sale, although they have been given no deadline or details of the transaction.

Garvey has been issued a certificate of occupancy for the retail outlet. He expects renovation work to begin this month with an opening slated for early April. Garvey said the building will be upgraded and extensively renovated. Landscaping will help make the site more esthetically pleasing than its current condition, he added.

Linda Zimmer, president of the Seahawks youth hockey organization, said she is making contigency plans if the deal is finalized. The 400 youth hockey players practice at the rink each week, occupying about 11 or 12 hours weekly. Winter Garden has always been the home rink for all Seahawk practices, although many of the teams use other South Shore rinks for games.

"No one wants to see this rink closed," she said this week. "I hate to see it close. I'm concerned about the children in this program because right now they are my responsibility."

One source said the Seahawks have made contigency plans with the Hobomock Arena in Pembroke. If the Cohasset rink is closed, all practices for the Seahawks will take place at the Pembroke rink.

Hoban also worked for several hours Tuesday placing the rink's figure skaters in the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham, and assuring the Seahawks ice time in Pembroke and Rockland rinks

"It will be a lot of inconvenience for the families," Zimmer admitted. "But we will have an alternate place to go, if need be."

The Seahawks, which reportedly was attempting to organize a group of buyers for the rink, includes a comprehensive program from instructional to Midget league teams. Youngsters from five to 17 years participate in the program.

Zimmer said that until they are notified a deal has been finalized or cancelled, the Seahawks will remain in limbo. There are many parents who want to keep the rink, she added, noting that alternative plans are being developed, although there has been no "firm commitment" made to any area rink.

Winter Garden owner Hoban purchased the property two years ago from longtime owner John Breen of Scituate. Six months after the sale, liability insurance for recreational facilities, such as public skating rinks, doubled. The first year he owned the property, Hoban said he paid $6,000. Now he is paying $72,000 for a million dollars worth of coverage.

"My hands are tied," he complained this week. "No matter what direction I turn . . . I'm getting it from all directions." His first prefence, he said, would be to keep the rink intact, but prospective purchasers have had difficulty financing the sale because of the rising insurance costs.

This town, he said, has not helped subsidize the rink as in other communities. And his plans last year to add a used car dealership on the side property was "turned down" by town officials.

"It's either sink or swim," he said. "I can't get insurance anymore for public skating, so I had to discontinue that. It's a sad situation.

"I'm sorry I bought the place," he added. "I feel bad for my help and the kids who skate here, but there was nothing else to do."

Confidence gave CHS wrestlers a great season

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

It was the day to turn in uniforms, vote on where to hold the team banquet, and reflect on a fabulous season.

The Cohasset High School wrestling team closed the book on its best season ever, Tuesday, as coach Torin Sweeney wished his seniors farewell and distributed brochures on wrestling camps to those he expects to see back on the mats next year.

"Coming into the season, I didn't know what to expect," Sweeney recalled. "We started off with a win against Norwell and then beat two top Division 1 teams, Quincy and Randolph. That made us 3-0, and set the tone for the season. It surprised me."

The coach noted, "Those wins gave the kids confidence and gave them an idea of how good they were and what they could do."

The momentum Cohasset gleaned from its auspicious start carried into the annual holiday tournament in Marshfield.

The Skippers tied for fourth place with Bridgewater-Raynham, and had three wrestlers in the finals: co-captains Liam Stanford and Glen Froio, and teammate Doug Bennett. "It was the first time we had ever had three wrestlers make the finals there," Sweeney said.

Cohasset continued to roll after the tourney, knocking off Scituate for the first time in four years.

"Our record was then 4-0, and we were 2-0 in our league," Sweeney noted. "We began to look like one of the strongest teams in the league. We believed we had a chance at the league title."

Although the Skippers had only two seniors on the squad, Sweeney said he credits "a good balance of experience and the will to do well" for his team's success this year. He noted the outstanding contributions of several key wrestlers.

Stanford and Bennett went undefeated during the regular season, while Glen Froio finished at 16-2.

"I had a lot of fun this year," Stanford commented. "The team was 11-6, the best it has ever been, and I was proud to be a part of it."

Stanford gave credit to his coach for much of the team's success this year.

"The reason we excelled," Stanford said, "is because Torin stuck with us and worked hard. He took time between his classes and work to work with us; that's why we work so hard for him."

The Skippers' co-captain noted the team showed a lot of intensity this year, especially at home matches, where there were many spectators.

"We had many sophomores on our team this season," Sweeney said. "It was a very young team, seven sophomore starters. But we had a good, clean theme; I kept telling them they could win if they believed in themselves.

"This year we began to capitalize on the hard work we already had put in," he explained. "This is my fourth year coaching this team, and I've worked with many of these kids since seventh and eighth grade. I've always stressed that hard work will pay off, and it has showed.

"In high school wrestling, Sweeney said, confidence is the most important factor of a team's success. If they believe they can win, they will do it 90 percent of the time.

"I believe in positive reinforcement," the coach commented. "If a kid loses a match, I don't chew him out; instead, we work on the points where he needs to improve. That's how my father brought me up, and that's how I am."

Sweeney's philosophy proved successful with a number of players, including senior Patrick O'Connor and junior Peter Buckley, who "turned it around," and posted good seasons this year.

Just as O'Connor and Buckley overcame their obstacles, Cohasset as a team overcame its youth, an early injury to Doug Bennett, who came back to win the south sectionals, and the late injury to Matt Fitzpatrick, which forced some forfeits in the lower weight division.

"We were able to stay on the mats with schools who had 50 kids, compared to our 20," Sweeney noted. "We beat Duxbury for the first time in 10 years, and we beat Middleboro for the first time in nine years. We placed sixth overall in the sectional tournament, with 101 points, and placed five guys in the state meet.

"It's uplifting to me, that we were able to place five guys in the state tournament," Sweeney said, "because it shows we can compete at that level." The coach hopes to hold a sectional tournament involving 16 area towns here next year.

"We're going to have a heckuva team next year," he predicted, "unless they bunch up in weight. I hope they can keep away from football injuries; many of the kids on the wrestling team also play football."

Co-captain Glen Froio agreed. "We'll have a lot of varsity kids coming back, so it should be a good team next year."

Froio will return, along with Bennett and Buckley, to lead the team to even greater victory next year, according to Sweeney.

John Rhodes and Tim Pierotti, the team's leadoff wrestlers this year also are expected to come back with their one-two punch. Sweeney credits the dynamic duo with "getting us rolling, going in the right direction" at this year's competitions.

Matt Fitzpatrick, Dennis Mulligan and Greg Baker will round out the Cohasset attack, and Jim Donohue will be a mainstay on the mats.

Sweeney said, "Matt Deveny had a good learning year and will probably be a prominent heavyweight in the years to come.

Paul Froio, Glen's cousin, wrestled opponents heavier than himself much of this season, and managed to attain a 10-4 record. He was 5-0, when he wrestled opponents in his own weight class. Sweeney predicts a promising future for the young heavyweight.

"These kids are very enthusiatic," he added. "They will go to summer camps and will work on the weights because of the examples set by Doug Bennett and Glen Froio, who were two of the best in the state.

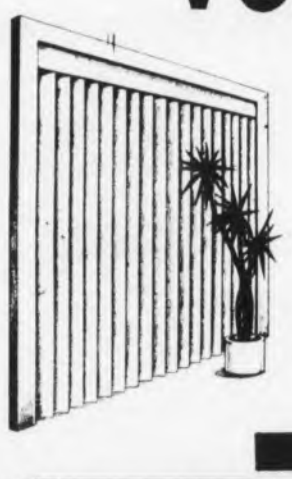
"These younger kids want to follow in their footsteps," he said, "and make us a more powerful team."

Recreation programs. . .

Telephone registrations are now being accepted by the Cohasset Recreation Department for a ski trip to Gunstock, to be held Sunday, March 22. The cost for the trip which includes transportation via motor coach and all-day lift ticket will be $27.

To register please call the recreation office at 383-6791, as soon as possible as the trip will be limited to the first 45 to register. Payments must be made by Thursday, March 5.

The bus will leave Town Hall at about 5:30 a.m., and return in the evening at 7:30 p.m. Recreation department adult chaperones will supervise the trip.



AEROBIC CLASSES

The recreation department is offering eight different aerobic classes from three instructors in the mornings, late afternoons and early evenings each week. Call the recreation department at 383-6791. Fees are generally $32 for two classes per week, for eight weeks. Two of the four morning classes are held Saturday mornings and may be registered for independent of week day/evening classes. While new sessions begin every six to eight weeks, you may register at any time. The fee will be pro-rated, based upon the number of classes remaining in the current session. Classes are ideal for all ages, and both men and women alike.

Cantor for the service will be Wayne Wilson. Pastor Grant's sermon topic will be "Keeping our Baptism." Coffee will be served following the service.

This Sunday at 10:40 a.m. we will have the Fourth Intergenerational Sunday School which will focus on symbols. Everyone is encouraged to bring an item that symbolizes something to them.

Midweek Lenten service will be held on Thursday evenings at 7:15 p.m. beginning March 12. Throughout Lent the Children's Choir will meet Thursdays from 6:30 to 7:00 p.m. Adult Choir rehearsal will be held immediately following the Vespers.

NEWS OF THE PARISH:

CHURCH SCHOOL: Children, why not try to have perfect attendance next month? The month of March has five Sundays...who can do it?!

YOUTH NEWS: 16 Junior and Senior High Schoolers braved the slopes on Friday (Feb. 20) for some night skiing at Wachusset Mountain. Packed tight into three vehicles, getting close was no problem. The 11th/12th graders (calling themselves the "TFTC", The Fellowship of the Century) returned to the Coley's for pizza and overnight. From all reports, a good time was had by all! Watch the mail for further up-coming events!

IN THE FAMILY: Happy Birthday to Cliff Blossom who will celebrate his 80th birthday on March 7th! Cliff has the proud distinction of being the first of three generations of Eagle Scouts—his son, Fred, being the second and his grandson, Mark, being the third. Congratulations!!!

LENTEN EVENSONG AND PREACHING SERIES

Beginning Wednesday, March 11, and continuing through April 8, a service of evensong will be held in the church each Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

The music for these evening prayer services is quite beautiful. For those of us who have loved the music of Morning Prayer, it gives opportunity to sing some of the same lovely melodies.

Guest preachers will explore the lives of saints to help us focus on our own lives. March 11, the Rev. Jep Streit, Chaplain at Boston University, will preach on Elie Wiesel who while not a saint nevertheless reveals God and divine direction in his writings on the holocaust of this century. March 18, the Rev. Robert K. Kaynor, Assistant Planning Officer at M.I.T., will preach on St. Stephen, our patron saint and first deacon in the church. March 25, the Rev. Mary D. Glasspool, Rector of St. Luke's and St. Margaret's Church in Allston, will preach on Mary and the Annunciation. On April 1, the Rev. John Van Siclen, Rector of St. Elisabeth's Church in Sudbury, will preach on St. Elisabeth, John the Baptist's mother. And finally on April 8, the Rev. Canon Edward W. Rodman, Canon Missioner of the Diocese to Minority Communities, will preach on Martin Luther King, whose saint's day is April 4. As opposed to national holidays which celebrate birthdays, saints' days are held near or on anniversaries of the saint's death (his or her birth into eternal life.)

KINNEALEY MEATS

Perhaps the single most significant change that has taken place in the meat industry over the last 10 years involves the methods of packaging fresh product. In order to insure fresh wholesome product produced to the rigid specifications of the leading chefs throughout the East Coast it became necessary for the T.F. KINNEALEY CO. to incorporate these packaging methods into their standard production. It is this same packaging that is now available on the retail level through the KINNEALEY stores.

MULTIVAC™: The process used by the TFK Co. to package any portion item from 1 ounce to 2 pounds. By removing all the oxygen from the package and creating a perfect vacuum, steaks and chops are given a fresh shelf life of up to 10 days. If frozen, the meat maintains its wholesomeness with no dehydration or freezer burn.

CRYOVAC™: The process used by the TFK Co. to package any primal cut from 2 to 100 pounds. By applying the same "vacuum" theory to the larger primal cuts of beef, pork, lamb and veal we are able to ensure freshness for up to 14 days under correct refrigeration.

We invite you to come in and experience the level of quality, consistency and convenience which is made available as a reuslt of our packaging methods.

around town

Meg Cosman receives a certificate of achievement from Sally Davenport of the Cohasset Riding Club at their annual awards night. Also receiving Club honors were: Jen O'Leary, Liz Buckley, Meka Marie Laugelle, Jillian Green and Sue Pipenbrink.
(Alan Chapman)

☐ John Reidy of Cohasset High School was named to the 1986 Boston Globe All-Scholastic Boys' Soccer Team.

Reidy had 17 assists in Cohasset's march to the Division 3 South title. He is a two-time South Shore Small League MVP, and also a two-year member of EMass All-Stars.

The Boston Globe All-Scholastic Awards honors high school athletes in Eastern Massachusetts who have demonstrated exceptional athletic talent in a particular sport.

☐ If you see Edwin and Frances Rickets with broad smiles "around town" its for a good reason! Their granddaughter, Victoria Morrison, made Dean's List at Bryant College this past semester! Victoria is in her junior year, and is majoring in Management and Business. She earned a 3.2 grade point average. Congratulations!

☐ Speaking of grandparents, have you been into Dependable Cleaners lately? If so, you probably have seen the cute picture of Pat Sargent's grandson...his name is Bryan Richard, and he is Billy and Dana's son. Bryan was born on Friday, Feb. 13, and weighed 7 lbs., 7 oz. (lucky 7). Guess who is on her way to sunny California, where Billy, Dana and Bryan live! Hope you have a wonderful time Pat, and enjoy that wonderful grandson of yours!

☐ Maureen Buckley, daughter of Jack and Cleida Buckley, is one busy gal this year! Maureen is in her senior year at Bates College in Lewiston, Maine, and among all of the other things she is involved in, she is a resident co-ordinator at the college. She acts as a counselor and resource person for the other students at Milliken House, Whittier House and Turner House. They are indeed lucky to have her, she is one fine gal!

☐ Marge and A.J. Antoine had reason to celebrate recently, and they sure did! They had their 35th wedding anniversary on February 24. Congratulations to you, Marge and A.J. and here's to many, many more!

☐ A special birthday wish goes to Cliff Blossom, who will be celebrating his 80th on March 7. We'll bet he could tell a lot of stories of the goings-on around town!

☐ The reviews are in, and all are wonderful ones! Last weekend Present Laughter was presented at the town hall, and who saw it thought it very funny and well done! Don't despair, it will be back this weekend, on Friday and Saturday nights. Friday will be $4, and Saturday night's performance will be a benefit so the tickets will be $25. That price includes a champagne party at Kimball's as well as your ticket, and proceeds will go to a head injury organization. There are five Cohasset residents involved: Skid Johnsen did the sets, and Ginny Barkham, David Barrett, Scott Ketchum and Sarah deLima are all in the cast. Don't miss this great show!

☐ Hats off to Krissy and Steve Pozatek, two super skiiers that are certainly making a name for themselves in ski country! Krissy Pozatek, 12, was named to the New Hampshire Alpine Junior State Team and will be competing in the Eastern United States Alpine Junior Olympics in March at Attitash Mountain in New Hampshire. Steve Pozatek, 13, was also named to the New Hampshire Alpine Junior State Team and will be competing in the Eastern United States Alpine Junior Olympics Qualifier at Pico, Vermont, March 7. Both Steven and Krissy are honor students at Derby Academy, and their parents, Ellie and Zig, are sure proud of all of their efforts!

☐ A reminder to all runners...the eleventh annual Cohasset Road Race will be held on April 5th at 1. The entry fee will be $7 and registration is limited to the first 800 runners. Applications are available by writing, PO Box 36, Cohasset, MA (enclose a SASE) or by stopping in at Harbor Liquors, Good Sport, Colonial Pharmacy and Cohasset Liquors. Registration ends on March 31, so don't delay, the race certainly has turned into a popular one.

☐ The sixth annual American Cancer Society Daffodil Day will be held March 18. Businesses, organizations and other groups can order daffodils by Friday, March 6 by calling Al Odermatt, 383-1283 or Cancer Society, 1-583-8515. Donation is $3 for bunch of 10 daffodils. Flowers will be delivered Tuesday, March 17.

☐ Donna M. Igo was named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Norwich University.

☐ The quest for State Champs is still on for both the boys and the girls basketball teams...continued success to all of you! Here's hoping that you make the effort to go and cheer them on, it sure helps a team to know they have a big following to support them! Check times and dates with the paper.

Music in our Schools Month

A special concert is planned for Tuesday, March 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the High School auditorium. March is nationally observed as "Music in Our Schools Month." Cohasset's Music Department has pulled together a sampler package to share with everyone.

Starting with the grade two music class, we will highlight the various musical opportunities in Cohasset schools. Cooperation of the Staff and Administration at Osgood, Deer Hill, and the Jr./Sr. High has made this evening possible.

Come watch our young musician's road of progress. The concert will be fast-paced, about an hour long, including a combined chorus number (100 plus singers) and a raffle drawing. The concert will be free of charge.

Come enjoy an hour of music and song . . . and celebrate "Music in Our Schools Month!"

Praise to all

Sometimes when things are going along well, it's just as difficult to praise as it is to criticize.

The sports teams at Cohasset High School are in the midst of state tournament action, quite an accomplishment from a small school in the small school league. Cohasset is renowned for its excellent sports programs, and that the two basketball teams, several wrestlers, and the hockey team were selected for tournament competition should come as no surprise.

They deserve our praise, every one of the athletes in our school system. From the junior varsity players on the girls basketball team, to the freshmen members of the hockey team - they all worked hard and are worthy of our admiration.

We have been accused in the past, and not unfairly so, of giving preferential coverage and publicity to the boys' basketball team, Eddie and his Cruisers. We stand guilty as charged, but plead some understanding. They may be a bit more flamboyant than other high school teams, but they have an outstanding record and are outstanding players.

The legend of Eddie and the Cruisers continues each year - it is an accomplishment few high school teams could emulate. We are justly proud of these brash, talented athletes and their ebullient coach. We feel honored to have Eddie and his Cruisers part of our community.

But with all the attention given to this championship team, sometimes we shed less limelight upon the girls' team. They are league champions and the finest group of girls ever to represent their school.We mean no prejudice against them because we are as justifably proud of their fine accomplishments as we are of the boys'. Coach Bill Fallon and his fine team of athletes deserve as much praise and attention as this town can muster.

The problem with praise that we mentioned previously, is where to stop. Or rather, the problem is inadvertently omitting some deserving group of students.

Certainly not all kids are athletes - some never see their name honored in the newspapers. But they are just as wonderful, just as hard-working as our student athletes.

There is the newly-formed debating team that recently returned from a weekend tournament armed with four trophies. As Principal MaryEllen Gallagher noted, this is an outstanding accomplishment for such a new organization. These kids who are just learning the complicated process and formula of debating, earned awards that others take years to accomplish.

And this weekend, the high school dramatists will be taking their originally-scripted play to the regional competition at Hingham High School. Cohasset traditionally does very well in this annual festival and we wish them continuation of their success. We urge everyone to look for the time of the production listed elsewhere in this paper, and to support our worthy and talented thesbians.

Surely in this brief diatribe we have again omitted names by the mere mention of others. Perhaps another time we can successfully finally accomplish this allusive goal. But in the interim please understand we mean no deference by our inadvertent omissions.

Letters

'This miscreant called the wrong number'

To the editor:

This letter needs to be printed because it tells what happens when a person or group has strong feelings about a cause.

Several weeks ago, on request from members of the Fair Oaks Homeowners Association, I wrote the Board of Selectmen to ask if any illegal fill was being dumped on the site of a proposed supermarket. I signed the letter "Fair Oaks Homeowners Association" of which I am the elected vice president.

The letter was read at the Feb. 17 meeting of the selectmen, and reported in the Feb.18 Patriot Ledger. The only problem is that it was reported as a complaint by a single Fair Oaks Lane resident - namely me. Some low life worm, in an attempt to retaliate against this request to the selectmen, anonymously called the wrong person. They reached a home where the "object" of their wrath was not available to answer the phone. They proceeded to pour out crude and vile rhetoric on his wife. All of this "venom" was meant for me but this miscreant called the wrong number.

Our association has every right to question activities in this town. We use the correct forum - namely the Board of Selectmen. No one can be shocked by this attempt at retaliation but I do protest the gutless method by which it was done.

John E. O'Brien

Many questions to be answered

To the Editor:

The American people regret the facts that are surfacing due to Irangate.Many questions still need to be answered.

Perhaps the swans can teach us humans a thing or two.

The scene I saw from my window on that blustery day was both wonderful and frightening. Were the swans alive? Even with my binocular I could not tell . . . I kept watching. Suddenly, they flew off, all together.

"What had happened to frighten the swans from their sleep?" There was nothing — or no one — out there, on the ice, except the wind. (To capture the image I wrote my poem.) Later my husband gave me the answer to the puzzling question: "Their own needs — their hunger pangs had awakened them, had spooked them. And, "off they sailed," to nourish themselves, to get on with life.

For us individuals, perhaps the "jolt" — which will awaken us out of our slumber into alertness and action — will come from our gut feelings, from our own good instincts.

Priscilla Daniels

Eight swans sleeping in zero degree weather

Their forms —
white feathered blocks of snow — seemed stuck,
like tiny frozen boats.
With necks tucked down, turned back against the bitter cold, they huddled
on the icy ocean floats.

Yet, while I shivered, watching through my glass — as if Aeolus with a magic wand had tapped their backs, had spooked those vessels — off they sailed, flapping away
and skimming down, to swim
in melted pools
across the bay.

'Crusher' Casey was a giant of a man

By George Franklin
Special to the Mariner

The legendary Steve "Crusher" Casey set to begin a rowing expedition down the Charles.

Each year, in England, there is an award for the Irish Sports star of the Year.

The Hall of Fame award for the year 1982 went to the legendary Casey brothers from Sneem, County Kerry, Ireland.

The seven Casey brothers were probably the most extraordinary sports family in history. Many of their achievements in rowing and wrestling were accomplished while they were based in London in the early thirties. During that period they were the best rowers in the world. Some of them went on to become the best wrestlers in the world with Steve reigning, for many years, as the world heavyweight champion.

As rowers the Caseys stood apart. In the mid-thirties Paddy, Steve, Mick and Tom were unbeatable and unbeaten. They effortlessly qualified for the Olympics and seemed certain to win only to be disqualified by the British Rowing Authority. The Authority alleged they were accepting money for wrestling. A team which they had frequently beaten won the Olympic title.

The Caseys have been dubbed "The Toughest Family on Earth." No one has ever disputed this fact. As the leader of the clan, Steve says that the only man who could make him quit was his brother Paddy. He said that Paddy was responsible for his cauliflower ear.

In 1933 Steve was the first to go to London. He joined the Ace Rowing Club in Putney. When he went into action they were amazed at how he could row and at his extraordinary physique. Steve told them he had six brothers at home who were every bit as good. They pleaded with him to bring them over.

Paddy, Mick and Tom came to join Steve. They formed a team and won thirty-eight consecutive races.

Steve told me that, as young men, he and his brothers would row twenty miles across Dannemora Bay to compete in rowing regattas. After winning all the events they would row the twenty miles back across the bay in the dark. Steve remarked, on looking back, "We must have been crazy to do such a thing." Rowing was their sport. Wrestling was a way to make money.

When they weren't rowing they were in the boats fishing. This was their earliest means of livelihood and, of course, they used fish for personal consumption. They regularly had two salmon for breakfast.

This spartan existence paid off in molding the tremendous physiques of the Caseys. Steve, especially, at fourteen years looked like a man of twenty two. He later developed to six foot three and two hundred and thirty-five pounds.

Rowing came naturally as their father Michael Casey and their uncle Pat O'Sullivan were champion oarsmen as members of the world championship rowing team at Newport, Rhode Island in 1903.

The young Caseys rowed all over Ireland as a team. They were never beaten. In the late twenties they became the rowing champions of Ireland.

In 1931-1933 Steve, Paddy, Jim and Mick won the prized Salter Cup. Paddy has this cup on display in his home at Sneem.

Their disqualification for the Olympics was a great blow to the Caseys. They then turned the greater part of their efforts to professional wrestling.

The start of wrestling for the Casey clan happened while Steve was working as a doorman and bouncer for a London hotel. One night a row started. Steve had to eject a troublemaker. As he was about to toss this man into the street, a taxi pulled up in front of him and, rather than throw the man on the street, Steve simply threw him into the taxi.

This scene was witnessed by two wrestling promoters, Mike Hawley and Harold Angies. They introduced themselves and asked him to call and see them at their gymnasium. Steve took them up on this and, in no time at all, was set for his first professional bout. Steve was matched with Bob Adams, one of Britain's biggest and best loved wrestlers. Bob Adams was later to become a judge.

Winning this bout set Steve on his way. The pay was also great. Steve had been earning two pounds a week at the hotel and, the fact that he got five pounds for this first bout convinced him what line of work he should follow.

The rest of Steve's story is history. Having beaten all comers in the British Isles he sailed for the United States in 1936. Two years later Steve won the world heavyweight title from the great Lou Thesz.

As time went on, brothers Jim and Tom joined Steve in the United States. They all met with great success.

Prior to coming to the States and after winning both rowing and wrestling championships in the British Isles, Tom Casey decided to go into boxing and bring another title into the clan.

Tom was well on his way to a championship when, while wrestling one day, he broke his hand. This unfortunate accident ended his boxing career.

In 1940, here in Boston, with Steve as heavyweight champion and Tom and Jim making their marks in professional wrestling, the three brothers were indulging in their favorite sport, rowing, as a means of keeping in condition. At this time Victor O. Jones a columnist for the Boston Globe happened to meet the boys. During the following conversation and, still imbued with their enthusiasm for competitive rowing, the Caseys whispered a challenge to Jones.

The following day a story appeared in the Globe sports column by Victor O. Jones. This was dated Oct. 9, 1940. The three Caseys and a sculler named Jerry Shea,a lad of 52years—Steve said this fellow was really 55—but a great athlete in his time,had issued a challenge to any four oarsmen in the United States. Distance? Any reasonable distance. Side bet? Any bet up to $1000. In the event of acceptance by an amateur team, the boys were willing to row for a trophy. If necessary, they would row for nothing. Take your pick of distance or prize and make it easy on yourself. This was the challenge.

Although the boys had not rowed in competition and had done very little rowing in years, they felt confident. The great Philadelphia championship team accepted the challenge only to back out at the last minute.

There was a bit of excitement later when the number one sculling artist of national championship fame, Russell Codman Jr. said he would condescend to embarrass his title by entering into a race against the Caseys as individuals in a single scull contest over a measured course. The challenge was accepted even though, as Steve told me later, the Caseys had not been rowing as singles and did not own any single shells.

There was a side bet of $ 1000.00. Russell Codman also said that "If I can't beat the Caseys, I'll pay ten thousand dollars."

Governor Leverett Saltonstall sponsored the race with a trophy on Saturday Nov. 10, 1940. The Governor was a former great oarsman. This took place on the Charles River. Codman and the three Caseys took off and, the end of the race found Tom Casey in the lead followed by Jim and Steve. Codman was fourth and last.

There was a great banquet after this race. Codman, the loser, picked up the tab for all the dignitaries famous for their sports records. Governor Saltonstall presented a cup to the Caseys.

In 1983 Steve told me that Russell Codman was a great athlete and a fine gentleman who was as good as his word. Steve had only high praise for this man.

At ninety years of age Russell Codman does not row anymore due to a hip operation. He still goes to business and retains an active interst in the great sport of sculling.

Speaking to Russell Codman, in 1983, I brought up the subject of this race against the Caseys. Russell told me that this is one race he would rather forget. He also remarked the Caseys were fine gentlemen and exceptional athletes.

In 1941 Steve Casey was inducted into the army at the recruiting station on Columbus Avenue in Boston. I was already in the service and was on duty the day Steve came through the lines. My job was to take the recruits through the examination lines, take them to lunch and then make sure they got on the train to Fort Devens.

Going back to Steve's youthful days in Ireland, it seems that Steve suffered a severe back injury when he was hit with a falling beam. This left him with a spine that was not as it should be. However, through constant exercise and a strong constitution, Steve recovered his strength. I bring this injury up in light of what happened when Steve was stationed at Fort Constitution at Portsmouth, New Hampshire. There was a mine explosion and Steve suffered further injury to his back. He was returned to Fort Devens for an operation which resulted in a medical discharge from the army.

With all the foregoing injuries, you might think this would be the end of his athletic career. Not so. This determined Irishman was not going to let something like this stop him. He went back into the gymnasium and back to rowing in order to strengthen those back muscles.

Steve continued on as heavyweight champion and was still winning races on the water. This Irish giant would show up for a race, use any shell they gave him, and with no preparation plus the injured back, Steve would win whatever race he entered.

Having moved to Cohasset, on the South Shore, Steve continued his rowing. There were many times, in a single shell, he would row out of the Back River, up past Nantasket Beach and on past Quincy. Going through Boston Harbor he would wind up at L Street in South Boston. He had even done this in a doubles shell with his son Pat. This trip was about sixteen miles each way.

Among other sports the Casey boys excelled in, was the winning of the tug of war championship of Ireland. Steve could run the one hundred yard dash in eleven seconds. He was a great hammer thrower and shot putter. Hunting and fishing and all outdoor sports that were legal appealed to the Caseys. Another hobby that appealed to Steve was the construction of racing shells. Some of the shells, constructed of fiberglass, were as light as twenty four pounds.

Back in 1964, as Steve was closing his bar on Mass. Ave. in Boston, two holdup men came in and opened fire. They killed Steve's bartender and put two bullets into Steve. One of the bullets had been removed but, the other was too close to where his spine had been operated on so it was left there. He carried this bullet in him till the day he died.

This back trouble affected Steve when he was getting into or out of his racing shell. Once seated he was still a champion with the oars. By keeping active with rowing, Steve still managed to remain a mighty man.

Speaking to Jack Conway the SouthShore real estate king, he compared the Caseys, especially Steve, to the long ago kings of Ireland.

Around the year one thousand, Ireland had been invaded by the Danes and Norsemen. Brian Boru was an Irish king at that time. He was a big man and the strongest man in all Ireland. The Danes murdered Brian's brother. This so incensed this Irish l[illegible]hat he took control of all Ireland and drove the [illegible] and Norsemen from Ireland's shores.

Brian Boru was a mighty man. Jack Conway believes that had Steve Casey lived during that period of Irish history, he would have emulated the great feats of Brian Boru.

At 73 years of age the great Steve "Crusher" Casey was still leading an active life. His weight had gone to 210 pounds but, he was still a man to be reckoned with.

As long as men of the caliber of the Caseys remain on this earth, then, the Irish giants of old have been re-incarnated.

Steve's final race was with the BIG C (cancer). This took him from us in January of 1987.

'Present Laughter' to aid foundation

There will be a special benefit performance of Noel Coward's "Present Laughter," Saturday, March 7 at 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

The Massachusetts Chapter of the National Head Injury Foundation will be sponsoring a gala night at the theatre. For $25, ticket holders will be entitled to a performance of the play and a reception to be held at Kimball's By The Sea immediately following the performance.

Tickets for this event can be obtained by calling Karen King at 848-5353 ext. 410 or leaving a message at 383-9991.

All the proceeds from the ticket sales will go to the Head Injury Foundation. The evening is sponsored by the Braintree Hospital traumatic head injury division. The night, King said, is being held to help make the public aware of the great number of head injuries throughout the country, and the support that is available.

The National Head Injury Foundation provides support to families of head-injured persons, King explained. The incidence of head injury is now considered a "silent epidemic" in this country. According to the latest statistics, 100,000 people die each year in this country from head injuries. Over 400,000 require hospitalization for brain-related injuries.

Of that number, 50,000 persons are left with impairments so severe as to affect their way of life. Two-thirds of those with head injuries are below the age of 30, King added.

Noel Coward's three-act comedy, "Present Laughter," continues throughout this weekend at the Town Hall, presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

Judy Holmes directs the Club's winter season show, with stage lighting by Clark Young, set design by Arthur Johnsen, and production management by Flo Kelley, Helen Ketcham, and Jan Higbee.

This Friday, March 6, will be a general admission performance with tickets available in advance at Fleming's, Cohasset Center, and at the door at the time of the performances. Curtain time will be 8 p.m.

The setting for "Present Laughter" is late 1940's London, and the Cohasset production features a cast of eleven Dramatic Club veterans and newcomers to the Town Hall stage. Jan Higbee, Ellen Kelly, David Barrett, Ginny Barcomb, John Kuhn, Jean Scorgie, Scott Ketcham, Gregory Bouchard, Robert Kilburn Jr., Sarah deLima and Alice Duffy portray the cast of characters in this popular English comedy. "Present Laughter" marks the mid-point of the Cohasset Dramatic Club's 66th season of community theatre presented on the historic Town Hall stage.

Hingham's Judy Holmes, the director of "Present Laughter" is best known as director of the Elizabethan Companie, and has directed nearly a dozen of its Hingham productions. Her other directing credits include "Twelfth Night," for the Publick Theater in Boston; two British plays for Christo's, and "Oliver" for the Hingham Civic Music Theater.

For the Cohasset Dramatic Club she has directed "Dangerous Corner," "Uncle Vanya," and "Cinderella." She has appeared on stage in several Town Hall productions.

Tickets for this Friday's regular Dramatic Club performance of "Present Laughter" are priced at $4. The Saturday benefit night is sponsored by the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Head Injury Foundation.

Jan Higbee listens attentively to John Kuhn during rehearsals of "Present Laughter" which will be held Friday and Saturday nights at Cohasset Town Hall.

Cohasset escapes Holb

. . . snatches win fron

By Mike Berger
Mariner Staff

And now, "Eddie and the Cruisers," Year VI, "The Playoff Challenge"

"Daniel in the Lion's Den"

Some fans came over to CHS Coach Eddie Minelli after a 50-48 narrow win over Holbrook last week and said to him, "Good luck against Medway Saturday. We won't be going."

Within that note came the thought that some fans secretly believed the end of an era had passed and the championship years were over. Years ago, local fans would travel far to see a Cohasset team in the playoffs.

Medway, 80 minutes from Cohasset High School, seemed far away. But many Medway scouts were in the audience and sensed the lion's kill was coming their way.

Two-time defending champion Cohasset allowed Holbrook to nearly snatch away a victory. The Cruisers did not have a player over 6-4 and Medway was hosting Cohasset in the proverbial lion's den.

The scenario was set. The Milford Daily News printed the preview of the two teams for several days, noting the time was ripe for a Medway victory.

Twenty-five hundred fans packed Medway High Saturday night. Twenty percent of the crowd were estimated to be Cohasset fans. The crowd hollered pretty loud, sensing that finally, Cohasset, would be out of the playoff picture in Division III.

And when Cohasset's best player Brian Edwards got whistled for his third personal foul with 4:10 remaining in the first half, the Medway fans sensed momentum had swung their way as Cohasset fell behind 13-10.

Guard David Schumaker came in, led the attack, and Cohasset was up two minutes later 20-13. The Cruisers led at half, 36-33.

"We played a great half physically and would have been up a lot more if we didn't make as many mental mistakes. But the fact that when Brian came out of the ballgame, we didn't get pushed around proved an awful lot. That was the key to the ballgame," said Minelli.

And when Edwards came back into the game, he sparked new momentum, orchestrating a 14-2 run in the third quarter with a display of running, shooting and dribbling, coast to coast. Aided by Schumaker's four points and six more by Michael Smit'., the Cruisers blew the game open 56-40 and "school was out" for Medway.

Silence gribbed the Medway crowd. What seemed as euphoria 30 minutes earlier changed to horrific shock.

The lead grew to 20 points but Medway climbed back in as Edwards fouled out with three minutes to go in the game. Maloney and Schultz's free throw shooting prevented Medway from cutting the deficit to nothing more than nine points and eventually the 11 point win.

It was a typical Cruiser win with lots of help from everyone. To this game, Cohasset was touted as the Bryan Edwards show. Stop Bryan Edwards and you stop the Cohasset attack. True, Bryan scored 24 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. But look further.

Tom Larson scored 13 points with six rebounds, Michael Smith added 15 points and seven rebounds. Matt Maloney scored eight and grabbed seven rebounds and David Schumaker and Jason Marsac each entered the scoring column with four and two points each.

Physically, the advantage went to Medway with a 6-6, 6-3 and 6-2 front-court margin whereas the Cruisers countered with a front court of 6-4, 6-2 and 6-2. The Medway strategy was to doubleteam Edwards the line, Cohasset shot 2 for 9.

Finally with eight seconds remaining in the game and the score tied, Edwards, surprisingly uncovered, dribbled the length of the court and threw in a 25-foot jumper to win the game at the buzzer. But the official ruled one second remained. Tom Larson deflected a Holbrook pass and the game was over.

"After the game, I told our players: Holbrook woke us up. It proved any team can play with us when we do not concentrate," said Minelli.

HOPKINTON

The Cruisers will play Hopkington in the semifinals of Division III South at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 5 at Brockton High School.

If Cohasset wins Thursday night, the Cruisers will likely play Saturday at Brockton High School for the championship against Dover-Sherborn or Fairhaven.

Hopkinton is a worthy foe, matching Cohasset's 18-4 record. This is a center-dominated team led by 6-9½ Chuck Mullin, a defensive intimidator. "We just can't let this team set up. We have to run," said Minelli. Hopkinton also has a tall front-court in 6-7 Brendan Kenney and 6-5 Liam Kenney.

Hopkinton has played Medway twice, winning and losing by four points.

"I really don't think any team can intimidate us right now, no matter how tall they are. I think by playing very tough Division I teams has played to our advantage," said Minelli.

A LITTLE HISTORY

Two more wins by Cohasset this year will give Coach Eddie Minelli a six-year mark of 100-36. Six years ago Minelli inherited a team which won one game its whole season. One year after coaching, the Cruisers improved to the .500 mark.

After two seasons, former school administrators voted to oust Minelli as coach because they believed Minelli was not teaching his players sound basketball fundamentals. But the school committee intervened after a vehement protest by players and parents.

Three years ago, Cohasset came within a basket of the Division III South championship. The last two years have been sweet for Cohasset as the South crown has stayed here.

Last year, the Cruisers won it all and were nationally ranked as one of the best high school teams in the country and the best small-school team in New England.

This year, Cohasset was seeded fifth in the tourney, an acknowledgement that the Cruisers lost three key players to graduation last year, Tony Bogarty, James Creed and Bobby Shultz.

This year Cohasset's tallest player is 6-4 Bryan Edwards. Injuries have plagued the Cruisers all year. Schumaker's achilles heel is not 100 percent; Mike Smith has a bad ankle; David Schultz has an ankle sprain; and Edwards and Tom Larson have chronic ankle problems.

"Heart and guts. The kids knew they were walking into a minefield at Medway. But they also believe if they play the kind of basketball I want them to, they will win," said Minelli.

And, how did the phrase "Eddie and the Cruisers" develop? For one the name developed when the team started to win and play fast-break basketball. Second, the title means doing things a little differently but having fun and winning.

And third, "Eddie and the Cruisers" have defied all the odds in six years. Each year, Minelli wonders who will replace the graduating senior? Who will step out and take the lead. Who will come from nowhere and be a hero?

It's a dual-mutual affection for each other. The players believe in Eddie Minelli and Minelli would be no where without his players.

Young artist courses

A new session of young artist courses begins at the South Shore Art Center and its satellite locations in Hingham, Hull and Scituate during the first part of March.

Parents may register their young artists at the Center on 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset. Advanced registration is required for all courses.

Painting and Drawing I will be taught in Hingham at the Community Center by Lisbeth Koopman-Wyman on Mondays from 4-5:30 p.m. starting March 1 and in Cohasset by Wyman on Tuesdays from 4-5:30 p.m. starting March 10. The course is open to children ages six to eight. Painting and Drawing II for ages nine to twelve will be taught by Lynn Rizzotto in Cohasset on Thursdays from 4-5:30 p.m. starting March 12.

Nancy Connolly will teach two sessions of Moms and Tots; one in Cohasset on Mondays from 10 to 11 a.m. starting March 1 and again in Hingham on Fridays from 10 to 11 a.m. starting March 13.

Child's Clay will be taught in Cohasset on Mondays from 4 to 5:30 p.m. starting March 16 by Nancy Connolly; in Hingham on Wednesdays from 4-5:30 p.m. by Syma starting March 11; and in Hull at Temple Beth Shalom on Thursdays from 4-5:30 p.m. starting March 12, by Connolly.

Connolly will teach a session of Mixed Media in Cohasset on Fridays from 4-5:30 p.m. starting March 13.

For further information on the young artist classes call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. The Center is funded in part by a grant from the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Unicorn singers in performances

The Unicorn Singers, under the direction of Margo Euler, will present a program of sacred music for the first weekend of Lent, Saturday and Sunday, March 7 and 8, at 4 p.m.

Twelve members of the 26-voice chamber ensemble will sing solo portions of the three settings of the Mass to be presented. Euler has chosen the music to offer as dramatic a contrast of styles and periods as possible: the Renaissance-like polyphony of Buxtehude's Missa Brevis is set against the angular phrases of Poulenc's Mass in G, with its powerful dynamics and spine-tingling, 8-part texture. Dvorak's Mass in D for organ, solo quartet and chorus completes the program with its beautiful melodies, traditional forms, and lyrical meditative feeling.

Saturday afternoon's performance is at Glastonbury Abbey (16 Hull St. in Hingham) at 4 p.m., to be followed by Vespers sung with the Abbey community for those who wish to stay.

Sunday afternoon the concert will take place at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church on Cohasset Common, also at 4 p.m.

There are no tickets and all are encouraged to attend. A donation to help defray expenses will be requested at the door.

First Day of Spring drawing

The First Day of Spring — Friday, March 20 — will be celebrated at Charlotte Hair, Etc. with the drawing of the winner of a $250 gift certificate. Benefiting the South Shore Art Center's Capital Campaign for their expanded center, the certificate may be used for a potpourri of beauty services and products at Charlotte's.

The lucky winner will be able to spruce up for spring all at once or over time in a variety of ways, including hair cuts, perms, coloring, tanning, manicures, and beauty products.

For each $5 gift value to the Capital Campaign, donors will have a chance on the First Day of Spring Drawing. If, for example, a donation of $25 is made, the donor will be entitled to five coupons in the drawing. Donations must be accompanied by a raffle coupon (available at Charlotte's, the Art Center, and various local businesses) or marked Charlotte's Spring Drawing and be sent to the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, 02025 by March 16. Those eligible for the drawing need not be present at Charlotte's on March 20.

Charlotte's is helping the South Shore Art Center open the doors of their new building in this unique way in order to increase the number of building fund donors. "The new Art Center will benefit the whole village and surrounding towns," says Charlotte Phinney, owner of the Stagecoach Way salon and neighbor of the Art Center.

For further information on the First Day of Spring Drawing, call the Art Center, 383-9548, or Charlotte's, 383-0960.

Family genealogy fair

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will hold a genealogy fair, Friday, March 6 from 7:30 to 9 at the LDS chapel, 76 Main St., Foxboro, followed by workshops, the Family Tree puppets, and tour of the genealogical library (branch of the Church's Salt Lake Library).

The public is welcome. Free. For info. call Polly Doggett 383-1847.

Health and fitness speaker

Women who are interested in learning more about health and fitness are invited to a lecture and demonstration at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham Monday, March 9 at 7 p.m.

Construction opportunties

Public construction work for minority and women-owned businesses in the Cohasset area will be reviewed at a construction conference March 25, at the State Transportation Building, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, at 8:30 a.m.

Sponsored by the State Office of Minority and Women business Assistance (SOMWBA), the conference will include workshops on marketing, promotion, and programs on bonding and liability insurance. Seminars on management produced by small business development centers and technical assistance support services providers will be offered.

A workshop on the certification of qualified companies and the preparation of business plans will be held during the conference.

For information on the conference contact: Zakiya Alake, State Office of Minority and Women Business Assistance, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02202. Telephone: (617) 727-8692.

Coalition angry over solid waste bill

By Paula Lobo
Mariner Staff

A solid waste management bill before the state House of Representatives has some South Shore town officials hopping mad.

The bill, officials say, was rushed through before towns could properly review its impact on them, and was designed to favor large urban areas over suburban communities.

The latest version of the bill, House No. 4815, was published Feb. 26 and was scheduled for a vote on March 2.

Members of the South Shore Coalition, meeting in Cohasset Feb. 26, voiced concern about provisions of the bill which would make it difficult for smaller communities to obtain state grants to establish solid waste disposal programs.

The proposed law would provide funds of up to 50 percent of construction costs for landfills or other solid waste facilities. It would permit loans for containment or closure of existing landfills, and for other solid waste disposal measures such as recycling.

The bill gives priority to solid waste programs aimed at curbing existing pollution, and to regional plans for waste disposal, resource recovery and recycling.

What angered coalition members most about the bill was a provision that eligibility for regional grants and loans would be limited to areas with a population of at least 300,000.

The entire South Shore Coalition has a population of about 200,000. To receive aid under the proposed law, the 10-town group would have to expand into other communities for waste-disposal purposes.

Selectman Gerald Dwight of Scituate, coalition clerk, called the bill "self-serving," and said the sponsors "shoved the bill through."

Len Ruszezyk of the Marshfield Planning Board said, "My impression is that it would serve urban areas, but it wouldn't be responsive to suburban communities." Ruszezyk said he would prefer to see separate population limits for urban and non-urban areas.

Hanover selectman Janet O'Brien, coalition chairman, urged members to contact their legislators before the scheduled 2 p.m. vote March 2, to urge revision of the population requirement.

In other business, town meeting preparations and other meetings took their toll Thursday on the South Shore Coalition, which was unable to obtain a quorum at its February meeting. Only five of the 10 member towns were represented.

Six voting members must be present for the group to conduct business. The five member towns which were represented were Cohasset, Hull, Marshfield, Hanover and Scituate.

Well-represented, however, was the solid waste subcommittee, which presented a report on its search for a regional solution to the growing problem of solid waste disposal.

Judith Wiegand of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council told the group that the subcommittee has tentatively identified eight possible locations for a regional disposal site. She declined to say exactly where those sites are, except that there is one in each member town, except Weymouth and Norwell, which have their own sites.

The list, she said, has been "shelved" pending review by town Departments of Public Works.

The subcommittee was formed by the coalition to address the increasingly critical problem of rubbish disposal. Rapid growth plus reduced capacity of landfills due to tougher state regulation have underscored the need for a long-term disposal plan.

One solution may be found in Weymouth, where a proposed retrofit of the former town incinerator would provide a capacity of 200 to 250 tons per day. About 100 tons per day are generated in Weymouth. The Weymouth Department of Public Works has accepted a proposal by a consortium led by General Electric to convert the facility.

Weymouth has not offered the facility to other communities yet, however.

Finding a long-term disposal site will be the subcommittee's primary goal, Wiegand said: "What good is it going to do to listen to a proposal for a waste disposal site if we don't have any place to put it?"

In addition, said Wiegand, the group is looking at other disposal alternatives. One possibility is a transfer station located in Braintree to serve northern South Shore communities. Rubbish would be trucked to the Braintree site and then loaded on railroad cars and sent to Rochester. Such a plan could accommodate 240,000 tons per year, Wiegand said.

Another alternative, Wiegand said, would be to resurrect the concept of recycling. A regional approach to recycling, she said, would allow communities to collect a large enough volume of cans, bottles and newspapers to give them an edge in the market for these materials.

A possible model is a program currently in operation in Wellesley, she said. That facility, begun by volunteer groups and now operated by the Department of Public Works, recycles about 2,280 tons per year, or 16 percent of the town's solid waste. Recycled materials includes paper, glass, plastic, steel and aluminum cans, engine oil, batteries and leaves.

The subcommittee, Wiegand said, is currently meeting with vendors to develop a recycling procedure, but no site has yet been proposed. In considering any waste disposal plan, she said, "whatever we choose we want to be sure it will not preclude a recycling program later."

Clean air & wildlife

Clean air is something that all animals must have to survive. That's why the National Wildlife Federation chose it for its main theme this year. Investigate the components of the air we breathe. Learn how it directly affects the world we live in. Explore the inter-relationships that air creates between humans and the plant world. Dress for the outdoors. Those attending must be at least seven years old. With Naturalist, Barbara Devine; Saturday, March 21 from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Prepaid registration required (member/ $3; non-members/ $4). CHS scholarship finalists

Eric A. Maki and James P. Walsh, seniors at Cohasset High School, have been named Finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program. Fewer than one half of one percent of American High School Seniors are selected as Finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition. These finalists will now be considered for scholarships offered through college and corporate institutions.

Eric A. Maki is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maki of 85 Doane Street.

James Walsh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Walsh, residing at 270 North Main Street.

P.M. Kindergarten on TV

Mrs. Marie Price's afternoon kindergarten class from the Joseph Osgood School will be featured performing their Christmas Show on Cable TV Channel 3 on Tuesday, March 17 at 5 p.m. Be sure to watch yourselves, kids!

CHS book fair

A school-wide book fair is planned April 28, 29 and 30 at the Jr/Sr high school. This promises to be a great way to raise money for books for the library as well as enabling students to purchase quality paperbacks at reasonable prices.

We will be in need of volunteers to help during the fair. Please call 383-6100, Cohasset high school library and ask for Susan McFadd, if you can help.

Also, we need volunteers at the high school library. This is a good way to help out on this level, so if you can spare an hour or more per week, let us know.

State House visit

Thirty-two Cohasset High School juniors will be visiting the State House in Boston soon. In groups of four, the 11th graders will be the guests of State representative Mary Jeanette Murray and her assistant Nancy O'Toole of Cohasset. The Cohasset students will visit the State House on March 2 and 3, March 23 and 24, April 13 and 14 and on Monday, May 11 and Tuesday, May 12.

During their all day tour of the State House, the juniors visit the House Chamber and watch key legislative communities at work.

According to Rep. Murray "the purpose of the day on the hill is to prepare social studies students to better understand how bills are initiated and hopefully formalized into law and to encourage young people who will one day take over the reigns of government in our state."

The high school coordinator of the program is Mr. Edward F. Sheehan, department chairman of the Social Studies Department.

Students who have signed up to take part in the first four days of the program are: Dave Schultz, Erica Ford, Michele Casolaro, Kerry Kirkendall, David Shumaker, Jim Rourke, Todd DeCruz, Charles Sturdy, Adam Durant, Carolyn Hurley, Mary Beth MacNamara, Coleby Mantz, Sarah Hamilton and Vickie Kelley. All are members of Mr. Sheehan's Advanced Placement Modern European History class.

Marine studies contestants

Five students from CHS are participating in the Mass. High School Marine Studies contest. Sue Camardo, Dudley Bryan, Michelle Meagher and Chipper Wieir have submitted art work and Mary McElroy has submitted an essay. Good luck to these five students. Watch this column for results of this contest.

Museum of Science field trip

Last Thursday, February 26, the third grade classes of Mrs. Alcott, Mrs. Atkinson, Mrs. Montouri and Mrs. Schadhauser went on a field trip to the Boston Museum of Science.

The children witnessed a solar system presentation in the Hayden Planetarium complete with spaceship sound effects. With parent volunteer guides, the classes broke into small groups to explore the entire museum.

Of particular interest was the "Robots and Beyond" exhibition, which to quote TIME magazine, was "assembled at a cost of $4 million . . .the exhibit over the next three years will travel to seven other U.S. cities."

The windows in the escalator walls were also a big hit—didn't you always wonder how those steps folded up?

Many thanks to the bus drivers, the third grade teachers and the parent chaperones for making this study trip a success.

Dates to Remember

Sunday, March 8: "Flight of the Navigator" movie, CHS Auditorium, 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Wednesday, March 11: Boosters Awards Night, CHS.

Thursday, March 12: PSO Meeting, CHS, 8:00 p.m.

Friday, March 13: PSO St. Patrick's Fling, 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m., Hugo's Lighthouse.

This and that. . .

Note

Cost of student hot lunch at Osgood and Deer Hill is now $1.00.

Note!!!

Any donations of blank disks for our computer program would be greatly appreciated. Please call Deer Hill School.

"Hub's top savings rate: 6.25%"
—The Boston Herald September 5, 1986
At a time when other banks are actually reducing rates, a passbook savings account that pays more than most money market accounts is big news:
The Hibernia Savings Bank now pays 6.25% on its regular savings accounts. (That's an annual yield of 6.54%, based on continuous compounding.) It takes $100 to open one and you only need to maintain a balance of $10 to earn the rate.
That's better than my money market account!
If you like the convenience, safety and simplicity of regular passbook savings —and want rates that are better than most money market accounts — stop by and open an account with Hibernia.
It will be good news for both of us.

Osgood School parents meet

The creative and expository writing program at the Joseph Osgood School was one topic covered at the PSO sponsored parents meeting held Wednesday, February 25.

The meeting, chaired by PSO Osgood Rep. Sue McNamara, featured an in-depth discussion of the school's writing program and what changes or improvements are under construction.

Three Osgood teachers, Jean Free, Delia DiBenedetto and Maureen Alcott discussed how writing skills are taught at each grade level. Their presentations, some including examples of student compositions, enabled parents to see just what concepts and methods are introduced in the first, second and third grades. All Osgood teachers have participated in writing workshops and efforts are being made to coordinate the curriculum and incorporate new ideas and concepts.

Principal Jack Creamer discussed the reading program and the recently formed Reading Committee. The committee, made up of members from both Osgood and Deer Hill Schools, will evaluate the current reading program, surveying teachers and evaluating new texts and materials. Several parents expressed concern about the use of workbooks in the classroom.

Other Osgood news included the development of a new section in the Osgood Library. This section will include books on parenting and early childhood development. The books will be made available to all parents and teachers and will be purchased with funds raised at the PSO sponsored book fair. Patience Towle organized the very successful book fair, and all proceeds will go directly to the Osgood School library.

'We're very close to a division championship'

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

They're having serious fun - all the way to the Centrum.

The CHS girls basketball team played a semi-final match Wednesday night against Coyle-Cassidy High school of Taunton. Based on the outcome, Cohasset could be shooting for a Division III South Sectional championship. This is a dream within their reach, players, coach and fans agree.

As long as they hold their concentration and fend off mistakes, Coach Bill Fallon says this team can go far in state playoff action. A championship is definitely within their grasp.

"Like everything else," Coach Fallon said, "we have a fifty-fifty chance of getting a championship. The one who makes the least mistakes will win. That's what it will come down to."

Watching his team practice Monday afternoon, the four-year coaching veteran surmised their performance in last week's quarterfinal game. "We were good for the first half," he commented, "and then we became lax in the second half because we had a big lead. We can't afford to do that.

"We have to play with concentration the entire 32 minutes. We can't let up. We have to play with more consistency if we want to win everything."

The girls who comprise this league-leading team agree with their coach's assessment. But, as Debbie Hartley noted, "even if we didn't all play to our potential, if each player at least performs well, we usually win. I don't think there's any way we're going to be stopped because of our depth. If the coach needs to take someone from the bench, that's okay because everyone on this team is sharp."

Cindy Spooner, a senior member of the team, explained that their last opponent, Harwich, possessed limited talent. "They had five players to play and that was it. We also have a great bench. Whenever we have to sub, it's no problem. It doesn't hurt us to go to the bench."

Coach Fallon explained that this team's greatest strengths are its intensity and attitude. "It's been great all year," he commented. "The kids now are a year older and maybe they want a little bit more than they got last year."

Players Marge Murphy and Sarah Dickerman predicted that with some luck - if they concentrate and make few mistakes - "it's onto the Centrum." Although Sarah seemed embarassed at such an ambitious prediction, her teammamtes yelled their encouragement.

"I really do think we can make it all the way," she continued. "This is a very well-balanced team. A lot of other teams have one big star. But our strength is that we have depth in our bench.

"And everyone gives 100 percent on this team," she added. "There isn't one person who would make us lose the game if she didn't play."

Dickerman echoed statements made by her teammates when she said they are all close friends, on the court and off. They began in recreation department leagues in fourth and fifth grades, and continued playing the sport in school.

"We're very close," she said. "And we have a good time together. We work hard, but we enjoy it."

While playing may be fun, Murphy admitted she becomes nervous prior to the start of tournament competition. "Once I'm in the game, I start to feel okay, it's just right before when I get nervous."

The junior player said it is the superior attitude of the team that pushes them to this edge of victory. "We don't want to lose," she stated. "We have a good feeling on this team. We have the potential to take it all. We can't let down. There can't be any lapses. We're ready to play."

Although the girls' team may not have captured the media attention showered on the boys' team, they too have their share of loyal and fierce fans.

Principal Mary Ellen Gallagher, herself a former baskeball player and coach, is a staunch supporter of this 1987 team. She and vice prinicipal John DeLorenzo alternate attendance at all the games, including all sports.

Gallagher laughed as she recalled her basketball career as a high school student in Brooklyn, N.Y, and in college in New York. Those were the days, she remembered, when only one player roamed the entire court, and the guards were staionery players. "It's a lot different now. When I watch these girls play, I can't believe how quick they are," she stated.

Gallagher was a former basketball coach at Bedford High School. There is little comparison between her teams and the 1987 CHS girls team. "There's no question that these kids are dedicated, hard-working and they listen," she said. "They listen very well, and that's important. They understand the concepts and understand how to set it up. They're always thinking ahead. I also believe they are extremely well-coached."

From her vantage point in the bleachers, Gallagher agreed the team is playing "very hard. They are all real team players."

With a laugh, Gallagher recalled how the game has progressed since she donned a skirted uniform to wage a courtside battle. "I like this game much more. It's faster and more exciting and the girls have developed more skills. I see such a difference in this team and ones I coached. These kids really fight for rebounds - they're always in there hustling. This team does everything well."

The new school principal reflected on the number of teams and students who have brought fame and glory to Cohasset with their numerous championships. "Maybe it's because they're aware that they're a small school and many play multiple sports. We have a strong junior high feeder program, so the kids need to be good to progress from JV to varsity. There's a sense of real competitiveness at this school.

"And," she continued, "I think there is a very sincere striving toward excellence. It shows in all phases of this school - from the athletic teams to the debating team. In all these things, the students strive for excellence. Even the student Council is rearing to go for the spring. They want to end the year really big and they want to get going now. It's part of the same sense of excellence that all the students here share."

English teacher Ron Emmons frequently attends afterschool basketball games. A sports fanatic, Emmons, who also coaches drama at the school, sees a link between the two interests.

"They're both neat to watch," he observed. "Just as it's interesting to watch a play with an unfinished script, it's also great to watch sports. There is definitely drama in sports."

Emmons, who teaches junior and senior English classes, said he knows most of the members of the '87 squad. "They're great people," he stated. "I got to know most of them through my classes, and I go to their games, because I like them. I love sports so I follow the boys and the girls' teams. But the quality of the girls's team has improved so much. It's a lot of fun watching this team play.

"I hope they go all the way."

More expert admiration came this week from assistant coach Allison Ludlow. The Deer Hill sixth grader is one of the team's staunchest supporters. A friend of Coach Fallon for many years, Allison knew him when her oldest sister was a member of the CHS softball team. Allison accompanied her to games and soon became manager of the football team.

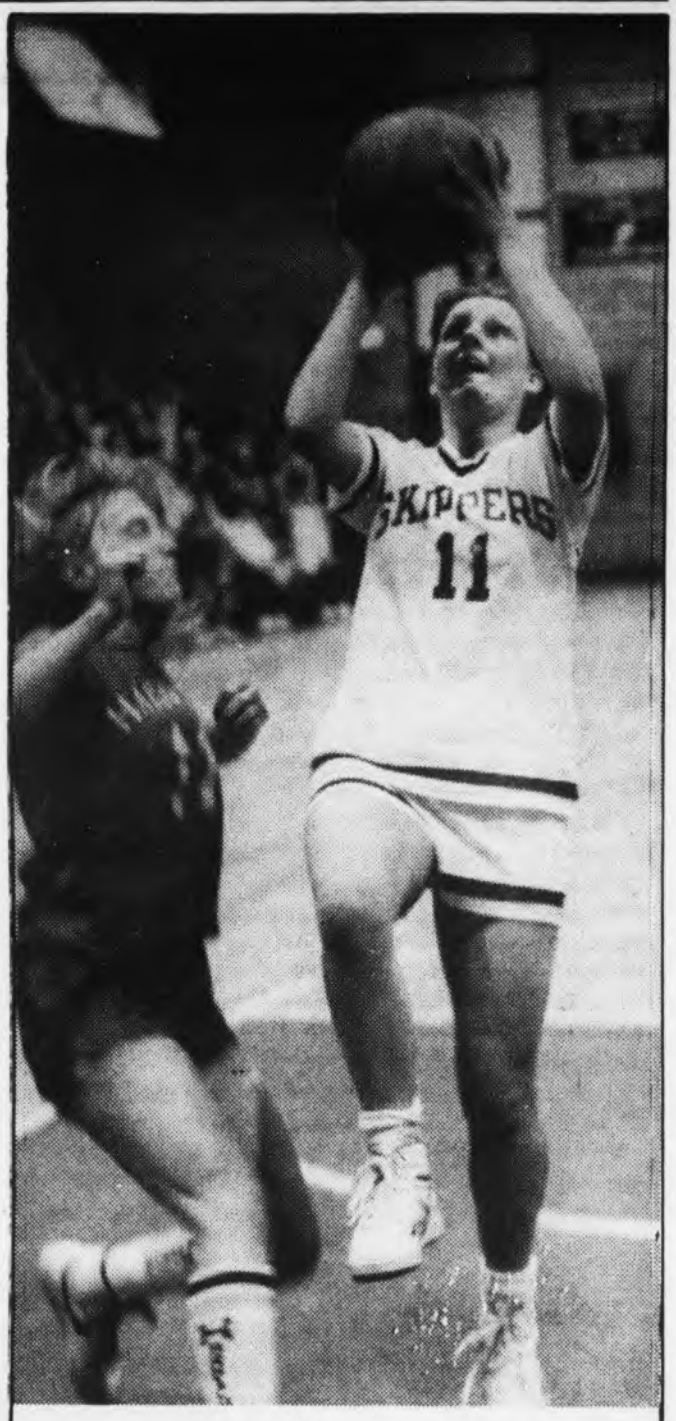
But basketball is her first love and now she assists Coach Fallon with the equipment and counts the fouls during games.

"This is a really good team," she said without hesitation. "They have a lot of skills and a lot of good shooters. I think they'll make it all the way."



That was from a member of the Aveni Cleaners basketball team which was undefeated in recreation league play this year. Allison is eying a berth on the junior varsity team next year. "It's my favorite sport," she confided.

Athletic director Clark Chatterton is keeping his fingers crossed, hoping for a second shot at the girls Division III championship. "We almost got there two years ago. We lost by only two points in the last game. I'd love to see these girls get it all," he said. "They are a great bunch of kids. They take the game seriously, but they have a lot of fun out there. I think Fallon is an unbelievably great coach and he's got a great group to work with."

This team deserves the title, Chatterton claimed. And he hopes the community shares his opinion. "I'd really like to see the town get behind this team. I think if there's a good crowd Wednesday night, they'll see how exciting this team is. They're fast and they're a lot of fun to watch."

Margie Murphy (background) is getting a bit intense while teammates Maureen O'Leary (11) and Cindy Spooner get set for the rebound.

Co-captain Maureen O'Leary shoots high and away from her Harwich opponent as Cohasset ran away with the quarterfinal victory.

Sewer candidate Bates

To the Voters of Cohasset:

I am announcing my candidacy for the Cohasset Board of Sewer Commissioners. My name is Lot W. Bates, son of Lot F. Bates who is the present Water Commissioner.

I am thoroughly familiar with the construction of on-site sewer systems and public sewer facilities. For seventeen years I worked with a local contractor specializing in excavating and installing leaching areas and sewer connections. I also worked on the construction of a large municipal sewer plant in Danvers, MA., the Cohasset Water Treatment Facility and was superintendent of a major school building in Plymouth, MA.

As you are well aware, the planning and construction of proper sewer facilities for Cohasset is years behind schedule This grossly neglected town program should be accelerated and aggressively pursued and I would like to take part in the process.

Much has been said about the Hull connection, but essentially no detail has been presented to the public. I want what is the best solution for Cohasset. If the Hull connection is economically feasible and will take the necessary gallonage for the foreseeable future, it ought to be pursued. If not, an alternate plan must be devised.

One of my first concerns is the Hillside and Veteran's Development, along with other top priority areas which are inundated with sewer problems.

I was born in Cohasset, graduated from Cohasset High and East Coast Aerotech. I am deeply concerned with the welfare of my native town and I want to have a part in solving what is probably its most pressing problem.

Lot W. Bates

The Committee to Elect Lot W. Bates Sewer Commissioner:

Albert J. Meallo, Chairman, 383-9389
Jean Higgins, Treasurer, 383-1514

Candidate Sandell

I love children and have been involved in education for over 20 years. I attended the University of Minnesota and graduated in 1966 from Winona College with a Bachelor of Science in Education. I taught first grade in the public school system of Minneapolis, and then moved to Cambridge, where I taught in the Medford school system.

In 1969-1973, my husband and I were houseparents at the Dana Hall School, a private girls school in Wellesley, Mass, where I counseled and parented 30 girls each year.

Moving to Cohasset in 1973, we were here 8 months before moving to Rome, Italy. For six years, I was involved in volunteer work at the American Overseas School of Rome, and Kendale International School.

Upon returning to Cohasset in 1980, I was involved in the following:

-President of the Senior High Communication

-Started the school news page in the Mariner

-Helped establish the AFS chapter and was vice president of the adult chapter.

-Helped form the Parent School Organization (PSO)

-President of the PSO in 1982 and 1985

-Currently Metco Host Family chairman for the PSO

Nancy Sandell

I am married to James Sandell, an architect, and we have four children. Mason, a freshman at Dartmouth College and a graduate of Cohasset High School; Anna, an eighth grader at the High School; Jessie, a second grader at the Osgood School and Morgan, a kindergartner at the Osgood School.

I am dedicated to quality in education-in the administrative and teaching staff and in a broad curriculum. I see the need for planning for the year 2000; setting goals, prioritizing them and revising the curriculum to meet them. I find it necessary to address the issues of the faculty regarding low morale, lack of respect and low salaries; to address the difficulty in attracting qualified teachers from a shrinking pool, and in retaining our teachers as the pull to private business becomes stronger. I would like additional exposure of our faculty to the influence of educators outside Cohasset, to new ideas and teaching methods, and to encourage our teachers and administrators to share their knowledge with their colleagues.

I am committed to Cohasset as an independent school system, with small classes and a staff and cirriculum which will meet the needs of all students. Obviously, in a small system this is costly, and we must make sure we have utilized our physical space and our staff in the most financially responsible way.

Nancy Sandell

We need to generate a new spirit in which learning is important. We need to lobby at the local, state and national level that unequivocally, learning is important, scholarship is important, education is important. I feel it is essential to communicate with the taxpayers and to keep them informed about our philosophy; our programs and our goals. We need to be reminded of how not only at the local level we benefit by having an excellent school system, but also at the national level for cultural, social and economical reasons. We all profit from producing well educated children: they will affect our future and the future of the world.

I have trust in peoples' ability, both as Cohasset taxpayers and educators, to unite in support of maintaining an excellent school system. I feel the perspective I have gained from my experience in education at the public, private and international level, in addition to my sincere love for children, will help maintain a superior educational system, and keep it the top priority in Cohasset.

I will be available to meet you, answer questions and hear your concerns before the next PSO meeting at 7:30 p.m. March 12. I need to know what you are thinking, so we can address it together.

Candidate Gjesteby

"I consider the Cohasset Heights landfill the most critical issue in Cohasset today. Should town boards press the state harder to try and solve the question of

Was it the elegant surroundings, the splendid menu or the congeniality of the serving staff? An evening meal or luncheon at PJ's Country House gives one so much to remember.

Martha Gjesteby. . .

suspected pollution?" stated Martha Gjesteby at a recent gathering announcing her candidacy for selectman.

Gjesteby is a candidate for one of two 3 year terms for selectman.

A resident for 27 years she has served the town in many ways over that period of time.

She is a former planning board and a two-term school committee member. Gjesteby served as secretary on both boards. Also she was appointed to the capital budget committee and tri town committee-transportation.

Since 1981, Gjesteby has been Cohasset's representative to the metropolitan area planning council. Last year her peers elected her treasurer of the council, and also she participates in the land use, transportation and legislative committees. Recently, she was on the search committee that appointed the new director of the council.

Gjesteby is also a member of the citizen's advisory committee to study the feasibility of the restoration of the Old Colony railroad, and is a member of the joint regional transportation committee which is a citizen's advisory group.

Volunteer activities in the community have always been a part of her life. Some of these are three year director-membership Cohasset community center; chairmanship of the communication council of Cohasset schools, community garden club board and Cohasset boosters.

Her personal background includes education in the Boston public schools, and B.S. in chemistry from Simmons College. She is secretary on the board of the family company. Martha and Arne, her husband, live on Old Pasture Road and are the parents of four children who graduated from Cohasset schools.

"Cohasset is a special place to live in. My experience and dedication on the various boards and committees have given me a background necessary for the office of selectman. I look forward to the challenge of serving all the people of Cohasset as selectman," she concluded.

Meet Nancy Sandell

Thursday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m. there will be an informal gathering in the Audio/Visual room at CHS for Cohasset residents to meet school committee candidate Nancy Sandell.

Over coffee and cookies, Nancy will be available to discuss and share ideas, hopes and concerns with parents. The former PSO president and current PSO METCO representative is anxious to address many school-related issues that affect our children.

This informal discussion will take place prior to the regular monthly meeting of the PSO, which will begin at 8 p.m.

Please join Nancy and the PSO next Thursday evening.

Coffee for Bates

Sewer commission candidate Lot W. Bates, will hold a coffee Sunday, March 15, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Kimballs-by-the-Sea.

The public is cordially invited to attend the coffee, affording the opportunity to meet and talk with Mr. Bates about the many issues regarding sewerage problems in the town of Cohasset.

The coffee is sponsored by the Committee to elect Lot W. Bates, Sewer Commission.

Republican Club meeting

The annual meeting of the South Shore Republican Club will be held Monday, March 16, at the First Parish Church hall in Norwell Center.

Speaker at 1 p.m. will be Bernice Mitchell who will portray the life of a Chinese woman.

Hostesses for the noon social hour will be members from Brockton and Whitman.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 87P0183A1

Estate of LESTER F. DOLAN late of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK.

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that JOHN H. DOLAN, of LEE, in the County of BERKSHIRE or some other suitable person be appointed administrator of said estate with surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on April 1, 1987.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the eighteenth day of February in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighty-seven.

Senior citizen news. . .

Message From The Director: March has been designated National Nutrition Month — this year's theme will be "Good Nutrition — A Personal Choice." Eating healthy foods should be of great concern to all of us! "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." So the saying goes. We've all heard this expression hundreds of times; but it is true that what we eat influences how we look and feel. The United States Department of Agriculture has developed the following Dietary Guidelines for all Americans. Always remember to: (1) Eat a variety of foods including selections of fruits, vegetables, whole grain and enriched breads, cereals, grains, milk, cheese, yogurt, meats, poultry, fish, eggs, and legumes. (2) Eat slowly, prepare small portions and avoid seconds. (3) Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol. (4) Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber. (5) Avoid too much sugar. (6) If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation. Remember, by eating the right foods and following a healthy diet, you can protect yourself from diet related diseases such as heart disease, high blood pressure, stroke, cancer, diabetes, osteoporosis, and obesity. March also marks the beginning of the local recipe contest. Check at the Senior Center for more information.

Transportation: Senior Bus Schedule: Monday to Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., 12:30 to 3:00 p.m.

Sunday Shuttle Bus: Call the Senior Center, 383-9112.

Walk-In Health Check: Blood pressure screening, urine testing, TB-testing are all available to any Cohasset residents at the Social Service League office, 16 Highland Avenue. The "walk-in" office hours are Monday-Wednesday-Friday, 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. & 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Health Clinics Sponsored by the Social Service League "Keep Well Clinics" March 12 — Senior Center 11:30 a.m.; March 19 — 60 Plus Meeting, 11:00 a.m.; March 27 Harbor View Hall, 60 Elm St., 10:00 a.m.

Geriatric Counselling: Any Cohasset senior or relative of an elder resident may call and talk with one of the social workers, Carolyn Housman LICSW or Judy Basmajian LICSW, who are geriatric specialists working with problems of financial, housing needs, depression, anxiety, adjustment to illness or other life crisis related to aging. Call the Social Service League office at 383-0771 for information.

Senior Center Programs: The following is a list of the regular weekly activities of the Cohasset Council on Aging.

MONDAY: Exercise class, 10:30 a.m.; Counted Cross Stitch class, 1:00 p.m.

TUESDAY: Walking Club, 10:00 a.m.; Senior Lunch at noon; Beginners Bridge at 1:00 p.m.

WEDNESDAY: Bowling, 9:30 a.m.; Walking Club, 10:00 a.m., Crocheting, 10:00 a.m.; Senior Exercise at 10:30 a.m. Line Dancing, 1:30 p.m.

THURSDAY: Walking Club, 10:00 a.m.; Quilting class, 1:00 p.m.

FRIDAY: Diversified Arts, 9:30 a.m.; Walking Club, 10:00 a.m.; Knitting group, 1:00 p.m.

Sixty Plus Club events

The Cohasset Sixty Plus Club's social held Thursday, Feb. 19, was a most interesting afternoon.

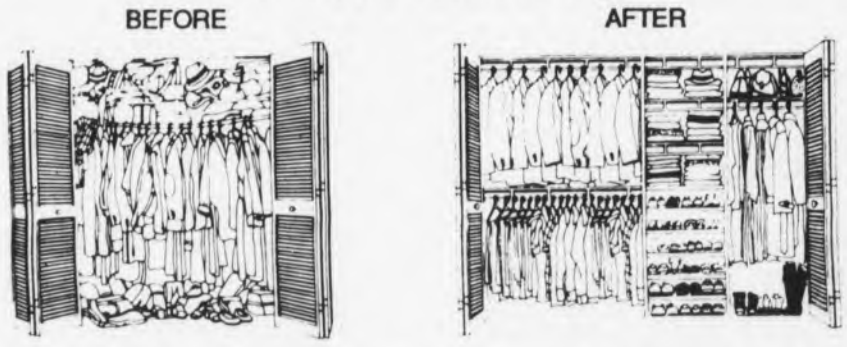
A lecture was presented with colored slides by Steven Hall of Scituate. The scenes included handsome Cathedrals of Paris, France, also St. Peter's magnificent Basilica, in Rome.

Thursday, March 19, the guest speaker will be Chaplin of Boston Harbor,Wally Cedarleaf . Known as the seaman's Chaplin, his stories will be fascinating to hear.

The Sixty Plus Club is planning a St. Patrick's Day,corned beef and cabbage dinner party,to be held at Trueblood Hall, Wednesday, March 18. Cost is $5.00. All senior citizens are invited to this gathering. Call Mary Donovan for reservations at 383-1100.

The Flower Show trip is scheduled for Tuesday, March 17. This bus trip will be with members of the Cohasset Garden Club. The cost is $15.

The next trip planned for Sixty Plus Club members is a three-day Adirondack Adventure, June 23-25. Accommodations will be made at the Gearlia Resort on Lake George. Add to this adventure the Saratoga Race Track, also a Holiday Inn Theater Party. Call Connie only, for all trips,information for deposits, and reservations at 545-3349.



A popular Cape Cod Canal trip, is being planned for June.

This is Sixty Plus Club's thirty years anniversary. Many programs are scheduled for this year. Details later.

Heights landfill faces shutdown deadline

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

It is time again for Cohasset Heights Landfill to put up or shut down.

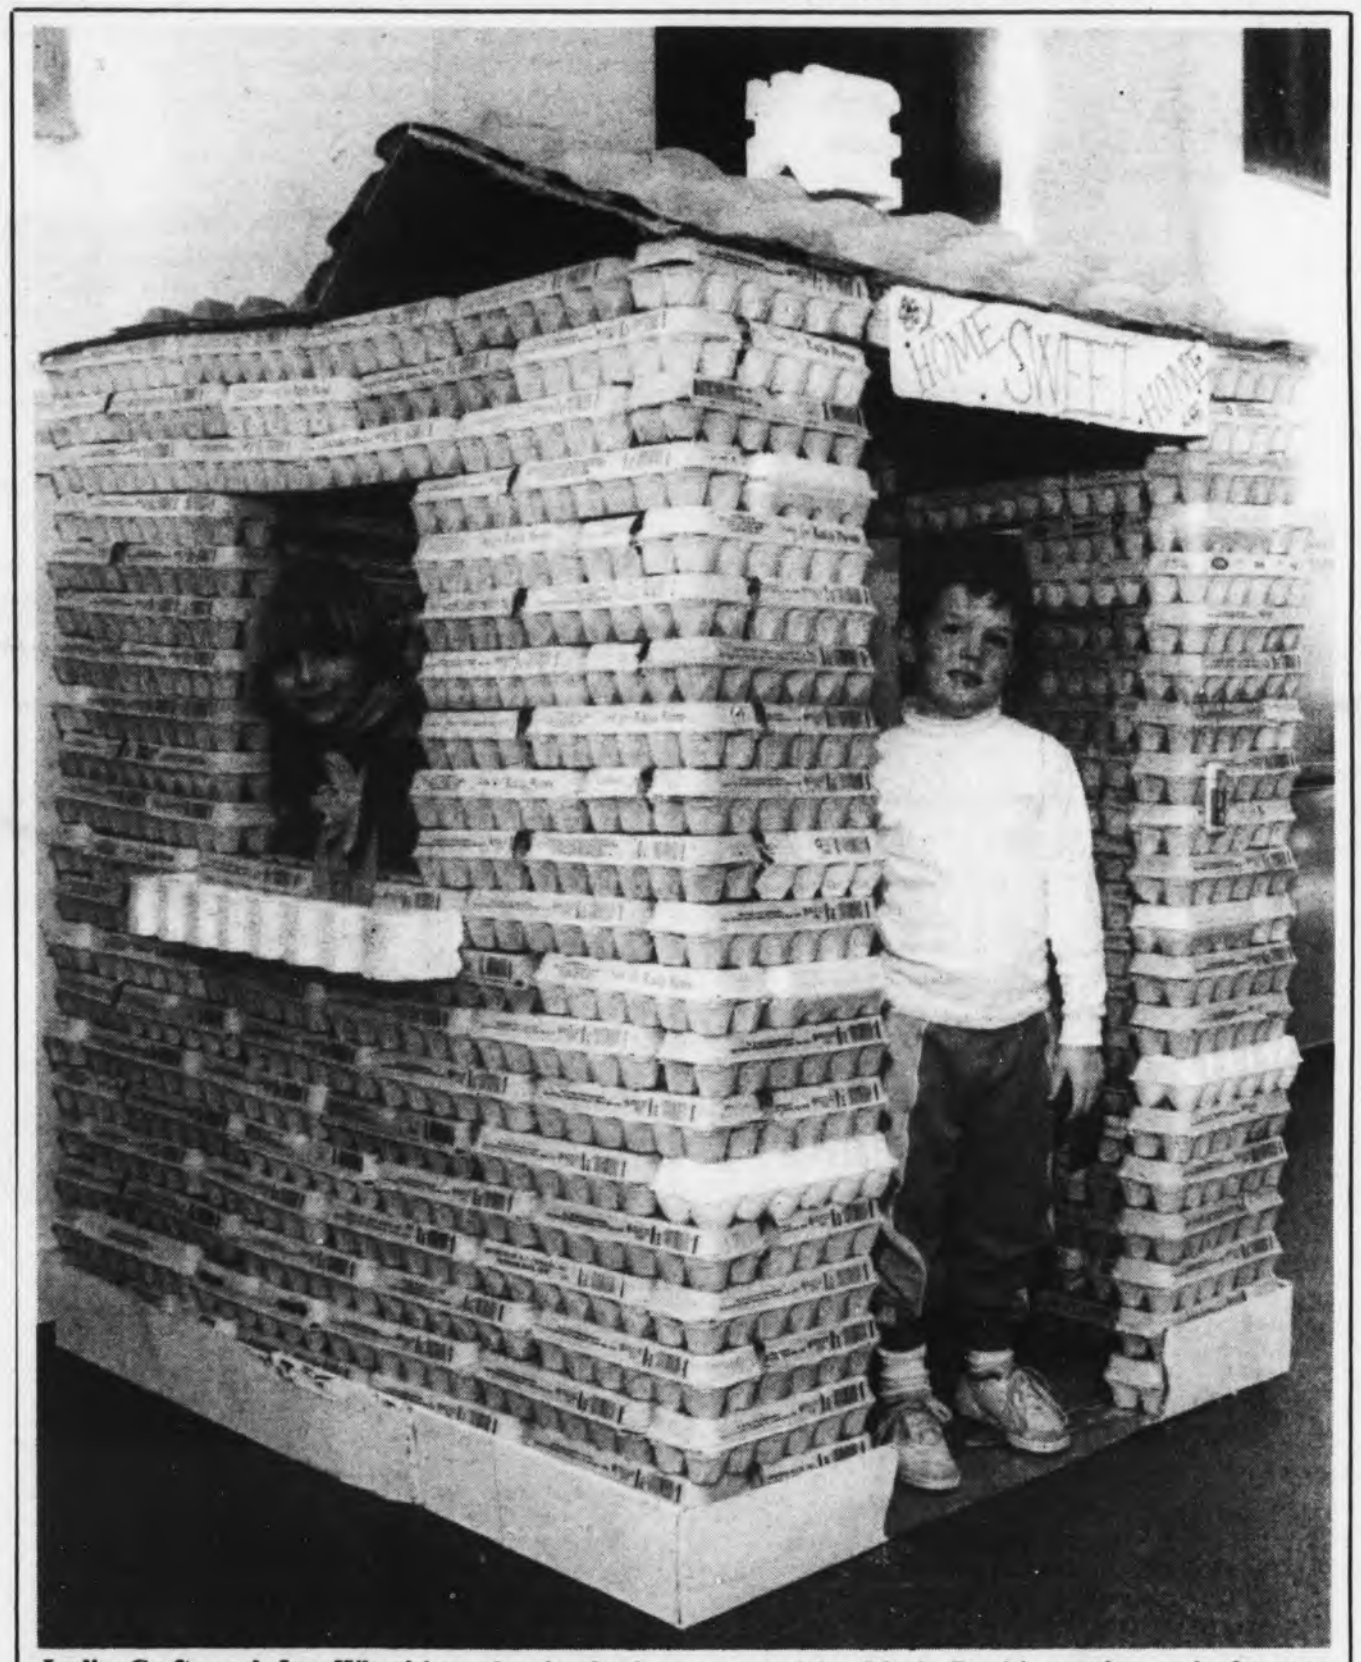
The Barry brothers, who own and operate the private commercial landfill have to meet another deadline; if they do not deliver an insurance policy to the board of health by 4 p.m., March 16, their dump will be shut down.

The board bent to public pressure Monday night, as a horde of protesters stampeded the Bates building .

Debate began as the board prepared to amend its minutes from Feb. 23. Chairman Michael Bliss and board member Sharon Becker sought to insert the word "or" between the words "certificate" and "policy," in a board vote requiring proof the landfill had insurance by 4:30 p.m. March 5.

The board received a certificate of a $10 million insurance policy held by Browning-Ferris Industries, 10 minutes before deadline, at 4:20 p.m. March 5.

John Burns,the board member who made the motion, said Monday he believed he asked for the actual policy. But Bliss and Becker said they voted in favor, believing a certificate of insurance would be satisfactory.



"Well, I want to see a policy," Burns said.

Some in the audience expressed concern as to whether the policy in question, which is backed by BFI, the landfill's leading contributor, covers the town and its water supply at Lily Pond adequately.

Peter Whittemore of 47 Elm Street queried whether the $10 million policy is dedicated solely to the protection of Cohasset, or whether it is BFI's total liability commitment.

Brian Lipsett of 85 Elm Street told the board he checked the policy with Graham Bryce, a senior

Dusty files reveal League of history

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

They were cleaning out file cabinets, long unused by the Social Service League of Cohasset. What the members uncovered a year ago along with considerable dust, was a written history of the League and the town.

In handwritten manuscript, the monthly reports of the League were carefully completed by diligent secretaries. They tell of the first district nurse, a woman who served the neighborhoods of Cohasset, Beechwood and North Scituate.

The elaborate handwriting explains how many visits were made to the sick, who was born, who died, and what diseases were prevalent in town each year. The reports, League member Mary Hartwell explained, are a treasure they found just in time to help celebrate the organization's 75th anniversary.

The League, then as now, has a motto of cooperation "for the welfare of the town and its people." As written in the president's report of 1921, "We may with truthfulness say that we are successfully upholding the object for which the League was founded. Little by little we are working into the confidence of our people and trying ever to make them feel that the League stands ready to render assistance in any reasonable direction for the betterment of human conditions."

Today the Social Service League, with offices at St. Stephen's Church, is a voluntary, non-profit organization which helps provide Meals on Wheels for Girls' hoop dreams shattered by Coyle-Cassidy

The bus ride. It was a long, long way back to Cohasset after a defeat which abruptly awakened them from their dreams of a state championship.

The girls basketball team ended its 1987 season last week at the skillful hands of Coyle-Cassidy High School. It was the end of a season for the Cohasset players; the completion of a long association among friends.

There are no more games - no more grinding practices in the high school gym. It is a silence the league champions did not welcome.

Senior co-captain Maria Cahill has played basketball alongside her teammates since the seventh grade. Before that, many of them were members of the town's recreational league. It seemed they would be playing forever, but it ended last week.

"My best friends are on that team," Cahill said this week. "I'll remember how hard we all worked toegther. It was kind of disappointing to go out the way we did, but compared to last year, we were so much better. We've been playing together since we've been in the seventh grade and we really know each other now. This year, we kind of brought everything together.

Luck failed to shine in double O.T.

By Mike Berger
Mariner Staff

If Cohasset had won this game, this definitely would have been a predestined team.

But the final breaks didn't go the Skipper's way and the ball didn't bounce the way it should have. Cohasset was beaten 56-43 in double overtime last week to end an amazing record of two championships.

It was an amazing basketball game, well played and both teams were worthy of the victory. But in the long run, Hopkinton advanced to the South Sectional final (only to lose to Fairhaven by 11 points) because it shut the door on all of Cohasset's offensive options.

It was amazing that Cohasset was in the game because of the bulk of Hopkinton's front line of 6-9 center Chuck Mullen, 6-5 forward Liam Kenney and 6-7 Brendan Kenney.

Whenever Cohasset's Brian Edwards dribbled down the baseline, he was greeted by 6-9 Chuck Mullen. Edwards continously found himself triple teamed and for most of the game the Skippers' game plan was to shoot from the outside.

Cohasset's week . . .

Special voter registration

There will be special registration days for the town meeting and town election, also certification of Nomination Papers for the town election April 11.

An evening registration session will be scheduled the second and third week before close of registration: Tuesday, March 10, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.; Tuesday, March 17, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.; Saturday registration on last Saturday before close of registration, March 21, from noon to 8 p.m.

The last day for registration for the town meeting and town election is March 23, from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

New Cohasset voters

Twenty-one new voters were added to the Cohasset list at a voter registration assembly held at the High School on Wednesday morning, March 4. Jointly sponsored by the Cohasset League of Women Voters and the High School Social Studies Department, the assembly was attended by members of this years graduating class.

Edward F. Sheehan, chairman of the Social Studies Department opened the assembly by introducing Janice Crowley and Patty McCarthy, Voter Service Directors of the League.

Polly Logan of the Republican Town Committee then urged the assembled seniors to register to vote and to use this power frequently. The treasurer of the Democratic Town Committee, Fred Koed, reminded the seniors of the importance of taking an active role in town, state and national government.

The final speaker was Richard Henderson, Cohasset's Town Counsel. He outlined the legal rights of 18 year-olds and urged them to become active participants in their town meeting form of government.

Following the speakers, Alice Daunta representative of the Town Registrar's office formally signed up the 21 new voters.

Gjesteby featured speaker

Martha Gjesteby, a member of the Joint Regional Transportation Committee,was afeatured speaker and panelist at the fifth Annual Transportation Forum to be held at the Sheraton Plymouth Friday, March 6.

The workshop is being sponsored by the Plymouth County Development Council and Massasoit Community College, in cooperation with the Metropolitan area Planning Council and Chambers Commerce on the South Shore. The program will focus on current transportation needs, and how to develop a strategy for meeting the needs of the 21st century.

Other speakers include Robert Tierney — Commissioner of Mass. Dept. of Public Works; Rep. Frank Hynes (D-Marshfield); Richard McCourt, Chairman, Construction Industries of Mass.; Stephen J. Polechronis, Asst. Project Mgr., Mass. Bay Transportation Authority; Guy Rosmarin, Consultant, Associated Industries of Mass.; Sen. Edward Kirby (R-Whitman), Joint Transp. Committee; Dr. Michael D. Meyer, Director-Planning, Mass. Dept. of Public Works.

Anyone want a barn?

The barn at the rear of the Community Center is scheduled for demolition April 21. If anyone is interested in having it, they may call the Center at 383-0088 Monday through Friday to make arrangements.

It must be moved from the property before April 21 at your expense.

Call if you are interested.

Animal shelter hearing

There will be a public hearing on the proposed Hingham Animal Shelter, Thursday, March 19 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held with the Hingham advisory subcommittee at the Hingham Town Hall, Barnes Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend to hear about the regional animal shelter plans and to lend your support.

Central Cemetery meeting

This is to notify you that the Annual Meeting of the Cohasset Central Cemetery will be held in Trueblood Hall, Unitarian Parish House Saturday, March 21 at 4 p.m.

According to Section 4 of Article VII of the bylaws of the Cemetery, "each owner shall be a member of the Association and shall have one vote as such member at each regular or special meeting of the Association which is duly called."

The purposes of this meeting are: to hear the reports of committee chairmen; to hear the report of the treasurer and to act on the budget for the coming year; to hear the report of the president; to hear the report of the nominating committee and to act thereon — (election of directors):election of a nominating committee by ballot from nominations made by the board of directors; to act on any other business that may properly come before the meeting.

According to the bylaws, a quorum at annual meeting shall be fifteen members. We hope that you will attend.

Animal disposer resigns

The board of health recently notified selectmen that Brian Cogill has resigned as the town's disposer of dead animals. As a temporary measure, the board has appointed landfill supervisor Joseph Laugelle to fill the position.

The board, in a letter to selectmen last week, noted that no job description exists for this position, nor for the animal control officer. The health board members suggested that a job description for the animal control officer be devised immediately and to include the responsibilities of disposing of dead animals.

In the meantime, Laugelle will dispose of all dead animals at the landfill and will not be docked for pay if he is called away from the landfill to pick up a dead animal, the health board stated.

Corrections

In last week's edition of the Mariner it was stated that suspended sewer plant operator Manuel Salvador is on suspension with pay. Salvador, who suffered a heart attack in late January, is actually using his allotted paid sick leave.

The article also gave the impression that YWC, the contract firm hired by the sewer commission to operate the wastewater plant, had two chief operators on duty at once. There is one grade four operator currently in charge, James Riley. On weekends and holidays, the chief operator will be replaced by grade four certified operator Roger Goudreau.

Fire over housing new pumper

By Ruth Ann Turner
Mariner Correspondent

Two petitions geared to improve telephone service were approved by selectmen Monday night, after hearing a detailed presentation from New England Telephone engineer Paul Colandrea.

The first petition includes an underground conduit location, one manhole, and one serving area connector terminal located at Chief Justice Highway, King Street, Forest Avenue and North Main Street. The second petition includes an underground conduit location and one serving area connector terminal at Sohier Street and Chief Justice Cushing Highway.

Colandrea noted the current buried cables are "in a rapid state of deterioration," causing the telephone company "a lot of trouble."

The project will also involve an above-ground structure at North Main, King and Forest streets, Colandrea added, saying the police department would be on location to direct the heavy traffic at that intersection.

Subject to final approval by the town highway surveyor and tree and park superintendent, construction is slated for early spring.

Housing for a recently-purchased fire pumper was deliberated by selectmen and Fire Chief Daniel Brock, after a disagreement erupted over whether or not the fire chief had requested additional housing when he first requested the pumper.

Diane Sullivan, chairman, first addressed Brock, saying he had initially indicated he had a place to house the new pumper. She asked Brock if he will be able to man the new pumper and if additional funds will be needed for labor.

Brock said he could adequately man his pumpers, and that costs for labor will not increase.

"Where will you put the new pumper if housing is not approved?" Sullivan asked.

Brock said the new pumper would then go inside the station, and an old pumper would be kept outside in back of the station.

Selectman James Gallagher suggested a canvas for the pumper kept outside.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle, reacting angrily to the idea of storing vehicles outside, pointed out he has requested several times that the department clean up the equipment behind the station, yet it hasn't been done. He stressed that bids be posted for the department's old trucks and equipment, noting that the residents behind the station are tired of having to look at that area.

In reiterating his request, Brock said, "I am sorry the board did not get the intent we needed additional space."

"There's nothing in the proposal indicating you said that," Sullivan said. She further noted that the space problem "would have been a complete issue on its own."

After further discussion, the board and the fire chief resolved to discuss the problem with the police chief in an attempt to rearrange vehicles, using the police

Advisory Board backs 6.5 percent school budget

After weeks of deliberation and negotiation with the school dept., the advisory committee voted 5-1 Tuesday, to endorse a 6.5 percent increase in the school budget for fiscal year 1988.

The school dept. had proposed a budget of $4,855,710, an increase of 8.1 percent over the previous year's operating budget, but settled for $4,783,911.

"I don't think this should come as a surprise to anyone," said Bill Lean of the advisory committee. "This increase reflects a contracted salary increase of 6.6 percent plus step increases of approximately five percent for 20 percent of the staff.

"No change in staffing is premised," he added, "and the student population is expected to be stable."

Lean noted, the school department's original raise request of $360,000 was made up of roughly $313,000 in salary increases, while $47,000 was slated for expense increases. Under the new figure, $291,785, either expenses will be decreased or staffing will be adjusted.

"I don't feel it's fair of them to fight for such great increases in contracts and then come back and say this is 80 percent of our budget," committee member Jill O'Donnell commented. "They know the Proposition 2 1/2 limitations."

The schools are in the second year of a three-year contract, Lean noted. "It started with a 5.5 percent increase the first year and gets less favorable to the town as it goes along. However, it is not on the high end of the scale compared to other school systems, such as Hingham. The net impact does not put us in the superior range; it puts us in the competitive range."

Arne Gjesteby, who cast the lone dissenting vote in the boards 5-1 decision argued, if it were truly a tight budget, the school dept. would have to "lop off some heads."

He expressed disappointment that the school dept. has indicated it will cut maintainance and school supplies in favor of retaining staff. "If you don't cut heads, it doesn't mean anything."

"In my opinion," he said, "we have too many administrators. I think they could cut back in a lot of places around the system, but the school administration never considered cutting staff."

"The school committee has to go somewhat, by what the community wants," retorted committee member Jane Goedecke.

"This is a big expense in town," Gjesteby said, "and we should look into it."

Goedecke noted, "Bill (Lean) and I spent a long time talking with the administration about looking long-range at future staffing needs, and we let them know we expect to see some major changes.

"I've got a sense of honesty about (Supt.) Hart," she added. "He seems very straight-forward, and I believe what he told us, but we were firm about the future."

"In the school committee's open meetings," Goedecke said, "there doesn't seem to be a lot of give and take. They don't tend to discuss their options in open meeting - 'What about this dept.? Who can we cut here?' - And I can see how that would be difficult to do in public. But it is being addressed behind the scenes."

Excess administrative personnel will have to be sacked, the advisory committee agreed, and the school dept. must endeavor in the future to use teachers to their fullest capacity.

O'Donnell complained, the administration will have a problem following such a course, because it is dealing with a union. "When eliminating staff," she said, "the administration will be forced to choose the employee with the least seniority."

The teaching staff at Cohasset schools is mature, with 80 percent of educators at the peak of their salary scale.

Of the 6.5 percent increase in the school budget, Lean said, 5.6 percent is going to salary increases, while .9 percent is slated for non-salary items. Meanwhile, there seems to be a need for improvements to the high school building and facilities.

"The only way to make them change," Gjesteby said, "is to cut their financing."

"That seems to be an obvious solution in many cases," Goedecke commented, "but I don't know that that tactic would be good in this situation, because they would have to modify curriculum to make the cuts.

"We expect to see a good deal of creative thinking from the school dept. in the future, and funding for teachers where it should be. They will need to make major changes to deal with the declining enrollment."

The advisory committee hinted, closing the Osgood School may be one such "major change" the school committee will be forced to consider.

Gjesteby proposed cutting the school budget increase to $4,760,900, a six percent gain, "to show them we mean business." His motion was not seconded by any other committee member.

"I have a question," Goedecke said to Gjesteby. "If we had agreed with them at six percent, would you have said 5.5 percent?"

Gjesteby reiterated his position that if the budget were where he believes it ought to be, heads would roll.

The advisory committee agreed instead, to the original 6.5 percent increase it had negotiated with the school committee, and discussed the feasability of meeting with the school committee "on a less formal basis" throughout the year, to encourage the creative thinking it has in mind.

In other business, the advisory committee endorsed a spate of warrant articles including:

-Improvements to Woodside Cemetery for the purpose of adding gravesites;

-$50,000 for the continuance of legal fees to fight the Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill on Crocker Lane;

-A citizens' petition to close the Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill;

-the purchase of two new 65-passenger school buses and one 9-passenger van;

-$360,000 for engineering work related to the new Ward Plan for sewering the town;

-$10,000 for library repairs;

-To accept monies totalling $35,000 to refurbish the duck pond on Cohasset common.

Meet candidate Sandell

Thursday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m. there will be an informal gathering in the Audio/Visual room at C.H.S. for Cohasset residents to meet candidate Nancy Sandell. Join us for coffee and cookies and discuss hopes, concerns and share ideas. The former PSO president and current PSO Metco representative will be there to address many school-related issues. This informal discussion will take place prior to the regular monthly meeting of the PSO which will begin at 8 p.m. Please join Nancy and the PSO on Thursday.

Appeals Bd. implores resident to resolve case

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The appeals board implored Marie Caristi and Dr. James Judge to "find a way" to overcome a cease and desist order issued by the building inspector.

Building inspector Donald Robbins found that Judge's dental practice in an office off Caristi's house at 11 Blackhorse Lane violates town bylaws.

"The building inspector's determination creates a hardship for myself and for my children," Caristi told the board. "I still have a proprietary interest in the business and I have an investment in it."

Caristi said she sold part of the business to Judge, after her husband died in 1984.

"It would be an emotional trauma for me and my kids" she added, "paying property taxes without the income that office generates."

While a dental practice has existed at the site for about three decades, the board said it was concerned about the use of the office there by someone other than the house resident.

Chairman Myrna Putziger noted, Caristi's appeal of Robbins' decision was dismissed in court. "Have you been using the office in violation of the bylaw since 1984?"

Caristi said she believed the dentist's practice could continue there through the appeals period, but Putziger disagreed.

"I think this board seems cold and unyielding," said Terence Farrell, a member of the board, "but when this first came up, we agonized over it; we even went back to former board members for information. But this bylaw you passed at town meeting; we have to interpret it narrowly.

"There is no perfect bylaw," he added, "but this bylaw is specific."

Caristi told the board she has the support of her neighbors on the issue, and several attended the hearing with her.

"The reasons your neighbors back you on this decision are emotional," Putziger commented. "This board makes impersonal decisions with regard to land and structures; nothing has changed since we rendered our original decision in this case."

"The neighbors are not just emotional," Caristi protested. "They are protecting themselves; if I sell, something else could go in there."

"The cease and desist order was properly issued," Putziger retorted. "The building inspector took that step to enforce the bylaw. The only way we could rule in favor of your appeal, is if the situation changes to meet the bylaw."

She added, This is an issue "addressed to all" in the community. "It would be bad for the town, if we made a precedent which would allow a situation where the neighbors might not be as happy as yours; such a precedent would open the flood gates."

Caristi argued, allowing her appeal would not set a precedent, because each case should be interpreted on its own merits, and precedents would be an interpretation of law. "The board is given discretionary powers."

Farrell explained, those powers "are linked to land, not to people, sad to say.

"This has nothing to do with personal issues, but land issues," said Robert Davenport of 17 Blackhorse Lane, Caristi's next door neighbor.

"This case is different from someone just practicing out of thier home," he added. "This wing was built off an intervening garage. It was built at a time when this was permissible."

Peter Tolman of 28 Blackhorse Lane, another neighbor told the board, "I was there before 1955, before this wing was built. It's a completely different building. It's on a separate foundation, it just happens to be touching the garage.

The board established one of the building's four walls is exposed, because it abuts the garage; however the utilities are not connected with the Caristi house, and the two do not have a connecting doorway or passage.

Farrell suggested, "The bylaw was created by the town, and it can be changed by the town. Otherwise, you must get to circumstances which qualify you for the grant of a variance, which I can't get to.

"You're not the first person doing what you're doing," Farrell said. "I wish you could find a legal way to do what you want."

Caristi told the board she has spent $4,000 in legal bills, trying to get this matter resolved.

The board suggested "It could be okay if you were employed by Dr. Judge in some capacity."

"We feel trapped," said board member Mark DiGiacomo; "we've looked for you. If you find something we can follow, that would help. Show us the way."

The hearing was continued until April 2.

underwriter with the National Union Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh (located in New York City).

"I was informed that the policy was designed to cover six hazardous waste sites operated by BFI across the nation," Lipsett said, "and that Cohasset was added to that list as an interested party that might bring suit.

"Bryce told me you would have to prove Browning-Ferris is responsible," he added, "and that that would be a legal nightmare. This policy is meaningless."

Bryce refused to comment on the policy, when contacted by the Mariner Tuesday.

Michael Leon, special counsel to the board said he believes the policy does cover the town well.

When the board amended the landfill's site assignment in May, 1986, he said, it required the Barry brothers to provide $10 million liability coverage .

When their comprehensive general liability (CGL) policy expired in the fall, they found they could not get a renewal, they discussed several alternatives and settled on BFI's $10 million environmental insurance liability (EIL) policy.

Leon said he believes the EIL is superior to the CGL, because the latter now covers only sudden emergencies.

The new policy, he explained, backs up "with a deeper pocket," the landfill's $7 million in stacked policies, which cover anything which might have occurred under the old policy.

Peter Pratt,former chairman of the water commission, blasted the board for accepting such a policy. "Why has this board accepted an insurance policy from a business that doesn't have a license from this board?"

The board responded BFI is the landfill's largest contributor, has a contract with Cohasset Heights Ltd. and has offered to back the Barry brothers' $7 million stacked policies with a "deeper pocket."

Kevin O'Donnell of 196 Fairoaks Lane disputed the deepness of such a pocket.

"A third rate insurance company could bankrupt this town before you could ever collect anything," he said. "Insurance company buildings and empires are built, because they make it impossible to collect."

O'Donnell recommended the board ask for a cash bond, rather than an insurance policy.

"Is it reasonable to do this?" Becker asked.

"The site assignment says, 'insurance or other surity,'" Leon told her.

"Few take advantage of cash bond," O'Donnell noted, "because they really might have to pay. If you've got the cash, they can't run away."

"Why can't the board just shut the place down?" asked Edward Hettstrom of 57 Church Street.

Burns explained, "We couldn't do it legally. I haven't heard anything from our engineers at Camp Dresser & McKee which indicates there is a condition there that threatens the water supply."

The board has called in CDM to perform tests in the area and prepare a study on the relationship between the landfill and Lily Pond, Leon added.

Whittemore complained conditions have changed at the site since last summer, with the finding of toxic organic chemicals at a test well at the base of the landfill, and a stench that occasionally shrouds the area on cold nights.

He noted a clause in the site assignment regarding the degradation of surrounding waters and urged the board to take measures to close Cohasset Heights.

"I'm concerned about the town spending thousands and thousands of dollars going to court," Becker said.

"If we close the landfill, does that solve the problem?" Burns added. "There's a theory that we ought to let them fill it up quickly and close it."

The audience argued Cohasset Heights would simply expand its operation and keep collecting garbage.

"People keep coming to this board asking you to take Cohasset Heights to court," Pratt commented. "It's time to listen to the people of the town; the board should take its policy direction from the people who pay the bills."

Bliss argued, "There's no question everyone in town feels uncomfortable with it there; everybody would like us to close it, but it would reopen in a week or two. We need more evidence before we go to court, and we have a proposal from CDM to gather additional data."

The throng forwarded several other proposals for the board's consideration Monday.

Many of the residents in attendance expressed their disenchantment with Paul Barry's service as landfill spotter. They asked the board to hire a special agent responsible to the board, but paid by Cohasset Heights, who would take samples and keep watch for hazardous materials at the dump.

The board of health will seek to change the site assignment at a hearing March 30, to increase the tipping fee to $2 per ton, from the present fifty-cent fee. An average of 299 tons of trash enter Cohasset Heights Landfill every day.

The board also will entertain the idea of getting a second engineering opinion on CDM's findings, and will address the spotter issue at the March 30 hearing.

If the insurance policy is delivered by the Monday deadline, Leon will review it and will render his opinion of it March 26, for presentation at the hearing.

If the policy is not delivered in time, health agent Joseph Godzik will serve a closing notice to the landfill March 17. With that announcement, the crowd cheered and applauded.

Stay tuned...

Cablesystems campaign

American Cablesystems is launching a campaign-to-help parents teach their children how to avoid kidnapping and child abuse.

The campaign will feature screening of a new home box office documentary, "How to raise a street-smart child," both on HBO and on Channel 12, The American Channel. The documentary will be shown on Channel 12 on March 16 and 23 at 9 p.m. to all cable subscribers in the towns of Scituate, Norwell, Hanover, Hull, Cohasset and Hingham.

American Cablesystems and the New England Cable Television Association have been working on the missing children issue for two years. Until now, the emphasis has been on finding missing children, through a regular satellite transmission and local cablecasting of biographical information and photos of those who have disappeared.

For further information on American Cablesystem's campaign to prevent kidnapping and child abuse, contact Stephen J. Farquhar at 545-0584.

Uniform Gift to Minors Act amended

Many of you have custodial funds in the bank for your grandchildren to have when they grow up. The Mass Uniform Gift to Minors Act has been completely rewritten. Now entitled "The Uniform Transfers to Minors Act" it has changes that became effective on January 30, 1987. Accounts should be opened using the following language on the account card: "As Custodian for (name of minor) Under the Mass Uniform Transfers to Minor Act"

The definition of minor has been changed from one who has not yet reached the age of 18 to "an individual who has not yet attained the age of 21 years." This means that transfers effected before January 30, 1987 vest an interest in the property of the 18 year old on his or her birthday. If the property is transferred after January 30, 1987, it remains under the jurisdiction of the custodian until the minor reaches age 21. Any confusion over when the child has the right to custodial funds should be resolved between the custodian and legal advisor. You could also ask the bank where you have an account.

around town

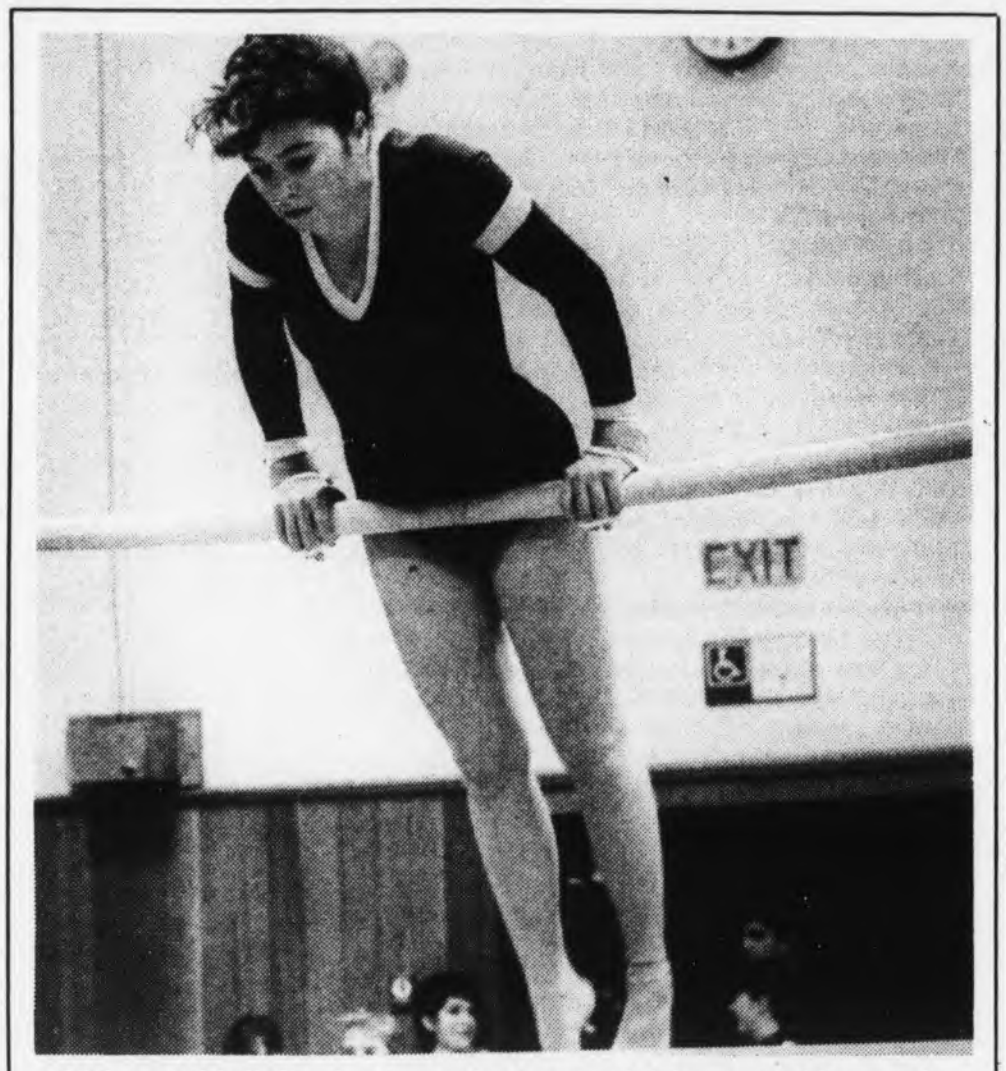
☐ Therese Lennon and Liz Pearce (CHS grads, class of '84) are enjoying life in London this semester. They are studying at Richmond College in Kensington. Talk about great timing, the girls even arrived in time for the famous Harrods Sale! Wonder what irresistable items they purchased? Hope they'll fill us in upon their return!

☐ Bruce Edmonds is recovering nicely after recent surgery. Bruce and Mary's daughter Bonnie came on from Texas to be with her Dad, which was nice as we all got a chance to see her.

☐ Walt and Nanci Sweeney were in town last week too. Walt was part of the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs lecture series, along with M.L. Carr and Mrs. Bias, to name a few. He reported that the meetings were well attended, and thought that a lot was gained by them. While he was here a few of his friends had dinner with him, but he wanted to be sure to say hello to those that he missed. They sure do miss Cohasset! And, we miss them!!

☐ Everyone loves the new Community Center Logo made by Sue Buckley of Forest Ave. She did a good job, and so did the committee that chose it!

☐ Don't forget tomorrow night, when the PSO St. Pat's Fling will take place at Hugo's Lighthouse. It promises to be a lot of fun and there are tickets available at the door for $10 per person. Call any PSO Board member for more details, but do plan to wear your best green outfit and be there.



☐ Can you believe the number of people that are supporting Cohasset-by-the-sea tans this week, thanks to last Sunday's wonderful spring day? Keep shining sun!!

☐ Congratulations to James P. Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Walsh of 270 North Main Street and to Eric A. Maki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maki of 85 Doane Street. Both boys have been named Finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program. Its a real feather in their caps when you realize that one half of one percent of high school seniors are selected as finalist in the competition! The next step is that they will be considered for scholarships offered through various college and corporate institutions. Great work, fellas.

☐ The masterpiece is finished and can be viewed in the Osgood kindergarten space...Mrs. Davis' students have made their egg-carton egg-house and everyone is talking about how grand it is. Stop in and see if you can find the one that you donated!

☐ Harold Litchfield and his able crew will be busier than ever in the weeks to come! Now they have to concentrate on getting up all of the sand that they put down all winter to make our streets safe...some people's work is just never done!

☐ Speaking of street, have you been along Jerusalem Rd. at night? The new streetlights have have been installed are beautiful and the soft glow that they give really make the street prettier than ever!

☐ "The Girls" held a shower for their own bride-to-be, Gina Frioro, last Sunday at the George H. Mealey Post and it was said to be a great time! Still find it hard to believe that "little Gina" is getting married in May, but we sure do wish her much happiness and hope that she and Chuck have a wonderful life together!

☐ Jeffrey O'Neill was nominated by Congressman Gerry Studds to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. The names of the 10 nominees have been sent by Congressman Studds to the Academy where they will compete for final appointment.

☐ Coach Phil Pisano and Robert Durkin of Cohasset High School were named to the 1986 Boston Globe All-Scholastic Football Team. Coach Pisano was named Division 4 Coach of the Year.

A graduate of Cohasset High School and a Bates senior, Buckley serves as a counselor and resource person for other students. She is the R.C. for Milliken House, Whittier House and Turner House, three of the 28 Victorian houses that provide alternatives to dormitory life.

☐ Joseph F. Whelan recently received a BA in Political Science from Boston University.

☐ Carol A. Lewis recently received a MS degree in Occupational Therapy (graduate two year program) from Boston University.

☐ Louis J. Molinari of 69 Elm St., a Senior in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, has been named to the Dean's High Honors List for the Fall semester of the 1986-1987 academic year at Suffolk University.

☐ We hear Peter Kulturides is feeling much better ,and hope that he is soon as good as new!

☐ Here's hoping that Phil Mahoney's back is all better real soon...especially in time for baseball!

☐ A sure sign of Spring is all of the walkers and runners that we see now. One man you always see, no matter what the weather, is Bob Walls. And, he always looks so happy while he's doing it! He sure knows how to stay in shape!

☐ Dudley Bryan, Sue Camardo, Michelle Meagher, and Chipper Weir have submitted art work and Mary McElroy has submitted an essay to the Massachusetts High School Marine Studies Contest, and we wish them good luck and hope they are chosen winners. CHS sure represents itself in many different areas, and we as a town should be very proud!

☐ Keep your news coming, there should be a lot at this time of year...we aren't housebound any more!

How are you planning for your future?

Millbrook offers you a new choice in retirement living

1. an independent lifestyle — These are your years to enjoy — at your own pace, in your own style — and in your own home, free from the day-to-day burdens of owning a house, or depending on your family. Millbrook offers you a comfortable urban setting, where neighborhood shops, restaurants, banks and churches are within easy walking distance.
2. in-house services — We offer you all the comforts of home with modern appliances, including a self-cleaning oven, frost free refrigerator, garbage disposal, dishwasher, bay windows, wall to wall carpeting, elevators, laundry facilities and well-lit, on-site parking.
3. amenities — In addition, we provide a variety of important amenities, including your main meal of the day with a choice of entree from our fine menu, housekeeping, maintenance, scheduled transportation, 24-hour security, nursing care available 24-hours and more.
4. continuing health care — We hope you always enjoy good health, but should any special health needs arise, in-house rehabilitative and nursing care is also available. For years we've provided seniors with top-quality health care. If you should ever need our help — rest assured — we'll be there for you.
5. a new rental approach — We offer you a variety of one and two bedroom apartments with a straight rental approach. In contrast to the typical endowment plan, our short-term lease arrangement helps you avoid making a costly investment. That way you benefit from control over your own savings.

We all need to plan for the future. Now Millbrook in Braintree offers you a new choice in retirement living.

Keep the dream alive

Everyone on the South Shore had heard by Friday. The Cohasset Winter Garden skating rink, a landmark along Rte. 3A for more than 20 years, was closing its doors.

The reverberations from its demise were felt in many towns in the area, not just in Cohasset. Skaters, young and old, from Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate, and Marshfield, are now feeling the effects of the rink shutdown.

The rink was not a profitable business for the owner, James Hoban. Optimistic he could make some money from the popular recreation spot when he bought the place two years ago, the rising costs of liability insurance got in the way of financial success. It was no secret he was looking for a sale since last year. Many were interested, but few could come up with the money to cover the insurance rates.

Hoban is a businessman first. And as a businessman, he has every right to sell his property to whomever he selects, for whatever purpose. That is his right.

We do not dispute that Hoban must take care of number one first. And if he had to make a sale quickly, as he has said, then we agree a boat retail outlet is probably as good business as any to locate there. It is zoned for highway business, and certainly a boat outlet is a proper use of the land.

That's the practical side. Then there is the emotional, human side to this story. The children of this area are left without a skating arena that many have long considered a second home. And the impact will be felt throughout the South Shore.

Closing down the home rink of the Seahawks youth hockey skaters will mean jamming in some ice time at Hingham's Pilgrim and Pembroke's Hobomock arenas. It will be downright inconvenient and confusing to the hundreds of children and their accommodating parents who drive the kids back and forth to weekly practice and games.

The competitive figure skaters from the Cohasset rink will now have to share rink time with their neighborly rivals in Hingham. However awkward that may be, it is the only alternative for these kids who love to skate but have nowhere else to turn.

Plans are underway to investigate the possibility of constructing a publically-owned facility in the Cohasset-Scituate-Marshfield area. It is a needed commodity, but it will be expensive.

If the sports of figure skating and youth hockey are to survive in this area, we need feeder programs to continue. It's a shame that grown-up problems like insurance to protect against lawsuits interfere with the vital, happy activities of our youth.

Another skating rink in this area is needed and wanted by the families of the South Shore. Then let's be resourceful and accomplish that goal. If we want to take our kids off the street - if we want to keep them interested in organized sports - then it's time to dry the tears and get to work. This will be a community effort joining several towns for the sake of their kids. There is certainly no better cause.

Community Center spring classes

The Cohasset Community Center is now taking registrations for Spring classes.

The office is open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday for registration in person. The phone number is 383-0088 for registration by phone. All programs must be pre-registered.

The following classes are being offered. Weight and Self—Image. This program provides real hope for those struggling with body weight! This support group, led by a counseling psychologist, will work with the latest findings in this area. Heredity, body type, personality, stress, allergies and self-image are as important as nutrition and exercise when it comes to body size. We will use teaching, discussion, sharing and body awareness games to encourage success in your weight program, no weighing. No requirements to share weight or weight loss or gain. This class is seven sessions and costs $65. Class starts Wednesday, April 1.

Parenting Workshop - Teenagers - A Challenge for Families. This three session workshop will be held by Mary and Paul Fox of Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc. Parenting and communication skills will be the focus of the workshop. Parents will explore topics such as setting limits, discipline, motivation, peer pressure, sibling rivalry and self-esteem. This is a unique program of skill building and support for parents. The class will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays starting April 2. The cost is $15.

Basket Making In this six-week course,we will use woods as they come from the tree. Using traditional tools and techniques, we will shave and scrape splints to the desired thickness and trim them to width and length. We will then weave and bend the rims and handle which is secured with a wooden peg. This class meets on Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for six weeks starting April 16. Cost is $50.

Basic Designs in Flower Arranging. This is a three day course in flower arranging taught by a Master Judge and instructor in Flower Show School. This workshop will help you to create beautiful arrangements for your home. Each week you are asked to bring a container and flowers to fit the color scheme of your home. You will also be asked to cut branches in leaf or bud to finish out your arrangement. Each week you will go home with a lovely arrangement. This class starts Thursay May 4 from 9 a.m. to noon and costs $25.

Co-ed Aerobics. This six-week class meets twice a week on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m. for six weeks. The class will be led by Ann Platt who is a member of I.D.E.A. and was a former fitness instructor in Chicago. New classes will begin April 14. Cost is $36.

Cake Decorating This five week class will be taught by Alice McWilliams on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. starting March 31. Cost is $25.

Computer Course for the Novice. A hands-on, individualized course to learn the skills necessary to operate a computer. Discover the applications and use of computers in everyday life. Cost includes materials. Class starts on Thursday, April 9 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Cohasset High School. Course lasts 10 weeks and costs $64.

Multimedia Standard First Aid. This course - which uses demonstration films, a programmed workbook, and practice sessions is approximately seven hours and will be given on Saturday April 4 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

An ode to Lily Pond

New England woods we know too well:
We see them pictured everywhere;
The dappled shade, the running brook,
The velvet moss that greens the banks,
The sturdy trees, the princess pine,
The old stone walls, the trilliums.
The ponds of water, cold and clear,
Sweet tasting, pure for evermore;
Protected by these guarding woods.

Though we have lived here many years,
We claim but only half our town,
The other half is theirs: the woods.
The Whitney Woods, our Lily Pond,
The ledges carved by glaciers huge,
The swamps, the brooks all theirs: the woods.

We thought, one time, that it was ours:
A common land divided up
To taste the ax; for pasturage.
It did not work; it would not work,
It was a swamp, not grazing land.

In time, the woods reclaimed the land,
The woods are there for us to find
Along a road that twists and turns
From Sohier Street to Turkey Hill.
A path by boulders marked and named,
Along a Conohasset trail,
Deep rutted by the ox and wheel,
That skirts the Great Swamp to the North
And finds the source of Lily Pond:
Brass Kettle Brook, not yet a stream
But only marsh, deep in the woods.

Along that Boulder Lane, so named,
No sounds intrude, save birds above
And unseen rustlers in the leaves
Returned by trees to feed the soil.
What signs of man we see are few:
Stone walls well-mossed and bramble bound,
A fence of rusted lacy wire
Held up by brush and rotted posts,
And now and then a tree that's blazed
As though the ruts were not enough.

But then, deep in these hallowed woods,
Bright streamers trail from hoary limbs
And trees bleed orange to prove that man
Has come again to Whitney Woods,
As full of plans and confidence
As were those men of long ago
Who raped the virgin land for naught.

Two iron pipes are planted here,
Beside this ancient, well-worn path:
Grave markers for our Lily Pond.
Deep wells to sample, analyze,
Interpret how the water flows,
With expertise and arguments,
Computer models well designed
And learned books we're never read.

Two sides to ponder this and that;
How does the water come and go?
And is it clean or is it not?
"The calculations cannot lie,
"The facts are facts are facts are facts.
"They smell not like a rose, you say?
"Oh, nevermind: trust us, trust us.
"Your Lily Pond, as best we know,
"Is safe for now, and evermore."
(At least until we're out of town.)

Flow on Brass Kettle Brook of ours,
Recharge good Lily Pond that it
Will be just what it's always been:
That we may drink and worry not.
But, if the expertise is wrong,
Where shall we drink, from Bassing's Beach?

It's on to the semi-final competition for Cohasset High School, following an award-winning performance in the annual Globe Drama Festival.

Following the competition at Hingham High School, C.H.S. was named to the semi-final roster along with Hingham and Scituate high schools.

Individual acting honors were awarded to: Karin Anglin, Jenna Emmons, Laura Kuhn and Joe Mazza. They were among the 13 actors cited for individual honors following the March 7 competition.

"I thought it went very well," director Ron Emmons said. "It was probably the best we've ever done. But the kids feel more can be done, which is good. Otherwise, it's hard to improve.

"We'll be making some big changes to the play this week - to the ending, which we thought was a bit slow, and to the beginning, based on comments made by a festival judge."

C.H.S. will perform at 1:15 p.m., March 21 at Duxbury High School, in the drama festival's semi-final competition.

For a preview, Saturday, March 14 at 8 p.m., C.H.S. will host a performance by the Mill River High School of North Clarendon, Vermont. C.H.S. will then perform its festival production, a contemporary adaptation of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," which was both written and directed by Ron Emmons.

Tickets for the performances are $3, and are available at the high school and from cast members.

"The cast consists mostly of juniors and seniors. For some, it is the first time they have performed in a major show," Emmons said. "The festival competition is scary, but it is more honest, because we're getting a reaction from a judge, who gives us more of an objective input than do family and friends."

Through five weeks of practice, the Cohasset troupe withstood injuries, illness and vacation, he added. We also had to work around a basketball tournament.

Despite the challenges, Emmons said the production "finally came together" as the cast was headed into its first competition. "It's like sports; you want to peak at the right time. You don't want to burn out in the first performance.

Emmons' 40-minute adaptation of the Shakespeare classic, complete with rock & roll tunes, technicolor leg-warmers, and a valley girl on roller skates, is a home run of a hit.

And the cast members are runs batted in. Bob O'Connell plays a wonderfully wistful Orsino, duke of Illyria, who pines for the love of the passionately snobby Countess Olivia, played by Karin Anglin. Joe Mazza plays a perfectly pompous and "motley" Malvolio, who in his heart, also desires Olivia.

But Olivia is interested in Cesario, who is also Viola, who is in love with Orsino. Laura Kuhn skillfully plays the two-in-one character.

Jenna Emmons is a natural as the maid Maria, who befuddles Malvolio and Phil Mahony is delightful as the drunken Sir Toby Belch and interacts well with Peter Kasperowicz, who plays a marvelously manipulated Sir Andrew.

Each member of the Cohasset cast and crew adds something special to this production, making it a top contender in the interscholastic competitions.

"This play has been in the works since I was a playwright-in-residence at Choate," Emmons said. "This is the first full production of the show as I see it. It's what I envisioned.

"Four years ago, this show was in the semi-finals. I have kept working at it."

Although the same dialogue exists, one character has disappeared, and another character has changed since the last time Cohasset made the playoffs. "This was a cut-and-paste production."

Emmons said he believes his re-creation of "Twelfth Night" has much better balance than his previous adaptation. The narrators were given more character, and the Maine sea captain is a new face. "The big difference is overall balance."

Buy your tickets today and go cheer C.H.S. to victory. It's a show you don't want to miss.

Dusty files reveal a league of history. . .

senior citizens, an employment file for registered nurses and homemakers, a New Friends program, nursing services under the direction of the Board of Health, Keep Well clinics, special seminars and family counseling. Much of the funding for these programs is provided by the Consignment Shop at Cushing Plaza.

In observance of the League's anniversary, which actually falls on March 12, there will be a For Better Health seminar April 29 at 10:30 a.m. This year's seminar, which is open to the public, will feature three speakers. The first is Brad Ketchum, publisher of Walking Magazine. Also featured will be Wayne Wescott, director of the South Shore YMCA who will talk about exercise, and Greer Underwood, author of "Gourmet Light," honored as the Best cookbook of 1985. Underwood will demonstrate some of the special recipes from her award-winning cookbook.

According to Terry Caughey, a member of the League's board of directors, the backlog of monthly reports has unveiled an intriguing history of Cohasset. It was written from the perspective of women concerned about the welfare of the community - from its senior residents to its schoolchildren. Although it is not a precise historical analysis, it makes for much lighter, more humorous reading. Notes taken during the wars and during the Depression tell much about the activities within the community of that time, she noted.

The employment of a district nurse who visited the aging and the ill, was the first major accomplishment of the League in 1912. As reported in the monthly analogs, her employment was a month-to-month proposition at the start. "Mrs. Luce reported that the District Nurse comm. planned to engage the district nurse for 2 mos, at $150, that a room had been engaged for her at Mrs. Gross' and that her name was Miss Howson. That $580 had been received for her support and that The Mutual Life Insurance Co. would pay 50 (half) when she visited one of their people. Mrs. Browne offered to lend her bycicle (sic) to Miss Howson."

That same year the League instituted the school lunch program. As written in the report for August, plans were being made and a committee was formed "for the lunch which the League hopes to serve this winter at the noon hour for the school children."

In October that same year, the League reported that the luncheon committee was in the midst of preparations. "A one cent and a five cent luncheon had been planned and circulars had been sent to the school children and parents asking for their support. Volunteers to help serve the children were asked for." By Nov. 1, the first day of the new lunch program, 60 children were served. An average of 40-90 were served lunch by the League each school day.

Basket-weaving classes for the boys and sewing classes for the girls of the Beechwood community were started that year by the League. The employment bureau began in 1913 in which local nurses would register their employment availability with the League. This employment file continues today, Hartwell explained.

Back in 1913, posters were placed about town, notifying residents about the new service. In addition, the League sponsored garden clubs for the children in the schools. The services aimed toward the younger members of the community, "are helpful to any community and teach good health and good morals and make for beauty and religion."

Mrs. Lary spoke more of what should be taught the girls, as perhaps they are more closely connected with home-making than are boys, for they must know how to prepare food, keep rooms in order, sew mend, and do all the many, many tasks that come in the day's work. Mrs. Howe then told of a paper by Mrs. Shaw on "What we owe to our boys". One great duty is to teach them self-control.

It was obvious, Caughey added, that the members of the Social Service League then, as now, were concerned with the entire community.

The League was extremely interested in the school children of Cohasset and developed programs designed for the youngsters of that day. "It was voted (Nov., 1913) to accept the report of the Industrial committee, concerning Cooking and Sewing classes. A course of ten lessons in each is to be given for $2.50 for each course. The persons joining the cooking class to pay for materials used in cooking. Voted to buy an electric iron for the use of the sewing class."

Later that same year, League members listened with interest to a discussion about "The Housing Question. Mrs. Forbes told us of slum spots and that they were due sometimes to lack of building laws that the immigration to-day is very unlike that in times past/ to-day the ones who come to us are not so industrious, and come from a different civilization, alien in customs and speech. Character and patriotism are taught in the home and as you can't get these things in bad housing, we must Americanize the people that come to us, or they will Italianize-Russianize or some else - us - The great question that the League might consider is the one of the 'Three-decker' tenement houses. Braintree, Hingham and Weymouth have accepted the law not to build these houses. Mr. Forbes said that the occupants of the third story apartment did not make desirable citizens. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mr. Forbes for his very comprehensive and interesting paper."

station for smaller fire vehicles.

The new fire pumper is slated to arrive Sept. 1.

In other business, the board approved several items on the agenda, including:

- The abatement of an outstanding bill for the town of Scituate concerning a mutual aid fire call. The amount was $75.
- Selectmen accepted the resignation of Robert Kasameyer of the Police/Fire Station Renovation Study Committee.
- A transfer request concerning $250 needed by the Council on Aging for its postage account.
- Clarification of job classification for the selectmen's secretary, transfering her from grade 5 to 6.
- One week of additional sick leave for the assistant town clerk.
- Approval of high school intern in accountant's office for 1987-88 school year.

Candidates Corner. . .

Robert Beggan

Beggan candidacy

Bob Beggan has announced his candidacy for selectman in the upcoming April 11 town election.

An 18-year resident of Cohasset, Beggan has served on the recreation commission since 1985, coached a variety of youth sport programs and has been actively involved in the village church fair for many years.

A graduate of Boston State College, he is currently employed by Bicknell and Fuller as a sales representative.

Beggan resides at 4 Sankey Road with his wife, Carol Grassie Beggan and three children.

A coffee to meet the candidate will be held at the home of Sarah and Sam Pease, 3 Sankey Road, Thursday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m.

For further information, call 383-6467.

No Pratt political signs

Burtram J. Pratt, a candidate for Selectman, told campaign workers at a planning meeting at his home this week that a number of residents had expressed distaste for the increasing use of political signs in Cohasset in recent years.

Pratt said that as a result he has decided not to place political signs in front yards around the community and in a letter to each of his opponents has invited them to take a similar stand

The letter states:

"Spring is just around the corner. The days are beginning to lengthen. The Red Sox are in Winter Haven, and the Town Election is beginning to pick up steam.

"This year I hope that all of the Candidates will help to preserve the beauty of our lovely town by not displaying political signs on front lawns around the community. I invite all of my opponents in the Selectmen's race to join me in this voluntary moratorium on political signs. I am hopeful that you will join me and that candidates for other officers will follow our lead.

"By offering your name as a candidate for Selectman you have demonstrated that you care about your community. One way we can all demonstrate this caring is to remove some of the carnival atmosphere from our annual Spring political ritual.

"This April perhaps the townsfolk can concentrate on the sprouting of spring flowers instead of the sprouting of political signs around their neighborhoods."

Guild Campaign Committee

Sewer Commissioner Edward M. "Ted" Guild has announced the committee for his re-election campaign:

Chairman—Charlie DeSantis; Treasurer—George Rabstejnek; Executive Committee: Dick Avery, Bill Baird, Merle Brown, Pat Buckley, Clark Chatterton, Chris Ford, Peter Guild, Ed Long, Al Moore, Bobby Pape, Henry Rattenbury, Rita Strong, Judy Volungis, Linda Wakeman.

More than fifty people are working on the campaign. If you would like to help, too, please call Pat Buckley at 383-0304.

Conversations with Murray

Several coffees planned for Lillian M. Murray, candidate for selectman in Cohasset will begin next week.

Mrs. Denise Conant, 247 Fairoaks Lane, will have a coffee for Murray at 10 a.m. March 26.

Mrs. Patricia and Mr. Raymond G. Buckley, 247 Forest Avenue, will present Lillian Murray at 7:30 p.m. April 1.

Anyone who would like to attend any of the above events is encouraged to attend and hear candidate Murray's views.

Martha Gjesteby

Jones named treasurer

Martha Gjesteby, candidate for a three-year term on the Cohasset Board of Selectmen, has appointed George T. Jones III, 164 Sohier Street, as treasurer of her campaign.

Discussion of sewer issues

Sewer commission candidate Lot W. Bates, will hold a coffee Sunday, March 15 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at Kimballs by the Sea.

The public is cordially invited to attend the coffee, affording the opportunity to meet and talk with Mr. Bates about the many issues regarding sewerage problems in the town of Cohasset.

The coffee is sponsored by the Committee to elect Lot W. Bates, Sewer Commission.

School news

CHS writing workshop

Two members of the Cohasset High School Social Studies Department, Joan Foley and Joseph Bouchard, attended an all day workshop at the Plymouth Sheraton recently. Entitled "The Writing Process" the seminar provided an in-depth study of interdisciplinary writing or writing across the various subjects in the curriculum.

It was brought out in the six-hour workshop that recent studies indicate that there is a need for teachers of all academic subjects to share in the responsibility of instructing students in the writing process.

In addition to discussing strategies for instructing teaching in the writing process, Mrs. Foley and Mr. Bouchard focused in on the setting up of writing labs in secondary schools.

This type of a workshop is invaluable for social studies teachers as they require their students to submit essay and term papers in most of their high school offerings.

"Eddie Was Here" big success

The play "Eddie Was Here" was performed by Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School students in front of three audiences at Cohasset High School Monday, March 2.

The play was written by Kevin LaRiviere, older brother of Eddie whose involvement with drugs and alcohol caused his untimely death at the age of 16. Kevin decided to keep his brother's spirit alive in a special way by creating this play. The message that the play conveys is one about love, self-respect, family communication, and learning how to say "no."

The play starred Jason Marsac as Eddie, and also included Jennifer Plante, Jen Chapman, Jeff Hartwell, Melissa Shea, Phil Mahoney, Mary Leonard and Jay Staunton in major roles. The remainder of the cast was comprised of more than thirty Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School students.

There were many tears shed in each of the three performances, and the feedback from the students was overwhelmingly positive. Some of the words that students to describe the play were: sad, great and awesome. After the evening show, many parents concurred that the student performance was a fantastic, moving, and powerful experience. Faculty members Mary Babaian, Michael Gill, and Anne Porter, responsible for coordinating the production, agreed that the time, effort and production costs were well worth it because it provided an opportunity for teens to get involved in doing something very positive for themselves and their peers.

The presentation was brought to Cohasset by the Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School S.A.D.D. Chapter and the Cohasset High School Peer Counselors.

Many thanks to the following sponsors for their concern and generosity:

Cohasset Social Service League, Cohasset Rotary Club, Mark Delaney Memorial Scholarship Fund, Kimball's by the Sea, Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, Cohasset Parent-School Organization, Cohasset Parents for Drug Education, Cohasset Bay Bank, Dwyer & Mullin Real Estate, The Good Sport, and Cohasset Police Relief Assoc.

Spelling bee finalist

Congratulations to seventh grader Maureen Smith for winning the Cohasset High School Spelling Bee. She will represent the school at the regional championship to be held on April 4 at Weymouth South High School. Stacy Pierce, also a seventh grader, was runner-up and will be the alternate. Jennifer O'Leary qualified as the eighth grade champion and Cindy Jones was the eighth grade runner-up. The winners received medals provided by the Patriot Ledger and special certificates. All competitors received certificates and silver dollars provided by the P.S.O.(Special thanks to Mrs. Martin)

The following students also participated as individual classroom spelling champs. Grade 7, Tara Volungus, Ian Fitzpatrick, Orone Bgnoe, Tom Faulkner, Heather Brennock, Heidi Lincoln, Barbara Migliaccio, Bridget Leong, and Rod Hemassi. Grade 8, Michael Cisneros, Amy Russell, Richard Morrison, Linc Marsac, Meg Cosman, and Barbara Benton.

CHS student blood drive

March 30, the students of Cohasset High School will be sponsoring an American Red Cross Blood Drive at the upstairs gym from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Anyone wishing to donate may sign up in the health room. Students must be 17 or 18 years old and have parental permission. The Red Cross would appreciate your support. Give the gift of life, give blood!

First Parish services

Special Parish Meeting

Article I — The Screening Committee received 15 suggestions for the use of the funds donated to First Parish by Warner Bros. After surveying the suggested uses, they concluded that there were funding sources available within the existing reserves of the Parish that could be used to address about half of these needs. The other half they found to be focused around the general area of outreach or social concerns for which there is no present designated reserve. Therefore they proposed that the Warner Bros. donation be used to establish a new reserve fund designated for outreach.

Following the Screening Committee report the Parish Committee presented a motion which, after amendment, acted to set aside the funds pending the creation of an Outreach Committee and the drafting of an appropriate by-law to set up an Outreach Reserve Fund and delineate rules for its use. This by-law is to be presented at the Annual Meeting of the Parish in May.

Article II—The Maintenance Committee reported on the pressing need to paint the exterior of the Parish House. It was voted to appropriate $12,000 from the Meeting House and Parish House Reserve for this purpose.

Article III—No business was brought before the meeting under this Article, but Bill Bell reminded those present of the importance of the Pledge Drive to be held during the spring and announced that Jack Martin and Bobby Leary had agreed to chair the Drive.

Family Circle

Low attendance at Family Circle gatherings leads us to wonder if the Circle should continue in its present form. Please answer the attached questionnaire and mail back to the church office. We welcome your comments, suggestions, and insights!

ZBA approves Autohaus expansion

The zoning board of appeals Thursday, approved the expansion of Autohaus to the adjacent Bergson building on Route 3A.

Autohaus was seeking a special permit from the board to expand next door, to alleviate the congested conditions which presently exist at the existing Autohaus facility.

Autohaus plans to use the former Bergson Ice Cream Shop as an automobile showroom, and to display cars in the front parking lot there.

Looking to avoid the "Automile phenomenon," however, the board imposed a number of conditions in granting the special permit to the car dealership.

First, the special permit to use the Bergson lot was granted for a fixed period of time, three years, or until "the opening for business of the presumed Autohaus facility," which the car dealership anticipates constructing diagonally across the street from the Bergson lot.

In its written decision, the board explained, "The highway business district, in which the Bergson premises is located, already contains a substantial number of locations dedicated to the sale of new and used automobiles.

"In evaluating a request for a special permit," it added, "this board must determine that the proposed use is not detrimental to the public welfare or convenience."

Judging whether the proposed use would be compatible with adjacent properties, the board concluded, "The expansion of the sale of new and used automobiles onto the Bergson premises is not in the long-term best interest of the community."

The board noted, "There is a limited amount of space zoned for business use in Cohasset, and an over-concentration of automobile sales within the town does not serve the local economy to the fullest extent possible."

In imposing conditions upon the special permit it granted Autohaus, the board took the liberty of furthering its highway beautification initiative.

The board said it takes a dim view of the "expansion of dense and continuous parking associated with automobile sales."

It called for the construction and maintenance of landscaping, including a 900 square foot shrub-surrounded display platform at the front and center of the parking lot, just inside the entrance. The landscaped area would displace about five cars.

The board also stipulated Autohaus must replace a chain-link fence at the Bergson site with hedge, plant two circular "gardens" at either side of the entrance, and maintain existing shrubbery around the building.

Autohaus will not be allowed to service automobiles on the Bergson site, according to the decision, and is restricted from erecting signs to replacing signs it removes, with those of equal dimension.

According to the decision, Autohaus will not be allowed to use the Bergson premises for the sale of new or used autos, or for storage of cars, until it completes landscaping of the lot.

Jim Boyd to speak

WCVB-TV Channel 5 telecaster, Jim Boyd, will speak on careers in television, journalism on telecommunications at CHS on Thursday, March 12 from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Jim Boyd, a member of the Channel 5 family since it first went on the air in 1972, is WCVB-TV's "Eyeopener" and "Midday" news anchor.

Throughout his career at Channel 5, Boyd has served as a general assignment reporter and as "Newscaster 5's" weekend anchor from 1976 to March, 1984, when he moved to weekdays.

Boyd came to WCVB from public television. He was a public affairs producer for National Educational Television (NET) in New York City for three years. From 1967 to 1968, he produced and wrote "Say Brother", a weekly, live one-hour minority affairs program produced at WGBH-TV, Boston.

Prior to that, he was NET's publicity writer and production assistant from 1961 to 1967. In this capacity, he traveled abroad extensively, helping to produce interview programs with such international figures as former Egyptian President Gamel Abdul Nassar, German Chancellor Willy Brandt, and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The New York City native attended Long Island University in New York and Farleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey. Boyd, who is active in numerous Boston-area charities, chaired the 1984 fund-raising committee for the YMCA in Roxbury, MA.

Why play games with your retirement nest egg?

Your IRA is too important to juggle from "hot" investment to "hot" investment.

Opening an IRA at The Hibernia Savings Bank gives you plenty of choices—12 different Term Certificates that guarantee your return for anywhere from 31 days to 60 months. And because we're members of both FDIC and DIFM, your entire IRA is protected from loss—whether it contains $500 or $5 million.

So bring your nest egg to The Hibernia Savings Bank. And the next time the market swoons (or bonds bomb) you'll be sitting pretty—while everyone else is scrambling.

The spirit of goodwill and friendliness abounded. Mr. Moores was the chairman of seven sent by Boston to Salem to make themselves generally useful. 100 members had been appointed by the Mayor of Salem and of these seven were chosen to act with the seven from Boston. The San Francisco earthquake and the Chelsea fire made the experiences by which Salem profitted We learned a great deal about Salem conditions

League history

The League was concerned with the lives of people within Cohasset and also assisted residents of other towns, if they requested their help. At a special meeting called in July,1912, members voted to assist the "Salem fire sufferers." Clothing and special supplies were packaged and sent to the people in that North Shore community by the Cohasset League.

The League, even in its earliest days, was interested in a variety of topics and issues affecting the lives and livilhood of the town. Ever mindful of a maintaining a clean, picturesque town, the League set up rubbish barrels throughout Cohasset. In its secretary's notes of 1923 the League acknowledged that the town would dispose of all rubbish collected in the bins. It was also decided to ask the Cohasset Improvement Society "to co-operate in the work of keeping the streets clean."

Hartwell explained that the League established several programs in town. The senior shuttle, the senior center and the school lunch programs were all concepts created by the League. "I think that it's important to remember how active the League has been since its beginnings in 1912. The members have been dedicated to this town, and have worked hard for everyone in this community," she added.

Registrations accepted for youth soccer camp

Registrations will be accepted at the Cohasset Recreation Department office for a youth soccer camp for boys and girls aged 6 to 19 years.

The camp will be conducted by North American Soccer Camps, Inc. Camp provides professional British Soccer Coaches who instruct in skills for all ability levels. There is one coach per fifteen players. The quality of instruction is unsurpassed by any camp that we are aware of.

Any Cohasset residents who meet age requirements and non-residents are eligible to participate. The program will begin on Monday, August 17 through Saturday, August 22, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Miliken Field.

Deadline for registrations will be Wednesday, April 29, 1987. Payments are to be made by check to Town of Cohasset. A deposit of $25 must be made at the time of registration. Parents must complete registration form at Recreation office.

Fees are: $79 for first child in family; $74, second child in family; $69, third child in family and any additional siblings enrolled.

North American Soccer Camps, Inc. will also conduct two evening clinics from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., for coaches and adults during the week of camp. There is no fee for these clinics and all present and future coaches and interested parents are welcome. Dates of clinics to be announced.

CURRENT PROGRAM REGISTRATIONS

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting telephone registrations at 383-6791 for the following programs: furniture refinishing, dog obedience lessons, eight weekly aerobics classes, game time (grade 3-6), Gunstock ski trip, summer soccer camp (ages 6-19), and adult volleyball (women's and coed).

Projected Programs

Programs that will be announced shortly include: April ski trip (snow conditions permitting), creative dramatics (K-6), kickball (K-3), soccer clinic (grades 4-6), baseball clinics (ages 8-12), annual Easter egg hunt (Saturday, April 18) and April vacation special programs.

Basketball Boosters Club

The Cohasset Recreation Commission extends their gratitude to the Cohasset Basketball Boosters Club and the individual members who were an essential part of this year's Youth Basketball Program. Without their support and donation of time and expertise, the basketball program could not operate in the manner which it does. The entire community owes these men and women a vote of thanks for a job well done. Special thanks should go to Mr. George Ellinger of the Cohasset Basketball Boosters for his devotion to the program and the youth of Cohasset.

Volunteers In Cohasset

Cohasset is a fortunate town in that so many parents take the time and effort to become involved in a number of youth oriented programs and activities. As with a number of local organizations the Cohasset Recreation Commission depends on adult volunteers to help conduct some of the children's and youth sports programs on a year round basis.

In volunteering, parents not only provide the necessary leadership and expertise for the conduct of programs, but also provide something more important — a sense of community and family spirit and closeness that is unmeasurably rewarding to not only our children and youth, but parents as well. This factor is certainly one of the ingredients that help make Cohasset the fine town that it is.

Consultant says legislation needed in '87 for rail future

By Elaine Allegrini
Staff writer

Legislation must be passed this year if commuter rail service is to be restored to the South Shore in the near future, transportation consultant Guy Rosmarin said last week.

His remarks came during the annual transportation workshop sponsored by the Plymouth County Development Council and Massassoit Community College.

Rosmarin, a consultant for Associated Industries of Massachusetts, added "1987 promises to be a year of great opportunity for Southeastern Massachusetts. Critical decisions need to be made on Beacon Hill to determine if the railroad is to become a reality by 2000."

Three Southeastern Massachusetts railroad lines are being considered for restoration in a study currently being conducted by the state. Stephen Polechronis, assistant project manager for the area transportation study, said an environmental analysis of that study is expected to be completed by fall.

That study includes restoration of the Braintree to Plymouth rail line, the Middleboro rail line and the Greenbush rail line. It also includes plans to fine-tune existing services and commuter boats. Another option in the study considers not making any improvements. A previous study of improving transportation to the Braintree T station has been dropped, according to Polechronis.

Rosmarin recommended the establishment of a state railroad transportation agency, "MassTra He said, "It's time to bring the commuter rail project to the forefront." That, he said, could only be done by a separate agency with its own board of directors, advisory board and bonding authority. The state's 700-plus miles of railroad rights-of-way need their own management agency, he added, calling for the state legislature to establish such a body.

Restoration of rail lines in Southeastern Massachusetts are competing with major Boston projects, including depressing the Central Artery and adding a third harbor tunnel, speakers told state and local officials at the transportation workshop.

Rosmarin said a connection between North and South stations was critical to the $200 million restoration of Southestern Massachusetts rail lines.

State Public Works Commissioner Robert Tierney disagreed with Rosmarin's priority for the rail restoration, calling the Central Artery project and the third harbor tunnel more important projects in the state's transportation network.

"This project is not going to go smoothly," he said. Serious opposition is expected to wetland work, even though most of the construction of the third highway travel lane is expected to be in the median strip.

The completion of Route 44, from Carver, through Plympton and Kingston to Plymouth, is "sort of a mess," Tierney said.

The Federal Environmental Protection Agency has rejected the state's plan to replace 30 acres of wetlands which will be disrupted by the construction. According to Tierney, the state wants to create new wetlands in two centralized areas not in the individual locations of those being disrupted.

The EPA's recommendations, if followed, "would radically change some of the design," Tierney said.

Tierney, updating area road construction, predicted opposition to the widening of Route 3 from Weymouth to Duxbury.

A draft of the project's environmental impact statement is expected to be completed in early summer and a series of public meetings on the issue is expected in late summer. Tierney said.

Upcoming site inspections by the federal agency are expected to bring about more discussion. Meanwhile, Tierney said road design is continuing despite the EPA objections.

Tierney advised the forum of upcoming public hearings on what he called "sorely needed" improvements on Route 139 in both Pembroke and Marshfield.

Those hearings are scheduled for March 11 and 18 and will focus on the first of two phases of road improvements.

Seven intersections along the way will be provided with traffic signals to improve flow, Tierney said. Later, plans call for the widening of the road.

"Transportation by private automobile will continue to be the primary method by people in Massachusetts and all over the United States," according to State Representative Frank Hynes (D-Marshfield).

He assured the group that area legislatures, working together, do have "clout' on Beacon Hill. He advised officials not to "pit one project against another." There must be a recognition for increased and widened roadways, Hynes added.

Also speaking during the program were State Senator Edward Kerby (R-Whitman); David Chase, PCDC president; David Mittell Jr., Mariner columnist, Richard McCourt, chairman of the Construction Industries of Mass.; Dwight Conant, general manager of the American Automobile Association.

Also, Dr. Michael Meyer, director of planning for the state DPW; Martha Gjesteby of the Joint Regional Transportation Committee, State Rep, Robert Emmet Hayes (D-Whitman); and Ian Menzies, senior fellow UMass Boston - McCormack Institute.

Hats off to a great year for girls' basketball

"Our attitude helped us this year too,"Cahill said. "Not one player on that team had a bad attitude. Everyone wanted the same thing - to win."

The team captain's reaction after last Wednesday's loss, was similar to that of her teammates. "I kept thinking that it was the last game this team would ever play together. That was my last senior game. We had nothing to be ashamed about, but I was really sad," she recalled."We won the league and we won a couple of tournament games and we accomplished a lot."

But the 5'3" point guard said she already misses the daily workouts and practices. "The next day we were saying that we wanted to go to the gym anyhow, even though we didn't have any practice. Although we practiced hard, it was fun. I'd much rather be practicing now afterschool than anything else," she admitted.

Teammate Melissa Shea agreed. More than anything, Melissa will miss the comaraderie, the friendships they built on the basketball court since they entered Cohasset High.

"This team," she said, "had a lot of unity and friendship. That was most important to me. We worked as one group because we are all friends.

"I'm going to miss it. Already, I've been out in the backyard shooting baskets. Usually you wait a few days after the season is over to do that, but I miss it so much. I miss the hours we spent together at something we all loved to do. I'm sad to see it all go.

The 17 year-old senior will play some sort of basketball in college next year, whether it is intramural or varsity, "as long as I can balance it with my studies." She has heard from coaches from various colleges, although Melissa has yet to decide what school to attend.

"I know one thing, I'll never give up basketball. I love it. I started in tenth grade on the varsity team - it's hard to explain how well we played as a team. There was a flow, a feeling of unity. We didn't play as five different players - we were one. That's why I love the game - you're not just one player, you're one part of a whole."

Sarah Dickerman is a senior who has played CHS basketball since the seventh grade. She too, was saddened that last week's state tournament loss meant the end of a victorious season for the team.

"We were sitting on the bus on the way home, and we were talking about how it was the end of the season. We would never be playing with this same group of kids again. There is no next year. It was real hard to end the way we did. But then we remembered that we had won the league championship, a couple of tournament games and we got to the semi-finals in the state competition. It's going to be different not being together, but we accomplished a lot of goals this year."

The 17 year-old forward hopes to attend either Babson or Holy Cross next year. She says this year marks the end of her varsity basketball career, although Dickerman may consider an intramural team in college.

Coach Bill Fallon was philosophical about last week's defeat at the state tournament. "We gave it a good effort and that's all I can ask. It would be different if they didn't really try their best, but they did. They lost to a good team. I'm proud of what this team did this year. They ended the season 19-3 and they did very well in the state tournament."

As he has said before, only one team gets to win the championship, and luck has a lot of influence in division championships.

This season was Fallon's second best since taking over the coaching duties at CHS. Two years ago, that team posted a 22-4 season, finally losing the state conference title by two points.

Last week's loss to Coyle-Cassidy was caused by Cohasset's poor shooting, Fallon stated. By the end of the first quarter, Cohasset was down by 12 points which was cut to one point by the close of the fourth quarter. Fouls by the Cohasset team gave lots of free shots to Coyle-Cassidy. "Unfortunately, we were fouling to get control of the ball, but they were making all the foul shots they got," Fallon said. "In the fourth quarter, they made 12 points at the foul line."

Although last week's loss was a disappointing end to a great season, Fallon is already looking forward to a talented group of athletes returning in 1988.

"We have a lot of juniors on this year's team, so next year I know we'll be back in the state tourney again. The junior varsity was 15-1 this year and some of the them will be coming up to varsity. I'm sure we'll have a strong team again next season," he promised.

Skippers unlucky in double O.T.

But true to a team coached by Eddie Minelli, this Cohasset team almost pulled off a miracle victory. Cohasset led 46-41 with 46 seconds left in the first overtime and any further free throws would have iced the game for Cohasset.

A three-point play by Mullen cut the lead to 46-44 with 38 seconds left. Edwards who scored 24 points missed the front end of a 1-and-1 opportunity with eight seconds left.

Liam Kenney grabbed the rebound and he was fouled. He missed but Mullen tipped in the rebound and likewise he was fouled. Mullen's free throw could have won the game with four seconds left but he missed and the game went into the first overtime.

Hopkinton scored the first seven points of the overtime but Edwards brought back life to Cohasset. Mike Smith made one free throw and on the second one, Edwards grabbed the rebound and put in an off-balance shot to cut the lead to four points.

The Skippers, stole the ball on a pass in and Edwards' drive cut the deficit to two points with 16 seconds left. Hopkinton's Roger Adams missed his free throw but Tom Larson, overanxious, committed a lane violation and Adams was awarded a second try. He hit the free throw and the game was effectively over there.

Hopkinton established its defense early and shut off Cohasset's options. Mullin plugged the middle and forced Edwards and Larson to hit from the outside.

The Skippers adjusted and good shooting by Edwards and Larson allowed Cohasset to come back from 22-14 deficit to only four points at halftime, 24-20.

From the second-half buzzer, Minelli's troops played pressure defense forcing several bad passes and other ball violations. Edwards and Larson continued to hit and with 2:54 remaining in the third quarter, Cohasset took the lead 29-28.

But Hopkinton took the lead at the end of the third quarter 33-32 as Edwards could not convert a break-away steal at the quarter's end.

Ferocious rebounding by 6-5 forward Mike Smith allowed Cohasset to tie the game at 39 points with three minutes to go.

Hopkinton stalled its offense for nearly two minutes before dishing off to Mullen whose shot failed to connect. With 19 seconds to go, Cohasset passed the ball around the perimeter before Edwards' jump shot missed at the buzzer.

Again Mike Smith's rebounding led to Cohasset taking the first overtime lead as a combination of boardwork and drives by Edwards and Smith allowed Cohasset to earn a 46-41 lead.

For the record, Edwards led the Cohasset scoring with 24 points followed by Dave Shulz, 4, Tom Larson, 13, Matt Maloney, 1 and Mike Smith added 11 points.

Brian Edwards was everywhere throughout the game, rebounding, stealing the ball and running the offense. But in the long run, Hopkinton geared its defense to stopping him and many times he was forced to take poor shots because that's all the defense allowed him.

Hopkinton Coach Dick Bliss said it was his team's best game of the season but the team was so emotional after the win, he noted his team didn't have anything left for Fairhaven Saturday.

"We were so high (emotionally) we didn't have enough time to recover for Saturday's game," said Bliss.

Hopkinton had three days to prepare for Cohasset and saw several taped games to prepare its defense for Edwards. "We wore him down and were prepared for him driving on the baseline and for Larson shooting at the foul line. We were also very patient on offense," said Bliss.

For the record, Hopkinton shot 54 percent from the floor against Cohasset and only 34 percent against Fairhaven. The Hillers hit 70 percent of its free throws against Cohasset and only 36 percent against Fairhaven.

"We will never ever forget our win against Cohasset," said Bliss.

Coach Minelli failed to win his 100th game of his six-year CHS career, finishing at 98-36.

Disappointed in the Hopkinton loss, Minelli is looking forward to next season as seven varsity players will return. Captain Tom Larson, a senior and one of the team's main players will graduate.

"We will be back next year," said Minelli.

Youths served as Coast Guard crew members

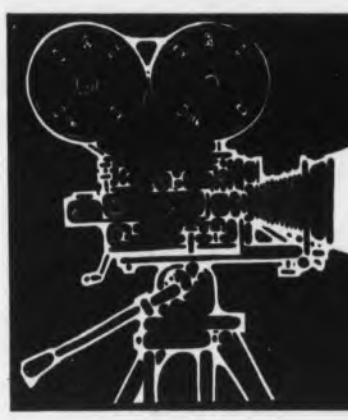
Two Cohasset boys spent their February vacation on the North Atlantic. Matthew Lombardy and Curt Ludlow were assigned as crew members onboard Coast Guard vessels out of Woods Hole, Massachusetts.

Matthew is the son of Michael and Barbara Lombardy, 27 Windy Hill Road, and Curt is the son of Jeffrey and Marcia Ludlow, 2 Juniper Rise, Cohasset.

Matthew was aboard the Cape Henlopen (95 foot) and Curt was aboard the Point Bonita (82 foot). Both vessels are involved with search and rescues (SAR) as well as law enforcement off the coast of New England.

During the school vacation, routine patrols were made daily in addition to the ships being on a 24 hour alert status for distress calls. During Matthew's first night onboard, the Henlopen was called out to George's Bank to assist a fishing boat that had lost its engines. He was at the helm during part of the operation.

Matthew and Curt took part in the exercise as required training for advancement in the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets. Both cadets are working toward and E-3 rating in the Naval Cadet program but more importantly, if either should join the Navy, Marines or Coast Guard, that rating is automatically given to them when they complete boot camp. Training in the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets is considered an advantage when applying to any of the military colleges such as Norwich, Mass Maritime, Maine Maritime, as well as the Coast Guard and Naval Academies.



The local unit of the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets is called the F.B. Battle Division. Meetings are held regularly at either the Scituate Coast Guard Station or the GAR Hall on Country Way in Scituate. The cadet program is open to both boys and girls from 11 years to graduation from High School.

Anyone interested in the cadet program may contact Barbara LaVoie 545-0145 or Barbara Swanner 545-3369. There are no geographic boundaries for the Battle Division. Members in the unit come from Martha's Vineyard, Scituate, Norwell, Marshfield, Cohasset, Hanover, Hull and Hingham. Love of the sea, good health, and an interest in your future are the only requirements to be a member of the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets.

Local skating program starts to pick up rink pieces

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Last week's sorrow has evolved into action as members of the local skating programs consider the possibility of constructing their own rink.

News of the imminent sale of the Winter Garden skating rink in Cohasset began as whispers early last week. By the weekend, the doors were shut and the ice was melted. The Rte. 3A facility, a landmark along Cohasset's business highway for more than 20 years, was sold.

The new owner, Richard Garvey of Scituate, plans a retail boat outlet on the property. Bayliner Boats will feature the sale of 18 to 20 foot pleasure boats. Garvey, who also owns Garvey Oldsmobile in Norwell, will be the sole proprietor of this franchise which is not associated with his car dealership.

Although several organizations, including the local Seahawks youth hockey program organizers were attempting to purchase the property from Winter Garden owner James Hoban, they were unaware a purchase and sales agreement had already been signed. Garvey has received a certificate of occupany from the town's building inspector, and engineering tests ordered by the state are in progress.

Last minute phone calls by coaches and parents allowed the Silver Blades, Seahawks and I.S.I.A. skaters to transfer their activities to other area rinks. Until the end of the season, the instructional segment of the Seahawks program will be held at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham, while the other teams will be transferred into the Hobomock Arena in Pembroke. The Cohasset rink's competitive figure skaters will practice at the Hingham facility.

One parent estimated that about 1,000 kids have been affected by the loss of the Winter Garden rink. There are about 600 skaters from Cohasset, Hull, Scituate, Norwell and Marshfield who participate in Seahawks hockey, an all-time high for the local program.

Seahawks' coaches notified their teams throughout the weekend about their new practice locations.

But despite their disappointment, there is an air of optimism this week. According to Seahawks President Linda Zimmer, plans are being made to investigate the possibility of constructing a publically-owned rink for use by the Seahawks, Silver Blades, I.S.I.A. and area high school teams.

"We haven't started to organize yet," Zimmer said this week, "but we are trying to get together to get some names and start the planning. This is something we just started talking about. But we think it's something that can be done."

The ideal, according to Zimmer, would be a multi-surface indoor rink that would be paid through donations from residents and private businesses, and through fundraisers. "It would be great to have our own rink and not have to worry about an owner selling it," she stated.

Currently, members of the local skating clubs are checking into the costs of constructing the facility. Others are looking into the possibility of donations of land, or the cost of available property in one of the area towns.

"The ideal situation would be to have no mortagage - to have all our money for construction donated to us," she said, "and then we could get fundraising going for the costs of our liability insurance."

There is enough interest among the Seahawks parents, she noted, to generate discussion about construction of a rink. "So many people have been involved with this rink for the past 25 years, I think we can get a lot of interest about constructing a new one," she added.

Within the next week, Zimmer said there should be a list of people who will serve on a committee to plan construction.

Another parent agreed there is sufficient interest among the kids and parents of the area to at least look into construction of another rink. In the meantime, she noted, it will be very inconvenient for parents to travel the extra time to Rockland and Pembroke and Hingham. She expects many families with competitive skaters and hockey players may decide to pull out from the programs because of the inconvenience of time and scheduling.

I.S.I.A. skaters now have ice time at 3:30 p.m. in Hingham, which gives them little time to travel from Cohasset and other communities. "It will be natural for us to expect that some people will say, 'forget it.' The best skaters will always get where they have to be, but the most affected will be the kids in between. I think a lot of parents are going to give it up."

Parents in the area have enjoyed the comradery within Winter Garden - watching their children learn to skate and compete while making close friends they share for years. "A few of the kids were in tears last Friday," one parent said. "It's been a real emotional time for everyone. But I have a feeling that most things happen for a reason. Maybe we really needed something like this to motivate us into constructing a new rink. It's been a sad time, but it's not the end. If we could get the financial support, we could make a better rink."

Seahawks president has a new plan

Letters

To the Editor and Seahawk members and friends:

I am sorry that our 1986-87 hockey season is coming to a close on such a sad note. The abrupt closing of the Cohasset Winter Gardens in the middle of the season without any forewarning has left us all deeply saddened and upset.

We had begun the season last September with the largest enrollment since our program was formulated, and with the tremendous success of our Beginner's program, I had anticipated an even greater growth rate in the years ahead.

I am confident that our organization will continue to prosper even though we will now be forced to travel greater distances for practice ice and league games. I want to thank the owners of the skating arenas in Pembroke, Hingham, and Rockland who already have assured us that we will have a place to finish out this season, and hopefully next year as well.

However, I dream of the day when we will be able to move our home base back to a brand new sports complex in one of the local towns that make up our program. Wouldn't it be great to own a facility ourselves that we would not have to worry about being sold?

Do we have enough support and enthusiasm among the Seahawks, Silver Blades, high schools, and local skating clubs to make this dream a reality? How much assistance can we count on from the commonwealth, local towns and businesses, and private citizens?

I would like to hear from all interest parties. If you have any thoughts or suggestions or would like to join in this effort, would you please contact me at 545-4949, or write to Seahawks Youth Hockey, P.O. Box 392, Scituate, Mass. 02066.

Linda A. Zimmer, President
Seahawks Youth Hockey

Pilgrim owner isn't happy with Winter Gardens closing

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Cohasset Winter Gardens' plunge through the thin ice of liability insurance last week gave pause to Edward Taylor, proprietor of Hingham's Pilgrim Arena, as he reflected on the conditions of the business.

"The way you keep the place going," he said, "is to take in more than goes out." That advice sounds simple enough, but Taylor and his family work long hours to keep the skating rink running smoothly.

"I try to get as much good, sound business as I can," he said, "by offering the best service and best product I can. I pay my bills on time, take advantage of discounts, keep perfect records, and employ a top accounting firm to account for every penny."

You might think the demise of another local rink is good news for Pilgrim Arena, but Taylor said he doesn't see it that way. "I think in the long run, we'll be hurt by their closing.

"There will be fewer skaters," he explained. "Youngsters who don't have the opportunity to skate, will go into other activities. You're not going to make any money if they don't come through the doors."

In the short term, Pilgrim might get a little influx from Winter Gardens' closing, Taylor said, "but we can't give much, because our ice is taken up. We're 99 percent sold out."

Taylor said he plans the rink's activities schedule two years ahead.

"I can tell you what will be going on here a year from now, what my income and expenses will be, unless the roof falls in," he said. "How would you like to pay my electricity bill, $10,000 per month?"

The pressures of soaring liability insurance premiums and a lawsuit-crazy society, forced Pilgrim to discontinue its lucrative open public skating business.

"The loss of open skating hurt like hell," he commented; "it cost us $50,000 in annual revenue."

Liability insurance no longer covers open ice, hockey or the rental of skates and equipment, so Pilgrim no longer offers those programs itself. "We go strictly by what's on our insurance policy.

"I don't even like to talk about it," he said with a shudder. "I'm not overjoyed paying the premiums, but I'm glad to have the coverage. Today, everybody sues everybody; the medical profession is in the same boat as us. Liability insurance has hit many businesses.

"You have to plan for emergencies and problems that come along," Taylor explained. "You try to run the best business you can, and just prepare for it."

Keeping strict records and planning ahead has kept Pilgrim's progress on track. "We'll be here for 100 years," Taylor said.

The rink contracts with five high schools: Hingham, Archbishop Williams, Thayer Academy and the two Weymouth teams. Other business includes youth groups, skating clubs, figure skating associations, hockey leagues, "and old pros who want to go out and score that winning goal in the Stanley Cup finals again."

He noted, "We don't concentrate on the hot shot all-stars, people who want to make the olympics or the Bruins. We're here for people who just want to have fun."

Training programs for people who want to learn how to skate are at the heart of Pilgrim Arena's service to the skating community, Taylor said. "Our slogan is, 'This is the rink that teaches.'"

Pilgrim has extended that philosophy beyond the blue line, into the graduation line. "We've given out more than 110,000 scholarships over 12 years to deserving seniors at the local schools," Taylor said.

On their way to college, perhaps those students can learn a lesson about how sound planning and preparation can keep a business from going under.

Need for AFS host families

Would you like to know how Christmas is celebrated in Finland? Do teenagers get summer jobs in Argentina? Would you and your family like to know the world better but don't know how you could ever manage it?

It isn't necessary to travel to bring the world closer to you. AFS International/Intercultural Programs offers families the chance to host a student from one of more than 60 countries around the world. Opening up your home and your hearts to one teenager for one year can give you the international experience of a lifetime.

The Cohasset AFS Chapter is now looking for host families for the coming school year. If you are interested in hosting or would like more information, please call Mary Beth Lean at 383-9409 or Jane Goedecke at 383-6935.

Dates to Remember

Thursday, March 12: TV 5's newscaster, Jim Boyd will speak at CHS, 1:30-2:30 p.m.; "Meet Nancy Sandell" 7:30 p.m. (prior to PSO meeting) CHS;
Friday, March 13: PSO St. Patrick's Fling Dance, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., Hugo's.
Thursday, March 19: Kindergarten orientation, Osgood School.

Public notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 83F1410E1
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of T. Clinton Johnson a/k/a Thomas C. Johnson, and Thomas Clinton Johnson late of Cohasset, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first through third and final account(s) of THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF BOSTON, as Executor (the fiduciary) of said estate has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the eighth day of April 1987, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this twenty-fourth day of February, 1987.

Embattled landowner escapes shutdown deadline

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Cohasset Heights Ltd., the embattled commercial landfill, narrowly escaped an imminent closing for the second time in as many weeks.

A copy of the landfill's liability insurance coverage was dispatched by courier to the office of Atty. Michael Leon, special counsel for the board of health. The health board voted last week that if the insurance was not in Leon's hands by 4 p.m. March 16, the dump would be closed.

Two weeks ago, the board voted to require certification that the policy exists. The certificate arrived just in time for the deadline set by the health board. It was a certificate of a $10 million insurance policy held by Browning-Ferris Industries.

Following a well-attended meeting last week, the board members voted to require Cohasset Heights to produce a copy of the policy. Many residents who attended the meeting voiced concern as to whether the policy, which is backed by BFI, the landfill's primary customer, adequately insures the town and its water supply at Lily Pond.

Now that the policy is with Atty. Leon, he will review the document and report back to the board at its March 24 meeting. A public hearing on the landfill is scheduled by the health board for March 30.

At that meeting, the health board will seek to change the site assignment to increase the tipping fee to $2 per ton from the present fifty-cent fee. An average of 299 tons of trash enter the landfill every day.

The board also will entertain the idea of obtaining a second engineering opinion on the findings of Camp, Dresser and McGee at the landfill. The board hired the Boston firm to conduct well tests at the landfill.

Antone Moerhke, attorney for landfill operators John and Paul Barry of Cohasset, said it was not an easy task to obtain a copy of the BFI insurance policy. The policy is with the National Union Fire Insurance Co. of Pittsburgh, although Moerhke had to work with the Houston headquarters to request a copy.

"Why did it take so long to get a copy?" he asked rhetorically, "Because I was dealing with a company based in Houston for a customer of the landfill. They are not associated with Cohasset Heights Ltd. and they don't report to me. It's a little unusual request. So I don't think there was a significant delay - I tried to be responsive."

Talking about the controversy surrounding the commercial landfill, the environmental attorney noted, "our operation has been in the spotlight of regular scrutiny by the board of health and water commission. And that's their job. But because some of the issues involved are sophisticated due to the location of the

The search is on for area skating rink

The search is on by interested residents to locate a site for a $1 million indoor skating rink.

Linda Zimmer said South Shore Ice Sports Association, an organized group of parents and residents, is actively planning to construct a rink preferably in Cohasset or Scituate. The non profit facility, she explained, would be used by members of the Seahawks, the Silver Blades figure skaters, the I.S.I.A. skaters and the men's South Shore Executive League.

In the meantime, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray has filed a bill with the state legislature requesting the MDC construct an indoor rink and pool facility in either Hull or Cohasset. The land, she explained, would be state DPW property which is located on Crocker Lane in Cohasset near the commercial landfill, or along Nantasket Beach adjacent to the former MDC barracks.

Two parents called Rep. Murray last week to request her assistance in developing plans to construct a skating rink in the area.

Winter Garden, the indoor skating facility which was located along Rte. 3A in Cohasset, closed last week. A retail boatyard will replace the rink by the first of April. Former owner James Hoban said astronomical insurance costs forced him to sell the recreational facility.

According to Rep. Murray, an MDC-owned rink is a viable alternative because the state is self-insured in the event of a liability claim against the facility. She agreed that plans by the parents' organization to construct their own rink is "very ambitious, but the one thing that will

Girl Scouts keep pace with the times

Girls Scouts has survived because it refuses to remain stagnant. It has existed in Cohasset for close to 60 years because the program has kept pace with the ever-changing lifetsyles of women in the modern world.

Dorothy Bates helped revitalize the Girl Scout program in Cohasset when she moved here in the 1940's. She's still active in the program - it keeps her young, she says, and involved in the community.

One of the first Girl Scouts in Cohasset was Mary Jeanette Murray, who is now the town's state representative. Rep. Murray and Mrs. Bates were among the past and present Girl Scouts who participated in last week's Promise of Service ceremony at Cohasset Common in honor of the program's 75th international anniversary.

The program has proved successful and resilient to time, Mrs. Bates attests, because it is always adapting to the needs of the girls who participate. "The program is always being revised. The program has succeeded," she says, "because it has kept up with what the modern girl likes to do."

The basis of Girl Scouting, as a service-oriented, good citizen program, remains the same. But the aspects of the program, regarding uniform, badge requirements and activities are constantly changing to meet the demands of its members.

Louise Smullen has been a junior Girl Scout troop leader since 1960. In that time, she states, there have been many changes made to her program. Currently her

Aid needed to restore 'Konohasset'

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The Cohasset Historical Society is embarking on a project to restore the antique fire engine "Konohassett," and it wants your help.

The society is seeking information and old photographs of the tub from local residents.

"We really need any photographs of the Konohassett, any paraphernalia," said Richard Silvia of 445 Beechwood Street, chairman of the committee in charge of the restoration. "I would love to talk to people about their memories of the old engine."

The 131-year-old pumper is presently in pieces "at a clandestine location" awaiting its refurbishment. "This will be a wonderful project," Silvia said. "We want to put the vehicle in first class condition."

He noted, the apparatus is not technically a "fire engine," because it was pulled by horses and pumped by hand.

The Konohassett was built in 1856 at Waterford, New York by Al Button & Sons for the Brooklyn Navy Yard. After a short stint there, the hand tub went to Glen Cove, Long Island.

In 1911, the Cohasset Volunteer Veteran Firemen's Association purchased the pumper, using it primarily for competetive musters. The flashy red carriage, with its brass fittings, gold lettering and long side rails was judged as much on its elegant appearance, as on its firefighting capabilities, perhaps more so.

Never an official Cohasset fire engine, the Konohassett arrived in town 25 years after a public water system, complete with fire hydrants, was installed in town.

David Wadsworth, curator of the historical society noted, "No house was ever saved in town, until the hydrants were put in. The Bela Bates house on Elm Street was the first one saved, in 1886."

While the Konohassett was used to battle a few blazes, it earned most of its fame in muster competitions, as the Volunteer Veteran firefighters, pumping the side rails, managed to shoot streams of water 100 to 200 feet.

Koed attends conference

Advisory committee chairman Fred Koed joined more than seventy-five other local officials from Massachusetts in attending a program in Washington D.C. on federal-local relations, sponsored by Massachusetts Senator John Kerry and the Massachusetts Municipal Association (MMA).

"We are sponsoring this event in an effort to provide you with information and views from Capital Hill on some of the most important issues you face as leaders in your community— the environment, housing, economic development, human services, and the budget," Kerry told the Massachusetts local government leaders who gathered in the nation's capital on March 3.

During the day the group also heard from Massachusetts Senator Ted Kennedy on human services, Maine Senator George Mitchell on the environment, Massachusetts Rep. Chester Atkins on defense and Massachusetts Rep. Barney Frank on Housing.

Local officials came not only to listen, but to speak. "Now that the federal government has stopped providing Massachusetts municipalities with $130 in Revenue Sharing, any new federal mandates will be particularly burdensome," said MMA Director James Segel. The local leaders told Washington lawmakers that federal proposals to require municipalities to pay more for Medicare and Social Security would have a severe impact on local budgets.

Coalition press conference

Land use, population and other data which reveal a significant transformation of South Shore communities, will be presented by the South Shore Coalition at a press conference in Norwell Town Hall, Thursday, March 19, at 7:15 p.m.

Members of the South Shore Coalition are expected to announce a new agenda to address transportation, solid waste, and increased development issues, based upon this recently compiled data.

"Buried in this data are some striking stories of the transformation of the South Shore. To manage the resulting effects, our towns must seek cooperative responses. The South Shore Coalition is the ideal channel for a dynamic process to address local and regional interests," said Janet O'Brien South Shore Coalition Chairman.

The press conference will begin promptly at 7:15 p.m. For more information call Jean Christensen, MAPC's South Shore Coalition Project Manager, at 659-4909.

Hear the Candidates

The Cohasset League of Women voters is sponsoring their annual Candidates' Night to give everyone the opportunity to hear the local candidates declare their positions through an inbiased forum.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, March 26 at 7:45 p.m. at the Town Hall. Traditionally, the League has made this an informative and interesting evening. The league invites everyone to come learn the facts and show your support for this annual occurance.

Refreshments will be served. For additional information contact Janice Crowley at 383-0120 or Patti McCarthy at 383-9783.

Arts Lottery Grants

The distribution cycle for the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council is here again. The applications for the grants are available at the Cohasset Selectmens Office in the Cohasset Town Hall and the deadline for the applications is April 17, 1987.

The Arts Lottery Council wishes to encourage individual artists and artist/craftsmen to apply for the funds as well as art groups and associations in the town of Cohasset.

Central Cemetery meeting

This is to notify you that the Annual Meeting of the Cohasset Central Cemetery will be held in Trueblood Hall, Unitarian Parish House Saturday, March 21 at 4 p.m.

According to Section 4 of Article VII of the bylaws of the Cemetery, "each owner shall be a member of the Association and shall have one vote as such member at each regular or special meeting of the Association which is duly called."

The purposes of this meeting are: to hear the reports of committee chairmen; to hear the report of the treasurer and to act on the budget for the coming year; to hear the report of the president; to hear the report of the nominating committee and to act thereon — (election of directors);election of a nominating committee by ballot from nominations made by the board of directors; to act on any other business that may properly come before the meeting.

According to the bylaws, a quorum at annual meeting shall be fifteen members. We hope that you will attend.

Animal shelter hearing

There will be a public hearing on the proposed Hingham Animal Shelter, Thursday, March 19 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held with the Hingham advisory subcommittee at the Hingham Town Hall, Barnes Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend to hear about the regional animal shelter plans and to lend your support.

Housing applications

The Cohasset Housing Authority has issued Section Eight Certificates to three families who are in need of housing.

Selectmen deny Ward sewer plan

Selectmen will not recommend that town meeting approve the amended Ward sewer plan.

The revised plan recently gained approval from the state after a three-year dispute, and has received support from the advisory committee.

The amended waste water management and disposal system, commonly known as the "Ward Sewer Plan" received the green light from chairman Diane Sullivan, but was ousted by selectman James Gallagher and Rocco Laugelle. Clifford Mitman was out of town.

If the article is passed by town meeting, the project will cost an additional $360,000 to the amount already approved through a construction grant.

Monday night selectmen recommended articles to improve the town hall and the police and fire stations, with costs of the town hall totalling $1,096,450, and costs of the stations to be determined at a later date.

The town hall project would include certain renovations and improvements, furnishings and equipment, plus an addition to the building itself.

Construction at the police and fire stations would also include certain renovations, furnishings and equipment.

The Super Stop & Shop planned for Route 3A may face limited hours of operation if the town votes in accordance with the selectmen. The board voted to support a bylaw that would obstruct the selling of retail between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Another article recommended by the selectmen is the cost-of-living increase for elected officials such as the town clerk, clerk for the board of registrars. treasurer/collector, highway surveyor, moderator, selectmen, chairman of the selectmen, and board of assessors.

Other articles receiving recommendations included:

- Maintaining mosquito control for $2000.
- Borrowing $50,000 to complete roof repairs at Cohasset High.
- A proposal to discontinue the use of the intersection of Tupelo Road and Chief Justice Cushing Highway for vehicular traffic, plus erect a barrier at the terminus of Tupelo Road where it joins Chief Justice Cushing Highway to prevent traffic from exiting or entering Tupelo Road from Chief Justice Cushing Highway.
- To see if the town will raise $1000 for the South Shore Coalition.
- Available funds of $40,000 for capping and seeding a portion of the Cedar Street Landfill.
- The use of $3,500 for the improvement of land at Woodside Cemetery for burial plots.
- Available funds of $16,761 to improve the town's outdoor athletic field located at Milliken Field and the upper field behind the high school.
- The purchase and equipping of a new diesel dump truck for the highway department for $40,000, and authorize the "trade-in" of a truck currently used by the department.
- To appropriate $22,194 for resurfacing certain streets in town.
- To appropriate $50,000 to be used for the payment of legal fees in connection with the prosecution and defense of legal actions stemming from the operation of Cohasset Heights Landfill.
- To use available funds of $45,000 to refurbish Engine No. 3 for the fire department.
- $80,000 for three school buses, plus $300,000 for the renovation of seven science laboratories in the junior/senior high school.

Articles not recommended included the schedule of new water rates, which selectmen felt were too low. The board also chose to not support $18,550 for the purchase of a new full-size sedan cruiser for the fire department. And, selectmen were not in favor of providing dental benefits for all full-time employees.

Other business addressed during the meeting included the interviews of three candidates for the position of temporary firefighter. The candidates included William Sestito of Cohasset, Francis Kiley of Scituate and Francis Mahoney of Hull. A date was

Advisors join chorus of protest to 24-hour grocery service

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The advisory committee has joined the chorus of those opposed to 24-hour grocery business in Cohasset.

Voting unanimously, the committee decided Tuesday, to endorse a warrant article aimed at restricting service and delivery hours at the Super Stop & Shop to be built on Route 3A.

If passed at town meeting, business deliveries and sales of packaged foods would be prohibited in Cohasset between the hours 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Besides the impending supermarket, the Riddles and Curtis Compact stores would be affected by such a rule. Restaurants, liquor stores and others operating with common victualer licenses, however, would be exempt from such restrictions, according to the proposal.

John Bishop of 208 Fair Oaks Lane told the committee, "The residential character of our neighborhood should be preserved.

"From a public safety standpoint," he queried, "how will the police know who's going through town at that time of night? With such a facility next to a residential neighborhood, anyone could say he's here just to get a sandwich."

Bishop noted, regulations similar to those proposed in Article 58 on Cohasset's warrant, were passed in the town of Burlington, and were upheld in court.

"Why shouldn't we wait a year, and see then if we need to legislate?" asked Fred Koed, committee chairman.

"We need to draw the line now," said Gordon Hislop of 72 Jerusalem Road. "Why should you shoot yourself in the foot to determine whether it will hurt?"

Debbie Cook of 281 King Street told the committee, the developers have projected their project will draw 7,000 cars per day, a 15 percent increase in area traffic.

"I never envisioned anything in Cohasset that would draw 7,000 cars per day," she said.

"If it weren't for the new Stop & Shop," asked committee member Denis Rossi, "would you be here?"

"Probably not," Bishop said bluntly. "We would not have forseen the need for this."

Committee member Jane Goedecke admitted she presently frequents the Super Stop & Shop in Pembroke, as much for the supermarket there as for the other shops at the mall.

"This new Super Stop & Shop also will be a magnet for other shops," Hislop commented, "and it will detract from Cohasset."

"To satisfy the 7,000 residents of Cohasset, you don't need a 50,000 square-foot supermarket," Bishop added, "and I think it's against the will of the town for us to become a commercial zone for the rest of the South Shore."

Those promoting the proposed restrictions and the committee which voted to endorse them, will learn "the will of the town" at April's town meeting.

In other action, the committee indicated it may reconsider its endorsement of a proposal to build soccer fields in a sand pit off North Main Street.

Highway supt. Harold Litchfield told the committee, "I'm not against sports, but that sand pit is necessary for storage of materials and maintenance of equipment. I have a pipe and some catchbasins, where I wash the sweeper every day. I also dump sand up there.

"We have to start thinking about building a municipal garage," he added; "that would be a good site for it. I'm definitely not in favor of them (soccer people) taking over."

Litchfield noted, kids presently play amidst the sink holes, abandonned wells and sand piles on that lot adjacent to the little league field. "It's dangerous."

Goedecke expressed concern regarding safety at the site, and questioned whether a soccer field there would be "an attractive nuisance." She suggested the lot might be worthy of fences and gates, rather than soccer fields.

Tree and park supt. Peter Laugelle commented, "It is not feasible to put soccer fields on that lot." His department also stores materials at the site.

Laugelle recommended the soccer fields' proponents investigate lots adjacent to Deer Hill School. "That is the best potential spot."

The committee will raise this issue with Cohasset's water commissioners March 19. "I'd like to get an objective opinion," Goedecke commented. "We should listen to what the water commissioners have to say Thursday, before we rescind our previous vote."

Committee member Betsy Millard wondered aloud, whether the soccer field proposal is a ploy to "finesse a comeback to Milliken Field by offering a worse alternative."

The committee voted not to recommend Tupelo Road be closed off at one end, creating a cul-de-sac.

"I'll bet there are at least 30 roads in town which could come up with reasons to be closed off," said committee member Jill O'Donnell. "It would set a horrible precedent."

A number of committee members noted, they use Tupelo Road as a throughway.

Committee member Marty Corry suggested, traffic from the village to Tupelo Road could be cut off by closing Pleasant Street, where drivers often test their velocity potentials.

In other business, the advisory committee decided to back two school improvement projects. Article 40 calls for the expenditure of $100,000 for repairs to the front window walls at Cohasset High School. Article 41 would provide $150,000 for the refurbishment of school chemistry labs.

The committee also approved of plans to replace highway dept. dump truck, to repair a rusted fire engine and to resurface a couple of streets.

Peter Laugelle did not win the committee's favor for his proposal to purchase a new four-wheel-drive pickup truck. Members noted, if his bid were to replace an existing dump truck with the pickup, they might have voted the other way.

The search is on for a local rink. . .

still be very costly is their insurance. That's why I think the best option is for the state to own the land and operate the rink."

Zimmer, president of the Seahawks Youth Hockey organization, said the parents's group has not discussed Rep. Murray's proposed legislation. Speaking for herself, the Scituate resident said that the location of a rink in Hull would be as inconvenient as the current plans which have parents driving their kids to Pembroke and Rockland rinks. "A lot of our Seahawk skaters live in Norwell and Marshfield and for them to have to go to Hull seems to me to be as inconvenient as driving to Pembroke or Rockland. We decided at a meeting last week that we'd really like to have the rink centrally located in Cohasset or Scituate," Zimmer said.

The parents's group is now actively seeking donations of two and a half-acres of land in either of the two communities. The best alternative, Zimmer explained, would be to have a donation of land so there would be no mortgage on the property. The money for construction and liability insurance, she said, would be raised through a series of major fundraisers.

"Speaking for myself," Zimmer said, "I would prefer to have a privately-owned rink, but if we have to go with a state-owned rink, we will."

The problem with exorbitant insurance rates, she added, may be relieved by pending legislation which will lower costs for public recreational facilities.

The parents's group has been scouting land in the two towns, searching for available land. Assessors maps at the town halls are being used to locate any empty parcels, she said. If land is located, the group anticipates construction of a rink by September, 1988. "This is all very vague right now," she emphasized, "because we've just started. But we would like to have our own facility ready by about that time.

"We're taking it one step at a time right now. Our first priority," she acknowledged, "is to find a donation of land. Without a donation of land, the rest of the project is an impossibility."

Leah Pompeo of Cohasset is also involved in the search for a new skating rink location. She said the organization has received "very good response" from the public and from parents' of former Winter Garden skaters. "People are very eager to find a replacement for the Winter Garden. Some of them can't really afford to invest in the plans, but they are willing to help out in any way," she said.

The plans, Zimmer noted, "are barely off the ground right now," but she explained that at least four association members are actively seeking available land.

"This isn't just a Seahawks project," she emphasized. "We have interested people from all over the South Shore. Many of the figure skaters who skated at Winter Garden aren't from this immediate area but they are eager to have a rink back in this area as soon as possible."

Need for AFS host families

Would you like to know how Christmas is celebrated in Finland? Do teenagers get summer jobs in Argentina? Would you and your family like to know the world better but don't know how you could ever manage it?

It isn't necessary to travel to bring the world closer to you. AFS International/ Intercultural Programs offers families the chance to host a student from one of more than 60 countries around the world. Opening up your home and your hearts to one teenager for one year can give you the international experience of a lifetime.

The Cohasset AFS Chapter is now looking for host families for the coming school year. If you are interested in hosting or would like more information, please call Mary Beth Lean at 383-9409 or Jane Goedecke at 383-6935.

How are you planning for your future?
Millbrook offers you a new choice in retirement living

1. an independent lifestyle — These are your years to enjoy — at your own pace, in your own style — and in your own home, free from the day-to-day burdens of owning a house, or depending on your family. Millbrook offers you a comfortable urban setting, where neighborhood shops, restaurants, banks and churches are within easy walking distance.
2. in-house services — We offer you all the comforts of home with modern appliances, including a self-cleaning oven, frost free refrigerator, garbage disposal, dishwasher, bay windows, wall to wall carpeting, elevators, laundry facilities and well-lit, on-site parking.
3. amenities — In addition, we provide a variety of important amenities, including your main meal of the day with a choice of entree from our fine menu, housekeeping, maintenance, scheduled transportation, 24-hour security, nursing care available 24-hours and more.
4. continuing health care — We hope you always enjoy good health, but should any special health needs arise, in-house rehabilitative and nursing care is also available. For years we've provided seniors with top-quality health care. If you should ever need our help — rest assured — we'll be there for you.
5. a new rental approach — We offer you a variety of one and two bedroom apartments with a straight rental approach. In contrast to the typical endowment plan, our short-term lease arrangement helps you avoid making a costly investment. That way you benefit from control over your own savings.

We all need to plan for the future. Now Millbrook in Braintree offers you a new choice in retirement living.

Embattled landfill owner escapes shutdown deadline. . .

watershed, to appreciate the significance of the testing and the readings and the technical infromation, there is a danger when we have the serious concern of lay people involved.

"They have every right to be concerned, but to interpret this complicated data without proper experience, we are saying maybe this isn't warranted." Moehrke continued, "CHL understands it is operating under tough scrutiny and that is as it should be, as long as that scrutiny is based on ability to make proper and sound judgments."

The landfill operators, he noted, would like the town to "be fair to everyone in the same situation. Subject them to the same scrutiny." Moehrke was referring to the landfill's lawsuit against the state DPW for polluting groundwater that flows into the landfill. "We have evidence that they are contributing substantially to part of the pollutants found in the landfill. At the same time, why doesn't everyone look at the DPW , and also at the base line readings of its own landfill on Cedar Street?" he inquired.

"My feeling," he continued, "is that there should be informed scrutiny and that these tests results should be read by qualified people, not by residents without experience in the field. Camp, Dresser and McGee and the DEQE haven't blown any emergency whistles. That ought to be given consideration.

"How much money has the town spent fighting Cohasset Heights? I've been involved since 1983 and it continues to be at the top of my desk every day. If the town fathers have watched us in the spotlight and two separate special counsels for the town have watched us, then the town's not sleeping. Yet CDM still says there is no evidence of pollution. So where are the results of all this town money? I suggest the residents of Cohasset bear that in mind," he added.

"What has the town spent and what have you got to show for it? CDM has said there is no real evidence of pollution there and our expert engineers suggest the same. My suggestion would be to wonder where the result is of all this spending by the town. What have you spent and what have you got to show for it?"

Moehrke said he is confident that all engineering tests have and will continue to show that Cohasset Heights is not polluting the town's water supply. "If anyone has the information the town does not have, they should feel free to bring it forward," he said, referring to the March 30 public hearing.

Aid needed to restore fire engine 'Konohassett'

The Konohassett disappeared in the 1920s amid the interest in new fangled contraptions called automobiles. It was returned to Cohasset in 1977 by an anonymous South Shore fire engine collector, who donated it to the historical society.

Until recently, the tub sat idle at the Central Fire Station. The restoration project was put on the back burner. Later, it was forced out to make room for new equipment.

According to Charles Fink, president of the Cohasset Historical Society, getting going on the Konohassett project "was a matter of biting the bullet, knowing it was there... and of finding an enthusiastic coordinator in Richard Silvia."

Silvia's interest in the project is spurred by his own family history; his father served as a mascot on the old Konohassett at musters, as a youngster after the first World War.

Beginning the project, he will collect and analyze information on the engine, speak with those who recall its glory days and he'll search for a permanent location to display the apparatus.

"I hope we find a nice home in which to show it off," Fink said. "It's a rare opportunity; this is a rare possession for the historical society."

After he determines what parts may need to be replaced, and whether it can be restored to working condition, he will seek out craftsmen who may wish to volunteer their time for such a special project.

Despite the possibility it is missing some parts, Wadsworth said he believes the tub is in good shape.

"The restoration of the Konohassett is entirely possible," he said, "and it can be done successfully. The machine is in all ways, worth restoring. It will be spectacular on parade."

Fink agreed, commenting, "I can just see it on the common now, squirting a stream from the unitarian church into the duck pond."

Silvia said he is interested in getting the project underway, and he wants to hear from the townfolk.

"This is one more step," he said, "in preserving a piece of Cohasset history. I want people to be able to participate in town history," he said. "History is not static, it's dynamic, and I'd like to get people involved."

not given as to when the board would reach its decision.

The board approved a request by the South Shore Art Center to hold its Annual Arts Festival on the Common, and to close William B. Long Jr. Road for that event, slated June 22 to June 29.

A request by Friends of Boy Scout Troop No. 28 to operate a refreshment stand during the town meeting and town election was approved. The board also accepted the resignation of A.J. Antone from the Harbor Study committee.

GET A 1986 IRA TAX DEDUCTION BEFORE SOX SEASON STARTS.

OR WATCH YOUR LAST GREAT CHANCE SLIP BY.

If you think the new tax laws have fouled up 1986 IRAs, think again.

For tax year 1986, nothing's changed. The same eligibility and deductibility rules apply as in previous years. You can still get the same great tax benefits. But only if you make your 1986 IRA contribution by April 15. (That's about the time Sox Manager John McNamara starts getting a few more gray hairs.)

As for tax year 1987, it's a whole new ballgame. We've put together a free booklet that explains the changes, and helps give you a winning edge on your 1987 IRA.

To get the booklet, and to get a great IRA for 1986, 1987, or both, visit Quincy Savings Bank today. Or call 471-3500.

60 years of Girl Scout pride. . .

fourth, fifth and sixth grade girls are working on a Ms. Fix-It badge. Richard Silvia, a local auto mechanic, has demonstrated how to care for cars. The girls have brought in tools from home, with explanations about how to use them.

Another badge is called Looking Our Best. One topic recently discussed was nutrition, and each girl brought in a new and unique piece of nutritional food to share. A hair stylist is scheduled to attend an up-coming meeting in which she will demonstrate the most up-to-date styles to the girls.

"We do an occasional craft, usually associated with a badge," she explains. "But most of all, in Girl Scouts we talk a lot about values and how they are formed. That is the basis of Girl scouts that hasn't changed since the beginning."

Outdoor recreation is also a large part of the program, Mrs. Smullen notes. A camp-out is scheduled for the last weekend in May at Camp Favorite in Brewster. "It's something the girls help to plan - we're already talking about what we expect to be doing there," she says.

There are four Brownie troops in Cohasset along with 31 junior Girl Scouts, Cadets and Senior Girl Scouts. Mrs. Smullen called it an "active" program in Cohasset with excellent attendance by the participants.

A special program was held in January, she recalls, when the girls rode by bus into the Children's Museum in Boston.

They camped overnight at the museum which treated the girls to special workshops throughout the evening. "They loved it," the Troop leader says.

Currently, the Junior Scouts are creating centerpieces for the Senior Center which will be used this week for the special St. Patrick's Day dinner.

"I joined the Girl Scouts in 1919 and I've been really active ever since. I still serve as a resource person and consultant in Cohasset," she says. "I joined the first troop in Chicopee and later was involved in the program at Bridgewater State College. While I was a teacher in Quincy, I helped to revitalize the program there."

The Girl Scout program has prospered through the years, Mrs. Bates feels, because it has "kept up with what the modern girl likes to do. The basics and the ideals are the same, but the program has changed to meet the needs of the modern girl. It started as a military sort-of group. Now we call it a service group, but it's not just a bunch of kids grabbing for badges. We prepare the girls to meet the challenges that lay ahead. They use what they learn. The program has kept up to date. It's not stagnant. I get a kick out of seeing these girls develop into better women because of Scouting. A lot of successful women have said they knew what to do because of the things they learned while a Girl Scout," she says.

Girl Scouts, according to Mrs. Bates, has been a basis of her life which is tied into her religious beliefs. "It is that ability and willingness to help others and being prepared to do it. That's what Girl Scouts has taught me," she adds. "I truly believe Girl Scouts has given our young women the opportunity to dare - to inspire them to give it a try."

Mrs. Dorothy Bates, who is credited for revitalizing the Cohasset Girl Scout program in the 1950's, talked at last week's anniversary program.

around town

☐ The Sixth Annual Daffodil American Cancer Society Day is being observed Wednesday, March 18.

You are invited to pick up a "Flower of Hope in Remembrance" at either the Beechwood Medical Center, Rockland Trust Bank, Cohasset Savings Bank or Pilgrim Cooperative Bank. Flowers will be available from Wednesday, March 18 through Saturday, March 21.

☐ Jill Neagle Caffrey has joined the Cohasset office of the Jack Conway Company as a sales associate, according to manager Mary Ellen Neagle. Caffrey attended Archbishop Williams High School and received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Boston College. She has completed appraisal courses at Stonehill College and Real Estate Law courses sponsored by the American Institute of Banking. She has worked as a loan originator, loan processor and in the loan closing department for a Boston bank and was an account executive for a mortgage service company.

A North Scituate resident, she has also lived in Hingham. She is married to Frederick Caffrey, an area manager for Pioneer Electronics.

☐ Jeffrey C. O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. O'Neill of Cohasset, received a letter in varsity hockey from Belmont Hill School. The hockey team won the Keller League and was 21-3-1 overall. O'Neill was selected as First Team Keller League and received the Hockey Trophy for the greatest improvement. O'Neill attends Belmont Hill as a five-day boarder, a program which permits students to live at the school from Monday through Thursday and to be with their families on weekends.

☐ The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club has exciting news! They will be holding their annual luncheon-fashion show again this year, it's to take place at the lovely new addition at the Barker Tavern in Scituate. It will be held April 4 (that's a Saturday) at noon, and the price is $17.50. The fashions will be by Bouche and Images, so you can be sure that the clothes will be beautiful. The admission price will also enable the purchaser to win one of many door-prizes that were donated by local merchants. For ticket information please call Nancy Ross at 383-0023.

Japanese students paid a brief visit to the Osgood School last week. Chisa (R) helps Conor Mangan and Simeon Ketchum with the paper art of origami.

☐ Leslie O'Grady had a super weekend last weekend. She was a contestant in the Miss Massachusetts Teen USA Pageant, held at the Sheraton Lincoln in Worcester. Not having heard the final results, we can assume that she did well, and met lots of new friends.

☐ On March 21st, your car is sure to look as good as new! The CHS Football team is holding a carwash at the Deer Hill School, and it is only $3 per car! Get rid of all that winter dirt and salt, and help the team at the same time. Who better to scrub those whitewalls than a rugged, strong tackle or lineman? You can either purchase your ticket from a member of the football team, or pay when you get there. The players will be around town if you want an advance sale ticket. Be sure to support them in this effort, and have a sparkling car to boot!

☐ Catherine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Aaron River Road, earned herself quite an honor recently. Catherine is a Junior at the University of Massachusetts, and a Forestry major. She entered a contest sponsored by the Northern Loggers Association (open to Juniors all over New England) and won second prize for her efforts. The prize was $500, something any college student can surely use, and her paper was about New England Forestry Major Effect of Taxes and Tax Benefits on Forest Management. If you want to congratulate Catherine, you'll have to wait a bit as she is on a field trip to North Carolina observing forest management practices down there.

☐ Bethany Quintin and Kara Protulis certainly have a lot to be proud of! They recently skated in the New England Juvenile Championship held in Danvers. Bethany finished first in the freestyle event and third in the compulsory figures to combine for an overall second place finish.

Kara came in seventh in the Preliminary B's (for 11 year-olds). Other Silver Blade Skaters included Jenny Fisher, Katy Leeber, and Carrie Williams.

Bethany represents the Silver Blades Skating Club, and this is her first year in USFSA competition. She started in April of 1986 and, prior to the Juvenile Competition she skated in four others. Get this for a record: second in the Worcester Open; second in the Cohasset Open; first in the Boston Open; and, second in the Providence, Rhode Island Open.

It was certainly an adventure for Kara, whose costume and skates were stolen from a car in Danvers just prior to the competition. With help from Erica Schlicht of Weymouth, Kara was appropriately costumed and she skated her heart out. The crowd understandably appreciated her gallant efforts. She performed her best competition yet!

What's the problem

The issue of whether or not to post election signs is not really much of an issue at all. Not when there are real issues confronting our town - the possible shutdown of a commercial landfill, the limitation of business hours in Cohasset, and the election of many new local officials.

But it is interesting to see how our local candidates feel about the so-called carnival atmosphere created by the posting of political signs during a campaign. By and large, signs are unattractive, unimaginative works of art.

But they are a tradition - not so welcomed as crocuses in spring, but something akin to that. Every March we await these brightly-colored posters appearing on the lawns of our neighbors and friends. It is a tradition that, however unesthetical, is amusing to observe.

Our neighboring town of Scituate once attempted to do away with the ugly little signs that reared their unwelcomed words before each election. But inventive minds schemed around that town bylaw which states that signs are allowed only if they are attached to a vehicle. All over town, you can now see colorful placards attached to wheelbarrows, tricycles and bikes. It is uglier than anyone could have imagined, but it is also a lot more fun. It has become a tradition in that town to attach your political sign to the most monstrously oversized set of wheels you own.

Politics is rarely fun - why not take a poke when we've got the opportunity?

Surely the candidate with the greatest amount of signs is not an automatic winner in the annual election. And conversely, he is surely not a political clown because he has spent campaign money to purchase the notices.

And just because a candidate has opted to be the bearer of supreme good taste, does not make him or her the most qualified candidate for office.

Surely, all that signs indicate is that one particular candidate does have some personal and financial support, or has a good friend in the graphics business. It demonstrates he has a specific number of close friends or political allies in the town, but does not presume to indicate he is a shoo-in for political office.

Signs during a campaign are a traditional part of local, state and national elections. They are a bit of the pomp and circumstance, of the pageantry, of the admittedly carnival atmosphere that generates excitement and interest in a political campaign.

As we have stated, there are certainly more serious issues we must discuss in the weeks ahead. But this light-hearted subject may be the proper lead in to the more heated debates which will likely be fueled in the future.

To all our candidates, we wish you good luck in bringing forth these issues to the voters of Cohasset. With or without political signs, each candidate deserves our attention.

Have an opinion on town meeting issues? Expresss them in a letter to the editor ?

Provide your input to the Board of Health

Letters

To the Editor,

Cohasset Heights constitutes a direct threat to Cohasset's public drinking water supply. In addition, odors from the landfill provide another route of exposure that also threatens people's health and property values.

There is only one way to protect Cohasset's water supply. It is necessary for people to become more involved. I do not know anyone in Cohasset that is not concerned about the Heights Landfill. I can only say that based on my experience, Lily Pond will not be protected unless more Cohasset residents turn out for meetings and educate themselves about what is going on.

The Board of Health would do well to better understand what is going on as well. Perhaps an informed citizenry could be of help. I suggest that the Board of Health provide copies of all relevant documents pertaining to Cohasset Heights including correspondence, studies, and the site assignment to the Cohasset Public Library. In this way people will be able to review the material in private, and at their leisure while having access to less expensive copying equipment than the Board of Health can provide. This material is of historical and technical value.

Please, if you are concerned about the Heights Landfill for any reason, help us to solve the problems associated with its presence in our community. The Board of Health meets regularly every two weeks on Mondays. There is a public hearing on March 30 concerning amendments to Cohasset Heights' site assignment. The next regularly scheduled Board of Health meeting is Monday the 21st. Their number is 383-1664.

Sincerely,
Brian Lipsett

CTA hopes town supports salaries

To the Editor:

It was reported in the March 11 issue of the PATRIOT LEDGER that "the salary portion of the budget was up 8.4%: 6.6 percent for cost of living raises, plus step raises of approximately 5% for one-fifth of the staff." The COHASSET TEACHERS ASSOCIATION is concerned about misconceptions which may arise from this statement.

There may well be an 8.4% budget increase in the account salary, however, it is not the result of an 8.4% salary increase for the faculty. This was explained in detail by Superintendent Stephen Hart to members of the Advisory Board during the January 5 School Committee Meeting. About 80% of the teaching faculty has negotiated a 6.6% increase in 1987-88. One-fifth of the staff may receive step raises in addition to the 6.6 increase.

In addition, the statement that "a comparison of teaching and administrative salaries with surrounding towns showed that Cohasset is over the mid-point, but not on the high end of the scale," is misleading.

According to the Salary Schedule, Percentage increases for the 1986-87 School Year prepared by the Massachusetts Teachers Association Division of Research published January 1, 1987, contracted teachers' salaries of the following surrounding communities including: Hingham, Pembroke, Scituate, Rockland, Norwell, Duxbury and Weymouth, are higher than the salaries of Cohasset teachers. Hull is the only exception.

Furthermore, comparison of comparable socio-economic communities indicates an increased disparity between the salaries of teachers in Cohasset with the salaries of teachers in the communities of Dover, Weston, Wellesley, Westwood, Concord, Lexington, Lincoln and Hingham. Compared with these, Cohasset ranks at the bottom of the pay scale in every category. It is interesting to note that it is with these high socio-economic communities that Cohasset is compared when discussing achievement. Compared with them, Cohasset ranked among the highest in the state mandated testing and in standardized tests.

It is evident that Cohasset students are the recipients of quality instruction provided by professional educators who are committed to excellence, but paid at the lowest level of comparable communities.

It is difficult to project a continuation of this high standard of teaching for the future, because new teachers are unlikely to be attracted to a community with members of the Advisory Board who view the education of its students as a fiscal matter.

The Carnegie Report has issued a call for restructuring the schools to create a professional environment including a change in the salary structure for professional career teachers so that the extrinsic, as well as the intrinsic returns are comparable to those of other respected professions.

The Cohasset Teachers Association hopes that the community will continue to support and recognize the efforts of its teachers.

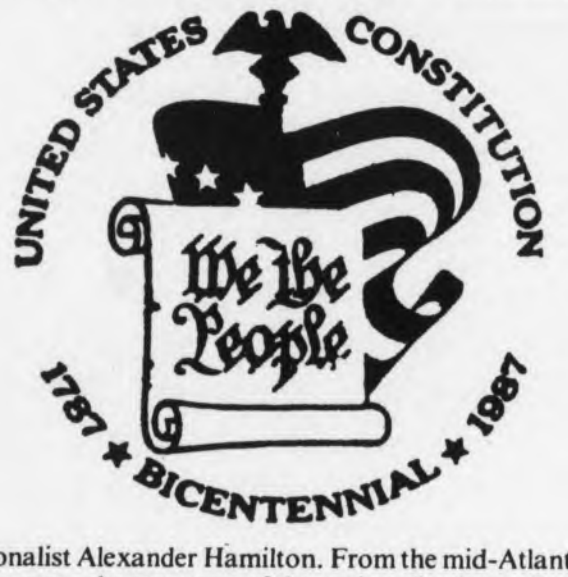
President, Cohasset Teachers Association

Vastly different temperments lent talent to new nation



by David Wadsworth
Bicentennial Committee Chairman

The observance of our national Constitutional Bicentennial marks the 200th anniversary of the Constitutional Convention held at Philadelphia during the summer of 1787. An apparent progressive failure of the nation's first frame of government, the Articles of Confederation, had led to a call to drastically amend the Articles or to replace them altogether with a new, stronger and more centralized government capable of solving the nation's worsening problems.

By early 1787 a convention of all states was planned, to meet in Philadephia in May and to remain in session until a new framework of government could be drafted. Convention delegates were chosen by each of the thirteen states except Rhode Island. Most of those chosen were men of wisdom and experience in matters governmental, and many had long careers of public service already behind them. But, taken together, the delegates of the various states often reflected the particular political and philosophical viewpoints of their own state or region.

Even in the earliest days of the United States, there were vastly differing viewpoints between the various regions of the nation, and these regional views had made it difficult for a truly national government to emerge from the loosely knit confederation of sovereign states existing under the Articles of Confederation. The same regionalisms played a role at the Philadelphia Convention, and strongly influenced the course of debate and discussion which led to the drafting of a new Constitutional document. The framework of government which resulted was in reality a series of compromises in which numerous delegates found it necessary to give up some things of value in order to reach general agreement. New England states of New Hamphire, Massachusetts and Connecticut had appeared to have more than a few grave doubts regarding the need for a stongly centralized government.

This was so much the case in New Hampshire that its delegates had to pay their own way to the Philadelphia Convention. In Massachusetts the question of nationalism was subject to debate, and its delegates represented a moderate type of nationalism, sympathetic generally to the need for strong central government, but harboring some traditional suspiciousness and misgivings about the matter, in the wake of Daniel Shays' recent excesses. Rhode Island, true to its strongly independent and anti-nationalist sentiment, sent no delegates at all to Philadelphia, apparently to the relief of some of its more nationalist-minded neighbors in Massachusetts. Connecticut struck some form of balance in choosing delegates, picking two moderate anti-nationalists and one moderate nationalist as its representatives. In nearby New York, the anti-nationalist Governor Clinton chose three delegates of like mind, then balanced that state's representation by choosing the formidable nationalist Alexander Hamilton. From the mid-Atlantic states came the strongest of the nationalist delegations, with James Madison and George Washington leading the Virginia contingent.

Shortly before leaving for Philadelphia, Washington had written to Madison of his wish that the convention "may adopt no temporizing expedient, but probe the defects of the Constitution to the bottom and provide radical cures..." Pennsylvania, host state to the convention, sent perhaps the strongest of all nationalist delegations, one which would play a major role in shaping the course of the proceedings. Benjamin Franklin, the "Boston citizen who dwelt for a little while in Philadelphia" was 81 years of age and had served the American cause for 60 of those years. At the Convention, he would serve as a calming influence when anger and acrimony threatened to take charge. Pennsylvania's Robert Morris, Gouverneur Morris and James Wilson also were to be leading figures in the quest for an effective central government.

Years later James Madison would write of Gouverneur Morris, "the finish given to the style and arrangement of the Constitution fairly belongs to the pen of Mr. Morris...a better choice could not have been made." It was Gouverneur Morris who wrote the final draft of the document for presentation to the printers in Philadelphia. Of the great compromises made in order to assure general acceptance of the new Constitution, perhaps none was as far-reaching as the need to protect the interests of the small states against total domination by the large. The result was a bi-cameral legislature having one branch in which all states had equal representation regardless of size or population. New Jersey and Delaware represented the small states, and Delaware's George Read most ably presented their case to the Convention. From Southern states came a group of delegations of generally nationalist leanings, but vocal in their desire to protect certain regional institutions, notably that of slavery. South Carolina's delegation proved to be the most active, sending delegates from some of its traditional aristocracy and its old families. Yet another compromise was arrived at due largely to their efforts; and the question of slavery remained largely outside of the new Constitution's framework. Men such as South Carolina's General Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, his cousin Charles Pinckney, and John Rutledge would be notable for their desire to protect regional interests while forging a strong national government.

As for New England, despite its apparent early lack of commitment to the cause of strong central government, roles of influential leadership would be played by Connecticut's Ellsworth and Sherman, by Gorham, King, Strong and Gerry of Massachusetts, and Langdon of New Hampshire. Thus in the spring of 1787, nearly half a hundred men of vastly differing temperaments, background and philosophies prepared to journey to Philadelphia to lend their talents in the awesome project of constructing a new nation.

Rep. James Brett to address So. Shore Democrats

Rep. James T. Brett (D-Dorchester/South Boston) will be the keynote speaker before a group of South Shore Democrats Sunday, March 22.

Rep. Brett will speak before COOP-6, an association of South Shore Democratic Town Committees, at a brunch to be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Hugos Lighthouse on Border Street in Cohasset. Tickets are $11 and are available at the door.

"Rep. Brett is a very well-respected member of the House," said Donna McGee, Chairman of the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee, which is hosting the event. "We are very pleased that he has agreed to speak before our group."

"As Chairman of the Joint Special Committee on Redistricting, Rep. Brett will be able to give us a unique description of the upcoming redistricting of Massachusetts legislative Districts," said McGee.

Massachusetts law mandates that legislative districts be realigned every 10 years following the state census, which was last taken in 1985, according to McGee.

Rep. Brett has represented the Fourteenth Suffolk District, Dorchester and South Boston, since winning a special election in 1981.

He was appointed as Chairman of the Joint Special Committee on Redistricting by House Speaker George Keverian in January, 1986. Rep. Brett also serves as Chairman of the House Committee on Counties.

Other leadership posts held by Rep. Brett include appointments as Vice-Chairman of the Legislative Research Committee and as a Member of the Joint Special Commission on the Proposed Division of Mental Health.

Rep. Brett also serves as a member of the Special Legislative Commission on a John F. Kennedy Memorial, which is presently studying plans to erect a statue on the State House grounds.

In 1984, Rep. Brett was the recipient of the Greater Boston Jaycees Ten Outstanding Young Leaders award. In 1986 he was the recipient of the Borth Suffolk Mental Health Association Public Service Award in recognition of outstanding support for citizens of the Harbor Area in need of mental health and mental retardation services.

Additionally, in 1986 Rep. Brett was chosen as Legislator of the year by both the Greater Boston Association of Retarded Citizens and by Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen.

He serves on the Board of Directors of the Daniel Marr Boys and Girls Club, Friends of the Kennedy Library, and the Greater Boston Association of Retarded Citizens, and has been appointed to the Suffolk University School of Management's Public Management Public Advisory Council.

Rep. Brett received a B.A. from The American University and an M.P.A. from Suffolk University.

COOP-6 is an association of the Democratic Town Committee of Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Scituate, and Weymouth, according to COOP-6 Chairman Susan Phippen.

The Cruiser's 87' captain Tom Larson leaves a legacy

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Memories of glory will go with Tom Larson, as the senior captain of Eddie's cruisers flies the Cohasset coop.

After three years in the limelight, on a nationally touted basketball squad, this quiet kid from Church Street is moving on.

Larson said he wants to study biology, or biological engineering at Southeastern Massachusetts University. He also hopes to try his hand at basketball there. S.M.U. is ranked third nationally in Division 3 basketball.

While he is looking to his goals for the future, Larson said he will not forget the glories and good times he experienced here at C.H.S.

"I'll miss it all," he commented, "I'll miss the school. Because it was so small, we were all really close. It was fun being in the spotlight, having other teams wanting to beat us, wanting to play us, and getting the respect in school, because the whole team accomplished so much."

In his three years on the C.H.S. varsity squad, Larson enjoyed two state championships, including an undefeated season in 1985, and record-breaking winning streaks.

Larson earned the respect of his coach, Eddie Minelli.

"I can remember seeing him in seventh and eighth grade, knowing he was going to be a good player," Minelli said. "I'd always see him with a basketball, smiling and bouncing the ball around.

"The numbers aren't important; many things you do, don't show up," the coach noted. "He always did what he could do, and he got better.

"When he was a sophomore, he played in the Worcester Centrum; when he was a junior, he started on a nationally ranked team. And he capped it all off as a captain," Minelli said.

For his part, Larson credited coach Minelli for helping him to reach those heights.

"He has done a lot," Larson said. "He got us in the spotlight, got attention for us and made it fun."

He explained, the added attention helped the team to cruise at a higher clip.

As the lone returning senior starter this year, Larson had to adjust to being a team leader, he added.

The coach described his team captain as "an unassuming, hard-working kid.

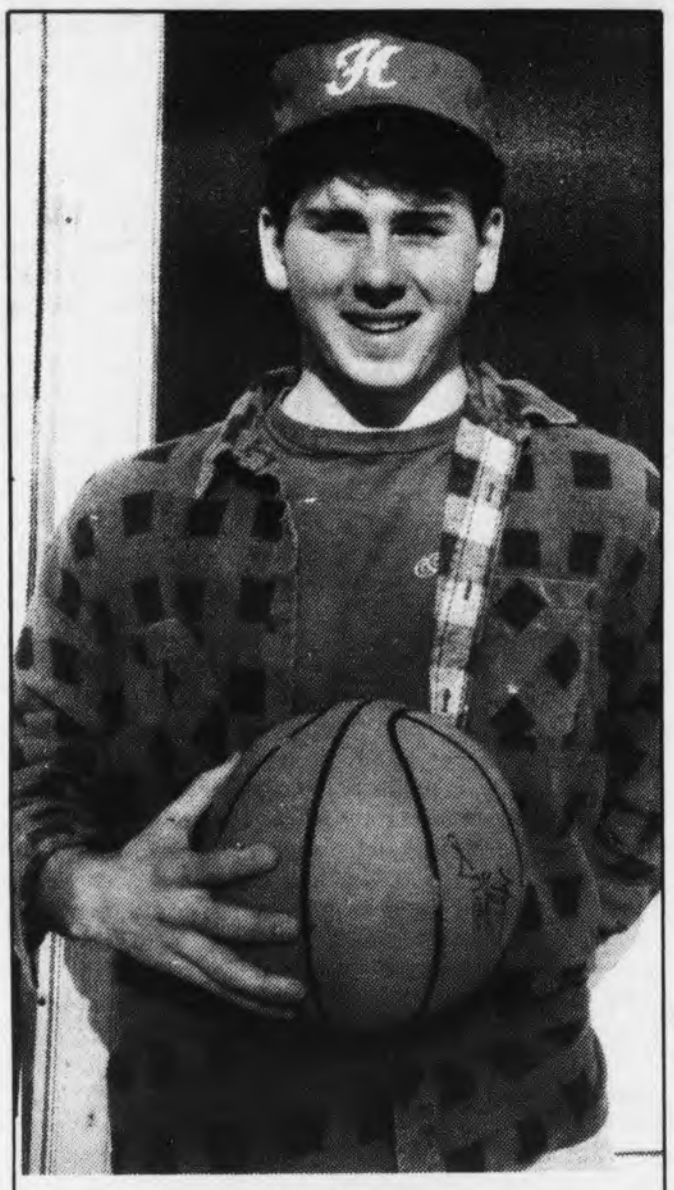
"He's a Larry Bird, blue-collar type," Minelli said. "He was very effective, without people realizing it."

As captain, Larson worked to get his teammates geared up for the games, keeping them working hard in practice, and he was responsible for dealing with referees before and during games.

Although he was hobbled early in the season with injuries to his ankle and shins, "he performed with intensity," Minelli said. Larson rebounded from his early troubles and had a "great" state tournament, playing tenaciously against Holbrook, Medway and Hopkinton.

The loss to Hopkinton in double-overtime was a heart-breaker for the Cruisers, and especially for Larson.

"The odds were against us," he said stoically, "but we should have won the last game; I don't know how far we would have gone after that..."



"As we were walking down the runway to the locker room after that game," Minelli recalled, "I grabbed him, put my arm around him and said, 'Well Tommy, this is the last walk we'll be taking together.'

"I'm sure he's sad to see it end," the coach commented, "and we're going to miss him. I've been looking at him for four years. It will be strange going to practice and not seeing him there. He's really a great kid.

"I'm sorry that his high school career ended with a loss," he added, "but despite that last loss, he went out a winner. The success he has had throughout his career far outweighs a couple of setbacks."

After playing much of the season in pain, and leading his team to yet another league championship, Larson was named a South Shore League all-star. "That says a lot about his character," Minelli commented. "People don't make the honor roll without doing their homework; Tommy did his homework, and in my book, he'll always be a winner.

The coach predicted, "He has a bright future and will be a capable small-college player."

The PSO Nominating Committee has convened to prepare a slate of nominees for the 1987-88 Executive Board. A list of candidates will be mailed to the general membership in April and voted into office at the annual meeting on May 7. If you would be interested in serving on the Executive Board, would like to make a recommendation, or would like some information, please contact any nominating committee member: Olga Nohe, Chairman, 383-1273; Merlyn Corcoran, 383-6862; Letta Dwyer, 383-6629; Martha Equi, 383-0461; Sue McNamara, 383-6945; or Annette Sawchuck, 383-0050.

Aptitude and Interest Testing

In the spring, the Guidance Department will administer to interested students, the Differential Aptitude Test (DAT) and the Strong-Campbell Vocational Interest Inventory Test. Both tests will generate a detailed printout of aptitudes and interests which will be of great assistance in determining future careers and/or college majors. Although this testing is available to all students in grades nine through twelve, it could be most helpful to tenth and eleventh graders as they make career and educational plans for the future.

The cost of this testing will depend on the number of students who register, since the tests must be ordered on an individual basis. To determine how many tests will be needed,we are establishing a pre-registration period to sample student interest.

The tests will be given in the spring on a date to be announced and will be administered on a Saturday. The tests will take approximately six (6) hours to administer and the cost will be in the vicinity of ten dollars ($10.00) per student. This fee is subject to increase or decrease depending on how many students wish to participate. More specific information will be made available later.

Students who might want to take this battery of tests should sign up with Mrs. Brennock in the Guidance Office before Wednesday, March 25, so that we can anticipate the number of tests to order. We wish to emphasize that this sign-up is merely to sample interest; therefore, there will be no fee required at this time. An actual registration period, including payment of test fees, will be held in early April.

Math League winners

The winners for the Deer Hill School are:

First place winner: Catherine deLima, Grade 6, Mrs. Cisneros; Tied for second place: Matthew O'Leary, Grade 6, Mrs. Cisneros; Kathleen O'Sullivan, Grade 6, Mr. Shultz; Alex Vanderweil, Grade 6, Mr. Becker; and John Kinchla, Grade 6, Mrs. Cisneros.

Poster winner

Meka-Mari Laugelle, Grade 6 in Mr. Becker's room was a second place winner in the "Efficient use of Electricity" poster contest. This contest was sponsored by Eastern Edison Company in conjunction with Mrs. Jean O'Malley, Deer Hill Art Teacher, and included many South Shore towns.

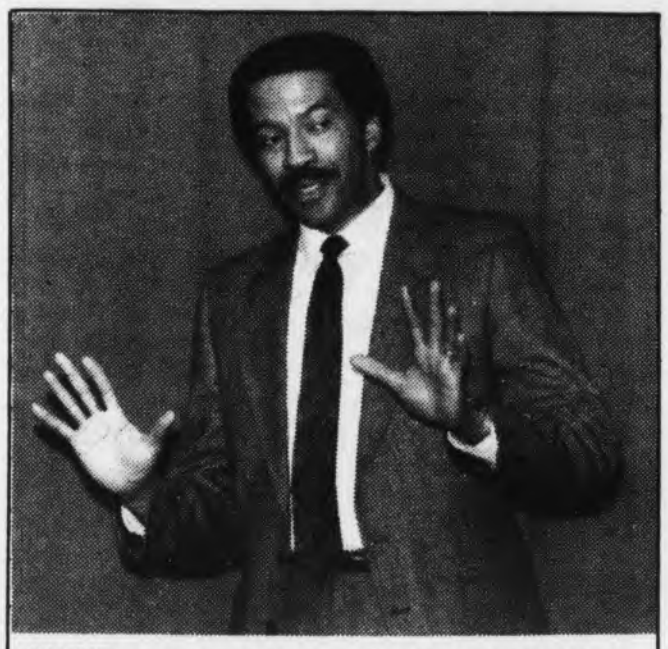
CHS Blood Drive

The students of Cohasset High School are sponsoring an American Red Cross Blood Drive, Monday, March 30 in the upstairs gym, from 8:30 a.m. sto 1:30 p.m.

Anyone wishing to donate may sign up in the health room. Students must be 18 or 17 years old with parental permission.



Moms and dads wishing to donate may drop in at their convenience. Have a heart! Give blood! It's a heartwarming experience.

CHS Science Career Lectures

During the month of March the following speakers contributed their time to speak to CHS students as a part of the Career Lecture Program sponsored by the PSO and the CHS Guidance Department:

Dr. John J. Martin, Jr., Psychologist; Mr. William Magill, Physical Therapist; Mr. Donald Smart, Laser Engineer; Mr. Sigfried Stockinger, Environmental Engineer.

Many thanks to these fine speakers for providing their own perspectives on careers in Science.

WCVB news broadcaster Jim Boyd talked last week to students at CHS about a career in television journalism.

Criminal Law Discussed at CHS

Norman Rosenblatt, Dean of the College of Criminal Justice at Northeastern University,was guest lecturer at a senior social studies elective in law recently. Dean Rosenblatt gave an overview of the criminal justice system in the United States to 15 members of Mr. Edward F. Sheehan's law class.

After a 25-minute talk, the Northeastern professor fielded student questions about such topics as bail, arrest and court procedures. He discussed federal crime statistics which showed that there are 1.5 million men on probation in our country at the present time.

CHS Artists Exhibit

Two CHS students were chosen to display their art work in the Youth Art Month show at the Prudential Center for the month of March. They are Jenna Emmons and Allie Redfield. Congratulations!

Masquerade Ball Planned

The Art Club and Literary Magazine at CHS are planning a masquerade ball for April 10. All students at the high school should start thinking of a costume! Prizes will be given!!

Osgood students list important things to remember

When Robin Balch's cousin went off to college last fall, she thought she'd be homesick.

What better way to ease her cousin into college life, the Osgood School teacher figured, than to solicit some sage advice about living away from home. And who would be the best source of that advice, Balch thought, than her students.

"My cousin was the first in our family to go away to college. So I thought I could cheer her up by asking my students if they could suggest things to her - things she should remember while away at college," Balch stated.

Using the resource room computer, the students wrote down their personal messages and selected a computerized picture to accompany their statements. Balch punched them into the computer and compiled a booklet which has been sent to her counsin in Virginia. "It was a good language experience for the kids," she explained. "And it was a lot of fun. Some of their statements are positively hysterical. I can't wait to find out my cousin's reaction.

"It really took some strong logic skills for these kids, because they're so very young," Balch continued, explaining that the project began in October and was just recently completed. "Believe me, these kids really thought about what they wanted to say."

Don't make noise while other people are working. Don't fool around. Don't litter. Make your bed. Be careful with knives and sharp things, don't cut yourself.

John, grade 1

Remember to wear your jacket when it is raining and to wear your socks when you go out walking. Remember to bring extra shoes, in case your other ones get wet. Remember to make your bed and fold your clothes. Remember to vacuum your floor every week.

Keith

You can have parties once a month, but don't be too loud! Don't disturb people when they work. Don't be rude or say swears to your teacher. That's bad luck. Don't let the boys chase you. Don't boss people around.

Tucker, grade 1

Don't write on the walls or your paper with crayons.

Hannah

Don't cross the street. Don't turn the oven on. Don't put your hand on the fireplace when it's on.

Tammy, grade 1

Don't forget to buy clothes but don't spend too much money. Don't forget to buy perfume to smell pretty. Don't forget to clean up your messes.

Melissa, grade 1

Don't stab anyone with a knife or play with knives. Clean and vacuum your room. Don't kick anybody. Put your toys away.

Jim and Tim, grade 1

Don't forget to wash your hands and face. Go to bed at 9:00. Don't forget to buy the soap.

Frank, grade 1

Don't get into fights, just walk away. Stay away from drugs. Don't forget to take a bath every day.

LeShaun, grade 2

Do the best you can. Don't forget to call home or write letters. Stay as clean as you can. Don't get in love with too many boys.

Jennifer, grade 2

Play nicely with your friends. Pick your toys up. Pick your clothes up. Pick up your sweatshirt. Have dinner, roast beef and salad and broccoli. Go to school, don't go back to sleep. Brush your teeth.

Michael

Do a good job. Have breakfast, english muffins. Drink your orange juice. Get dressed, t-shirt and a dress.

Shaun

Don't forget to brush your teeth every morning and night. Go to bed at 50 o'clock. Shut off the lights when you go to bed. Wash your face. Watch TV at 60 o'clock. Wake up at 100 o'clock. Write cursive in school. Sit at your desk.

Beggan in Beechwood

Bob Beggan, candidate for selectman, plans to visit the Beechwood neighborhoods of Cohasset next Saturday, March 21.

Anxious to hear the concerns of the residents in the Beechwood Street, King Street, Doane Street, and Flintlock Ridge Road area and to share his views on the issues, Beggan will be going door to door. He will also be present at the March 25 Bean Supper sponsored by the Beechwood Congregational Church.

Another opportunity for Cohasset residents to meet and talk with Beggan will be on Sunday, March 22 when Russell and Jean Reidy will be hosting a 7:30 p.m. coffee for the candidate in their home at 170 Fairoaks Lane.

Anyone who would like to assist in the campaign to elect Bob Beggan is encouraged to call Eileen Corbett at 383-6467.

Conversation with Bates

Many residents recently discussed the town's current sewer problems with Lot W. Bates, candidate for the sewer commission.

At a coffee held March 15 at Kimball's By The Sea, Bates listened to the concerns of residents. He discussed his concerns about the amended Ward sewer plan, specifically the amount of septage flow allowed into the Hull treatment plant. Candidate Bates told the residents he was concerned that there may not be sufficient capacity to provide for the future of this town.

Bates answered many other questions and concerns voiced by residents at the Sunday afternoon event, including the user costs proposed within the amended Ward plan.

Bates is a candidate for a three-year term on the board of sewer commissioners.

Pratt's capital plan

Burtram J. Pratt, candidate for Cohasset Selectmen, this week pledged that if elected he will work for a new Capital Budget Master Plan to study future town capital spending issues.

"I am convinced that the future welfare of our town demands that we look at a larger and more coherent view of capital spending, rather than continue with the current pattern of making piecemeal decisions", Pratt said. "If we want to maintain the quality of life here in Cohasset which we all now enjoy, we must make some tough choices."

Candidate Pratt, who has held numerous elected and appointed positions in town government over the last thirty years, made his decision to propose a master financial planning effort after studying the town's current capital budgeting dilemma.

"As our Advisory Board and Capital Budget Committee have recently concluded, the town simply cannot fund all of the capital projects now proposed and remain within the taxation limits set by Proposition 2 1/2," he said. "Yet, I believe that the town, in fact, has to consider facing capital expenditures not now under consideration.

"For instance when we see mounting traffic snarls, and a lack of sufficient parking in the Village area we can quickly realize planning and potential re-routing schemes may be needed. What will these strategies cost, and how will they be financed?" he asked.

"What is the town's sewer plan going to require in capital spending over the next decade? What are the fiscal, environmental and social costs of the present commercial and industrial zoning along portions of Route 3A? How can we control our burgeoning legal costs? These and other questions can only be answered by an exhaustive study of the whole picture," he said.

During the years 1955 to 1965 Pratt served as a member and Chairman of the planning Board as Cohasset conducted its first, and to date only, master plan study, which included capital planning. "Our report at the time identified many of the problems of the 50s and 60s that have now become the pressing issues of the 80s and 90s", remarked Pratt.

"I think the real problem is not only lack of coherent planning but also a government structure that prevents rational policy implementation after the planning studies are complete.

"The preservation of the high quality of life found in Cohasset, the planning for present and future needs, and the maintenance of municipal fiscal stability takes strong leadership. As a selectman I intend to take my job as one of our five chief executives very seriously, and to give Cohasset that kind of leadership." he concluded.

Gjesteby's water supply concerns

When the Board of Appeals first voted to give a special permit to the Rt.3A landfill facility, I was a vocal opponent of that action.

Several years later, the Town was offered the right of first refusal on the former James Tyerar landfill facility. But Selectmen declined to petition Town Meeting for permission to purchase the land. Purchase of the now Cohasset Heights property would have been an expeditious way to protect our precious water supply.

With regard to Cohasset Heights, I would like to suggest that no insurance policy of any amount will insure the Citizens of Cohasset of a continuous, pure water supply. Once hazardous wastes leach into the system, once the supply is no longer pure, the Town of Cohasset will cease.

Current information shows there is already a release of hazardous materials into the groundwater. We must make the state enforce The Clean Water Act. We must make the DEQE do its job. We must insist, and we must become unpopular in our demands.

Winners announced for So. Shore Art Center juried show

Over 115 artists submitted works to the South Shore Art Center to be juried into the All New England Exhibit. The jurors, Peter L. Koenig, curator of the Duxbury Art Complex; Marcia Lloyd, professor of art at Massachusetts College of Art; and Richard Ressmyer, director of Brockton Art Museum, selected works "which go beyond solving studio problems to the level of making a picture that holds."

The jurors agreed that there are many artists that have the technical skills but the "ones that are outstanding are the ones that begin to assert individual personal vision."

First prizes were awarded in watercolor to Tony Andrade of Hingham for "St. Thomas Umbrellas"; in oil and acrylic to Mark Sannicandro of Acton for "Red Palms"; in drawing to David Lehr of Cohasset for "Studio"; in graphics to Joyce Gardner Zavorskas for "Palm Tree on a Windy Day, Resisting"; in mixed media to Margaret Tittemore of North Weymouth for "Changes Collage"; and in 3-D to Robert St. Pierre of Duxbury for #652 Mahogony Wood.

The Grumbacher Gold Medallion was awarded to Susan Haas of Hull for her mixed media piece "Short Term Investment." Kimbalee Alemian of Weymouth received an award for excellence in realism for her oil "The Doctor's Scale" and Greg Treleaven of Weymouth received an award for excellence in abstract for his oil "Still Life with Exhaust Pipe." These awards are funded in part by the Arts Lottery Councils of Weymouth, Braintree, Norwell, Abington and Marshfield.

Honorable mention ribbons were awarded to Lois Atherton of Plymouth for her stoneware piece "All Dressed Up"; to Lisbeth Koopman-Wyman of North Weymouth for her pastel "Pharoah's Daughter"; to John Lanza of Hingham for his oil "Backyard"; to Mary Lizotte of Norwell for her watercolor "Bird of Paradise"; to Wilfred Loring of Hingham for his aquatint "Between the Lines"; and to George J. O'Kane Jr. of Quincy for his mixed media "Fantasy (Honeymoon)."

Spring Fling is open to the public through the end of March and gallery hours are Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The South Shore Art Center is supported in part by a grant from the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

President of the Board of Directors of the South Shore Art Center, Claffy Williams, is wearing two hats these days. Artist Claffy Williams is having a show of her acrylic paintings at the Madelaine Carter Gallery, 144 Cottage Street, Brookline, March 14 - April 12. The title of the show is "Nature is Change," and Sculptures by Helen Howe will compliment the theme.

Why play games with your retirement nest egg?

Your IRA is too important to juggle from "hot" investment to "hot" investment.

Opening an IRA at The Hibernia Savings Bank gives you plenty of choices—12 different Term Certificates that guarantee your return for anywhere from 31 days to 60 months. And because we're members of both FDIC and DIFM, your entire IRA is protected from loss—whether it contains $500 or $5 million.

So bring your nest egg to The Hibernia Savings Bank. And the next time the market swoons (or bonds bomb) you'll be sitting pretty—while everyone else is scrambling.

DISCUSSION SERIES — to begin soon, using Harold Kushner's latest book. "When All You Ever Wanted Isn't Enough;" an excellent opportunity to explore some of the wants and needs we've felt inside, and their status at this time in our lives. Under the sponsorship of the Board of Deacons, the study will run for four Sunday evenings and began Sunday, March 15. It opens with a social half-hour, the review and discussion starting promptly at 7:30 and ending at 9.

CHURCH SCHOOL: Come to Sunday School! It's a time to learn about Jesus, do interesting projects, and be with friends you don't see during the week.

Keep Sunday, March 22 in mind! It's the date of the Sunday School's Spring Bake Sale. All parents, please bake something.

ANYONE NEEDING A SPECIAL CALL, by phone or in the home; the Deacons request that you contact the office either for yourself or someone you know that we might better care for one another.

DEVOTIONAL MATERIALS — "The Upper Room" and "Alive Now" are available on the table in Bates Hall. Feel free to pick one up, offer a small donation, and put them to use in this searching season of Lent.

First Parish program

PARISH NEWS:

We note with sadness the death of Edward L. Burnham. Ed was an active lay leader at First Parish for a number of years before moving to Palm Beach, Florida in 1970. In Florida he became chairman of the Board of the First Unitarian Church of West Palm Beach and led the congregation in a major capital fund drive for the construction of a new church building. He was a good friend and able leader who will be deeply missed by those who knew him. If you would like to drop a note to his wife Glen, her address is: Mrs. Edward Burnham, 864 Country Club Drive, North Palm Beach, Florida 33408.

PERSPECTIVES:

The discussion program for women will meet twice during March to conclude the series, at least until fall. Sunday, March 22, 3-5 p.m., Parish House living room, "Generational Differences."

MUSIC NOTES:

Bells are meeting every Sunday at 11:45 a.m. sharp! We will perform on Sunday, March 22. We may be looking for new recruits after that for a May performance. If you're interested, don't be afraid to "chime in."

Choir rehearsal each Wednesday at 7:45 p.m.

St. Stephen's services

LENTEN EVENSON

We continue singing the beautiful melodies of evensong and listen to preachers share the lives of saints gaining us ever more insight into our own lives.

Mary will be the subject of a sermon by The Rev. Mary Glasspool on the day of the Annunciation, Wednesday, March 25, at 7:30 p.m. Elizabeth of Hungary will be the saint spoken of Wednesday, April 1, at 7:30 p.m. by The Rev. John Van Siclen. The preaching series will be brought to a close with a sermon on Martin Luther King by The Rev. Edward Rodman, the Bishop's Missioner to Minority Communities, on Wednesday, April 8, at 7:30 p.m.

Be sure not to miss this stimulating and enlightening series featuring preachers from around the diocese. It is an excellent Lenten preparation for Easter celebration.

KEN CLARK TO SPEAK

The Rev. Ken Clark, from the Cathedral Church of St. John in Albuquerque, NM, a nationally prominent speaker on Christian Education and designer of the church school curriculum we use, will be with us on the evening of Wednesday, April 1, from 7 to 9 p.m. Parents of children as well as teachers are encouraged to come and learn more of how we can best educate our children for faith.

Don't miss this opportunity to talk with one of the Church's leaders on Christian Education.

MEMORIAL FLOWERS FOR EASTER

With Lent just starting, it seems a little early to be talking about Easter, but the Altar Guild must start planning for Easter flowers. We would like to offer the parish an opportunity to share in this by suggesting the joy you would experience in giving a contribution for an Easter lily in memory of a dear one.

We would suggest that you send your contribution and the names in which the flowers are given to the parish office. These names will be included in the Easter bulletin and remembered in prayer on Easter Day.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

The Fellowship Committee will meet Thursday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. to plan the Maundy Thursday Agape meal and an Easter Eve party!

GOOD, CLEAN, FAMILY FUN!!

April 11, the South Shore Men of Harmony will present their 36th Annual Show at Hingham High School at 8 p.m. You'll hear your old favorites and many other old songs arranged for barbershop singing. In addition to the chorus, six quartets will entertain you including the famous Boston Consort which was chosen the best quartet in international competition in 1980.

Call Peter Greenman, a chorus member, at 383-1826 for tickets which are: $7 each for evening, $6 for matinee, and $4 for children and senior citizens for matinee.

Latter-Day church

Is "chastity" a new word in our vocabulary? Not if you are a Latter-day saint.Come Sunday to the family sacrament service at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 379 Gardner St. in Hingham, to hear guest speaker Gailen Vick deliver the High Council message of the month "Living the Law of Chastity." Bro. Vick will be accompanied by Bro. Paul Lauretto who will speak of Resisting Temptation.

The service begins at 9 a.m. and is followed by Bible study and classes for all age groups until noon. The public is always welcome.

Obituaries

William Russell Carroll

William Russell Carroll of Cohasset, formerly of Winchester, died Tuesday, March 3 at the Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home after a long illness. He was 87.

He was born in East Boston but lived most of his life in Winchester and attended Winchester Schools.

He had lived in Cohasset for nine years.

Mr. Carroll worked as a mail carrier in Winchester for forty years.

He was in the U.S. Navy during World War I and served aboard several navy submarines. Later he served in the Massachusetts National Guard and was attached to the 101st Quartermaster Regiment and the 102nd Motor Transport Company. He was an expert marksman, and a firearms instructor.

He was a charter member of Winchester Post 97, Amerian Legion and an honorary life member and the last surviving charter member of Aberjona Post 3719, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He leaves his wife Mary (Fitzgerald) Carroll of Cohasset; two daughters Margaret Morrill of Port Orange, Florida, and Helen Pratt of Cohasset; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren; a brother Vincent Carroll of Winchester, and a sister Helen Harney of Woburn.

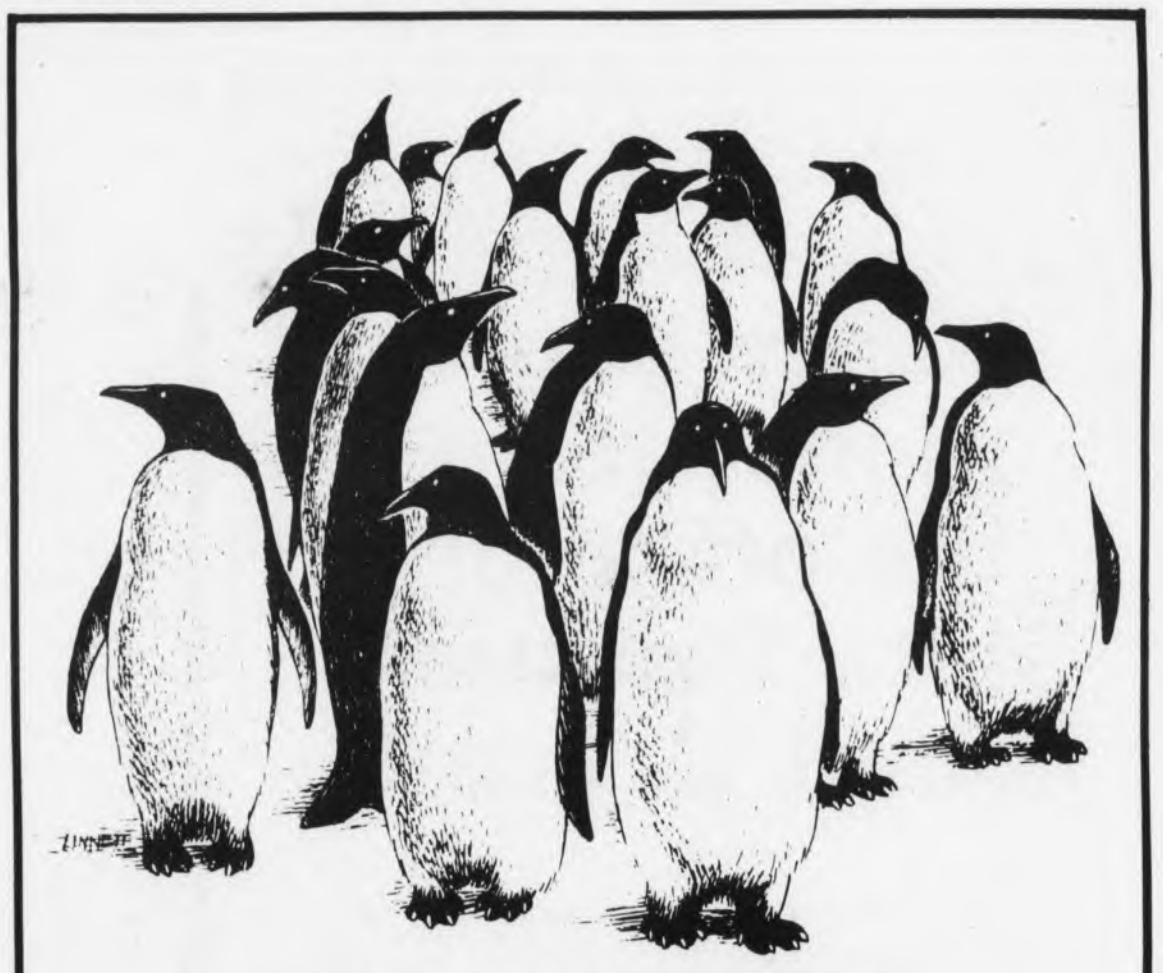
A funeral Mass was celebrated on Saturday, March 7, at Saint Mary's Church, Winchester. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery, Winchester.

Donations in Mr. Carroll's memory may be made to the Social Service League of Cohasset, 16 Highland Avenue.

Gertrude Vozzella

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church for Gertrude J. Vozzella, 84, who died Saturday at South Shore Hospital. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Born in Boston, she lived in Cohasset for 25 years. Miss Vozzella was a bookkeeper for the former Schraft's Candy Co. for 32 years until her retirement in 1954.



She leaves her brother, John Vozzella of Kingston; a sister, Bette White of Cohasset, three nephews and 14 grandnieces and grandnephews. She was the daughter of the late Modestino Vozzella and Clorinda (Nuzzolo) Vozzella.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Architectural historical talk

Members of the Cohasset Historical Society and the town's Chamber of Commerce recently joined forces to hear an illustrated talk at Kimball's-by-the-Sea by John F. Cole, architectural historian and historical preservation consultant.

Mr. Cole, a researcher and restorer of historical properties, has served as advisor to the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, and to a number of local Historical Commissions in Massachusetts. He is a recognized authority on the subjects of preservation covenants and restoration of early New England buildings. His presentation included slides of some of the oldest and best known historical buildings in eastern Massachusetts, starting with the Fairbanks House of the 1600's, and including Cohasset's famed Colonial Meeting House on the Common.

The program also included a brief illustrated survey of the various architectural styles found in Cohasset, from the "First Period" Hezekiah Lincoln House of 1711 and Elisha Doane's enlarged Georgian house now the town's Community Center, to the Greek Revival and Victorian homes found in Cohasset's older residential neighborhoods. Mr. Cole noted the uniquely rich architectural heritage of the town and encouraged efforts to protect its older buildings from destruction or inappropriate alteration.

Mr. Cole's illustrated talk was both interesting and informative, and was enjoyed by members of the Chamber and the Society.

New Friends' Program

Lorraine Smith, social worker at Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home, will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the volunteers of the New Friends' Program of the Social Service League of Cohasset, Monday, March 23, at 9:30 a.m., at the Social Service League, 16 Highland Ave., at St. Stephen's Church.

Smith will speak to the issues arising out of visiting the elderly in a nursing home.

The primary purpose of the New Friends' Program is to offer friendship - through regular one-on-one visits to persons who because of age or for physical reasons do not have the opportunity to meet new people.

If you would like to be a New Friends' volunteer or if you would like to meet a new Friend, please call the Social Service League office at 383-0771.

Cub Scouts message

Saturday, March 21 is the Pinewood Derby Race; Tiger Cubs - 11:30 a.m. Registration, noon race; 8 yr. olds - 1 p.m. registration, 2 p.m. race; 9 year olds - 2 p.m. registration, 3 p.m. race; 10 year olds - 3 p.m. registration, 4 p.m. race.

Volunteers Needed

The Senior Center is in need of volunteers to do light office work mornings or afternoons. If interested please call 383-9112.

Annual arts & crafts exhibit

Letters of invitation and entry forms have been mailed for the 31st Annual Arts and Crafts Exhibit and Sale sponsored by Second Parish, 685 Main St., Hingham, to be held May 5-9 at the church. Former participants have received entry forms but new entrants are welcome to this non-juried show. Space is limited, so early entry is advised.

Art teachers in the local schools will receive information about the junior division of the art show to pass on to their students. Participants in the junior division must be 18 years old or younger.

Cash prizes are awarded in both the senior and junior divisions. The Frank Vining Smith Award, given for a painting or drawing in the senior division, is determined by popular vote. The Josephine A. Miller Awards are selected by a panel of judges for the most outstanding original works in the junior division.

More information or entry forms may be obtained by calling Mrs. Alden Weston, 749-3291 (Senior Div.) or Mrs. Gary Gulden (Junior Div.) 749-2531.

State is looking for local residents

The following Cohasset residents are listed under the state's Unclaimed Money Law which includes bank accounts, insurance proceeds, uncashed gift certificates, payroll checks and customer overpayments that have gone untouched for at least five years.

Since 1980 the state treasurer office has collected more than $100 million in unclaimed accounts and has returned nearly one half of that amount to the rightful owners or legal heirs.

Treasurer Robert Q. Crane noted one important aspect of the Unclaimed Money Law which requires that until claimed, all funds are kept in the state's General Fund where they are invested for the benefit of all residents and taxpayers here in Massachusetts.

ELDER ADVOCATES — A two-day seminar on medical coverage will be held on March 20 and April 3 at the Weymouth Whipple Senior Center on Green St. No. Weymouth. The keynote speaker on March 20, will be Secretary of Elder Affairs Richard Rowland.

The seminar, designed for people from all over the South Shore who work or volunteer their time with senior citizens, will include workshops on selecting nursing homes, sorting through Medicare, Medicaid, and Medigap, or finding homecare services after a patient is released from the hospital.

Lunch will be served and participants will select a workshop to attend in the afternoon. Reservations, 337-9702.

NEWS FROM THE WALKING CLUB — The Cohasset Senior Strutters meet on Tuesdays through Fridays at the Senior Center at 10 a.m. All Cohasset people 50 and older are welcome to join us at 10 a.m.

Each week walking club members ranging in age from 55 to 84 meet and participate in tours throughout the town. "Getting together with friends, meeting new people, and walking around the town is really a lot of fun and doesn't cost a cent," said walking leader Ann Leonard. If you are interested in joining the group call the Senior Center at 383-9112.

Recreation Department report. . .

The Environmental Police will begin a Firearms Safety Course at Wompatuck State Park, beginning Wednesday, March 25, at 6:30 to 9 p.m. The program, designed to certify participants in the safe use of firearms, is offered for those age 15 years and up.

Should you be interested in this free program, please call the Cohasset Recreation office, at 383-6791, for further details.

Dog Obedience

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer three levels of instruction for Dog Obedience Classes to be taught by Laurie Ann Cleveland. All classes will be held at the GAR Hall in Scituate, and will begin Sunday evening, March 29. Beginner class will be at 6:30 p.m., Sundays, Intermediate/Advance Class will be held at 7:30 p.m., Sundays.

The purpose of beginner classes will be to teach novice pet owners basic obedience and responsibile pet ownership. Subjects to be covered are proper use of voice corrections, stay commands, getting the dog to come, heel, etc. Helpful hints on ownership and responsibility will also be included. The obedience will include those exercises beneficial to the pet owner as well as those thinking about eventually showing their dogs in obedience.

The Intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the Recreation Department Beginner class.

For the above classes owners are required to have their dogs equiped with a humane choke chain. The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dog's neck and adding four inches. ABSOLUTELY NO SPIKE COLLARS ARE ALLOWED!!

It is also strongly suggested that the handlers wear comfortable shoes and clothes for this session. For all classes: The fee is $25 per dog for the eight-week, one-hour per week program. Dogs should be a minimum of three months of age.

Aerobic Classes

The Recreation Department is currently offering eight different aerobic classes from three instructors mornings, late afternoons and early evenings each week.

Should you be interested in one or more of the classes, call the Recreation Department at 383-6791. Fees are generally $32 for two classes per week, for eight weeks. Two of the four morning classes are held Saturday mornings and may be registered for independent of week day/evening classes.

New sessions begin every six to eight weeks, and you may register for classes at any point in time. The fee will be pro-rated, based upon the number of classes remaining in the current session. Classes are ideal for all ages, for both men and women.

Participants who do not wish to register for an entire session may pay a $3 fee per class. Instructors are: Margret Watson, Karen Kirkendall and Sandy Wiggans.

Creative Dramatics

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a six-week creative dramatics program for grades K-5, to be held Wednesday afternoons in the Town Hall auditorium, beginning Wednesday, April 8.

Teaching the program, will be Ms. Jeanne Armin, a professional director. Ms. Armin was the Drama Director of the Dana Hall School for 18 years and started teaching creative dramatics in 1954. She has also worked with Isabel Burger, one of the leading exponents of creative dramatics in the United States, and at the children's theatre association in Baltimore, MD. Ms. Armin has directed a number of plays for many organizations, including the Boston Children's Theatre.

The fee for the six-week, one-hour-per-week program will be $15 per participant. Registrations will be accepted by calling 383-6791. A minimum of 10 participants per class will be required.

Furniture Refinishing Course

The Cohasset Recreation Department is in the process of developing a three or four week, two-hour-per-week course in the art of furniture refinishing, to be taught by Ken Sargent, of the Cohasset Country Workshop.

While the program will not begin for a couple of months, we are trying to get an indication of how many people might be interested in this type of program, as well as the kinds of furniture they would most likely be bringing to class to work on. This information will better enable us to develop a program that will meet the needs of all participants.

Should you be at all interested in a program of this nature, please call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for further details and information. Your input will be essential to the development of the program.

The Cohasset Recreation Department/Commission extend their gratitude to Mr. Higgins for plowing the snow from the Elms Meadow Skating Area. The skating area is currently open with good conditions and lighted until 10 p.m.

Author needed for town history

The Hingham Historical Commission, through its History Advisory/Editorial committee, is seeking an author to write a history of the town of Hingham for the period 1865 to 1985. The work will supplement and update the official history of the Town's colonial and agricultural eras. Publication is planned for 1993, the one hundredth anniversary of the earlier history.

"The book is intended to be a lively, readable, interpretive account of Hingham's last one hundred twenty-five years," said Dr. W. Robert Carr, Chairman of the Advisory/Editorial Committee.

The Committee anticipates that the history will explore the profound changes brought by the steamship, the railroad and the automobile. It might examine the experiences of the several ethnic groups to arrive in Hingham during the period and chronicle some of Hingham's lively episodes, its life and times as a Victorian resort, for example, and its wartime experiences as a shipbuilding center and host to the Atlantic Fleet's huge ammunition depot.

The author will have ready access to the extensive, professionally catalogued Town archives and to a developing corpus of oral histories, as well as a large photographic collection and the resources of the Town's historical society.

Those interested in being considered as author need not be professional historians, but should have some familiarity with the period and preferably with Hingham or the South Shore. Remuneration will be arranged. Prospective authors are invited to submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and samples of any published writing by May 1, 1987 to Dr. W. Robert Carr, Chair, Editorial/Advisory Committee, 14 Emerald Street, Hingham, MA 02043.

If need be, Stop & Shop will limit store hours

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

"We'll have to live with it." That's Stop and Shop's reply to a possible forced limitation of their operating hours in Cohasset.

If a proposed bylaw is passed by town meeting next month, the super Stop and Shop at the corner of Rte. 3A and Sohier Street will be limited to a 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. operation. They intended to be open 24 hours, six days a week.

"Let me say, it won't be okay with us if we are forced to limit our hours there," Stop and Shop spokesman James McWeeney stated. "We will try to go to town meeting and give our point of view. We think these hours will be hurting our operation, and our ability to provide shopping convenience to our customers. We believe the town will be losing more than they gain.

"It certainly seems unnecessary to limit our hours before they see what we'll be doing there," he continued.

Stop and Shop currently has 70 stores open 24 hours, and 33 super Stop and Shops, similar to the one to be located at the corner of Sohier Street and Rte. 3A. According to McWeeney, the organization has never received a noise complaint about the 24-hour operations, and has never been forced to limit the hours because of neighborhood complaints.

"We have one super store in Dedham that is only open until 11 but that's because there was an ordinance in effect before we ever moved there," he continued. "It's too bad, because we are not giving our customers in that area the convenience we give our customers everywhere else."

The reason for the 24-hour operation, McWeeney stated, "is basically for the convenience of our customers. But we have found with the 24-hour business, there is also the advantage of reduced vandalism in the area. Neighborhoods in the area of our 24-hour stores have found it to be a real positive because it doesn't attract vandalism."

There are several neighborhoods in Cohasset opposed to the idea of a 24-hour grocery store. Residents from King Street, Sohier Street, Fair Oaks Lane and Forest

Public hearing slated March 30 on Cohasset Heights

Is it closed? Is it open? What's the word regarding the Cohasset Heights landfill?

The embattled commercial dump on Crocker Lane is open for business... for now.

Confusion reigned last week amid conflicting reports about the state of operations at Cohasset Heights. Late Tuesday afternoon, March 17, the landfill was ordered shut down by the Cohasset Board of Health. It was. The Cohasset Mariner reported Thursday, March 19, Cohasset Heights escaped the shutdown threat. It did.

Cohasset health agent Joseph Godzik explained, "At 3 p.m., Tuesday, I brought them (Cohasset Heights) an order to close, but for all practical purposes, they were finished for the day anyway."

The order to close, he said, was based on a statement by the board's attorney, Michael Leon, that he had not received full information regarding Browning-Ferris' $10 million insurance policy, which covers the dump, by the deadline at 4 p.m. Monday.

Leon's FAX machine was broken Tuesday, so he was not able to receive the rest of the information he had asked for, from Antone Moehrke, counsel for Cohasset Heights. That information arrived Wednesday morning, and C.H. Ltd. was open for business and in operation.

Moehrke explained, the insurance information came in at the last minute, because he was dealing with a company based in Texas, which serves a customer of the landfill he represents. "They are not associated with Cohasset Heights, and they don't report to me."

Leon will review the policy and will render his opinion at a public hearing March 30.

At that hearing, the health board will seek to change the site assignment by raising the tipping fee to $2 per ton, from the present fifty-cent fee. An average of 299 tons of trash enters the Cohasset Heights landfill every day.

The board also will consider seeking a second engineering opinion, regarding the findings of well tests at the landfill, by Camp Dresser and McKee. And the spotter situation will be addressed; the board will

Selectmen's vote against sewers at 'inopportune time'

The selectmen's anti-sewer vote last week brought the Ward plan controversy bubbling to the surface at what one sewer commissioner called "a most inopportune time."

Charles DeSantis, chairman of the sewer commission commented, "It was not well thought out; the board of selectmen had previously voted, wastewater is the town's number one problem.

"If this plan doesn't go forward," he warned, "we are going to have a problem; there will be no sewering in Cohasset. The federal program has little time left. We are in the midst of what we hope are the final stages of negotiating a final agreement with Hull."

DeSantis and his colleagues are working furiously with the Hull sewer commissioners to iron out agreements on things such as: How to determine the chargeable flow for Cohasset; what type of flow will be allowed; location of facilities; and whether Hull will accept septage from septic tanks.

"The selectmen's vote was of inappropriate timing, to say the least," he commented, "but what counts, is what happens at town meeting."

While the selectmen's vote means they will not recommend the Ward plan at town meeting April 4, board members concede the proposal will most likely receive voter approval.

DeSantis is hopeful. "I don't know how many town meetings this plan has seen in the past four or five years," he said, "but it has been overwhelmingly supported in the past; I expect it to be supported at town meeting again."

Selectman James Gallagher will not count himself in the majority, if the plan does win approval.

"I have nothing against the sewer commission," Gallagher noted. "They've worked hard, and I expect this plan to be accepted, but not with my blessing.

"In the last two years I've taken tours of six sewer plants in the area," he said. "Everyone working in the sewer plants was working efficiently and they don't smell.

No info prompts 'nay' on police station plans

For lack of information, the advisory committee decided Tuesday, it will recommend against building an addition to the Police/Fire station on Elm Street.

While the million-dollar project was ranked as the town's number three budget priority, the advisory committee said it had not been supplied with enough information about the project to feel comfortable recommending the proposal's passage.

"If we don't get the information we need, we should vote not to recommend the proposal, rather than not take action," committee member Martin Corry commented.

His colleague Jane Goedecke queried whether the committee ought to have provided an information form, and had those who made budget proposals fill them out.

"If you go to the trouble of proposing an article," argued fellow member Jill O'Donnell, "you should be able to supply the board with the information it needs to make a decision."

Article 34 simply requests the town to provide funds for the purposes of building an addition to the station, for making "certain renovations and improvements" to the existing structure, and for "purchasing certain furnishings and equipment" for the station. The proposal also calls for voters to pay the engineering costs of the proposed project.

In other activity related to the April 4 town meeting warrant, Jeanne Gormley of 44 Beach Street addressed the committee regarding a zoning bylaw amendment.

Article 21 seeks to divide Cohasset into eight zoning

Cohasset's week . . .

Athletic decision lamented

The school committee lamented a decision by the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA), which keeps vocational school student Matthew Silvia from participating in sports at C.H.S.

The MIAA rejected Cohasset's appeal on behalf of the Cohasset youngster, who wishes to play football, wrestling and track at Cohasset; those sports are not offered at his school.

Committee chairman Joseph Nedrow said he believes the MIAA's decision is unfair, because smaller schools which utilize regional facilities for vocational programs, as Cohasset does, are penalized, while larger schools benefit.

Supt. Stephen Hart said the school committee has two options to try to hurdle the barrier.

"We could work out some provision," he suggested, "whereby students at a trade or alternative school would be under the jurisdiction of the Cohasset principal, and would be trying to earn a diploma from Cohasset High School.

"Otherwise," he added, "we could request for a rule change. I don't know if they'd be willing to rewrite the rule, but we could propose it to the MIAA.

Spring raffle winners

The winner of the "First Day of Spring" Raffle for a gift certificate worth $250 at Charlotte Hair, Etc. was drawn by South Shore Art Center President Claffy Williams assisted by Charlotte Phinney, owner of the Stagecoach Way salon, Friday.

The lucky winner was Mary Keating of James Lane, Cohasset.

The Raffle was initiated by Charlotte's to benefit the Art Center's Capital Campaign for their new expanded center. Over the course of six weeks, 117 chances were sold for a total contribution to the Campaign of $585.

Keating had purchased a total of four chances because she felt the Art Center project was a deserving one. She was thrilled to have won.

The Art Center greatly appreciates the support of all who purchased Raffle tickets.

Candidates' Night March 26

The Cohasset League of Women Voters wishes to remind everyone that their annual Candidates' Night is scheduled for Thursday, March 26 at 7:45 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Don't miss this opportunity to learn the facts. Refreshments will be served. For additional information, contact Janice Crowley at 383-0120 or Patti McCarthy at 383-9783.

Anyone want a barn?

The barn at the rear of the Community Center is scheduled for demolition April 21. If anyone is interested in having it, they may call the Center at 383-0088 Monday through Friday to make arrangements.

Absentee ballots available

Absentee ballots will be available for the April 11 election at the town clerk's office at town hall.

The ballots will be available from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Thursdays. Fridays, the ballots will be available from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The last day to obtain absentee ballots for the local election will be Friday, April 10 at noon.

Nantasket Library assets

The town recently received a check totaling $34,879 for the final distribution of the assets of the former Nantasket Library.

According to Marie Pattyson, president of the Nantasket Library, Inc., the attorney general determined that the money must be used for library purposes. Article 50 of the town warrant proposes the acceptance of this money for library services provided by the Paul Pratt library.

Minot's Ledge Light repairs

As part of the planned renovation to Minot's Ledge Light, a rotating mechanism from the revolving lens will be removed from the lighthouse. The Coast Guard is planning to license the mechanism to any interested group that will maintain it for public display.

A Coast Guard spokesman inquired whether selectmen or any historic-minded group in town would be interested in obtaining the rotating mechanism. According to the spokesman, if any group is interested in obtaining the equipment, they should outline the nature of the organization, where the item will be displayed and what will be done with it.

Renovation plans include removing crumbling granite at the lighthouse and replacing it with the same type and color granite. The metal work of the light cupola will be sandblasted and repainted. The project will restore the light to its original appearance.

Vo-Tech assessments

The town of Cohasset will pay $36,292 for the fiscal year 1988 for its membership in the South Shore Regional School District. The first tuition payment which will allow Cohasset students to attend the vocational high school will be $9,073 which is due in August.

School Committee accepts 6.5 percent budget hike

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The school committee voted Thursday, to accept a compromise budget proposal, which calls for a 6.5 percent increase for fiscal year 1988.

Voters will be asked to approve $4,783,911 for the school system's annual expenses, up $291,785 from the current $4,492,126 budget.

The school dept. originally sought a budget of $4,855,710 in operating funds for FY 1988, an eight percent jump. But the advisory committee said that budget figure was about $50,000 too high, and together they hammered out the 6.5 percent compromise.

Supt. Stephen Hart explained, the largest area of increase was instruction. The total budget increase reflects a contracted salary increase of 6.6 percent, plus step increases of about five percent for 20 percent of the staff. The school dept. plans to spend $3,524,607 on instruction, a $224,188 gain from current expenditures. Instruction expenses represent 73 percent of the total budget.

"We have had to make adjustments in many areas," Hart said of the compromise, "but it will not force reductions in staff; that would have had a serious impact on our programs here.

"Staffing will be comparable" to the current level, he explained. Adjustments, however, included an actual loss of one teaching spot, because the school dept. will not refill a position vacated by an industrial arts teacher who went on leave. Other teachers will pick up classes, resulting in "one-fifth more teacher."

Committee member Chris Ford noted, there have been "grumblings in town among town employees," because they are getting a three percent raise, while the teachers are slated for a 6.5 percent increase.

"The teachers in Cohasset are at the bottom compared to other similar school districts," he added, "and have been underpaid for their level of production in this school system for some time. We have a way to go to catch up."

Hart cited "a sharp increase for outer district tuition costs," as another major contributor to the budget increase. If the budget is passed at town meeting, $153,334 will be spent on programs with other systems, an increase of $25,310.

"I feel okay about the overall program," the superintendent commented, "but we have had to cut in support areas, such as teaching supplies, to reach the 6.5 percent compromise."

Chairman Joseph Nedrow said the school committee "will continue to fight for our share of what's right. Obviously, the compromise was realistic and we got our fair share.

In addition to the annual school budget, the voters of Cohasset will be asked to vote on three school-related capital outlay requests. The first is for $80,000 for the purchase of three school buses, two standard 65-passenger vehicles, and one 9-seater.

The school dept. also reached a compromise with the advisory committee regarding two other warrant articles.

The original requests were reduced by half, by agreement to spread the work over two years.

Voters will be asked to approve $100,000 for FY 1988, for the replacement and repair of the window-wall at the front sections of the two classroom wings of the senior high school.

The dept. also will request $150,000 to renovate seven science laboratories at the junior/senior high school.

Ninety percent of Cohasset students scored higher on tests

The school committee hailed Cohasset's scores, as results of the state's new basic skills testing program were announced Thursday.

Ninety percent or more of Cohasset's third, sixth and ninth graders scored higher than the state standard score of 70, in the areas of reading, mathematics and writing.

Supt. Stephen Hart said the scores were consistent with previous test scores, including those on the recent state assessment tests, which were used to measure the strengths and weaknesses of Cohasset's curriculum.

Initially, Cohasset had developed its own basic skills testing program, but with the advent of the state education reform act, the state dept. of education has taken a greater role in testing and evaluating Massachusetts' students and schools.

Cohasset's scores were compared with those of other school systems rated comparative to Cohasset by the state.

Of the 79 Cohasset third grade students tested, including 12 special education students, 99 percent scored better than 70 in all three categories.

Comparable schools ranged from 94 to 99 percent in reading, 95 to 99 percent in math, and 93 to 100 percent in writing.

No Cohasset third graders were exempted from the test.

Of 78 Cohasset sixth graders tested, including four special education students, 96 percent scored better than 70 in reading, 100 percent scored better than 70 in math, and 99 percent scored better than 70 in writing.

Comparable schools ranged from 93 to 100 percent in reading, 92 to 100 percent in math and 91 to 100 percent in writing.

Six Cohasset sixth graders were exempted from the test, including five special education students and one bilingual student.

Of 72 Cohasset ninth grade students tested, 90 percent scored better than 70 in reading, 97 percent scored better than 70 in math, and 94 percent scored better than 70 in writing.

Comparable schools ranged from 90 to 100 percent in reading, 89 to 100 percent in math and 85 to 98 percent in writing.

All six of Cohasset's special education ninth graders were exempted from the test.

Next year, the state is expected to establish a passing score for the basic skills test.

With regard to the assessment tests, which gauged students' reading, math and science skills, social studies will be added, making the test more civic oriented.

Hart said he was pleased with the successful percentage rates of students who scored above standard on the basic skills test, but indicated both tests showed the need for an improved junior high school reading program.

Such a program has been provided for in the school budget Cohasset voters will act on at town meeting April 4.

Financial aid forms available at CHS

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, along with the majority of other state legislators voted for the increase of grants and scholarships for Massachusetts worthy students;the funds have been appropriated at a higher level than ever before.

Trained counselors will answer questions about completing applications and about various financial aid programs. The Center is open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday; and 2 to 6 p.m., Sunday (October through May).

Massachusetts residents applying for aid should complete the Massachusetts Financial Aid Form (MFAF). This form is available from high school guidance and college financial aid offices as well as the Higher Education Information Center's office at the Boston Public Library, 666 Boylston Street, Boston.

A brochure describing various financial aid sources for Massachusetts residents is available free of charge from the Higher Education Information Center upon request: 1-800-442-1171. Rep. Murray has distributed them to town libraries in her district; Cohasset, Hingham and Hull.

Ward sewer plan bubbles to the surface. . .

"I think we should have gone with the Metcalf and Eddy plan," he said, "We could have had our own site, connected our old plant and run a pipe along the railroad right-of-way; we could have connected all of Cohasset. The outflow pipe was bought and we were ready to go.

"I don't want to borrow all that money and go in this direction," Gallagher said.

"I have nothing against connecting to Hull," he noted, " but I think it will be costly to go this way. The amount of cost will increase, increase, increase. It will be an economic disaster."

DeSantis disagrees. "It would be cheaper to send our sewerage to the moon, than to build another plant; it would cost $13 million to $15 million to build today, then another $400,000 to run every year.

"By building pumping stations instead of a plant, we'll bring it down to a couple million dollars," he explained. "The economics of it is overwhelming.

"It's rare when you get the opportunity where you can have a plan that benefits both towns," DeSantis said. "That's why I'm confident we can wrap this thing up."

Gallagher argued the sewer commission has wasted hundreds of thousands of dollars by waiting as long as it has to get to get the town sewered.

"I appreciate the patience and determination the people of Cohasset have shown," DeSantis said. "It has been a difficult ordeal, but now we are in the final stages.

"I assure you," he added, "the sewer commission will sign a document favorable to the people of Cohasset and Hull."

Public hearing on landfill scheduled for March 30

consider replacing Paul Barry, one of the landfill's co-owners, with a special agent to the board of health.

Public opposition to the landfill has reached a fever pitch lately, as residents, concerned about the well-being of the town's water supply at nearby Lily Pond, have packed recent health board meetings, and have introduced a warrant article calling for a shut-down of Cohasset Heights.

"I think the town has focussed a lot of attention on this issue over the past four years," Moehrke noted. "A lot of money has been invested, testing the water to determine the effects on Lily Pond.

"Over the passage of four years, with all the time and money that has been spent, no evidence, as far as any professional engineer was concerned, that Lily Pond has been polluted.

"There are people who are not professionals, who feel there is evidence," he chided; "the town has spent a tremendous amount of reserves. If they want to hire new engineers, they can spend more money. What is the benefit to the town of these expenditures? They've hired two special counsels...

"I wonder how much they've spent in total?" he mused. I think when the townspeople find out how much they have spent, and how little they've gotten in results, they will be embarrassed."

Moehrke explained, "I do not mean to suggest this is not a legitimate concern; anytime you have a landfill in the vicinity of a water supply, it's a legitimate concern. But nothing has been found."

With regard to the health board's proposed change of site assignment, Moehrke commented, "It is by no means clear to me that that is lawful. The lawfulness of increasing the tipping fee is subject to question.

districts: Residential A, B and C; waterfront business; downtown/village business; highway business; light industry; and official and open space. In addition, there are two overlay districts: The flood plain and watershed district; and the water resource district.

Gormley told the committee she attended a planning board hearing March 18, and asked to see two overlay maps and the base map of the town of Cohasset.

"The planning board had no overlay maps to show," she explained, and the zoning district map, "which has had one revision since 1969, limited to adding the official and open space district in one area only, contains errors and omissions and certainly should not be used as a base map under the two overlay districts described in Article 21."

In a letter she hand-delivered to the committee, she noted, the town also continues to use the "old, flawed flood plain and watershed protection district map, last revised in 1976."

Gormley is particularly upset that these maps depict her property area at spring tide. "The shoreline of Little Harbor is not shown," she said, "It eliminates a lot of marshland, which is most of my property."

The two-foot contour and FEMA maps, she argued, are more accurate depictions of the town, and should be used instead of the others.

"Until a time when we can see accurate overlay maps that fit properly over an accurate, high-standard base map of the town of Cohasset, I believe we should not be asked to vote on Article 21," she said.

Several committee members asked her, "What difference does it make?"

Gormley noted, "It could cause problems later, if the town decides to redo its property assessment map."

Committee chairman Fred Koed agreed, adding, "If she wanted to put in a lawn, but the map shows it would be within Little Harbor, she would have to go for a variance."

Koed urged Gormley to offer a citizens' petition or resolution from the floor of town meeting, stipulating the town use the two-foot contour and FEMA maps, instead of the charts used currently.

"If we're paying for overlays based on those other maps," Koed commented, "we are in trouble."

In other actions, the advisory committee voted not to recommend the town to transfer $600 to supplement the budgetary account entitled "Celebrations," which would be used primarily to reimburse the town's new VFW post for Memorial Day expenses.

For the second consecutive year, the committee voted against recommending the town spend funds to improve a drainage system on Beechwood Street.

"There are many pieces of land in town with the same situation," noted member William Lean. "Things in the past were done in a relaxed manner, but now, there's the threat of legal action."

In another land-related issue, Lean was the lone dissenter in the committee's decision to accept the gift of a parcel of land at 340 Beechwood Street near Bound Brook. The land was donated from the estates of M. Wesley Parker, Nathan O. Parker and Philip B. Parker in memory of the youngest brother of their clan, David Parker, whose name is inscribed on a WWII memorial plaque at the site.

Lean argued, acceptance of the land means the town will incur the expenses of its upkeep "forever more."

Koed retorted, the town might end up with the land by eminent domain otherwise, through the owners' non-payment of taxes on the parcel. By agreement with the selectmen, he added, any back-taxes would be paid before the town accepts the land.

In another land-related warrant article, the committee decided to seek more information from the board of health, regarding expenditures for engineering plans and specifications with respect to a drainage system to lower the water table and collect the surface waters in the "Hillside" area of Cohasset.

Committee member Arne Gjesteby said this is "bad timing" for the proposal, because it coincides with plans for sewering the area.

"Why spend the money to do the study when sewering is planned to go in?" his colleague Betsy Millard agreed.

Koed noted, the water commission has expressed reservations about Article 17. The committee will continue to pursue information on the proposal.

The committee also will seek insight into plans for a harbor grid project. Harbormaster Harry Ritter has requested $5,000 to obtain a grid of the harbor "for the purpose of assisting the harbormaster in locating and relocating moorings after dredging."

Finally, the committee will investigate a request by the board of health for $40,000 to $100,000 to supplement the town's usual annual expenditure of $40,000 for the seeding and capping of a portion of the Cedar Street landfill.

"There's no way I would vote for that article," Lean commented. "I want to find out why they're asking for this."

Pack 38 Cub Scouts

Pack 38 Cub Scouts enjoyed the "Magic of Mage" at their annual Blue and Gold Dinner. The magician mystified the Cubs with his many tricks and illusions. At the dinner cub master Jefff Forsdick presented those scouts who advanced in rank their badges. Each cub den performed a skit.

The Pinewood Derby Race was held March 23 at the Deer Hill School. Nine Tiger cubs participated including first place winner Eric Wenmack, second place Patrick Leahy and third place Tim Herzog. Other Tiger cubs racing were: Robert Moody, Patrick Hurley, Brian Walsh, Arron Sawchuk, James Parzyk and Tom Leahy.

The 8 year old cub scout winners are: first place Matthew Conley; second place David Hansen and third place Peter O'Leary.

The 9 year old cub scout winners: first place Chip Moore, second place Greg Schultz and third place Ryan Sawchuk.

The 10 year old winners are: first place Jay Nothnagle second place Scott Herzog; third place David Nothnagle.

The run-off for the overall first place winners was Chip Moore.

Those cub scouts (8 year 10 year) who won first and second places will enter the District Pinewood Derby. It will be held on April 4 in Rockland. (Tiger Cubs are not included they have to be in Cub Scouts to race at District.)

The next pack meeting will be April 29 at the Deer Hill School from 7 to 8 p.m. There will be a cross-over ceremony for the scouts advancing to the next level. The Bears will be officially Webelos. The Weblos will be officially Boy Scouts.

Avenue, have signed a petition which will amend the bylaws of the town to prohibit 24-hour retail businesses.

Kevin O'Donnell of 196 Fair Oaks Lane, has supported the proposed bylaw amendment. "As I understand it, the purpose of the bylaw will be to retain the residential characteristics of this town. A 24-hour major food operation is not what residential neighborhoods are all about. The bylaw would curtail this type of activity in residential areas of town," he commented.

O'Donnell has lived on Fair Oaks Lane for the past two years. Although at the time he was unaware of the proposed food store, he quickly became immersed in the subject. "It's a concern," he admitted. "We were so enthralled with the beauty of Cohasset. We never thought this town would allow its commercial area to degrade the character of the town. This is something that is not in keeping with Cohasset's image."

The advisory committee last week voted to support the bylaw amendment. Article 58 in the town meeting warrant will request that voters amend the bylaw by adding a new section which prohibits the sale of retail between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

No food or alcohol may be sold during those hours unless it is consumed on the premises, thus excluding restaurants from the amendment. The bylaw change also prohibits the delivery of retail merchandise between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., again excluding any food or alcohol consumed on the premises. A $50 daily fine will be levied against violators.

Last year, town meeting supported a similar bylaw amendment, but it failed to gain approval from the attorney general. According to the state official, the wording of the bylaw was too broad and encompassed many types of businesses already in operation in Cohasset.

This year, with the help of selectman Diane Sullivan and assistance from town counsel, the proposed amendment refers specifically to the public safety portion of the general bylaws, regarding the operation of grocery stores.

Fair Oaks resident O'Donnell said the lighting, as well as the noise from late night deliveries,would affect his neighborhood off Sohier Street. "Who needs all that clatter?" he asked. "This bylaw will affect every food store in town, but will not restrain coffee shops or restaurants. It will affect only those businesses that have licenses to sell food to be taken off their premises."

Stop and Shop spokesman McWeeney explained, "We have done marketing surveys in this area, and a super store was what everyone wanted to see in this building. Before we ever decided to go to Cohasset with a super store, our location department completed tests for access, competition and demographics. Our surveys indicated that we will have a very successful store in Cohasset.

"It"s common for people to be concerned," he continued. "But we are trying to be good neighbors and we like to know if there is a problem so we can respond. We intend to live very peacefully in Cohasset - to make life easy for everyone."

McWeeney said the super grocery store should be opened for business by the end of this year.

around town

☐ The Cohasset Girl Scouts had a special time last week, they were part of the group that joined together to say the Girl Scout Promise. The Promise Circle spanned the globe and was planned to commemorate the 75th Anniversary of Girl Scouting in the USA. Our Cohasset Scouts donned their uniforms and gathered on the Common, where they presented Gifts of Service to the community and presented a short program. Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (a long-standing Girl Scout in Cohasset) was a special guest. At 4 p.m. everyone joined in saying the Girl Scout Promise, and following the program, anniversary cake was served. A grand celebration indeed!

☐ Congratulations to Joseph E. Whelan, who recently received his BA in Political Science from Boston University.

☐ Two Cohasset fellas sure had a super time during their February vacation, Matthew Lombardy and Curt Ludlow. Matthew, son of Michael and Barbara Lombardy, Windy Hill Rd., was aboard the Cape Henlopeen as a crew member of the CoastGuard. Curt Ludlow, son of Jeffrey and Marcia Ludlow of Juniper Rise was aboard the Point Bonita. Both vessels are involved with search and rescue as well as law enforcement off the coast of New England. During Matthew's first night on board, the Henlopen was called out to George's Bank to assist a fishing boat that had lost its engines. He was at the helm during part of the operation. Matthew and Curt took part in this exercise as required training for advancement in the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets. Both of them are working toward an E-3 rating in the Naval Cadet program, and can also use this experience if they join the Navy, Marines or Coast Guard. Training in the US Naval Sea Cadets is also a plus when applying to any of the military colleges.

☐ Here's a ski update on Peter Lawrence. Peter, from Golden Colorado, is the son of Paul and Joan Lawrence and is the grandson of two of Cohasset's favorite couples Dutchie and Adelle Lawrence and Bruce and Mary Edmonds. Peter is racing with the USSA and is a J3. He has qualified to race in the Junior Olympics at Winter Park, Colorado, at the end of March. Peter took 4th place in the slalom and a 5th place in the giant slalom at Vail, Colorado. He also placed first in the downhill at Sunlight. We wish him luck as he continues his quest for the gold, and hope to hear how he does at the end of the month.

☐ There was a poster contest held recently, sponsored by the Eastern Edison Company. The theme of the contest was "efficient use of electricity. "Cohasset had a strong showing: Amie Theirault placed first in the grades K-3 category; Meka-Mari Laugelle placed second in the grades 4-6 category; Two students from the Joseph Osgood school received honorable mention, Andrea Mercurio and Katie Mediner; and three from Deer Hill got regional honorable mention, Nathan Fiore, Doug Schultz and Merri Hansen. Good effort kids!

☐ Steven Pozatek is a mighty happy fella these days, he just heard that he has been accepted to Milton Academy next year. Steve is the son of Zig and Ellie Pozatek, and is a student at Derby this year.

☐ We were up at the Cohasset Winter Garden last weekend, and it sure was a sad sight to see . . . to see a bunch of boats where there used to be boys skating was somethingthat Noone wanted to happen, its too bad that someone can't form an insurance agency to take on such places . . . or, better still, make it impossible to sue everyone for every little thing that goes wrong! In any case, we understand that plans are underway to build a new rink, here's hoping that it is a success. It's hard to imagine what our boys will do without one!

Peg Aiken joined in the festivities and food last week at the Senior Center's annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon held at the Unitarian Parish House.

Candidates Corner. . .

Beggan cites top issues

Aspiring candidate for selectman, Bob Beggan, spent an evening last week talking to voters about their issue concerns. When asked to list the top three issues in this year's campaign, Beggan included the Cohasset Heights Landfill, the town sewerage question and zoning of 3A. Regarding the landfill issue, Beggan pledged to "actively seek to revoke the existing permit" noting his concern that "what has happened in Carver might happen here as well." When asked about the sewerage issue, Beggan said "I am a candidate willing to carry out the mandate of the voters" referring to the Ward Plan which would utilize the Hull facility to tie in the Hillside and Veteran's areas of town. In an effort to better understand the Inter Municipal Agreement Beggan toured the Hull plant last Thursday with superintendant Norm Rodgers. Beggan's views on the zoning of 3A was for "limited, tasteful growth along the route."

Voters in the Windy Hill, Forest Ave., and Jerusalem Rd. neighborhoods of Cohasset will have an opportunity to meet the candidate next Saturday March 28th when he walks the area.

Questions regarding the candidate and upcoming coffees may be directed to Eileen Corbett 383-6467.

Guild talks about Ward Plan

Edward M. "Ted" Guild, candidate for re-election to the Sewer Commission, said at a campaign coffee held Monday at Jim and Grace Donohue's home that he's pledged himself to the completion of the Ward Plan.

By far the costliest project in Cohasset's history, the Ward Plan, however, is affordable in terms of the Town's share of cost ($1,450,000), and will be accomplished within the constraints of Proposition 2 1/2. While correcting the town's discharge permit violation, the Ward Plan will also protect the public health, solve the waste water disposal problems in the most densely populated areas (Hillside, Veterans', Cushing Road, Smith Place, and Hull Street), and provide financial assistance to solve waste water problems outside of the central sewer service area.

Guild has served on the Sewer Commission for the past four years and has worked diligently toward these goals. He is familiar with the engineering aspects of this project and has the experience to see the job completed.

He explained to those attending the coffee the advantages of small diameter sewers which will be utilized in the Ward Plan: each homeowner will save in excess of $1,000 in upfront costs; the town will save money because the smaller diameter pipe is easier to lay; and the fact that there are more than 500 EPA approved small diameter systems throughout the country, including other New England states demonstrates their suitability.

Guild told the group, "We're on the verge of getting the job done," and asked for their vote so he can see the project through.

Gifted-talented group schedules spring conference

MA/AIP has scheduled its spring conferences for April 4. MA/AIP is composed of parents and educators who share a concern for appropriate educational opportunities for gifted and talented children. They collaborate with State agencies as well as colleges and universities. Their conferences afford the opportunity for students, parents and professionals to share experiences and to discuss current issues and practices. Why bother?

Last week, selectmen voted not to recommend that town meeting approve the amended Ward sewer plan. The vote last week was two against one, with one selectman absent from the discussion.

As we approach our annual town election, it may be too little too late, but once again we call your attention to the problems incurred by the loss of one selectman from the five-member board. A split vote has not been a frequent occurrence,but it did happen enough to hamper decisions on important issues. And, in fact, whenever a discussion of the Ward plan and related sewer issues were brought before the four-member board, a vote typically resulted in a two-two tie, and thus no decision was reached.

This was not a weekly occurrence, and therefore many may argue that a four-member board clearly did not cause the ruination of our town. That may be true, but there were enough instances of a stalled four-member board to warrrant re-examination of the problem should it arise in the future.

Perhaps a timetable could be established, and if a selectmen resigns more than one year before the expiration of his term, a special election would be mandatory. It seems the cost and incovenience of a special election may outweigh the dilemmas caused by non action on controversial and vital issues to the community.

Last week's vote by the board not to recommend the amended Ward plan clearly is not of monumental consequence to the town or town meeting. In fact, one may question the significance and need of such a vote.

It is the bylaw of the town requiring that selectmen review each article submitted to the warrant, and issue their collective opinion. But how necessary is such a vote?

Even selectman James Gallagher admitted this week their vote is simply a recommendation, and the town meeting should be fully aware it carries no weight. Town meeting, as its independent voice has repeatedly stated, often decides issues in clear opposition to the recommendation of selectmen and the advisory committee.

The advisory committee, whose primary responsibility is to stand guard over the town's operating budget, must make its knowledgeable recommendations based on financial acuity, knowing precisely how each vote will affect our tax dollars.

Selectmen cast their votes as any resident does, based on a subjective, informed opinion. Their vote should carry as much authority and weight as any other town voter - no more and no less.

Voters look upon their elected officials as their voice in town, state and national government. Their decisions should reflect as closely as possible, the thoughts and feelings of their constituency.

Although selectmen have every right to express their opinions about the issues facing their community, requiring their recommendation is unnecessary and archaic. Voters are knowledgeable and informed today - - they simply don't require any form of hand-holding to successfully complete a town meeting warrant.

Sunshine and warm temperatures brings out flowers and children. Rebecca Jenkins gladly helps clean the erasers at the Osgood School — a welcomed chore on a pretty spring day. (Alan Chapman)

It will be too late if Lily Pond is found polluted

To the Editor:

In last week's issue of the Cohasset Mariner, Cohasset Heights Landfill's attorney Anton Moehrke states that Cohasset Heights Limited's "scrutiny should be based on ability to make proper and sound judgement." How can this be done when the Board of Health must vote twice to close the landfill before his office will produce a copy of a liability insurance policy which he himself had promised months ago. "The policy," he states in the article, "is from a company based in Houston for a customer of the landfill. They are not associated with Cohasset Heights Limited and they don't report to me." This statement would make one wonder how responsive the policy would be to a problem at Cohasset Heights Limited if it is this hard to merely get a copy of the policy.

Earlier the Board of Health voted to shut the landfill in order to have the second round of test results produced after weeks of delay. Camp, Dresser and McGee interpret those results and more recent tests to find they were not collected properly in accordance with EPA protocol and the results are eratic.

Attorney Moehrke asks what is the result of the money the Town has spent and what do we have to show for it? Maybe John and Paul Barry should be asking those questions to GHR Engineers.

Attorney Moehrke's confidence that the engineering tests show that Cohasset Heights Landfill is not polluting the town water supply may be based on the present engineering evidence. But unfortunately when the pollution does show up in Lily Pond it will be too late.

Future waste dump decision impacts tradesmen

To the Editor:

It is with great interest that I have been following the stories with regard to the private landfill in Cohasset. Both the town officials and the citizens are concerned with potential waste problems as they should be but this situation was brought on by shortsighted solutions taken by Cohasset and other surrounding towns years ago. They closed the landfills to tradesmen, landscapers and anyone who through their work have debris to dispose of as a byproduct from working in these towns. No thought was given to where it would go and a need for a private facility was established. Now the same debris the town wouldn't accept plus outside rubbish is being dumped in town. It is also costly to the home-owners who hire tradesmen etc, with the cost of a medium truck to dump at the private landfill being $150.

I would hope that in their haste to solve this problem that the town officials do not forget how their decisions effect the local tradesmen and ultimately the towns-people.

Thank you,
James Lydon

Roadside signs 'mess up the countryside'

To the editor:

It is very refreshing to see that Burt Pratt, candidate for selectman, has come out in favor of eliminating roadside political signs as part of his election campaign.

Some may consider this attitude takes the "fun out" of a run for office, but I for one find it a sensible alternative to messing up the countryside.

In a small town such as Cohasset most residents receive political information through the mail which should serve to adequately inform the electorate.

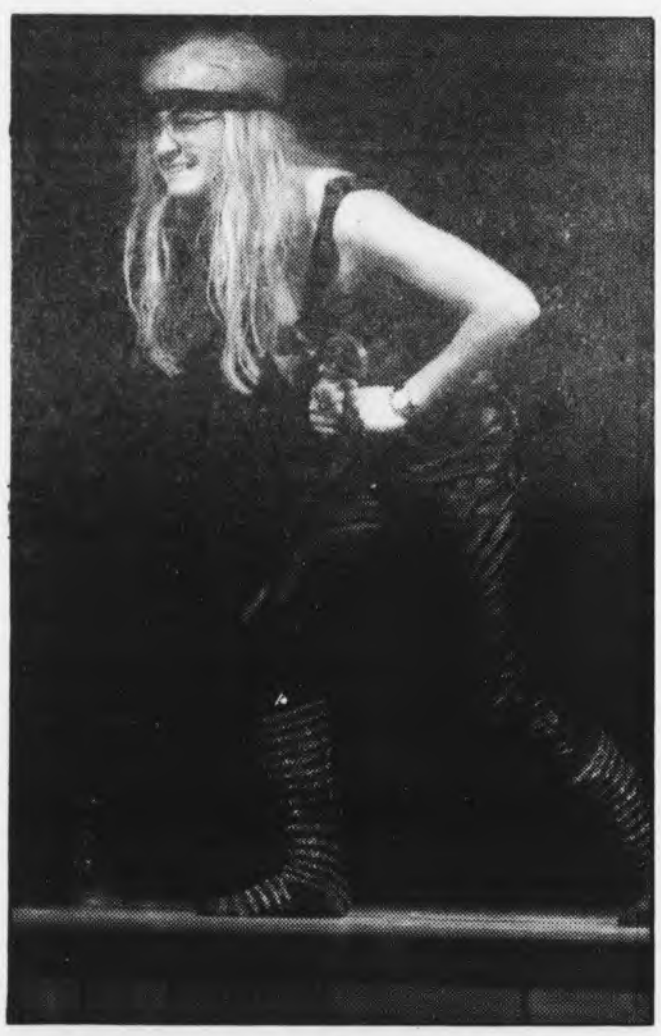
Hats off to an award-winning CHS drama production

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

A little reshaping helped Cohasset High School a lot as cast members gave an award-winning performance this weekend at the Globe Drama Festival semi-final competition.

CHS will now compete in the finals at the John Hancock Hall in Boston, Saturday, April 4 at 4:30 p.m.

Individuals members of this modern adaptation of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," were cited by the judges at Saturday's competition in Swansea. Joe Mazza was named, along with Jenna Emmons, to the All-Star festival cast.



Two new additions, Bryan Edwards and Danny Bickerstaff, were also honored as All Star actors. Director Ron Emmons explained this was no small feat, considering the duo was added to the performance last week.

"They do a rap which is actually the prologue to the play," Emmons said. "It was something I just added to the play. The judges commented on the fine sychronization of body and voice.

"The rap was my idea, and since the basketball season ended last week, Bryan had the time to put into it. I have Bryan and Danny in study hall, and I knew they could do this sort of thing. It's a poem set in the beginning of the play, something I worked on when I was out sick last week. They memorized it really quickly - they even have Philip Mahoney doing it now. It was a big hit with the judges."

Competing in the festival finals is nothing new to Emmons and the CHS actors. Since he has been at Cohasset High, Emmons and crew have failed to make the state finals only three times. But repeated success does not diminish the satisfaction of performing well, he commented.

"The kids are really excited about going to Boston with this," Emmons said. "It's not the competition, but the chance to see other kids and other plays from 14 other schools. Friendships develop and we learn so much. It's hard to keep their energy up, but going to Boston is great for them."

Joe Mazza in the award-winning CHS production at The Globe Drama Festival.

The judges, Emmons said, seemed to be impressed with the entire production and particularly with a few individual performances.

"I think we looked different from everyone else. Oher schools had big sets, although there wasn't a lot of comedy. No one else used a lot of music. So I think we looked unusual," Emmons said, adding, "We are working on some more changes to the play, to get some variety in narrators. It's work in progress - we change as we go along. This play is lot different than when we first performed it. Last week, the judges thought the ending was weakened and we dropped it and changed it to see what we could come up with. Changes keep that energy level high."

It is a 40-minute adaptation of the Shakespeare classic, complete with rock and roll tunes, technicolor leg-warmers and a Valley Girl on roller skates. Despite the week of rehearsal, and the constant changes made to script and cast members, Emmons said it has been an enriching experience for everyone.

"And now when we finally make to Boston, we find we have to work around another dilemma," he said, explaining that the statewide SAT's will be held that morning before the students perform in Boston.

"I really wanted to win with this one," Emmons confided. "We have some seniors in the cast and this will be their last chance to compete. Laura Kuhn is a junior, but will be studying in Germany next year. For four years, we've made it into Boston, and I really wanted to make it this year."

Another personal reason, he admitted, is for daughter, Jenna, who will be graduating from CHS this year.

"It's a good play. I think they'll do very well with it," Emmons added.

It's happening . . .

Moms and tots class

A new session of the South Shore Art Center's Moms and Tots, a course for moms and 3 and 4 year olds begins Monday, March 30.

The classes will meet at the Center, 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset. Registrations are being taken now for this course which is a series of creative projects moms can reproduce at home with their children.

Freelance designer and teacher Nancy Connolly will explore with her students batik dip, magic color circles and plastacene. She will teach parents how to recreate these processes at home.

For registration or further information please call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. The Center is supported in part by a grant from the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Little League registration

Little League registration will take place April 4 at 9 a.m. at the Little League Field. This will be the final call for the 1987 season.

Tryouts for the Major League teams will be held April 11 at 9 a.m. at the Little League Field.

Pony League registration will be April 4 at 9 a.m. at the Little League Field.

The Little League needs a refrigerator (new or used) for the concession stand. Anyone interested in donating a refrigerator, call 383-1474.

Broad Cove House Chorale

A delightful evening of chamber music for voices and instruments will be presented at Broad Cove House in Hingham on Friday, April 3, at 8 p.m. by the Broad Cove Chorale and its director Margo Euler, assisted by guest artists of the North River Trio Lydia Madrick of Norwell, piano; Donna Culley of Norwell, violin; and Jane Hallett of Hingham, cello and Julie Darling, flute, faculty member of the South Shore Conservatory and Beth Hallett, viola.

The large and architecturally beautiful room at Broad Cove House will be the setting for selections of Randall Thompson and Johann Hasse, plus acapella madrigals and part-songs sung by the 18-voice ensemble of women from 10 South Shore communities. Members of the Chorale include Connie Benzaquin, Phyllis Burns and Susan Chapman.

There will be a reception for all attending following the concert: Tickets must be purchased in advance — there will be none sold at the door! — from members of the Chorale, from the Bookshop at Hingham Square, or by calling 383-6774.

Turkey shoot April 5

America's favorite bird will be presented as prizes during the Spring Turkey Shoot at the Scituate Rod and Gun Club Sunday, April 5 beginning at 10 a.m.

These turkeys will be of the frozen variety but they will still end up on the dinner table of many people this Easter. The birds will be awarded to the winners of several different shooting events, including Lucky Target, Swinging Target, Silhouette Shoot, Archery Shoot, a Fun Shoot and more.

All the activities are fun and safe for the whole family. The turkey shoot will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 5, rain or shine. The Scituate Rod and Gun Club is located on Rt. 3A in North Scituate, near Booth Hill Road.

Auerbach at NDA dinner

Red Auerbach, president of the Boston Celtics, will be the guest speaker at the third Medallion Club Dinner at Notre Dame Academy, Hingham, on Monday, April 13 at 7 p.m.

Plans for the evening include a catered dinner, live jazz entertainment and photo opportunities with Red Auerbach and the Boston Celtics World Championship trophy.

Tickets are $250 each and are available from committee members Will McDonough, Hingham, who is chairperson for the event; John Allegrini, Marshfield; Margaret Comer, Hingham; Joseph Curran, Hanover; Ed DeGraan, Hingham; Fred Dellorfano, Cohasset; Peter Merrigan, Milton; David Nagle, Hanover; John Powers, Cohasset; Jerome Troy, Marshfield and David Wallace, Braintree.

Proceeds from the fund-raiser will benefit the academy's athletic and sports programs.

Chamber music April 3

A delightful evening of chamber music for voices and instruments will be presented at Broad Cove House in Hingham on Friday evening, April 3, at 8 p.m. by the Broad Cove Chorale and its director, Margo Euler, assisted by guest artists of the North River Trio(Lydia Madrick of Norwell, piano; Donna Culley of Norwell, violin; and Jane Hallett of Hingham, cello) and Julie Darling, flute, faculty member at the South Shore Conservatory and Beth Hallett, viola.

The large and architecturally beautiful room at Broad Cove House will be the setting for selections of Randall Thompson and Johann Hasse, plus acapella madrigals and part-songs sung by the eighteen voice ensemble of women from ten South Shore communities. Members of the Chorale from Cohasset include Sarah deLima, Lisa Koed, and Diana Rousseau.

There will be a reception for all attending following the concert. Tickets must be purchased in advance —there will be none sold at the door — from members of the Chorale, from the Bookshop at Hingham Square, or by calling 383-6774.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS OF COHASSET

To promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government is the purpose of the League of Women Voters. It does not support or oppose any political party or candidate.

* * * * * * * * * * *

CANDIDATES

All candidates running for office were requested to answer the following two questions. Their answers appear under their names.

1. WHAT EXPERIENCE AND/OR SPECIAL QUALITIES DO YOU HAVE THAT WOULD HELP YOU PERFORM THE DUTIES OF THE OFFICE YOU SEEK?

2. WHAT ARE THE MOST SIGNIFICANT PROBLEMS AND OPPORTUNITIES YOU SEE FOR THIS POSITION DURING THE NEXT TERM OF OFFICE?

SELECTMAN for three years Vote for Two

MARTHA GJESTEBY, 81 Old Pasture Road.

1. I offer continuous and current experience as a public board member,—this is where I differ from all the other selectman candidates. With my experience on these boards, I have learned how to make difficult decisions.

For over 27 years I have lived in Cohasset at Old Pasture Road. During that time, I have served on the Planning Board, two terms on the School Committee and on the Capital Budget Committee. Presently I am serving on the Joint Regional Transportation Committee and the Metropolitan Area Planning Council. I am treasurer of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and serve on the land use, transportation and legislative subcommittees.

2. The selectmen face many issues and decisions during the next few years. The foremost issue for Cohasset is protection of our drinking water. Other problems are refurbishing and/or constructing municipal facilities, improved public transportation and resolution of pending litigation to avoid increasing legal fees.

The opportunity exists for better communication with town boards and citizens, and to review bylaws and regulations concerning the day-to-day service needed for the townspeople. The selectmen must provide leadership and avoid "crisis government" since the best decisions are made with open, logical, thoughtful input by all.

LILLIAN M. MURRAY, 28 Margin Street

1. As a lifelong resident of Cohasset, I am aware of how the town has grown in thirty years. I am very concerned about the future of our town. I have been raised in a family in which serving our community is a personal and family commitment.

I am a 1975 graduate of Cohasset High School. While attending high school, I developed a keen interest in the governmental activities of the town and the school. My school activities included Chairman of the Student Advisory Committee to the School Committee, Jr. Board member on the Communtiy Center Board of Directors, Student Council, Mass. Student Exchange Day Delegate, and President of St. Anthony's CYO as well as the Archdioses Delegate.

Since graduating from Cohasset High, I have directed my energies into National and State campaigns and other local elections. My function in all of the above was that of the Field Coordinator in Southeastern Massachusetts. I coordinated 147 cities and towns for Ray Shamie's 1984 US Senate Race. This included setting up and staffing of three phone banks with 1000 volunteers.

I feel that growing up in the surroundings of public service has taught me to care about the needs and concerns of every individual. Regardless of age or station in life, I have met everyone equally. I feel that my dedication to the town of Cohasset, and the reputation of being a hard, dedicated worker, has shown that I am always there to lend a hand no matter how large the task.

I think it is an important factor that a public servant is just that. Public. It is important to be available at any time for the people he/she serves. If elected, I will be available to all the citizens of the town at any time.

2. The first important issue the Town of Cohasset faces is the Cohasset Heights Landfill. For a number of months now this issue has slowly come to the forefront of the town's major problems. It threatens not only the well-being of our townspeople, but also the town's water supply.

I would like to see the landfill closed, until the Board of Health and the DEQE can certify that it is not a threat to the general welfare of our town. Secondly, I would like to see an ongoing dialogue with the Board of Health, the Board of Selectmen, the Conservation Committee, and the Water Commissioners over this issue that would lead to a favorable solution to the problem for everyone concerned.

Let me add here that I believe there should be more dialogue with all the boards, committee members, commissioners, and department heads, not only on this issue but all issues that confront the town. I would propose if elected to set up quarterly meetings with all the above to enhance communication from all possible positions on issues that are faced by the town.

The second issue I would like to address is that of a newly proposed draft by the DEQE on Waterway Regulations. We all know how much pleasure we derive from Cohasset Harbor. This proposal, "310 CMR 900", states all communities with harbors and marinas would be subject to further state regulations. Including, sections that detail the manners in which harbormasters are to grant permits to commercial and recreational boating facilities. Mooring permits would be for one year only, with one year renewals. Permits would not pertain to only Cohasset residents. The harbormaster would provide slips and moorings on a first come, first serve basis, or by lottery. This again would eliminate the preference to residents of each individual town. Private clubs would become non-existent.

The above are just a few of what I presume to be devastating regulations for our town. I will oppose any move in this direction, for it appears to me to be a removal of home rule in our harbor.

On the issue of transportation, I think we all are in favor of solving the South Shore's transportation problems. I don't have all the answers to this problem, but I believe an alternate to the Greenbush line should be looked into, i.e. commuter boats, bus service, and a mono-rail (on Rt. 3). I would work diligently with the others who have been seeking alternatives to find a satisfactory conclusion to the transportation problem.

ROBERT BEGGAN, 4 Sankey Road

1. I have been an elected official of the Cohasset Recreation Commission and an appointed member of the School Facilities Board. I have been very active in coaching various sports programs in this town.

I am a homeowner, taxpayer, veteran, and college graduate. As a businessman I meet new obstacles every day! I have the common sense to ask, "Will these decisions I make stand the test of time."

I am committed to making Cohasset a better place to live, not only now, but in the future.

2. The Cohasset Heights Landfill is the greatest concern. Our drinking water supply is a short distance from this refuse landfill site!

I feel that the permit for Cohasset Heights Landfill should be revoked if the following is not done . . . the leachate in the landfill cannot meet the Safe Drinking Water Act standards . . . the Cohasset Heights Landfill post cash or a bond (amount to be determined by the Boards of Health, Water and Selectmen) to ensure this town is not left with paying for any unforeseen future damage to our water supply.

I feel the elected officials and various Boards should continue to vigorously support any and all means to revoke the Cohasset Heights Landfill permit.

We have all let the past slip away—let us not put the future on hold while we point fingers or cast the first stone.

I feel the sewerage hook-up to Hull is of great importance to the people of Cohasset. The taxpayers of this town will have to share the expense of this connection. I feel the current plan proposed in the February 19, 1987 issue of the Cohasset Mariner will greatly ease the sewerage problems in the areas to be brought into the system.

This expansion will allow a long overdue solution to two problems. First, the health problem in these areas and secondly, I feel that new tasteful limited growth can be accomplished.

BURTRAM J. PRATT, 75 Ripley Road

1. I have forty years of experience as a student and chronicler of, and participant in, the total life of the community. My involvement in both the public and private sectors has enriched my life and given me a broad based knowledge of the town.

My special qualities are that I work well with people and have risen to a position of leadership in many of the areas in which I have participated, as the following resume will indicate:

My first involvement in Town Government was as a member and Secretary of a committee which planned the Veterans Development on the old Town Farm land off Pond Street. This innovative project was the first of its kind in the state and became a model for other communities.

At about the same time, I was appointed to the Committee on Town History and became its Editorial chairman, later its author. "A Narrative History of Cohasset, Vol. II", which I wrote for the Committee, is an in-depth study of the political, social, economic and demographic trends in the town for the first half of this century.

In 1955, I was elected to the Planning Board and served two terms holding the positions of Secretary and Chairman of the Board. This was the first Planning Board that deviated from the routine duties of subdivision regulation and rubber-stamping plans not requiring approval and moved into the area of Master Plan studies.

I spent nine years as a Fence Viewer, and arbitrated several disputes between neighbors.

I was appointed to the Bicentennial Committee and was elected its Chairman. With an excellent executive committee and the assistance of literally hundreds of townspeople, this Committee supervised the largest celebration in town history, and brought the townspeople together in a common cause, not seen since World War II days.

I recently resigned from the Board of Registrars on which I had served for four years, three as Chairman.

For most of my working life, I have been in printing and advertising management and sales, public relations, and journalism. I will bring to the Board of Selectmen the reasoned approach of a business person and the objectivity of a trained journalist.

2. (A) In recent years the Town has moved from a government of three Selectmen to a government of five Selectmen and an Executive Secretary. I think that the citizenry perceives that these changes have not yet produced the improvements and/or reforms which were expected. As a new Selectman I would want to make a complete study of the Office of the Selectmen to see if it is properly staffed, functioning efficiently, and if the Selectmen themselves are fully involved in the exercise of the executive power which they possess. I would want to follow this with a similar look at other departments, boards and committees which are under the direct control of the Selectmen.

(B) A large problem currently worrying citizens and town officials alike is the staggering total of capital budget items on the agenda. The solution to this problem may lie in augmenting the powers and duties of the Capital Budget Committee and to require input from all the major departments as to their capital budget needs. We need to determine, it seems to me, what is necessary and what is merely desirable. The next step would be to reach a concensus on which items are most pressing and prioritize them over a period of years. In other words, we are very much in need of Capital Budget Master Planning.,

(C) In considering two of the town's most pressing problems, I am reminded of a study made by the League of Women Voters some years ago under the heading of "the water we want and the water we don't want." The proper management of these two types of water is of great concern: protection of in the first instance and disposal of in the second. We must use every means available to protect our drinking water (the water we want), and we must diligently pursue the construction of facilities for disposal of sewage (the water we don't want). While neither of these related problems are under the jurisdiction of the Selectmen, I think that they should lend encouragement and support as appropriate to the Water Commissioners, Sewer Commissioners, and the Board of Health as they seek out and implement solutions to these problems.

To sum up: I once worked for a manager whose motto was "there are no problems—only opportunities." Two new Cohasset Selectmen are going to have opportunities galore in the next three years. I am ready to take on the challenge.

THOMAS G. CHURCHILL, Bound Brook Lane

1. To represent the people of Cohasset takes many qualities. I feel that being the third generation of elected selectmen to run for this office is a vested quality. Along with this family history, I also have grown up with the problems and joys of this precious seaside community.

My purpose to be selectman is to represent you, the people of Cohasset. I do not feel that we need to change the quality of Cohasset life, but to guide and protect it.

2. One issue in my representation would be the conservation of land, sea and water. A major problem at this moment is the landfill issue. Disposal of daily waste is a problem that can be handled only by a conscientious unified government.

Along with the land and fresh water issues also come

(See page 14)

Local candidates share their views. . .

the major problems with our harbor and open seas. As a commercial fisherman for many years, I feel representation of the pleasure boater as well as commercial fisherman is an obligation that cannot be overlooked.

Cohasset is a unique community with beauty beyond imagination. The future for our children and their children lie in a government that is dedicated to the preservation of the good and upholding the ideals of the past.

MODERATOR for three years Vote for One

WILLIAM D. WEEKS, 130 Border Street

1. I have served as Town Moderator since 1981, and feel that I have amply demonstrated the capacity to preside over the many town meetings we have had in the interim, fairly and impartially, expeditiously and with a thorough knowledge of the rules governing meetings. In addition, my background and experience as a practicing attorney, former member of the Massachusetts State Senate, and presiding officer of many organizations, both public and private, I submit fully qualify me to continue serving as Town Moderator.

2. The Open Town Meeting system is a unique form of local government, in which all voters can participate. Sadly, however, too few of our voters actually attend the meetings, especially the Special Town Meetings.

I shall continue to do all in my power to increase attendance at Town Meetings, and I urge the League to do likewise. I shall also strive, as I have done in the past, to make the meetings interesting and a worthwhile expenditure of time for all who attend.

This year's Annual Town Meeting which begins on Saturday, April 4, at 10 A.M., will be a very important meeting with many crucial issues to be considered. I urge everyone to attend who can possibly do so.

As Moderator, I also play a key role in the appointment process. I devote a considerable amount of time on the town Appointing Authority seeking out, evaluating and appointing public-spirited townspeople to town boards and committees. In this way, the Moderator does much to ensure the continuation of volunteer participation in the on-going concerns and issues affecting our community.

TREASURER-COLLECTOR for three years
Vote for One

ELIZABETH B. RIPLEY, 20 Pasture Road
(Candidate for Re-Election)

1. For over nineteen years I have held a municipal position with the Town of Cohasset. My experience has included Secretary and Bookkeeper to the Superintendent of Schools, Bookkeeper for the Cafeteria Services at the Cohasset Public Schools, Assistant Treasurer and Treasurer-Collector.

I am currently taking courses at Northeastern University. This will eventually lead to a Bachelor's Degree in Finance. Between my practical experience and continued pursuit of an education, I feel that I am qualified to serve the Town as Treasurer-Collector.

2. (A) To continue to improve the communication with the taxpayers in order to keep them informed about our collection policy and changes in the state laws.

(B) Through the continued expansion of our in-house computer system, we will strive to establish a more cost effective way to perform the functions of our office.

(C) To keep informed of the fluctuating market to ensure the best possible yield on our depository accounts and trust funds.

(D) To continue to upgrade our salary schedule and employee benefits so that we may not only attract competent employees but keep them.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE for three years. Vote for one.

Nancy Sandell, 24 Stevens Lane

1. I attended the University of Minnesota and graduated in 1966 from Winona College with a Bachelor of Science in Education. I taught first grade in Minneapolis and then moved to Cambridge, where I taught in the Medford School System.

In 1967-1973 my husband and I were houseparents at the Dana Hall School, a private girls' school in Wellesley, Mass., where I counseled and parented 30 girls each year.

Moving to Cohasset in 1973, we were here 8 months before moving to Rome, Italy. For six years, I was active in volunteer work at the American Overseas School of Rome, and Kendale International School.

Upon returning to Cohasset in 1980, I was involved in the following:

—President of the Senior High Communication Council

—Started the School news page in the Mariner.

—Helped establish the AFS Chapter and was Vice President of the adult chapter

—Helped form the Parent School Organization (PSO)

—President of the PSO in 1982 and 1985

—Currently Metco Host Family Chairman for the PSO

I feel the perspective I have gained from my experience in education at the public, private and international level, in addition to my love for children, will help maintain an excellent school system in Cohasset.

I am married to James Sandell, an architect, and we have four children. Mason, a freshman at Dartmouth College and a graduate of Cohasset High School; Anna, an 8th grader at the High School; Jessie, a 2nd grader at Osgood and Morgan, a kindergartner at the Osgood.

2. We need to generate a new spirit in which learning is important. We need to lobby at the local, state and national level that learning is important, scholarship is important, education is important. I feel it is essential to communicate with the taxpayers and to keep them informed about our philosophy, our programs and our goals. We need to be reminded of how not only at the local level we benefit by having an excellent school system, but also at the national level for cultural, social and economical reasons. We all profit from producing well-educated children; they will affect our future and the future of the world.

I have trust in peoples' ability, both as Cohasset taxpayers and educators, to unite in support of maintaining an excellent school system.

TRUSTEE OF THE PAUL PRATT MEMORIAL LIBRARY for three years
Vote for Three

Sheila S. Evans, 72 N. Main Street

1. Many years experience as a trustee of our town library gives me a special perspective on current activities in the context of long-cherished goals for library service to Cohasset. Experience on other boards provides very helpful ideas on both substantive and procedural matters.

2. For a number of years, the problems and opportunities for Library Trustees have been focussed on finding the best relationship betweeen expenditures and services. I believe the Paul Pratt Memorial Library is one of Cohasset's treasures, with an exceptional staff and collection for a town this size. The many volunteer hours and tangible gifts contributed by the Friends of the Cohasset Library attest to community support. Circulation figures among the highest in the Commonwealth demonstrate community interest. Library Trustees must continue to live up to Cohasset's expectations for its library within the confines of cost effective budgets.

Doris R. McNulty, 80 Nichols Road

1. Library degree from Simmons, 10 years experience in a variety of library settings. Experience on other boards, and three terms as library trustee.

2. The new computer system is in the process of being installed. Adjusting library procedures to the new system and acquainting the public with its possibilities will be a major task.

Edward Atkinson, 100 Elm Street

1. I have been a minister in the community for seventeen years. During that time I have volunteered and served on the following: PSO, Council on Aging, and Cohasset Sailing Club.

2. I seek to maintain the fine library services we have and assist in the expansion of those services through computerization.

BOARD OF HEALTH for three years Vote for One

William E. Baird, 55 Red Gate Lane

1. The control of hazardous materials and the protection of groundwater are major issues of the 1980's. Since my graduation from college in 1965, I have been practicing engineering in the oil and chemical industry. My professional experience is the safe storage and handling of chemicals, and the design and installation of equipment to treat contaminated water and soil.

In the last ten years, 85% of my time has been devoted to environmental engineering. Since Dr. Bliss has decided not to run again for the Board of Health office, I felt that I should step forward and provide whatever service I can offer to the town.

2. The protection of not just our groundwater but all water resources of the community are of major importance. In that regard, as Route 3A is developing, we must be sure that our surface and groundwater in that area is protected. We must also address our salt water environment, particularly portions of Little Harbor which seem to be developing an algae problem.

The town must deal rationally with the Cohasset Heights Landfill and must also start looking at our own landfill and the potential problems it may be creating.

The opportunity for the Board of Health today is to try to put in place programs which will protect us in the future.

WATER COMMISSION for three years
Vote for One

William J. Montuori, 47 Brewster Road

1. —Registered Professional Civil Engineer, Massachusetts

—Registered Land Surveyor, Massachusetts

—Active Town Service

—Board of Health . . . . . 9 years

—Drainage Committee . . . . 6 years

—Sewer Commissioner . . . . 3 years

—Water Commissioner . . . . 9 years

COHASSET WATER DEPARTMENT'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS DURING MR. MONTUORI's TENURE

—Brought the new treatment plant and reservoir system on line, assuring an adequate supply for the future

—Negotiated claims with General Contractor, settled accounts with the US Department of Housing and Urban Development and the US Department of Labor

—Adopted rules, regulations and procedures to properly transfer ownership and authority of new water mains and appurtenances to the Water Department, eliminating dual ownership and other problems associated with past proceedings

—Established easement procedures for all new water mains, eliminating problems associated with water mains and private properties

—Developed regulations preventing multiple houses or units on a single meter, eliminating disagreements between neighbors

—Developed standard technical specifications and engineering details

—Applied for and received more than $900,000 in grants for Capital Improvements for the Department's facilities.

—Established a water main rehabilitation program, provided replacement and up-grading of water mains, some of which have been in service for over 80 years, meeting current and future demand for domestic service and fire protection

—Determined that the Cohasset Heights Landfill is in the watershed of our reservoir system and should never have been approved by the Town Boards or the state agencies

—Initiated "shut-off" procedures for non-payment of water bills

2. As our facilities are getting older, our maintenance cost will increase, consequently we expect that our operating costs will probably continue to increase. Our major problem will be to keep our costs as low as possible without jeopardizing the facilities' usefulness.

We cannot let any innovative sewer projects compromise the safety of the water distribution system. We will be very thorough in reviewing the affect of shallow piping and the on-site repairs that could have an adverse effect on the water distribution system.

As a Professional Engineer, Mr. Montuori's experience and expertise benefits Cohasset's Water Department. The Water Department does not rely on or pay for consultant services for the approval of routine submissions by developers and contractors.

SEWER COMMISSION for three years
Vote for one

Edward M. Guild, 365 Jerusalem Road

1. My most important qualification for the office of Sewer Commissioner is my four years of service on the Board of Sewer Commissioners. During this period, the board produced an affordable and acceptable waste water disposal plan which was approved overwhelmingly by the June 19, 1984 Town Meeting (346-44) and which has recently received preliminary approval from the State in slightly modified form. I have been closely involved in the development of this plan and believe that my familiarity with it, with State and Federal authorities, with the Town's consulting engineer and with the various Town interest groups are of great importance for the effective performance of the duties of Sewer Commissioner over the next three years.

(See page 15).

Local candidates discuss campaign issues

In my business career, I have been responsible for the specification and sale of sophisticated systems for water treatment and purification. This work requires complex contract negotiations with governments, industry and consulting engineers. At a time when millions of dollars of public money (local, state and federal) will be committed for our waste water project, my extensive business experience will be of benefit to the Board and to the taxpayers.

I am a property owner and a taxpayer. I commit the Town's money as careful as if it were my own.

2. The Town's waste water problems are well on their way to being solved. This has required four years of study, engineering and persistent negotiation.

The opportunity that now lies ahead is the implementation of the Town's waste water plan. I expect this will require most of my upcoming three year term, and I look forward to bringing to fruition the work that has progressed so successfully over the last four years.

My objective in the Cohasset waste water plan is, as it was three years ago:

a) to provide affordable sewering within the constraints of Proposition 2½ for our most densely populated areas (the Hillside, Smith Place, Veterans' and other smaller areas) and

b) to provide financial assistance for localized on-site systems in the non-sewered areas.

The objective of this approach is to solve our waste water problems wherever they may be and to preserve the fragile environment of our uniquely beautiful town.

I am firmly committed to a limited sewer service area, as it is in the Town's plan, to protect Cohasset from the onslaught of urban sprawl which is almost invariably the by-product of widespread sewering.

Lot W. Bates, 365 Beechwood Street

1. I have worked with a Cohasset contractor for seventeen years, specializing in excavating and installing leaching areas and sewer connections. Hence, I am thoroughly familiar with the construction of on-site sewer systems and public sewer facilities. More specifically, I am doing this work in Cohasset, and because of this I better understand the various types of problems that will manifest when pipes and connections are installed to our present sewer system.

I have had hands-on experience working on the construction of a large municipal sewer plant in Danvers, MA. Specifically, we transformed this plant into a pumping station much like Cohasset is planning to do. I am, therefore, familiar with the many aspects and problems encountered with this type of project.

I also worked on the Cohasset Water Treatment Plant during the construction phase. Also, I was the superintendent of a major school project in Plymouth, MA where we installed a large sewer treatment system. This afforded me additional problems, and hands-on experience.

2. As you may be aware, the planning and construction of proper sewer facilities for Cohasset is well over 15 years behind schedule. This grossly neglected town program must be accelerated and aggressively pursued to its completion. I would like to take part in the project and process.

I personally believe the most important aspects of the connector with Hull is that we do not sell out the Town of Cohasset to Hull. We must make certain that we will have enough gallonage capacity for our town, not only for the present needs, but future needs as well. Will the 300 thousand gallons per day be sufficient to satisfy future requirements of Cohasset,or will we be forced to develop a costly solution in a few years?

If elected, I would concern myself with better informing residents as to the problems and progress of the sewer commission, not leaving numerous questions of residents unanswered or only partially answered. It is essential that all residents are aware of, and informed about our options, progress and costs. I also feel that sewer commissioners should work closer with the other town departments so each department is aware of the others' functions and projections.

Another important aspect that I feel my candidacy offers, is that I work in town, and therefore would be readily available during this important planning and constructing period of the sewer system.

Having been born, raised and educated in Cohasset, I am deeply concerned with the welfare of our town and wish to have an integral part in solving what is probably Cohasset's most pressing problem.

TERESE E. DUGGAN, Lily Pond Lane

1. As a resident of Cohasset for the past 18 years and a homeowner, I am deeply committed to the town's future and well-being. With a degree in elementary education and my experience as a legal administrator, I have proven management and administrative skills. An example of my dedication is my years of volunteer coaching for the soccer and basketball programs. Since 1984, I have been a member of the Cohasset Recreation Commission for which I am seeking re-election.

2. The Recreation Commission has consistently offered a variety of recreational programs for all residents. One of my main objectives is to maintain and further develop these programs. A major problem the town currently faces is the dismal condition of its playing fields. It is imperative that we all work and support the upgrading and refurbishing of these facilities.

ASSESSOR for three years Vote for One
James Lagrotteria, 104 Howe Road

1. Born, raised and educated in Cohasset; presently living at 104 Howe Road with his wife (Dorothy) and seven of his eleven children. He served in the Army for 3½ years as a Ranger Officer with the First Division.

Co-founded,owned and managed a commercial printing company which grew in ten years to 56 employees. Until recently was part owner of two liquor stores on the South Shore. For the past fifteen years has been the Business Manager for Glastonbury Abbey — Hingham. Responsible for producing and administering a yearly operating budget and the administering of all fund-raising activities. In 1980, he filed an application on behalf of the Abbey for a Section 8 subsidy of some $2,750,000.00 to purchase and convert the Lincoln School in Hingham to Apartments for the Elderly and Handicapped and participated in all phases of construction as well as the disbursement of construction funds. For eight years he served on the Advisory Board in Cohasset, both during the years of the 4% Cap and later through the first four years of Proposition 2½.

2. In 1986, for the first time since mandatory revaluation has been forced upon us by Proposition 2½, we saw our tax rate set on time. Prior to 1986 the Town of Cohasset has had to borrow monies to run the Town because the tax rate was not established on time resulting in the late mailing of tax bills. This practice has cost the town in previous years over $250,000.00 in interest on the borrowing of money. That is equivalent to 4 firemen, or 4 policemen, or 6 teachers etc., etc. This practice although apparently solved in 1986 must never be allowed to happen again. Additionally, there were until recently some 179 requests for abatements. Some going back as far as 1984. Although most of these cases are being held up at the Appellate Board Hearings level, Jim feels that more attempts by the board of Assessors for compromise with the complainant should be aggressively sought to avoid all of the legal hassle and expense to the Town connected with an abatement. He looks forward to the challenge of Assessor and the valuation of the many new projects proposed for Cohasset.

A sample of Cohasset Community Center spring classes

The Cohasset Community Center is now taking registrations for Spring classes.

The office is open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday for registration in person. The phone number is 383-0088 for registration by phone. All programs must be pre-registered.

The following classes are being offered. Weight and Self-Image This program provides real hope for those struggling with body weight! This support group, led by a counseling psychologist, will work with the latest findings in this area. Heredity, body type, personality, stress, allergies and self-image are as important as nutrition and exercise when it comes to body size. We will use teaching, discussion, sharing and body awareness games to encourage success in your weight program. No weighing. No requirements to share weight or weight loss or gain. This class is 7 sessions and costs $65. Class starts Wednesday, April 1.

Parenting Workshop - Teenagers - A Challenge for Families This three session workshop will be led by Mary and Paul Fox of Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc. Parenting and communication skills will be the focus of the workshop. Parents will explore topics such as setting limits, discipline, motivation, peer pressure, sibling rivalry and self-esteem. This is a unique program of skill building and support for parents. The class will be from 7:30-9 p.m. on Thursdays starting April 2. The cost is $15.

Basket Making In this six week course, we will use woods as they come from the tree. Using traditional tools and techniques, we will shave and scrape splints to the desired thickness and trim them to width and length. We will then weave and bend the rims and handle which is secured with a wooden peg. This class meets on Thursdays from 7:30-9:30 p.m. for six weeks starting April 16. Cost is $50.

Basic Designs in Flower Arranging This is a three day course in flower arranging taught by a Master Judge and instructor in Flower Show School. This workshop will help you to create beautiful arrangements for your home. Each week you are asked to bring a container and flowers to fit the color scheme of your home. You will also be asked to cut branches in leaf or bud to finish out your arrangements. Each week you will go home with a lovely arrangement. This class starts Thursday May 4 from 9-12 and costs $25.

Co-ed Aerobics This six week class meets twice a week on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-8 p.m. The class will be led by Ann Platt who is a member of I.D.E.A. and was a former fitness intructor in Chicago. New classes will begin April 14. Cost is $36.

Pre-School Nature Study In this class, the children will be introducted to nature through books and in walks through the woods. This is a five week program and will start on Friday, May 1, from 9:30-10:30 a.m. or from 11-12. Class costs $15.

Computer Course for the Novice A hands-on, individualized course to learn the skills necessary to operate a computer. Discover the applications and uses of computers in everyday life. Cost includes materials. Class starts on Thursday, April 9 from 7-9 p.m. at Cohasset High School. Course lasts 10 weeks and costs $64.

Multimedia Standard First Aid This course - which uses demonstration films, a programmed workbook, and practice sessions - can be completed in only one day. It is scientifically designed to aid your own natural ability to learn and retain information quickly. This class is approximately 7 hours and will be given on Saturday, April 4 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Cost is $28.

American Red Cross First Responder Training This is the first aid course required to be an MDC lifeguard. This course is 25 hours and describes the EMS system including role of first responder, role of ambulance personnel, communications between first responder ambulance personnel, and area medical facilities. This course covers Patient assessment, respiratory emergencies including oxygen therapy, drowning and water related accidents, child birth and emergency transport and extrication. Time and dates to be announced. Call 383-0088.

New Mothers Group This program is designed to provide new mothers with information about their babies as they grow and to provide an opportunity to talk with each other about their adjustment to parenthood. This class starts March 25 and lasts four weeks. Time is 10 to 11:30 a.m. and costs $25.

The Old China Trade Taught by Ellen Woolf, this class runs for 3 weeks on Wednesdays from 1-3 p.m. starting April 1. Cost is $20. A fascinating and neglected period in American history is colorfully recreated in this comprehensive presentation.

Spring Into Wellness or Stress Management in Daily Living Various tests and stress scales will be used to assess individual stress levels and find out what makes some people "stress resistant." We will discuss anti-stress vitamins and minerals, foods which help us handle stress better, easy exercises to help relieve stress and when to do them, simple breathing and meditative techniques to cope with anxiety, the role of play and laughter, channeling your thinking, creative attitude management, the way and power of stillness, effective planning and time management, and the elements of the stress emergency kit. This class meets Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. starting March 24 and costs $50.

Deer Hill students offer bright short stories

(These are the final stories written by the sixth grade students at Deer Hill. Some of the articles are auto-biographical. We believe they deserve your attention. Ed.)

A Railway Adventure

Matt strolled through the woods on the way home from school. He whistled, and every now and then a wide grin would spread across his face. "Vacation," he thought, "and no homework. It's a miracle!" The sunlight filtered through the trees, birds sang, and the world seemed happy with him.

"Ah," he thought, "halfway home." For he saw the railroad tracks up ahead. As he jumped across he heard a little clink. Matt searched his pockets and found his key wasn't there. He started to look on the ground around him. Finally he spied it under the railroad tracks in the gravel. "There you are you devil," he said to the key. Since his arms were full, he thought he'd kick it out with his foot. He kicked under the track, and just missed his key. As he pulled his foot out, it caught on something. Matt bent down to inspect his foot. He found a nail slanting from under the wooden rails. His foot was caught on it. He tugged some more at his foot. The nail began to penetrate his sneaker. "Ouch!" yelled Matt. He could feel the point against his foot. If he pulled any more, he'd definitely start bleeding. Matt tried to push his foot the other way, so he could move it to the side and then pull it out. He discovered he couldn't. "Oh !@#$%!" he said. "What'll I do?" he thought. "The train'll be here any minute and the driver is asleep half of the time." The tracks began to vibrate slightly with the approach of the train. "Calm down," he said to himself. "What can I do? Well, I could yell, wave, and pray they'll see me and stop in time. That isn't likely, though, since it comes around the corner at about seventy miles an hour." He thought and thought. The tracks shook more and more. Matt finally decided what to do.

He put his stuff to one side. He then lay down on the ground. He pushed his foot into the gravel as far as it would go, and lay it as flat against the ground as possible. He heard the train coming. He closed his eyes, blocked his ears, and waited, every muscle tense. The train came closer, closer. All of a sudden it was on top of him. He felt the rushing wind, and pressed himself into the ground. Then, as suddenly as it had come, it was gone. It left Matt feeling drained and exhausted. Then he realized, he had made it! The next train wouldn't come for two hours! Soon Rich, Matt's little brother arrived. He was on his way home, too. Matt quickly explained what happened. "Mom should be home by now, run home and get her!" Matt said. For a minute Rich just stood and stared with his mouth hanging open. He finally snapped out of it and ran home to get their mom.

Epilogue

Matt was in the newspapers a lot, even on TV once. The publicity wore off after a while, though. When Matt had grandchildren, he loved to tell them of his railway adventure.

Taking Control
Anonymous

Bang! The gun had gone off. In an instant I felt myself lift from the ground as if I were flying. For a few wonderful seconds all my fear, nervousness, and cares had disappeared. Then it was over. Down I plunged into the light-aquamarine water. As I came up I noticed not one, but two other mechanically motivated bodies rocketing across the surface of the water. For the first time in my life I found myself in a position other than first place in the swimming race. I felt like throwing up. I almost did, too, for as I reached the surface I found myself coughing and wheezing like a nervous wreck. Forcing myself to push on (though in terrible form) I managed to save face by taking a reasonable third place in a race with four people. Unable to control my emotions over losing I lost by large margins in all the rest of the races.

Summer, 1986 — One hot summer Friday much excitement and action took place in the Scituate High School Gym. On the last day of basketball camp all players of high quality took part in one or two of several contests and events. One of these, the foul shooting contest, was one I, by chance, was selected to be in.

The room was silent for a moment — swish! My opponent had completed his ten shots, which he made eight of. My turn came up. I stepped to the foul line, stiff as a bone with butterflies ricochetting off all sides of my stomach. After what seemed like years I squared up for my eighth. Chink! It hit the rim and just sat there for a moment, then rolled off. That, being my third miss, I knew that I had already lost. In my anger and despair I just flung the last two shots against the backboard. Walking over to the side of the gym I sat down and totally fell apart.

V-E-L-V-E-T... With a confounded look on my face I added another T-Y. Wrong. Feeling very dizzy and despaired I slowly sat up, trudged to the rear of the room and slumped down on top of my leg. With my hands over my face listening to words being recited one by one, I kept wondering if there was really something wrong with me. My parents' answer to this is always no, but the solution to my emotions is to just keep trying.

As you can see from my examples I have over-reactions to things. I have not been able to solve them all yet, but getting over these emotions is one of my number one priorities for the year nineteen eighty-seven.

The New Kid

It's not that I love school. I just don't want the year to end. You're probably wondering why so I guess I should tell you because I don't want you to think I'm a weirdo. You see I'm moving when summer comes. And moving's one thing I really hate. I've moved before, and I'll probably move again.

The thing I really hate is the first day of school. Everyone crowds around you and looks at you like you're an alien from outerspace. Then they talk about you behind your back. Saying things like, "That kid talks weird," or "that new kid's weird looking." But after a while it stops after they get to know you. Usually you make friends fast. Then they don't even notice you're new.

You make new friends but it seems like they can never replace your old ones. Then after you're living there for a few years you forget about them, they forget about you, except for the ones you write to, but most of them you never see again.

Usually when you first find out you're moving you don't want to believe it, but after it hits you you just want to lock yourself in your room and cry. Sometimes you say you want to move just to get away from it all, but after you move you wish you never agreed.

One thing that's real torture is when your parents say you're going to move at a certain time and they don't and you don't know if you're staying or going.

You know probably the best thing about moving is not doing it.

I like it here. I don't want to move....

Me

"They hate me!" I tell myself every time someone digs a pit in my heart with their nasty little jokes. Jokes about my looks, the clothes I wear, the grades I get. It hurts; like a red hot poker stabbing a naked eye. Every time someone says the word "nerd" I get a lump in my throat. "They're jealous"; (that's what I tell myself to stop the wretched burning in my heart). "They're just jealous because I do well in school." I tell myself that, but it doesn't help. I try; I try SO hard to fit in! But that doesn't help because they find something else to tease about. I just go back for more. I think I find a friend, then POOF they're not my friend any more. It's so hard to come home when you know you will have to go back the next day. Maybe my non-athletic ability is it. Maybe it is just me. I can't change my insides, but maybe I can change my outside. Should I? I can never decide whether to be me or someone else. Why not be me?! To fit in means to be someone else's little robot. What do they know? I am going to be my sentimental self. Not anyone else, just me. Me....me....me! And by the way, who cares what they think!

Don't think of me as a conceited person because of what I am about to tell you, because I am not. But I must tell you how I really feel about myself. I think that I am a nice and friendly person. I mean I have lots of friends, and I believe that this could not be possible if I weren't nice and friendly. This was proven to be true at the beginning of September. This is when I began to go to my new school. I can't lie. I was very nervous. I didn't know anyone, except one person, and we only talked to each other one time. Within a few weeks I made several friends. Which later became my very good friends. At first when I began to speak to them I was afraid that I might say something stupid, and they might think that I am weird. But now I say anything that I want to because being weird, I finally realized, isn't all that bad. It just means that I am a unique person. See how being nice and friendly can reward you? My reward is having friends who are nice and friendly to me.

Am I With It?
Anonymous

"Am I with it?" I sometimes ask myself. My clothes are pretty much with it, but I could have some more with it clothes.

I am very close to my friends, I mean I care about them and everything. I care about them. I may get into little disagreements with them, but it always comes out alright. Friends are an important thing in my life, if I didn't have friends how would I work out half of my problems? I have enough friends. I don't need less, I don't need more.

Appearance is something else that isn't that important, but a little. In this school some kids rank on how you look, so I try to look good. I try to keep fit but every time I lose weight I just gain it back because I love food. I've been the same weight for a while now. Sometimes my friends just to make me feel good, say I'm pretty. When I'm told that I never know what to say, because I'm definitely mot pretty, but I'm not ugly either. I'm not one of those kids that just hates themselves for what they are. I believe if you don't give up and try new things you might just be pretty.

My problems are the last thing I want to talk about. My friends help me with half my problems, my parents help me with a quarter of my problems. And there are just some problems I would rather not discuss with anyone but myself.

"Me"
Tim Herzog

I guess I'll start this story five years ago when my father died of cancer.

It was a warm summer day when a lady came to our house. At first I thought she was another nurse, but the nurse watching my dad didn't leave. The lady went onto the porch with my family.

My mom told me I couldn't come. I watched through the glass door, but I couldn't hear a word they said.

When they came out they were sobbing. I knew it had something to do with my dad, Jim, but I didn't know what.

The next day my brother Andy and I went to Maine to visit my aunt, uncle, and cousins. We had a great time that day doing all kinds of stuff. The day after my mom called.

She said, "Tim, Jim died yesterday."

All of a sudden thousands of memories popped into my head. I remembered times like when he would take me to the softball games with his friends, and when we chewed raspberry Bubbilicious bubble gum and watched a video tape of "Bed Time for Bonzo."

Since then my mother has thought I was withdrawn from the family. It wasn't true, I had good friends who comforted me and I was usually with them.

When we moved to Cohasset I had a rotten school year. It was a big change for Mr. Popular to Mr. Unpopular. When I get depressed I eat and I gained ten pounds that year. I was picked on by several kids. Now, when somebody bugs me I beat them up, unless they're just fooling around. I have a lot more friends now. I collect comic books and watch Santa Barbara. When I grow up I am either going to be a comedian, a robot engineer of a comic book artist.

There are five people in my family. There is my mom, my brother, Dave, my brother, Andy, me, and my little brother, Nick.

Me

I don't really know how I feel about myself, most of the time, but I'll give my honest opinions. I know I'm not a beauty queen, but I also know that I'm not ugly. I think that I have a pretty and clear face, and nice natural hair. When it comes to smartness, I think that I am about average. I think that I have a good voice for singing, and dance well. I'm pretty good at making up songs, (lyrics and tunes). I also think that I write stories pretty well (except when I have to writed about how I feel about myself). I feel that at night the sky is my friend, I have a soft spot for a beautiful sight. When it comes to friends I have certain expectations that I think they should have.

Well now you know a little about how I feel about myself.

Congressional senior intern program deadline nears

The deadline is approaching for southeastern Massachusetts residents to apply to participate in this year's Congressional Senior Intern program.

The 1987 senior intern program, sponsored for local residents by Congressman Gerry Studds, will occur in Washington from May 18 to 22, and offers the opportunity to become acquainted with the federal government. The program includes a series of briefings and workshops with a wide range of federal officials, as well as work in Congressman Gerry Studds' Washington office.

The application deadline for the five-day series of briefings and workshops is April 1. A panel of Tenth District Citizens active in senior citizens' matters will review all applications received by that date.

All Tenth Congressional District residents over age 60 are eligible to apply. While financial constraints make it impossible to offer any financial compensation, past participants have found the program worthwhile, Studds said.

Anyone who wishes to apply is invited to write the Congressman a letter containing: the applicant's name, address, telephone number, a summary of past participation in community affairs or senior activities, and a few remarks about the individual's interest in the Congressional Intern Program. This letter may be addressed as follows: Congressional Senior Intern Program, U.S. Rep. Gerry E. Studds, 146 Main Street, Hyannis, MA 02601.

Further details about application procedures and the program may be directed to Studds' nearest district office in Hyannis (771-0666), Pembroke (826-3866), or New Bedford (999-1251).

Joseph Walsh, head of the science department at Boston Latin School, (second from right) was named by his student, Danielle Sullivan, as her most influential science teacher. Gov. Michael Dukakis awarded the citation to Walsh, along with Dr. Ronald Lamont-Havers of Mass. General Hospital, a sponsor in the statewide competition.

Joseph Walsh honored for science competition

Joseph Walsh of North Main Street was recently honored by Governor Michael Dukakis as part of a statewide science competition.

Walsh, head of the science department at Boston Latin School, was chosen by his science student, Danelle Sullivan, as her "most influential science teacher."

Walsh's student was selected as one of four finalists in the competition, held in conjunction with the 100th anniversary of the National Institute of Health (NIH).

A committee of medical research scientists appointed by the Governor named Sullivan a finalist based on her research in the effect of drugs on the behavioral patterns of spiders during web-making.

Walsh received both his undergraduate degree (1949) and his master's in education (1950) from Harvard University. He heads the science department at Boston Latin School.

Why play games with your retirement nest egg?

Your IRA is too important to juggle from "hot" investment to "hot" investment.

Opening an IRA at The Hibernia Savings Bank gives you plenty of choices—12 different Term Certificates that guarantee your return for anywhere from 31 days to 60 months. And because we're members of both FDIC and DIFM, your entire IRA is protected from loss—whether it contains $500 or $5 million.

So bring your nest egg to The Hibernia Savings Bank. And the next time the market swoons (or bonds bomb) you'll be sitting pretty—while everyone else is scrambling.

National Science League

The students of Mr. Cisneros' 7th and 8th grade honors science classes have been participating in the National Science League Competition this year.

Each month for the past four months, students have been administered a test that covers three areas of science: earth science, physical science and life science. East test consists of 10 questions, many of which contain multiple parts. For an answer to be acceptable, all parts of the answer must be correct. The top five scores for the classes are totaled and then sent to the NSL in Florida.

Well over 400 schools participate in this competition each year.

After three contests the results are as follows:

Michael Cisneros, with a cumulative score of 23, was tied for first place in the Northeast Region and had the seventh highest total nationwide.

John Manning with a cumulative score or 18, ranked third in the Northeast Region and had the twelfth highest total nationwide.

As a school, Cohasset was ranked third in the Northeast Region and seventeenth nationwide.

Top scores for contest IV just recently held were: first - Michael Cisneros, 8 points; second - Katie McNamara, 6 points; Caleb Slotnik, 6 points; Amy Russell, 6 points; Tara Volungis, 6 points.

Congratulations to all for a fine showing!

Help!

Osgood School needs the following contributions and donations - The Special Needs Classroom is looking for a donation of an old electric typewriter for the children . . . a very kind and generous parent has donated a computer for a kindergarten class. We now need a donation of a computer monitor or old television set for this class and a contribution of approximately 75 empty, plastic strawberry cartons (pint size). If you can help in any way . . please contact Ilene at the Osgood office.

Blood Drive reminder

CHS will sponsor an American Red Cross Blood Drive Monday, March 30 in the upstairs gym from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Anyone wishing to donate may sign up in the CHS Health Room. Students must be 18, or 17 years old with parental permission.

Parents, teachers and any other interested persons wishing to donate may drop in at their convenience. It's a heartwarming experience.

Tune in Now

The Cohasset High School Audio Visual department is going full blast this year. Many career speakers have been filmed for your viewing pleasure on Channel 3 -including Jim Boyd (newscaster), Ernest Grassie (CPA), Roger Craft's (computer business), and others!!! Upcoming at Cohasset High is senior Ned Gray's "Drum Talk" show where you can learn everything you ever wanted to know about drums and more! Check Cable Channel 3 for schedules.

Art and Music combines

Tuesday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m. a very exciting collaboration between the Art and Music Department at CHS will take place.

"An Evening of Art and Music" - a multi media event involving our 60 students.

Don't miss this unusual blending of the arts.

Beaux Arts Ball at CHS will be held April 14 from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. What will you be?

Capitol visit

Two Cohasset High School juniors, Joe Mazza and Jay Marsac and their advisor Edward F. Sheehan, visited the State House in Boston Wednesday, March 18 as part of the Commonwealth's Student Government Day Program.

Friday, April 3 Joe Mazza will "replace" Senator William Golden of the Norfolk-Plymouth District. Jay Marsac will serve as Joe's backup delegate. Joe was recently assigned to the position of student chairman of the Senate Public Services Committee.

During the orientation ceremonies on March 18 the three Cohasset visitors attended Committee hearings being conducted by The House Ways and Means Committee and The Joint House-Senate Education Committee.

One of their memorable experiences was a visit with Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset, the area representative from the Third Plymouth District.

Super swimmers

Bobby Meehan and Emily Henderson from Mrs. DeBenedetto's second grade class won first place in a Massachusetts Maritime Academy swim meet.

Chorus and Clarinet

The following students were accepted to JR SEMSBA (South East Massachusetts Student Band Association) festival chorus: Karla Kristiansen, Katie McNamara, Maggie Moore, Ali Welz and John Gaston. Cohasset High School hosted the auditions on Feb. 28. Schools from all over the South Shore participated in these auditions, The concert festival will be in Apponequet the weekend of May 1.

Special congratulations go out to Amy Crafts for being selected to perform with the Junior High SEMSBA orchestra. Amy, a seventh grade clarinet player had the second best score out of the 25 towns auditioning.

This was Amy's first audition, if she can do this well on her first try, just think what's in store for the future! Keep up the hard work. We're all proud!

Congratulations to all!

South Shore growth reflects rapid development

By Kelly Williams
Mariner Staff

The South Shore is rapidly becoming an employment center and will face tremendous increases in traffic, transportation, waste disposal, and housing problems, according to the South Shore Coalition.

"The character of our communities is changing drastically," coalition Chairman Janet O'Brien said. "We are becoming an employment center."

O'Brien, who is a Hanover selectman, said the South Shore is no longer a bedroom community, but a place of economic and employment growth.

"Businesses are beginning to spring up on the South Shore and people are now beginning to come from other towns to work here."

According to a 76-page statistical profile of the 10 communities in the coalition, the number of people employed in full-time non-government jobs has increased 59 percent in the last 10 years.

In 1970 there were 21,100 people employed in the private sector, but in 1980 the rate jumped up to 35,874.

Although the employment rate is increasing rapidly, the population of the 10 communities has only increased 10 percent from 163,279 in 1970 to 180,022 in 1980.

Duxbury and Marshfield have seen the highest growth in population. In the last 10 years, Duxbury has grown 54.6 percent and Marshfield has grown 37.4 percent.

Non-residential development in the 10 communities is also growing rapidly. Since 1984, some 2.5 million square feet of floor space have been taken over by businesses.

The community profile, prepared by coalition project manager and MAPC representative Jean Christensen, will help members understand the problems facing their communities.

The major issue the coalition will study is waste disposal.

"Waste disposal is the number one issue facing the coalition because of the increase in tonnage," O'Brien said. "It's not going away, it's there and it's growing larger and larger."

Another problem facing the communities is affordable housing.

In 1985, the cost of homes increased as high as 48 percent in some South Shore communities. According to the coalition report, Hanover saw a cost increase of 41 percent between 1985 and 1986. Hingham saw an increase of 43 percent, Norwell increased 36 percent, but the cost of Marshfield homes only increased 16 percent. Both Weymouth and Scituate saw increased home costs of 31 percent.

O'Brien said the coalition's next step will be to hear from the different subcommittees and find solutions to the problems.

Marshfield selectman James Finucane said all 10 communities will have to work together to solve the problems that face the South Shore.

"I would like to see communities coming together to create something meaningful that will solve the problems we all face," he said. "We've spent all this time identifying the problems, now let's get on with it. Let's do something."

Coalition has 45 days before funds run out

The South Shore Coalition will run out of money to operate in 45 days if the state fails to come through with funding.

Jean Christensen, MAPC representative and project manager on the board, told the coalition last week that she cannot guarantee the state will continue to finance the 10-town organization.

"We have 45 days and we're history, is that what you're telling us?" Marshfield Selectman James Finucane asked Christensen.

Christensen said MAPC is working with Sen. William Golden to get funds for the coalition from Congress, but noted that she is uncertain what the outcome would be. She said the coalition would need at least $50,000 to continue its efforts and emphasized it may have to look toward planning grants for the money.

"But Senator Golden has promised us the money," Finucane said. "We were assured the money was coming to maintain this committee. That was part of the agreement."

Finucane said Marshfield selectmen will ask town meeting to help support the coalition, but said he would feel uncomfortable having to approach them for more money.

"We're talking about something that was never intended for Marshfield," he said.

He said the 10 communities agreed to approach their towns for $1,000 each as a gesture of support and not a way to pay for the coalition. The rest of the money was to be supplied by the state.

Without state funding the coalition will have a $40,000 shortfall.

"There's no gap as far as Marshfield is concerned," Finucane said. "We've delivered."

David Soule, executive director of MAPC, told the coalition the state promised funds to the coalition with the understanding that the state funding would eventually be phased out. He said the board may have to look towards local businesses or other communities for additional money.

Soule said he was uncertain what planning grants would be available to the coalition because the guidelines for them have not yet been released. If the coalition does apply for the grants, he said there was no guarantee they would be awarded.

"You will need to make a very strong case," he said.

Soule said the state would probably continue to fund the coalition since it had received so much support in the past.

The coalition agreed to look into a better budgeting system and to seek other sources of revenue if the state doesn't come through.

"I would be surprised if by July 1 we don't receive the funds for what we've accomplished," said Hanover Selectman Janet O'Brien, who is coalition chairman. "We've accomplished more than they asked."

Second Congregational Church

Minister: Gary A. Ritts, Secretary: Muriel Wheelwright, Office Phone: 383-0345; Parsonage Phone: 383-1422; Office hours: Monday though Friday, 9 a.m. to noon.

COTTAGE MEETINGS — are now complete! The Deacons are certainly to be commended for their enthusiastic leadership. And Muriel for her superb coordinating and administrating "gifts." A warmest thank you to our host couples: The Silvias, Lyons, Parmenters, Sandbloms, Campbells, Nedrows, Hislops and Proodians and their most worthy assistants. In all, we brought together over 140 people! Many strengths and some good ideas came out of our sharing time. Some of these thoughts will be brought forward in Gary's sermons for the 22nd and 29th. Then, in the spring (when it gets here!), the Church Committee will take a Saturday to review and plan for our mutual ministries for '87-'88 and beyond. Again, Thank You, one and all!

QUINCY CRISIS CENTER — is certainly blessed in the devoted leadership of Esther Sanger. Our clothing and non-perishable food drive will continue through the month of March, so do remember them in your early spring cleaning efforts and drop items off at our newly established "Crisis Corner" in Bates Hall.

YOUTH NEWS — The TFTC (11th and 12th graders) had a full-filling time on their "Mexican Style Progressive Dinner" last weekend (3/13)! At dessert they began preparations for our Easter Sunrise Service (4/19) to be held on Sandy Beach at 7 a.m. Planning meeting: Monday, March 30, 6-7:30 p.m. in the Pastor's study. Pizza included, bring $3.

In conjunction, the 7th-10th graders will be putting on a Pancake Breakfast in Bates Hall from 8 to 9:30 a.m. (Easter Sunday).

Saint Anthony's Parish

Rev. John J. Keohane, Pastor, Rectory: 383-0219; Sister Mary F. Hurld, S.N.D., Minister of Music, 749-4727 (after 3 p.m.); Jean Lennon, CCD Coordinator, CCD Office: 383-0630, Tues. & Fri. 9 a.m.-12 p.m.

Sunday Masses: 8, 9:30, 11:30 a.m., Saturday: 5 p.m., Daily Mass: 7 a.m., Saturday: 8 a.m. followed by Novena & Rosary. Mass every Friday during Lent at 5 p.m., Confessions: Saturday from 4:15-4:45 p.m.

Baptisms: Owen Kirkbride, Terrence, Reardon, Andrea Silvia.

Banns of Marriage: Mark T. Feltrup-Robin A. Godfrey.

Confirmation —

Classes will meet as usual on Tuesday and Wednesday this week (no Sunday class). Last rehearsal is Thursday, March 26, 7-8:30 p.m. Robes may be taken home after rehearsal.

Conference on Spirituality —

"Journey to Light" will be held at Notre Dame Academy, Hingham, Saturday, March 28. Fr. Stephen Doyle, O.F.M. will be the keynote speaker and 9 workshops on prayer, faith development and spirituality will be offered. For information, call CHRISM at 3531-5194.

First Parish

Canvass Dinner April 11

The Canvass Committee has scheduled the Kick-Off Canvass Dinner for Saturday evening, April 11th beginning with wine and cheese at Trueblood Hall followed by dinner at homes of members of the Parish. Be sure to set aside the date now! Committee Co-Chairs Jack Martin and Bobby Leary report that the Planning Committee for the Canvass has now been recruited and within the next week, the Vice-Chairperson will be seeking volunteers for their Canvass teams. Please help out if you are called. Many hands make light work and will insure the success of the Canvass this year.

Ministerial Relations Committee

At their recent meeting the Ministerial Relations Committee discussed the area of parish calls by the minister. The committee felt that parish calling should be given a high priority by the minister in that it provides an essential personal contact between the minister and individual members of the church. It was suggested that the minister allocate at least one evening a week to parish calls and that it is best to set calls up at least a week in advance. It was also agreed that members of the church should be encouraged to let the minister know if they would like to receive a call by contacting the church office. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekday mornings 383-1100. There need be no special reason for a call other than keeping in touch.

At the May meeting the Committee will be discussing the work of the minister in Church Administration. Your thoughts on this responsibility or any other issue of concern are welcome by the committee. The members are: Dorothy Booth 383-0835. Colin Studds 383-6956, and Jack Martin 383-6577.

Congratulations to: Megan and Bill Phelps on the birth of their son William Tyler and Arnold and Alice Weeks on ther 67th wedding anniversary!!!

Ben Tousley in Concert at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Weymouth, 83 Sea St. Friday, March 20 from 8 to 10 p.m. Tickets are $3 at the door. For further information, call Agnes Pompeo, 331-2120.

Jean Redpath Concert in Duxbury

The First Parish Church of Duxbury will sponsor a concert by Scottish folksinger Jean Redpath on Saturday, April 4 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $8, $7 for students and senior citizens. Call 934-2279 or 2467 for additional information.

Beechwood services

The Beechwood Congregational Church welcomes everyone to worship Sunday at 10:45 a.m. The Pastor is Stephen S. J. Hall. Child care is provided.

The Sunday School meets from 9:30-10:30 a.m. Children in grades K-8 are invited to attend. Friends are always welcome.

Wednesday, March 25 the church will hold its annual "Election Supper" at 6:30 p.m. A roast beef dinner is planned and many of the candidates running for office will be there for you to meet before and after the dinner. Where else could you go out to dinner with a room full of political aspirants and not have to listen to one speech?! Price of the dinner is $5.99 call 383-0211 for reservations.

Ladies night out Tuesday nights are reserved for ladies night out. What ever the reason, kids, husbands, housework, run away to the church for adult company with friends and refreshments 8 p.m.

A memorial service was held for family and friends of Theodore Ludwin this past Sunday. Music was provided by the kindness of Armen Milton.

Two potted palm plants were dedicated to the church in honor of Pastors emeriti Rev. Wm. Sewell and Rev. Robert Campbell. They are helping to add to the beauty of the church during the Lenten season.

The youth group went bowling and out for pizza Sunday night. Everyone had a great time. We would like to see this group grow in numbers. Any youths in grades 7-12 are welcome to attend. A sleep over is planned in April. For further information call the church Saturday mornings between 9 a.m. and noon, 383-0808.

Phone numbers, church, 383-0808. Pastor Hall, 545-3810 (home), 545-6800.

Mrs. Gladys Patterson is a patient at South Shore Hospital recovering from surgery.

Starting April 1, 1987, Medicare eye care coverage is changing.

Under the new law, Medicare will pay for eye health care services provided by the nation's 24,500 practicing optometrists. In the past, only ophthalmologists' services were covered, unless the patient had undergone cataract surgery.

"This new law puts an end to forcing older adults to choose between changing doctors to get Medicare eye care coverage or staying with their optometrist and paying for the care out of their own pockets. Until now, the Medicare law, in effect, denied older Americans their freedom of choice of eye care practitioner," said David Ferris, O.C., Warwick, RI, president of the American Optometric Association (AOA).

Dr. Ferris added that the new law also "will be a major benefit for older adults by increasing competition and access to eye care." Dr. Ferris noted that optometrists are located in approximately 6,600 cities and are the only providers of primary care in more than 4,100 of them.

Eye care services covered by Medicare are the eye health part of an eye examination, when the patient has a symptom or complaint which necessitated the visit; treatment for eye disease; and, for those who have had cataract surgery, glasses or contact lenses. Medicare still does not cover other prescription glasses or contact lenses and the part of eye examinations to determine any lens prescription.

Registrations will be accepted at the Cohasset Recreation Department office for a youth soccer camp for boys and girls aged 6 to 19 years. The camp will be conducted by North American Soccer Camps, Inc. Camp provides professional British Soccer Coaches who instruct in skills for all ability levels. There is one coach per fifteen players. The quality of instruction is unsurpassed by any camp that we are aware of.

Any Cohasset residents who meet age requirements and non-residents are eligible to participate. The program will begin on Monday, August 17 through Saturday, August 22, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Milliken Field.

Deadline for registrations will be Wednesday, April 29. Payments are to be made by check to Town of Cohasset. A deposit of $25 must be made at the time of registration. Parents must complete registration form at Recreation office.

Fees are: $79.00, first child in family; $74.00, second child in family; $69.00, third child in family and any additional siblings enrolled.

North American Soccer Camps, Inc. will also conduct two evening clinics from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., for coaches and adults during the week of camp. There is no fee for these clinics and all present and future coaches and interested parents are welcome. Dates of clinics to be announced.

Youth Job Opportunity Program

Each year the recreation department receives a number of calls from residents who need various yard work help and babysitting.

Any Cohasset youth who feels they might be interested in mowing lawns, babysitting or performing odd jobs, may come to the recreation office and complete a job opportunity application form. Once the form is filed with us, we will refer you to the various jobs. Last year there were far more job opportunities than applicants to fill the jobs, so you're chances of picking up some part-time work are good.

The recreation department acts as a clearing house for jobs/workers. Individual employees and employers will workout scheduling of hours, hourly pay rates, etc.

Cohasset Heights comes within a vote of shutdown

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The embattled commercial landfill on Crocker Lane will face its greatest challenge by Cohasset's board of health in two weeks. The threat of a shut-down is imminent.

There was standing room only Monday night in the Rotary Hall atop the Bates building at 43 Elm Street, as concerned citizens gathered to push for the closure of a dump many of them consider a threat to their public water supply at Lily Pond.

The health board came to within a vote of shutting down the Cohasset Heights landfill, before it acquiesced to "due process" and set another public hearing date for April 13.

While the dump was not shut down during the Monday night hearing, the threat of such action was strengthened on three fronts.

First, the board's attorney, Michael Leon rendered a negative assessment of the landfill's insurance coverage.

Second, concerned citizens introduced a videotape which showed pollution flowing from the landfill into an adjacent swamp.

Third, state Senator William Golden informed the board that volatile organics were found in air samples taken from the dump.

Those issues will be addressed in greater detail at the hearing April 13.

Monday's session was called for the purpose of amending the site assignment to impose greater restrictions on the landfill's operation.

The amendments included an increase in the tipping fees paid to the town from 50 cents to $2.50 per ton and an order to abate the pollution of air and water surrounding the site. The board also voted to get detailed specifications of a proposed $15,000 engineering job from its engineers Camp, Dresser and McKee.

With regard to the tipping fee, board chairman

Chorus honored by Florida invitation

With a song in their hearts, and a big send-off by their teachers and students, members of the Cohasset High School chorus took off this morning on a trip they will never forget.

Thirty-one members of the high school choral group jetted their way to Florida's Disney World, selected among international applicants to perform at the Epcot Center.

Music director Bryan Marks admitted, "I don't think the importance of this has actually set in yet. Once they get down there, I think they'll realize how wonderful this really is."

Not that they haven't had time. The application process actually first began last year when Marks received a letter from a travel agency stating he could check out tours of Disneyland for two days at a nominal price. The deal, Marks recalled, was "too good to be true." When student John Perreira suggested he take them up on the offer, Marks agreed.

It was too good, he discovered, but one student suggested he look into a package deal for the Florida-based Disney World, a closer destination.

"I started the search then, and it all ended by this past October. It was a lot of work, but I think we've ended up with something the students will remember all their lives," Marks added.

The students left early this morning from the high school. They are scheduled to perform Saturday, April 4 at the entertainment center at SeaWorld. They will have

Tedeschi plans more stores at plaza

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Tedeschi Realty Corp., owners of the Rte. 3A plaza where Stop and Shop is now located, plans a major renovation of the center once the supermarket vacates the property.

Tedeschi Realty is in the midst of negotiations with Stop and Shop to terminate the grocery store's lease which runs until June, 1991. The store plans to relocate further north on Rte 3A where construction of a 40,000 square foot super-supermarket is underway. Completion of the new store is expected by the end of the year.

According to Timothy Tedeschi, vice president of Tedeschi Realty Corp., once negotiations are completed, the company will seek leases with at least three smaller stores to locate within the former Stop and Shop area.

"It's the same thing we did in Hanover when Stop and Shop moved from our plaza there into Pembroke. We spent more than a million dollars renovating the plaza and fitting a few smaller stores into the center," he said.

Once negotiations with Stop and Shop are finalized, major rehabilitation work will begin at the Rte 3A plaza, he said, which will include dividing the 30,000 square foot store into two or three smaller retail outlets.

"At this point, we have no idea what kinds of stores will be located there," he said. "Even though we haven't

A day of tradition between race rivals

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

While others are making practice runs, eating properly, and exercising, there are others who only fantasize about doing so.

The owners of Cohasset Liquors and the Good Sport stores fall into that latter category. For while the racers gear up for Sunday's Race by the Sea, Peter Logan and Austin Lyne are busily preparing for a private competition.

Peter Logan and Andy Hiler of the Rte 3A liquor store have their own race record to maintain. Lyne is hungry to steal it away. Although no officials records can substantiate this, and even the competitors disagree, the team competition within the annual roadrace has been the territory of Cohasset Liquors for the past six years or so. For at least that long, the Rte 3A store has won the coveted team competition trophy, an honor shared with unabashed pride by Logan and Hiler though the pair has never so much as skipped along the 6.2 mile course.

This year, Cohasset Liquors is more determined than ever to leave the team trophy within the hallowed walls of that store. "We're so confident of victory this Sunday," Hiler predicted, "that we are having a trophy made of an outhouse for the number two team. The consolation prize will be available to the viewing public at Good Sport following the race."

To which store owner Lyne answered, "ha!"

He added, "This is our year. We have a couple of secret weapons for the race this week. We're confident of victory."

Although difficult to believe as the hour fast approaches, this is a friendly competition between close friends. It started several years ago, almost as a natural

Town Meeting April 4

The annual town meeting is set to begin Saturday, April 4 at 10 a.m. in the high school auditorium. That is a new starting time.

A quorum of 100 residents is needed to begin the meeting. There will likely be a lunch break about 1 p.m. At that time, the Boy Scouts will be selling refreshments and lunch at the high school. After lunch, town meeting will resume until approximately 5 p.m. If an additional session of town meeting is necessary, it will be held Monday night.

A special town meeting will be convened within the annual meeting. The special town meeting will include about a dozen warrant articles. Among those issues to be decided within the special town meeting will be a request for $16,761 for the preparation of plans for the renovation of Milliken Field, a transfer $15,500 for sewer treatment plant contracted services, and a transfer of money to pay legal fees for the town's defense against Cohasset Heights Ltd.

Cohasset's week . . .

Barn's new owner

A Jerusalem Road couple has taken the Community Center up on their offer, and is now the proud owner of a barn.

Beginning this week, the Cox family of 554 Jerusalem Road will begin the arduous job of numbering all the pieces of the 1,400 square foot barn. Once every piece is numbered, and all the unuseable parts are disposed, the Cox's will begin the actual dissesembly.

The Community Center is planning an extensive renovation and expansion project. The barn will not be used in the project, and the center offered it to anyone willing to take it off the premises. The Cox's have a barn foundation on their two acres of land, and were in the market for a barn to place upon it.

According to Judy Volungis, office manager at the center, the Cox's have looked far and wide and all the way to Vermont, for an affordable barn to put in their yard.

The Community Center barn, which features many horse stalls with authentic wide pine wood, wasn't looking for a profit - just for someone to get it off the land.

"It really has a lot of really neat wood inside it," Volungis said. "But it's going to take a lot of work to get it reassembled."

Sewer plan reconsidered

At their Monday night meeting, Selectman Cliff Mitman asked that a previous vote taken by selectmen regarding endorsement of the Ward sewer plan be reconsidered. Mitman was away from town when the vote was taken two weeks ago. At that time, selectmen voted, by a 2-1 margin, not to recommend that town meeting approve Article 44 in the warrant.

That article requests that town meeting approve the amended version of the Ward sewer plan which was recently approved by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE). It also request an appropriation of $360,000 for the design of the amended plan.

At selectmen's meeting two weeks ago, selectmen Rocco Laugelle and James Gallagher voted not to recommend the article at town meeting. Selectman Diane Sullivan endorsed the plan.

Monday, Mitman asked that selectmen reconsider the vote, and that he be allowed to vote on the article. Laugelle and Gallagher refused to support the motion to reconsider. When Mitman stated that he was therefore not allowed his right to vote on the matter, selectman Gallagher said he would rethink the matter of reconsideration and discuss it again at selectmen's meeting Saturday, April 4 at 9 a.m.

Overlay maps needed

Beach Street resident Jeanne Gormley informed selectmen and members of the advisory committee that until the town secures accurate high-standard base and overlay maps of the town, town meeting should not vote on article 21 at the town meeting.

Gormley said voters will be asked to endorse the establishment of eight zoning districts, based on overlay district maps that she has been unable to procure. According to Gormley, there seems to be no overlay district maps of Cohasset available for public viewing.

"Until such time as accurate overlay and base maps have been provided and publicly reviewed prior to acceptance by the town, I do not believe that the two overlay zoning districts can or should be considered valid. This is especially true in view of past difficulties experienced and the potential for future problems if overlay maps do not fit or do not match assessors' maps and deed descriptions," she wrote to selectmen.

Gormley stated that the town continues to use an old, flawed floodplain and watershed protection district map last revised in 1976. And the town's zoning district map needs to be reviewed and studied, she suggested.

Vo-Tech corrections

The Cohasset Mariner published the incorrect figures regarding the town's assessment for its participation in the South Shore Regional School District.

The cost in 1987 to participate in the South Shore vocational high school was $32,292. The assessment for 1988 will be $24,187. According to David Chittim, Cohasset's representative to the VoTech school committee, that is a reduction of $12,105 or 33.4 percent from the current year.

Town Meeting April 4. . .

Within the annual town meeting, voters will be asked to appropriate an additional $360,000 for the design of plans for the amended Ward sewer plan.

The school department will request $300,000 for the renovation of seven science labs at the high school, and $200,000 for the replacement of windows at the high school.

Voters will also be asked to support an article which requests that selectmen, and board of health and water commission members work to close down Cohasset Heights landfill.

Barrier beach land

The Department of the Interior has designated 1.4 million of acres of undeveloped tideland as barrier beach, making it ineligible for federally-funded projects such as roads, bridges, dredging projects, sewer systems or water lines.

This program would also prohibit federal flood insurance in these areas.

The proposed map expands an earlier coastal map designating 453,000 acres as environmentally fragile areas, including 95,000 acres along the Massachusetts coast.

Already, the bay areas in Plymouth, Kingston and Duxbury as well as Duxbury Beach and Plymouth Beach are included.

However, Clark's Island, Gurnet Point and Saquish Neck have been excluded because those areas are already developed.

In addition, The Glades, a 19-acre peninsula in North Scituate which juts into Cohasset Harbor, acreage near Mann Hill Beach in Scituate and Rivermoor, adjacent to Scituate's Third Cliff, are already designated as coastal barrier resources.

Also designated is the U.S Air Force recreational facility on Fourth Cliff and a small portion of land in the area of the Rexhame Dunes in Marshfield has been included.

The new recommendations were released last week, according to U.S. Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Cohasset. He is distributing details of the new coastline protections to each town in his district.

Citizens may send their written comments on the proposed new maps during the next 90 days to the Coastal Barriers Study Group, Department of the Interior, P.O. Box 37127, Washington, D.C. 20013-7127.

Studds had supported the original legislation in 1982. "The very sensible idea was that the federal government ought not to spend taxpayer dollars subsidizing development in coastal areas where development should not occur," said Studds.

He said the House subcommittee on fisheries and wildlife conservation and the environment, of which he is chairman, will hold extensive hearings on the proposal after the Interior Department reviews the public comments.

He is forwarding a set of all proposed changes in Massachusetts to the town halls in his district.

DEQE to investigate 3A spill

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

The state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) and the local board of health are looking into a possible oil spill along Rte. 3A near Crocker Lane.

The fire department was called last week to the Frank Williams' property along Chief Justice Cushing Highway for an inspection of two abandoned fuel oil tanks. The board had ordered the two diesel fuel tanks, which were no longer used by Anderson Oil Co. of Scituate, to be removed from the property. The fire department must oversee the removal process and must issue a permit to remove the tanks.

The possible oil spill was discovered two weeks ago by David Gordon Associates, engineers hired by Cohasset Heights Ltd. to locate a source of an odor believed to eminate from the commercial landfill. During an inspection of the area, the engineers noticed a brown-colored mixture of water located on an easement of land through the Williams' property which is used by the state Department of Public Works.

Health Agent Joseph Godzik observed the site and called in the state DEQE to determine where the oil originated. The state has not yet determined where the oil came from, nor how long it had been on the site. According to Dr. Godzik, the oil apparently has traveled from the culvert across the street to wetlands located near Alco Oil Co. "At this point," he said, "we don't know who is responsible for this, nor how long it has been going on. It may be just a single spill, or it may even be a contributing cause of the odor smelled near the landfill area."

The health agent said although the spill would likely be too small to be the sole cause of the odor problem, several people have testified the Rte. 3A odor problem often has an oily smell. "I'm just guessing at this point, but perhaps the odor is a combination of this oil, together with leachate and marsh gas. It may be different things mixed together. But this is purely speculative at this point," he concluded.

The oil may be caused by heating oil tanks owned by Anderson Oil Co. which were stored on the Williams' property. The problem may have been caused, Dr. Godzik noted, by a leak in the tanks over a period of years. Then there is a possibility it could have migrated across the wetlands, causing possible contamination through the wetlands to the golf course and North Main Street area.

Currently, there has been no clean-up ordered until the state determines the source of the spill. Once a source is found, then it can also be determined how extensive the oil contamination is, and a thorough cleaning procedure will be ordered by the state, Dr. Godzik said. "The question is now, is it on several different properties, and how did it get there?" he asked.

There is currently no clean-up procedures being followed. "There is no health problem there now, because it is not near any water supply," he added. "Eventually, if it got into the swamp behind Alco Oil, it could possibly contaminate the four wells on North Main Street, but that is a very long way away."

The state DEQE has the authority to order a clean-up. But because the procedure is extensive and costly, the cause of the spill must first be determined and someone must be held financially accountable. "It could mean dredging the wetlands and removal of the land there. It would involve quite a bit of money, so the state wants to be sure what caused this before they start demanding it be cleaned up," Dr. Godzik said.

Election one-way traffic

Town Clerk Frances Marks requested that selectmen enforce one-way traffic around town hall during the Saturday, April 11 town election.

As in previous elections, Marks requested that traffic be limited to one-way from Robert Jason Road to Highland Avenue and exit only from Long Road and the upper part of Highland Avenue.

"This was an excellent system at the November 4, 1986 state election and I feel it should be enforced at every election," Marks recommended to selectmen.

The traffic route will be in effect for the April 11 election.

RE-ELECT EDWARD M. 'TED' GUILD Sewer Commissioner

IT'S YOUR MONEY

During my service on the Sewer Commission I have worked to solve our waste water disposal problems and protect the public health while ensuring that the solution is comprehensive and affordable within the limits of Proposition 2-1/2.

The Town's disposal plan—The Ward Plan—will

- Correct our discharge permit violation.
- Protect the public health.
- Solve waste water disposal problems in the most densely populated areas.
- Provide financial assistance to solve waste water problems outside of the central sewer service area.

IT'S YOUR TOWN

Cohasset is a unique place. We must insist that today's solutions to our waste water problems do not destroy our special community for tomorrow. Massive central sewering invariably leads to the extension of urban sprawl and, with it, an assault on natural beauty.

The Town's plan, recently approved by the State, will preserve—for us and for future generations—Cohasset as we know it today.

MY EXPERIENCE

I offer four years experience on the Sewer Commission and a 30 year business career at Ionics, Inc. of Watertown, where I am presently a Vice President. I have regularly handled complex contract negotiations with governments, industry and consulting engineers.

At a time when Cohasset is about to embark on by far the most costly project in its history, I believe my extensive experience will benefit the Commission and the taxpayers. This project is a complicated and costly endeavor. It will require knowledge, ability and dedication to see it through.

I pledge to continue my full commitment towards the completion of this project.

Dogs roam streets while town is without officer

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The canines of Cohasset are roaming free and fearless, frolicking in the absence of town animal control.

But while the pooches may be enjoying themselves, the lack of an animal control officer and the recent resignation of the disposer of dead animals have put a strain on other town departments.

According to Town Clerk Francis Marks 427 dogs have been licensed in Cohasset so far this year. Last year, 711 dogs were licensed in the town. "I'm sure there are a lot more," she said.

Sgt. Brian Noonan of the Cohasset Police Dept. said he and his colleagues respond to an average of 12 animal-related calls per week and more go unanswered.

"We can respond to any emergency situation," he noted. "If there is a dog bite or a problem at one of the schools we will go out."

A dozen calls may not seem like much, but every time an animal gets into a tree or into a house where it doesn't belong, Noonan said, a cruiser is taken out of service for 10 to 20 minutes. "It interferes with police service to the town, because it takes a cruiser off its regular patrol route."

The police are limited in how they can respond to animal complaints because dogs are not allowed in the patrol cars. Long-term problems are handed over to the selectmen.

"We don't like to refer these things to the selectmen," he explained, "but they are the ones who appoint the dog officer. Our hands are tied. Of course, any call we feel we can answer, we do."

The selectmen have not gotten around to replacing Richard Yocum, who resigned as Cohasset's animal control officer January 26.

According to Donald Andrew, the selectmen's executive secretary, one applicant has applied for the position after several weeks of advertising by the town. "The board expects to deal with this situation in the next few weeks."

Until now, Andrew said, Cohasset has relied on the towns of Hingham, Hull and Scituate for assistance. "They have been very cooperative."

Joseph Laugelle, supervisor of the Cedar Street landfill now doubles as part-time disposer of dead animals. He has served in that capacity since Brian Cogill Jr. resigned the post.

Laugelle said he handles about 25 dead animals per month. "It's not a very pleasant job."

This time of year, he noted, he's mostly scraping squirrels and opossums off the pavement. In the fall, there are more skunks and cats. "When a dog gets hit, it is usually buried by the owner."

Laugelle said he is doing the town a favor and will continue his duties until an animal control officer is hired.

"If he can handle the live ones, he should have no problems handling the dead ones," he said.

Despite the town's dog dilemma, the canine's natural prey have passed through the streets of Cohasset unbitten for the past year. Postmaster James Hooley commented, "We've been very lucky; we haven't had any dog incidences for a year."

Hooley said the Cohasset mail carriers "have areas we have to watch. The only one real problem we have is at Elm Court."

The mail carriers have promulgated an awareness program to deal with the threat, he explained. It involves keeping cards on problem areas.

"If that dog is out on Elm Court," Hooley said, "we don't deliver to that end of the street. The only problem we have in Cohasset," Hooley said, "is that they don't enforce leash laws and dogs are loose constantly."

'The Shadow Box' set for May 1-3

Harry Heineman is directing Michael Cristofer's The Shadow Box, the spring production of the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

The dates for the play are May 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. and May 3 at 2 p.m. in the Cohasset Town Hall. Tickets are $4.

Heineman has been a member of the Club for over 20 years and active as actor, director and President (1980-1981).

Before moving to the South Shore, he acted and directed with The Belmont Dramatic Club, which performed Nothing So Imperfect, an original musical for which Harry wrote the book and lyrics.

He was active in The Old Scituate Theater Guild and to his credit directed the group in Neil Simon's Come Blow Your Horn and Outward Bound.

His acting roles with the Cohasset Dramatic Club include the Dauphin in Joan of Lorraine, Jack in Albee's Everything In the Garden, Marley's Ghost in The Christmas Carol, the butler in Agatha Christie's The Hollow, and The White Rabbit in last fall's Alice In Wonderland. Harry was also in Gurney's Scenes From American Life and played the title role in Chekhov's Uncle Vanya.

Plays that he has directed for the C.D.C. are: A Thousand Clowns, The Children's Hour, and the Club's bicentennial production, of Our Town, Sly Fox and Forty Carats.

Heineman is pleased with the cast he has assembled for Shadow Box — Hall MacLaughlin, Susie Lawler, Jay Staunton, Bob Lanctot, Eddie Fee, Virginia Dowling, Fran MacLaughlin, Celia Tyll, and Tom Pierce.

solicited any business, we have already heard from several stores which would like to locate there. It's a prime business area, and we have no intention of letting it remain empty once Stop and Shop leaves."

It has been rumored that Purity Supreme supermarket is interested in the Rte 3A location. But Purity spokesman Michael Mahoney said, "I won't confirm or deny that report. I simply have not heard of that one."

Tedeschi said, "At this point, we are not negotiating with any grocery chain. I doubt if another supermarket would want to locate there with the competition right down the street."

He added, "Once Stop and Shop leaves, we absolutely have no intention of boarding up the place. It's too valuable a piece of property. It does not pay for us to have Stop and Shop keep their lease and to empty the building. We want to come up with some arrangement to tear up their lease and begin work on a new and better plaza."

The company vice president added that the remaining tenants, Cohasset Jewelers, Quincy Savings Bank, Woolworth's and Noble Camera Shop, will stay at the plaza. In addition to dividing the supermarket space into smaller store areas, Tedeschi said the corporation plans to construct a new face to the building, a new roof, resurface the parking lot, install new doors to the front entrance of the stores, and landscape the property.

"I imagine we'll do just what we did in Hanover and spend about a million dollars totally renovating the place. We will not leave it boarded up and empty, that's for sure," he stated.

The Tedeschi Plaza was constructed in 1961. Since that time, Stop and Shop has been located at the Rte. 3A shopping center.

Recreation Department report. . .

YOUTH JOB OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM

Each year the Recreation Department receives a number of calls from residents who need various yard work help and babysitting. Any Cohasset youth who feels they might be interested in mowing lawns, babysitting, or performing odd jobs, may come to the Recreation office and complete a job opportunity application form. Once the form is filed with us, we will refer you to the various jobs as they are called into the Recreation office. Last year there were far more job opportunities than applicants to fill the jobs, so your chances of picking up some part-time work are good.

The recreation department acts as a clearing house for jobs/workers. Individual employees and employers will workout scheduling of hours, hourly pay rates, etc. This program is ideal for younger teenagers who may want to work a few hours per week during the spring, summer and fall.

Summer Recreation Positions

Applications are now being accepted for summer playground program and youth tennis positions. If you are at least 18 years of age and have some prior experience working with children or teaching tennis, please call the recreation office for details.

Game Time Program

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for a Game Time/After School Sports program for children in grades three through 5.

The fee for the program will be $10 per participant with a 50 percent discount offered for the second and subsequent children from the same family. The program conducted by recreation department staff will be held at the Deer Hill School gym, Friday afternoons from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

To register, please call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791. Class size will be limited and registrations will be accepted on a first-call-first-enrolled basis.

The Cohasset Recreation Department will offer three levels of instruction for Dog Obedience Classes to be taught by Laurie Ann Cleveland. All classes will be held at the GAR Hall in Scituate, and will begin Sunday evening, March 29, 1987.

Beginner class will be at 6:30 p.m., Sunday's; intermediate/advanced class will be held at 7:30 p.m. every Sunday.

The purpose of beginner classes is to teach novice pet owners basic obedience and responsible pet ownership. Subjects include proper use of voice corrections, stay commands, getting the dog to come, heal, etc. Helpful hints on ownership and responsibility will also be included.

The obedience will include those exercises beneficial to the pet owner, in addition to dog owners who would like to eventually show their dogs. The intermediate/advanced class is designed for dogs that have completed the Recreation Department beginner class.

Owners are required to have their dogs equipped with a humane choke chain. The proper size of the chain is determined by measuring the dog's neck, adding four inches. ABSOLUTELY NO SPIKE COLLARS ARE ALLOWED!! It is also strongly suggested that the handlers wear comfortable shoes and clothes for this session. The fee for all classes is $25 per dog for the eight-week, one-hour program. Dogs should be at least three months old, and there is no maximum age. To register, please call the recreation department office at 383-6791.

Art Center to offer three scholarships

Graduating seniors on the South Shore who have been accepted by a school of fine arts or an accredited art school are invited to apply for one of three scholarships awarded annually by the South Shore Art Center.

The awards to be made by the Center are the $1,000 Fred E. Bergfors Scholarship, the $500 Marion Huse Scholarship and the $200 MacIvor Reddie Award. Portfolios of original work are to be submitted to the Center, 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset Saturday, May 2, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Portfolios are to be picked up Saturday, May 9, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The scholarships are open to all students attending South Shore schools—public or private—and who will graduate in 1987.

Any questions regarding the scholarships or portfolio requirements may be directed to the Center, 383-9548. The Center is supported in part by a grant from the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

"I consider us very fortunate to be accepted. I know of several high schools in the area with fine choral groups, with more students and with longer traditions of But to be accepted to perform in Disney World is a great honor," he stated. "We were accepted among international applicants, from colleges, instrumental groups, all kinds of groups. believe me, they are very conscious of keeping highly qualified performers there. they go to Disney World, perform in a festival or at a mall where acceptance of the audience is not an issue.

Marks underscored the importance of the students' performance at Epcot Center. "A lot of groups, when their 'big' performance Sunday at 3 p.m. when they entertain the crowds at the Buena Vista Dockside in Epcot Center.

"For certain numbers, some of the students will be breaking out of the robes. One of the numbers is a fifties song, and we choreographed that accordingly. The girls will be wearing fifties dresses for their dance routine. Then we have a Surfin' USA number with some of the boys in Hawaiian shirts and shorts."

Most of the dance routines have been choreographed by Marks and many of the students. Disney World "strongly suggested" upbeat and popular tunes. The CHS group will be performing songs ranging from Duke Ellington's "Don't Mean A Thing" to Huey Lewis and And the News' "Hip to be Square."

The director noted, "I'm not so sure the kids really comprehend the magnitude of their invitation to perform. They know what I've told them about performing, and that I've had them under some pressure to rehearse. But I don't think they realize the passerby

Learning Center donation given by St. Stephen's

St. Stephen's Church of Cohasset gave $30,000 to Mary Martha Learning Center of 1045 Main Street in Hingham. St. Stephen's sees this grant as part of its overall ministry to care for the needs of others. The mission focus of the church in the last year has been on the areas of hunger and homelessness.

St. Stephen's has supported Quincy Crisis Center, Inc., parent organization of Mary Martha Learning Center, for the last four years. In addition to making regular financial donations, church volunteers prepare a meal each month for the Quincy Crisis Center street feeding program and provide staff at the Quincy shelter. John Seavey, president of Seavey Engineering Associates, Inc., parishioner of St. Stephen's and a member of the Executive Board of Quincy Crisis Center, was responsible for presenting Mary Martha Learning Center to the Vestry of St. Stephen's.

Mary Martha Learning Center is the newest program of the Quincy Crisis Center. It is a place where young women with infant children will be provided with information and assistance designed to enhance their physical well being, intellectual and career growth, and to provide for spiritual and emotional enrichment.

This educational design is consistent with the philosophy of the Quincy Crisis Center which "treats the total person - body, mind and spirit - while maintaining the dignity of personhood and giving hope at the point of despair."

☐ Chris Keating, who recently retired from the National Football League, will be a guest speaker at the N.F.L. players association convention, which will be held at Los Angeles this month. In February Chris returned to his Alma Mater, the University of Maine, to be the featured speaker at the Black Bears football banquet, held in Augusta. Chris is the son of Gerard and Margaret Keating, and we sure do wish him well in his new ventures! They say that retirement from a professional sport can be difficult for players, but we are sure Chris will do an outstanding job at whatever he tackles!

☐ Well on April 4th you can sure have a busy day. If you are a member of the Scituate-Cohasset newcomers club, or are interested in attending their fashion show, then be at the Barker Tavern at noon. The fashions are being presented by Images and Bouche of Norwell. Another exciting aspect of the show will be the prizes that were donated by the local merchants. The price of $17.50 will make you eligible for prizes from Flemings of Cohasset, Kimball's-by-the-sea, Hugo's, Horizon Video, Green Gage Plum (a beautiful antique porcelain tray), Jazzercise classes by Claire Baker, Seacrest, $100 savings bond donated by Cohasset Savings, and Clipper Travel of North Scituate donated an evening with dinner and breakfast at the Boston Sheraton. Call 383-0023 for more information . . .

☐ Then, that night, plan on attending the auction for the benefit of the Glastonbury Abbey, to be held at the Hingham Armory. As was reported last week, there are some wonderful treasures that you will want to bid on, and this fourth annual auction promises to be the best one yet! Admission and catalogues are free, doors open for preview and afternoon auction at 2:00 p.m. with the auctioneer beginning at 7:00 p.m. Don't miss this one, everyone always raves about how super it is!

Julia Jordan (1), Susan A. Neer (center) and Sue Yake rehearse their musical numbers for the 95th Vincent Show. It will be held April 2, 3 and 4 at New England Life Hall in Boston. Proceeds will go to the Vincent Memorial Hospital, the women's division of Mass. General Hospital.

☐ Congratulations to Carol (Davis) Walker on the birth of their baby boy, Anthony Brandt Walker. Anthony was born at 8:40 a.m. and weighed 5 lbs 12 1/2 ozs. Anthony is the brother of Kenny, and the grandson of Lineeod and Andrea Davis of Church Street in Cohasset.

☐ Three of our CHS athletes make the news this week: WATD announced their Basketball Players of the Year and Bryan Edwards (South Shore League Small School division) made this list! Bob Durkin was among 11 Eastern Mass football players chosen to be honored as scholar-athletes by the EMass Chapter of the National Football Foundation. He will receive his award on April 6th at the Lantana in Randolph. This award is based on academics, football achievement and extracurricular activities. And, Danny (Hap) Pompeo made the Quincy Patriot Ledger for his hockey talents! Congratulations to all of you,you are a real tribute to us all.

☐ Carla Lucas, daughter of Thomas Lucas of Bourne Rock, has been named to the Wheaton College NCAA Division III softball team. Carla is a sophomore at Wheaton College, and last year the softball team finished sixth in the nation in runs scored per game. The team competes with some of the toughest teams in new England, and Carla is right in there to help her team to win! Congratulations Carla, here's to another super season.

☐ Here's hoping that Susan LaVange has recovered as she reads this! Susan was in an automobile accident recently, and reports are that she is doing much better.

☐ The South Shore Chapter of the American Red Cross annual fund raiser will be held on Thursday, April 9th, at the Lantana in Randolph. Neighbor of the Year Helen Shea will be honored. State Senate President William Bulger is honorary chairman. Dinner dance tickets are $75.00 per person and can be obtained by calling Al Odermatt, 383-1283 or the Red Cross at 471-5400.

☐ Two second graders deserve recognition this week: Emily Henderson and Bobby Meehan. They won first place in the Mass Maritime Swim meet.

☐ What's new at your house? Fill us in, we'd love to hear from all of you!

There will be watercolors, oils, local scenes, flowers, seascapes, etc. for sale and for viewing.

☐ If you missed Leo Fiori at the station last week, he was with Bill Enos in Phoenix, helping him scout. No need to worry about Roger Clemens signing with the Sox. Those two men will find a dozen pitchers to take his place! And, the price will be right. Seriously, hope you had a great time Leo, you sure deserve it!

☐ Maureen Smith must be sitting with a dictionary every spare minute that she has! Maureen won the Cohasset High Spelling Bee, and will represent the school at the regional championship to be held on April 4th at Weymouth South High School. Stacy Pierce will be the alternate. Good luck to you Maureen!

☐ Its that time of year again, where you can get some of the best buys on the South Shore, have fun, and support a most worthy cause all at the same time! April 4th is the fourth annual benefit auction for the Glastonbury Abbey. It will be held at the Hingham Armory on Central Street. Doors open for preview and afternoon auction at 2:00 p.m. with the auctioneer (John Roselle) beginning at 7:00 p.m. Admission and catalogs are free, refreshments will be available, as will every treasure that you've ever wanted. There will be included paintings, prints, electrical appliances, furniture, gift certificates from all over the South Shore, every kind of service you can think of, tickets to many different games, t-shirts . . the list goes on and on. Plan on attending, you'll be so glad that you did (so will all of the good people that are working so hard to make this a successful benefit for the Glastonbury Abbey)!

☐ The Arts Lottery Council is accepting applications from all of you individual-artists and artist-craftsmen to apply for their grants. Art groups and associations are also eligible to apply. The applications for the grants are available at the selectmen's office, and the deadline for the applications is April 17th.

☐ Valentine's Day was a lucky day for Joanne Sheppard of Cohasset, first prize winner of J. Bildner & Sons Valentine's Day Prize Drawing.

First prize consists of an at-home visit by a J. Bildner & Sons chef. Joanne and a guest will be served a special menu, with preparation and all arrangements provided by J. Bildner & Sons. The prize is valued at $100.

☐ Congratulations go to Jenna Emmons and Allie Redfield, CHS students who were chosen to display their art work in the Youth Art Month show at the Prudential Center. Their work will be shown all of this month!

☐ Congratulations to Joseph Walsh of North Main Street, who is the head of the Science Department at Boston Latin School. He was chosen by one of his students as the most influential science teacher, and entered in statewide competition, and he was named a finalist based on the students' research. He was awarded a citation by Gov. Dukakis.

An early start

Town meeting is set to begin at a new hour this Saturday. Remember to set your alarm clock, because town meeting will begin promptly (we hope) at 10 a.m. at the high school auditorium.

There will be a variety of issues to discuss at this year's town meeting, which will include about a dozen articles within a special town meeting.

Among the warrant articles will be a request to approve the amended Ward sewer plan, and an additional appropriation to design the changes to that plan. Voters will be asked to appropriate money for the construction of an addition to town hall.

There will very likely not be any article to approve the sewer pipeline connection to Hull, nor will voters be asked to raise money for the construction of an addition to the police and fire station.

Among the more controversial articles is a citizens' article, requesting that town officials move to close down Cohasset Heights Ltd., the commercial landfill located on Crocker Lane.

Town counsel has ruled that selectmen should not endorse this article, as it is likely illegal. This article, he stated, is purely a political manuever, regarding an issue that is a matter of extensive litigation between the landfill owners and the town.

It is an interesting article, to be sure. Most everyone in town, regardless of political affiliation, feels that a landfill should never have been permitted next to a public water supply. It was wrong. Period.

But the fact is, it is there and now it will take a legal action to close it down. And the bottom line is, if there is no legal justification to shut it down, it will remain open.

Many residents feel the board of health has been slow to respond to the will of the townspeople. We can understand the anger of these residents. But again, we must remember this is a democracy, and under the law, Cohasset Heights right now has every right to be in operation. They were granted a permit by this town, rightly or wrongly, and they are operating according to that permit.

And under the government of this democracy, unless someone or something is proved to be in violation of the law, they must be allowed to live, be allowed to to exist. Many people may not be pleased with the slow, careful paces of democracy. But that is again a purposeful procedure, guranteed to give every individual due process of the law under which we must all exist.

Angry crowds of residents, similar to the one in attendance at Monday night's board of health hearing, would have in days past, likely lynched the accused. Crowds can still get angry; they may still be swayed by the emotion of the moment.

But this issue demands cool reasoning and legal rationale. If this town really wants to shut down the landfill, then it must find a legal basis for that argument - something that will stand up in a court of law. That is what the board of health has said right along. If the engineering tests suggest the landfill is contaminating our groundwater, that is our legal basis to fight this potential polluter. Nothing less will be acceptable under the rights given to all - businesses, taxpayers, landfills and environmentalists - under this democratic form of government.

QUALITY AUDITING CAC MARK OF INTEGRITY

Susan DeMichele's oil painting, "Rice Island," which can be viewed at her one-woman art exhibit at Simmons College.

DeMichele's painting featured in exhibit

Simmons College's Trustman Art Gallery will host an exhibit of impressionistic landscapes and abstract paintings by Cohasset artist Susan DeMichele from March 31 through May 1.

DeMichele's work is inspired by her coastal surroundings. The Simmons exhibit includes landscapes in oils and abstracts in acrylics. Her recent abstract work has a focus on the dimensions of a repeated print.

DeMichele has exhibited at Symphony Hall, the South Shore Conservatory, and at the Prudential Group Show. She is a member of the South Shore Art Association and the Cambridge Art Association.

An opening reception will be held for Ms. DeMichele in the Trustman Art Gallery, Simmons College, 300 The Fenway, Boston, Wednesday, April 8, from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Admission is free and open to the public. The gallery is closed April 20. Telephone 738-2124 for further information.

This one woman exhibit by Cohasset artist,Susan DeMichele includes recent landscape and abstract paintings. Using the color and light of the Impressionists, Susan DeMichele makes her paintings come alive. Many of the landscapes are of Cohasset—its beaches, woods and marshes. "I am intrigued with the change of colors and light of my coastal surroundings whether marsh grass or ocean sky. I delight in the spontaneity of the moment. Working quickly to create this, I find that paint often takes on its own life." Her abstracts show the influence of the New England coast - echoing colors of the landscapes.

DeMichele was the recipient of the Arts Lottery Award - granted by the Arts Council of Weymouth and Norwell and Frist Prize in painting for 1986 South Shore Art Center Summer Festival. She has attended Boston University, the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and the Kansas City Art Institute. Now represented by the Blue Heron Gallery in Wellfleet, she has exhibited in many galleries and institutions including the Gallery at Symphony Hall, the Prudential Center, the Federal Reserve Bank, and the South Shore Conservatory in Hingham.

She lives on Jerusalem Road with her husband and three children, Daniel 13, Marnie 10, and Jamie 6.

Milliken Field needs continued support

Letters

To the editor:

Since 1976, the existing condition of the outdoor athletic facility at Cohasset High School has been regarded as a problem. The firm of Goldberg/Zoino Associates, presented a report to the School Facilities Committee outlining specific improvements necessary at that time. Unfortunately for all concerned, action was delayed and few improvements were forthcoming. In the Fall of 1984, another group of concerned parents, citizens, and town officials, felt that the situation was in need of immediate rectification, and a formal appeal was made at the June 1985 Town Meeting to secure funds for "cost estimates, plans, and specifications" necessary to improve the antiquated facilities. The firm of Francis Fox Spinks Associates of Cambridge, was retained as a result of an affirmative vote at that town meeting and since then, has worked closely with the MILLIKEN FIELD IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE.

The need for improvements to our outdoor facilities has been well documented. With approximately thirty varsity competitions and as many Jr. Varsity games, the existing playing surface has been run down. In addition, pre-game practices for boys and girls soccer, and football, both Varsity and Jr. Varsity, have taken further toll on Milliken field. The current positioning of the baseball diamond and track, make practice and play unsafe during the spring season. As some of you of you are aware, the girls' varsity field hockey team lost its home team advantage in state competition due to the inadequacy of its game site located in front of the High School. Our outdoor track facility, is, for the most part, unusable during the spring season.

At the June 1985 Town Meeting, suggestions from the floor were forthcoming regarding this project. In particular, a phased program of construction, together with specific options, seemed to be the consensus of the Town. As a result, it is the position of our Committee to bring forth specific plans, drawings, and cost estimates so that the Town Meeting can make an informed decision regarding our future direction.

On April 4, at the "Special" Town Meeting, Article 3 proposes an additional 16,761 dollars. As outlined in our letter to the Advisory Board in Nov. 1986, there are three reasons for this request. First and foremost, to obtain a complete set of drawings in order to determine the actual cost of the project. The plan of action as contrasted to the 1976 effort, is considerably greater in scope and detail, and goes far beyond a feasability study. Secondly, the relocation of a water pipe, currently located on Lillard Field, must be effected in order to accommodate a varsity game site behind the High School. Thirdly, the projected cost estimates by our previous building inspector, were only estimates and not based on current prices or actual job tasks to be undertaken. The MFIC was directed by the Board of Selectmen in the early spring of 1985, to, at the very least, "obtain a complete set of plans for this project."

It has always been the intent of our Committee to work within the spirit and letter of the Town Meeting decision of June 1985. With the continuing support of the citizens of Cohasset, we will be able to fulfill our charge. Additionally, and through the efforts of Spinks Associates, we will present to the Town Meeting, a phased program of construction, with alternatives in order that a financially palatable solution and course of action may be arrived at.

The existing available outdoor facility was given to Natural rivalry between liquor and sports shops

rivalry, as Logan described. "What could be more natural than a liquor store sponsoring a group of athletes against a sports store? It was bound to happen," he laughed. But what has been even more strange than the rivalry, is the fact that Cohasset Liquors consistantly wins the competition between the two stores.

Hiler, Logan and Lyne firmly deny any money passes from team sponsor to participants. But when asked why Cohasset Liquors can year after year attract the best racers for its team, Hiler answered, " Let's put it this way, what would you rather have, a hockey stick or a bottle? "

The wagers are on, and this pair have an insider's tip that Cohasset Liquors will once again beat Good Sports in the Sunday Road Race.

Logan believed it has something to do with the caliber of athlete they sponsor on their team, many of whom are customers. "Austin has all the real athletes, the runners - customers he gets coming into his store. We get all the beer drinkers on our team. Beer drinkers make better runners," he said. "It's not so much the equipment they wear, but the fuel they run on."

Again, Lyne laughed at such a notion. The sporting goods shop owner, without devulging names, said he does indeed attract many good runners. They include friends, relatives and customers. This year, he promised, his team will include some 'special' customers who literally use a 10K course for their morning sprints. The Cohasset race will be like a walk around the block to some of the Good Sport team members, he revealed.

"Our team members are all people I've met through the business, or friends and relatives. My selection process has nothing to do with the quality of their running," Lyne stated. "This competition is actually just a lot of fun between good friends. Although it is a lot of fun, I still intend to beat them this year. We have 30 members on our team this year - all we need are three top runners."

The team results are based on the race times of the team's top three finishers. A team can have as many members as it prefers - it only requires three quality times from the pack.

Without devulging any secrets, Lyne said he is bringing in some outside assistance. "A few of our runners have never raced in Cohasset," he stated, "and a few have run this race since the beginning." Although he has competed in the race, Lyne will sit this year out in favor of faster runners. "I'm not in good enough shape," he confessed, adding that only the top notch, prime-conditioned athletes are allowed to participate on this year's Good Sport team.

Lyne also noted that Good Sport will be sponsoring a walking team this year. Although the 10 a.m. walk will not be competitive, the store owner noted how events such as these tend to become competitive in this town. "It's an unofficial team," he said, "but we have a secret weapon on that team too - my father-in-law, A.J. Antoine. He's my top team walker."

Lyne's father, Austin Sr., watches this 'friendly' competition from the sidelines. "He's very friendly with the guys from Cohasset Liquors. But he's also very smart. He stays clear of all this," his son testified. "But not me, I like the competition. I wouldn't do it if we weren't such good friends.

"Because," he added, "I intend to win this year."

His rivals down the street at Cohasset Liquors couldn't disagree more. "They may look athletic, but our record speaks for itself," Hiler said.

Logan, one of the Rotary club organizers of the annual event, said the Race by the Sea is now considered a "ritual of spring" by about 800 Greater Boston runners. This hilly, scenic 10K course is a good warm-up for the Boston Marathon, he said.

It is also a major fundraiser for the Cohasset Rotary, with the proceeds going toward the various organizations and programs supported by the club.

"The race is one of the oldest in Greater Boston," Logan explained. "And a couple of running magazines have credited the Cohasset race as being one of the most well-run 10K's around. A lot of people say it's a safe course, and they really feel the community supports this event. So many people are helping to organize it, and a lot of people watch the race and help out in other ways. That doesn't happen in every race."

Austin Lynne of Good Sport says his road race team '87 will include a few 'secret weapons.' He says his is the team to beat.

The weather has a reputation for not cooperating each first Sunday in April. Ideal weather would be cloudy in the high 40's, Logan said. More likely it may be snowy, windy or sleeting. "We're hoping for the best and preparing for the worst," he added.

The 6.2 mile walk will begin at 10 a.m. and the roadrace begins at 1 p.m. at Town Hall.

You can bet Hiler, Logan and Lyne will be somewhere in the background, stopwatches in tow.

The adrenelin will be pumping.

"I suppose they may even have to resort to bribery," Hiler said of his competitors. "But it doesn't take long to figure that whatever they do, it won't help them."

Down at Good Sports, they're just smiling.

For the sake of Democracy - fight fairly

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Commentary

There is nothing more intellectually stimulating than democracy in action — the fire of a heated debate.

We New Englanders thrive in the political crossfire of commissions, committees and elected town boards. Town Meeting is the provincial power struggle at its peak.

By all accounts, the board of health hearing Monday night was designed to be a blockbuster, like Hagler vs. Leonard.

On one side, residents concerned for the safety of their town's water supply sought to shut down a commercial landfill they believe is a threat...

On the other side, businessmen fought to keep their livelihood intact despite extraordinary public opposition...

There were lights, cameras and visiting dignitaries. The stage was set for a show, but what transpired was more of a mugging than a duel.

The board heard loud and emotional pleas for the landfill's closure from the resident-packed hall.

The board heard of evidence of volatile organic chemicals hovering in the odorous air above the landfill's leachate collection tanks.

The board watched a videotape depicting the decimation of adjacent wetlands by pollution.

The board heard that the landfill's insurance policy does not provide adequate protection for the town of Cohasset and the board nearly voted to shut down the dump.

It would have been a knock-out had the landfill's attorney Antone Moehrke not rung the bell of due process, forcing a rematch April 13.

The problem with Monday night's board of health hearing had nothing to do with the information presented by the landfill's opponents or with the actions taken by the board of health. The problem was that a few overzealous and intolerant individuals hindered the testimony by Cohasset Heights' representatives and the health board failed to intervene.

Democracy can only prosper when each side is allowed to offer its views in the "marketplace of ideas," because truth will emerge victorious.

Democracy can only suffer when the majority denies the minority its right to free speech. On Monday night, a few members of the majority hampered the testimony of Cohasset Heights' representatives and democracy suffered a setback.

At the hearing April 13, Cohasset residents will have another chance to voice their concerns on this emotional issue. They also will have another opportunity to prove they respect America's democratic tradition.

What are the changes to the Ward Plan?

Letters

To the Editor:

Why the secrecy over what should be public knowledge?

Article 44 of the warrant for Town Meeting 4/4 asks for $360,000 in addition to the $1.1 million already voted, for the Modified Ward Plan for sewering parts of Cohasset. To this date the so-called Modified Plan is not available to the public either at the Sewer Office or the Town Clerk. What are the changes? Should the voters not be made aware of them before T.M. day?

Does the "new" plan include the option of enlarging the plant, as the original does? See p. 6.5.2 and Fig. 6-11 of the original plan which calls for modifications to take the 300,000 gal. needed by the new sewering.

The town is expected to vote Art. 44 as is, in spite of the fact we know (at least most of us) nothing of the terms of the Intemunicipal Agreement with Hull.

Talk about buying a pig in a poke! Cohasset voters are expected to vote for a large hog!

the Town in the 1930s. At that time, the size of the school, number of teams fielded, and a non-existent recreation program, allowed for these spaces to be more than adequate. However, today, with the increased level of participants in boys' and girls' athletics, together with an extensive town recreation program, the athletic facilities are woefully inadequate. This project, upon completion, will provide the Town with a precious asset for its youth and the community at large. By continuing your support, the Town of Cohasset will be correcting a long-neglected need.

Youth Summer Theater 10th birthday

To initiate its 10th birthday and eleventh summer of musical theatre, the Young People's Summer Theatre will present the Stephen Sondheim musical "Merrily We Roll Along."

Although completely different from any other show produced by YPST, it is the most challenging show to date.

"There are no gimmicks," Don Capen, Director, recently pointed out after formally announcing their selection. "There are no trains, sinking ships, electronic devices, or men dressing up as women. It's strictly a musical comedy — and it even has a message.

"The show is about youth, their dreams and goals. It's a natural for us," Capen said.

The pre-audition meeting for this year's registration sign-up is scheduled for June 1 at the Congregational Church in Scituate. Auditions are scheduled for June 6 and 7.

Registration is $25 or $20 if YPST receives payment prior to May 31. Registration forms will be mailed on May 1, and can be obtained by calling 871-5831 or writing YPST at P.O. Box 41, Scituate, 02066.

League wrapup

Thursday, March 26, the Cohasset League of Women Voters held their annual Candidates' Night. The League wishes to thank all those who attended to make it a successful evening. Furthermore, the League wishes to apologize for the following errors:

The correct address for Robert V. Davenport, selectman candidate, is 135 Sohier St.

The correct address for Frances Marks, Town Clerk candidate is 16 Hill Street. In addition, Frances Marks response did not appear in the League Candidates' Guide which was also published in the March 26 Mariner. The league would like to make known the response at this time.

Town Clerk Candidate for Re-Election for Three Years

I have completed sixteen years working for the Town of Cohasset, thirteen years as the Assistant Town Clerk and these last three years as a full time Town Clerk. I have become thoroughly familiar with all phases of the Town Clerk's duties. "This office touches on the lives of every Cohasset family, taking its members from the cradle to deaths in the family, through the issuing of birth, marriage and death certificates. Also registering newcomers and the eighteen year olds to vote, issuing hunting and fishing licenses to the sportsmen, dog licenses to the pet lovers, business certificates to the enterprising, and travel identification cards to the adventurous. Yes, a good part of your life history can be found in the Town Clerk's office and the proper recording of all this material is a serious responsibility.

The work load has increased as the Town has grown and it has been a challenge to keep abreast of this changing scene. The computerizing of voting lists, street lists, jury lists and other town records is the biggest step forward in meeting this challenge.

The Town Clerk relates to nearly every town official in some way, as well as to all boards and committees. At the state level the duties and responsibilities under the jurisdictions of the Secertary of State, the Director of Accounts, the Attorney General, the Division of Fisheries and Game and the Public Works division.

Also, the Town Clerk receives and records all documents affecting the interests of the town including decisions by the Zoning Board of Appeals and other boards that they have voted on.

If it were not for the Clerk's office, a person would have to go to Boston to vote, register to vote and obtain nomination papers for local and state offices. The Town Meeting could not be held if it were not for the Town Clerk's office. It is this same office that has the responsibility of keeping minutes of Town Meeting. It is only the Town clerk who can certify these minutes before any monies can be borrowed or spent which is the law. I am the keeper of the Town Seal, and no other person is authorized to use this seal to attest and certify town records. It is this office that has the authority to put your voice into power.

This is a managerial position not just as a clerk or typist, though I have had countless years of experience in both.

It has given me a great sense of satisfaction to serve the townspeople as Town Clerk. In the next three years I expect to bring the Town Clerk's office up to the potential which I have been working these last three years to accomplish. I look forward to further serving the community as Town Clerk and maintain the high efficiency and responsiveness to the needs of all the citizens.

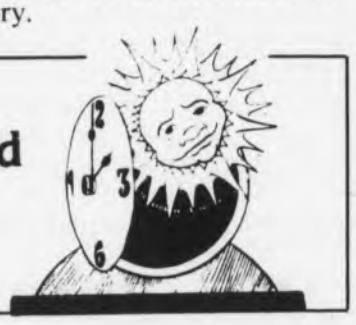
Guild talks about issues

At a campaign coffee held at Jean Syrmopoulos' home last week, Edward M. "Ted" Guild, candidate for re-election to the Sewer Commission, pledged his full commitment to completion of the new State approved Ward Plan to solve the town's waste water disposal problems.

Guild, a Vice President of Ionics, Inc. in Watertown, has served for four years on the Sewer Commission. "I have worked to solve the Town's waste water disposal problems and protect the public health, while ensuring that the solution is comprehensive and affordable," Guild said.

One of the questions Guild answered dealt with the capacity of the Hull waste water plant. In the Ward Plan, Cohasset's waste water treatment plant will be converted into a pumping station and our waste water will be pumped to Hull for treatment in their underutilized waste water plant.



Guild explained that the design capacity of the Hull plant is 3,000,000 gallons per day. The present waste water flow to the Hull plant is 400,000 gallons per day and, within the next few years when Hull will be fully sewered, the waste water flow will be approximately 600,000 gallons per day.

"Under the Ward Plan, Hull would accept up to 400,000 gallons per day from Cohasset," Guild said. "A small amount, and only ten percent of the Hull plant capacity." He also said that the town's engineers have proved that 300,000 gallons per day is ample for the expanded sewer service area.

As for future growth in Hull, Guild said that even if the population of Hull were to triple to 35,000 from its present 11,500—which is doubtful because of recent changes in Hull's attitude towards extreme growth—there would still be 20% excess capacity in the Hull plant including Cohasset's 300,000 gallons per day. Considering the unlikelihood of a population density in Hull of 22 people per acre (35,000 people in 2.5 square miles), Guild told those attending the coffee that "the Hull plant is oversized relative to any reasonable population projections and has ample excess capacity for Cohasset now and in the future."

Guild believes his extensive experience will benefit the Sewer Commission and the taxpayers at a time when Cohasset is about to embark on by far the most costly project in its history.

Darkroom photography course

Award winning photographer Amy Whorf will be joining the South Shore Art Center's photography department.

She will be teaching Beginning Darkroom, starting Thursday, April 2 at the Center, 103 Ripley Road. The course will run for eight weeks and will meet in the evenings from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Advanced registration is required for this course.

Whorf's course will be a step by step instruction in basic darkroom skills beginning with "how the camera works." Students will learn how to develop black and white film, how to enlarge and print, burning and dodging techniques and how to mount and mat finished work.

Whorf has exhibited in and around the Boston area as well as in Northern Ireland and Scotland. Most recently she was awarded a first prize in the South Shore Art Center's All New England Juried Photography Exhibit. Her photographs and accompanying articles have been published in the Boston Globe, Patriot Ledger, and Country Living.

Also being offered during the spring semester are two Paul Fortin courses - Beginning Photography, Mondays, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. starting March 30 and Intermediate/Advanced Photography on Wednesdays, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. starting April 1.

For registration and information, please call the Center, 383-9548.

Society dinner meeting

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its spring dinner meeting Tuesday, April 21 at the First Parish Hall on North Main Street.

Catering the dinner will be Jessica. A social hour will begin at 6 p.m. with the dinner scheduled at 6:45 p.m.

Following dinner the evening special guest speaker will be Dr. William Fowler, Professor of History at Northeastern University, whose subject will be "To Form A More Perfect Union," the story of the origin and drafting of the American Constitution 200 years ago in Philadelphia.

This year marks the Bicentennial of the writing and signing of our nation's Constitution, an event being observed throughout the United States. Professor Fowler's talk is presented by cooperation between the Historical Society and the town's Constitutional Bicentennial Committee, and is part of Cohasset's observance of this important national event.

Professor Fowler, a member of Northeastern's faculty since 1977, has written several books and is the author of numerous articles relating to various historical subjects, is a Trustee of the New England Historic Genealogical Society and of the U.S.S. Constitution Museum, a member of the United States Naval Institute, and Massachusetts Historical Society, and the Organization of American Historians. He also is an Honorary Member of the Boston Marine Society and in 1979 was the first Samuel Eliot Morison lecturer at the U.S.S. Constitution Museum.

His talk titled "To Form A More Perfect Union" recently was given before members of the Hingham Historical Society, where it was enthusiastically acclaimed.

Reservations for the Historical Society's spring dinner meeting are $10, and may be sent to the Society at 14 Summer Street, no later than Tuesday, April 16.

Roadrace by the Sea

Entries for the Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea are fast approaching the 800 maximum with runners from all over New England.

The first ritual of spring will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday, April 5 as former BAA Marathon director Will Cloney fires the gun. The timing has been donated by Cohasset Heights Ltd and the first finishers are expected to cross the finish line by 1:30 p.m.

Refreshments including hot dogs, Sarasota Springs water, Kingsbury N/A beer and New York Seltzer have been donated to help provide a festive atmosphere after the race.

The race is in its 11th year and is sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club to fund many town projects.

Again this year the event is under the direction of Peter Logan and Roy Fitzsimmons. Applications are still available at Cohasset Liquors, Good Sports and Harbor Liquors.

Residents are encouraged to restrain dogs during the event since they can cause serious injuries to the runners.

The Rotary Club apologizes for any slight delays incurred on the race route of Atlantic Ave., Jerusalem Road, Forrest Ave during the race for safety sake.

Ward sewer plant & landfill issue dominate league talk

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

The Ward sewer plan and Cohasset Heights were the topics of conversation and debate during last week's candidates forum.

Sponsored by the Cohasset League of Women Voters, the forum is held annually to acquaint voters with the candidates. It is the only opportunity for voters to listen to the all candidates at one time.

Prior to the start of the March 26 event, LWV member Janice Crowley spoke about Warren Pratt, the longtime Cohasset assessor who died last month. "Cohasset lost a valuable individual who helped make the town more enjoyable," she said.

Among the unopposed candidates who spoke at the forum was Nancy Sandell. The former PSO president is running for a three-year seat on the school committee - a seat vacated by longtime member Richard Conley.

"I am running because I desire to contribute to the education of all our children. I have a reputation as being fair, deserving and ready to listen," she said. "We must develop a consensus of our goals - to review the curriculum, to increase communication with the taxpayers, to keep the standards high for our teachers, a need to look closely at the budget in view of declining enrollment, a need to restore values to our schools- - moral values of wisdom, courage, compassion, respect and honesty taught at the home and school."

Sandell said she will be sensitive to the needs of Cohasset's teachers.

Town moderator William Weeks also spoke to the more than 50 persons who attended the evening forum.

"This will be my third term," the unopposed candidate explained. "My responsibility is to preside over the town meetings and the appointment process. I run town meeting as fairly and expeditiously as possible, and look forward to serving."

He quickly added, "Be sure to come to town meeting April 4."

Lot W. Bates is running for a three-year term on the board of sewer commissioners. He will oppose incumbent Edward M. Guild.

"I am running," he explained, "because I believe we have a few things with Hull that the present sewer commissioners feel are not important. We must have more than a four-inch pipe going down the street to Hull. Putting a tank in your yard is not going to be an answer. You're going to have to pump. They want to hook up 100 Pond Street. There are a lot of other areas before 100 Pond Street. The sewer commission says they want to cut down the cost of sewers, but I thought it was to take care of places that do not need sewers. I also do not think there is enough capacity at Hull to take care of the future needs of the town."

Candidate Guild explained that he is running for re-election to the board "because I want to finish the job that is well started. The so-called Ward plan is the most major project in the history of the town at $4 million. It has not only been approved by the town, but by the state. The advantages are that it will protect the public's health and relieve the town of court injunction and $10,00 daily fines. It will sewer the most densely-populated areas and gets the town out of the sewer business."

The Ward plan, Guild stated, will take care of the town's needs without a Prop. 2 1/2 override.

When asked if he supports the town-endorsed Ward plan, candidate Bates said, "I support it, but I want to make sure we have a future for Cohasset. Hull will only take 300,000 gallons of sewerage from Cohasset. The negotiations with Hull should be so we have a future for our town."

When asked by selectman candidate Robert Davenport if he could see a contract between Hull and Cohasset for acceptance of the sewerage, Guild replied,"That is not possible. We can't negotiate in a fishbowl. If town counsel agreed that we should show you a contract, we would adhere to that. But if we have people looking over our shoulder, you can imgaine what kind of contract we'd negotiate."

Incumbent Guild explained that the changes recently made to the Ward plan and approved by the state are so minor, he doubted they will need further approval by town meeting. The state, however, will determine this week whether the changes justify a subsequent vote by the upcoming town meeting.

There are six candidates in the race for two, three-year seats on the board of selectmen.

Robert Beggan talked about his concerns, commitment and qualifications for the candidacy. He noted that Cohasset Heights landfill has the potential to destroy the town's water supply. "I support any justifiable means of closing down Cohasset Heights," he announced.

Beggan also talked about his support of controlled growth with the implementation of the Ward sewer plan; the important decisions to be made about the Cedar Street landfill, and a commitment to strong management.

Candidate Robert V. Davenport of Sohier Street, who had earlier been confused with another Robert Davenport of Black Horse Lane, explained that he did not have the opportunity to reply to the League's voters guide because of the mix-up.

He noted that for 15 years he has regularly attended many meetings of various town boards. A Cohasset business owner, Davenport noted that the town's legal expenses are out of control. In his studies, he found that in the first nine months of 1987, legal costs are up to $281,624.28. Most of that amount is for outside legal costs, not for the town's attorney, he stated.

Candidate Martha Gjesteby said she has been opposed to a commercial landfill near Lily Pond since the early 1980's. She opposed the permit given to the original landfill operator, and said she feels the local board of health and local legislators will take action to protect the town's water supply.

The selectmen, she noted, must follow the mandate of town meeting. Among her priorities are the need to store all highway department equipment under one roof, along with an addition and repairs to the police and fire station. In her "grassroots" campaign, voters told Gjesteby they want more moorings, better transportation, a sidewalk program, and available housing for elderly and for young adults.

Selectman's candidate Lillian Murray is a lifelong resident of Cohasset and a 1975 graduate of the high school. She has been politically involved in national, state and local election campaigns.

If elected, Murray said she would be available in the selectmen's office at town hall on a part-time basis five days a week.

Murray said she would like to see Cohasset Heights Ltd. closed until the board of health and the state DEQE certify that it is not a threat to the town's water supply.

She is still awaiting the state's report regarding the future feasibility of restoring the Greenbush commuter rail line.

Selectman candidate Burtram Pratt is also a native of Cohasset, whose family has a long commitment to serving the town. Noting that his allotted speaking time of three minutes, was the "shortest three minutes" he has ever observed, the candidate explained that he had helped devise the veterans' housing development after World War II. Later, in answer to questions from the audience, Pratt said he favors the Ward sewer plan as approved by town meeting - "so let's go on with it."

Candidate Thomas Churchill III was not in attendance at the candidates forum.

The selectmen candidates all replied to a question regarding the rights of developers versus the rights of the town, and how growth can be controlled in Cohasset.

Beggan said in 3.2 miles of state highway along Rte. 3A, there are 115 businesses between the Hingham and Scituate town lines."Where are we going to put more businesses, or will we redevelop areas that are already developed?" he asked.

Candidate Davenport said unless the town changes its regulations, there are certain portions of Rte. 3A that can be developed by businesses. The town learned through a costly lawsuit against one businessman that it can not arbitrarily stop one business from coming into town, he noted. If the town wishes to rezone that land, it is an issue to be brought before the planning board.

Gjesteby said it is the planning board's duty, along with selectmen, to oversee the manageable growth of the town. If it is the citizens' wish to control growth along Rte.3A, a citizens' petition to the planning board is necessary. The town could help encourage good development along the state highway.

Murray said she is in favor of selectmen sitting down with the planning board to discuss and plan for the future of Rte. 3A. She said she would not like to see Cohasset's highway district evolve into the same situation as Rte. 53 in Norwell.

Pratt noted that unlike Hingham and Scituate, Cohasset voted to zone that area for commercial business. It is very rare that a town rezones its highway district once it has passed the bylaw, he stated, although it may be initiated by a citizens' petition.

Candidates Corner. . .

Water supply problem stressed by Burt Pratt

Selectman candidate Burtram J. Pratt identified what he considers the town's most pressing problems at a coffee party held last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Peck, 63 Windy Hill Road.

Heading his list is the protection of our water supply from possible pollution by a nearby commercial landfill. He stated that he will support a Town Meeting article which calls for a joint effort by the Selectmen, Board of Health, and Water Commissioners to "immediately and aggressively seek and pursue measures likely to manifest the cessation of operations and closing of the landfill site known as Cohasset Heights."

"A few years ago a far sighted Board of Water Commissioners built a reservoir and water treatment plant which is the envy of towns throughout the South Shore," Pratt said. "If this water supply becomes contaminated from any source, the Town of Cohasset would suffer damages beyond calculation," he concluded.

Another concern of the candidate is the large number of expensive capital spending projects to be considered by the Town. "Some of these items are the result of a lack of maintenance of public facilities so that we have to commit huge sums all at once," he said. "Others are expanded facilities which are needed to better serve a growing town."

"What is most distressing, is that the Advisory Committee, Capital Budget Committee, and Board of Selectmen, all seem to have their own priority schedule of capital spending" Pratt said. "My thinking is that there ought to be a concensus as to the importance of each item and a priority schedule over a period of years so that the Advisory/Committee can fashion a carefully thought out financial plan within the constraints of proposition 2 1/2," he said. "The Advisory/Committee has, in fact, made such a forecast for the items which will be considered at this years Town Meeting," Pratt said. "Hopefully, other boards and committees involved in the process, and the voters who attend town meeting will follow their lead," he concluded.

A question and answer period followed the candidates remarks and resulted in a wide-ranging discussion of numerous concerns including; the viability of the Town Meeting form of government given the poor attendance; the pros and cons of restoring the Greenbush rail line; increasing traffic congestion problems not only in Cohasset but on the South Shore generally, and other topics.

Citizens welcome to chamber's forum

Letters

To the Editor:

Cohasset residents are cordially invited to attend the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce second annual "Candidates Forum" to be held at Kimball's By The Sea on Wednesday, Arpil 8, 1987 at 6:30 p.m.

Due to the nature of our organization and the actuality of time restraints, we are inviting candidates who are running for the offices of Selectmen, Sewer Commission, Board of Health and Planning Board. Although we do not deny the vital importance of the other Town positions, by limiting the slate we feel that we are able to extend to each invitee more comprehensive "exposure" time.

The format is designed for the candidates to make a brief introductory statement relative to their reasons for running, and any supportive comments regarding their qualifications. There will be a general question and answer period.

Guild runs for re-election to 'finish the job'

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Edward M. "Ted" Guild, is seeking his second full term on the board of sewer commission. In his words, he is anxious to "finish the job" he began four years ago.

That job, he explained, is supervising the completion of the Ward sewer plan, a plan he enthusiastically endorses. The amended Ward plan, which will require another vote of the town meeting this week, has at last been approved by the state.

When asked why he is seeking a second term on the board, the Jerusalem Road resident replied, "For the last four years, I have dedicated my life and virtually all my free time to solving the town's wastewater treatment problems. I like to finish what I start, and I definitely want to finish this job. I expect by the end of my term in three years, the pipeline to Hull will be constructed, and all the sewering in phase one of the plan will be completed. About two-thirds of the plan will be finished.

"People get hooked on different things," he continued. "I got hooked on this, but it actually goes way beyond that. I really feel the impact of extensive sewering of this town would have been disastrous for the town. Cohasset is a wonderful, unique town, and sewering the entire town would have changed it forever."

After serving on the board, Guild noted he will not require "on-the-job training" while the Ward plan is implemented. "I have been instrumental in developing this project," he explained. "I have been in business all my life and am now vice president of Ionics, Inc. in Watertown. We manufacture complex and sophisticated water treatment systems, similar to those used in the treatment of wastewater. It's all very similar."

Prior to his being named vice president of Ionics, Guild served as its international manager for the past 25 years.

"In my business, I am routinely engaged in multi-million contract negotiations with foreign governments, our government, industrial organizations and consulting engineers," he stated.

When asked if he enjoyed serving as sewer commissioner, Guild answered, "I love it. It's my contribution to the town and to the human race. I'm just as proud of being a sewer commissioner as I am being the vice president of Ionics. I am doing something for others, something that is important and something I set out to do. We turned it around - against incredible odds against the state of Massachusetts, the entrenched government of this town and many civic organizations in this town."

Without doubt, Guild still favors the Ward plan over any central sewer plan for the town. "I was one of its architects," he stated. "I was involved in its evolution. The Ward plan is a consensus plan, and that is what I vowed I would do - follow the consensus of the town. I support the Ward plan because first, it protects the public health; second, it will free the town from a court injunction that still overhangs the town, and protects the town from $10,000 daily fines imposed by the state.

Third, it sewers the most densely populated areas of the town such as the Veterans' area, the Hillside area, Smith Place, Hill Street and other smaller areas of town. And fourth, it gets the town out of the sewer business because we won't be treating wastewater anymore," he continued. "Cohasset is too small for its own wastewater treatment facility. It is absolutely uneconomical for the town."

Guild, a 13-year resident of Cohasset, believes the Ward plan will provide for the future needs of Cohasset. "If you're talking about a future of commercial bsuiness on every available space along Rte 3A, or condos on every buildable lot in town, then the answer is no, it will not provide for our future. But the projected flows assures enough protection for every buildable lot, assuming that those lots will be built to the maximum house size allowed under the bylaw..

"I guess it depends on what you want for the future of Cohasset," he stated. "Do you want a Quincy or Weymouth? If so, then the Ward plan will not be sufficient for this town's future. If your answer is no, then the Ward plan will more than adequately provide us with sewer service."

Guild said the sewer commission is "absolutely delighted" with the performance of York Water Consultants, the contract firm employed to operate the sewer treatment plant. "The plant is operating well, the housekeeping is excellent, and I should know. I've been down there 50 or 60 times since they've been running the plant, and on only two occasions has the place been running anything but perfect.

"They are doing a better job for less, and that is way ahead of second place," he added. "When you have a contractor like York, you get a combination of 100 engineers and technicians who are operating plants all over the East coast. Ay any given minute, they have the expertise of 2-30 people who collborate to solve a single problem. Since we employed them in December, within two or three days of their employment, I saw that plant operating in a radically different manner."

Rec. Dept. reading collection

The Cohasset Recreation Department has placed a large plastic trash barrel outside the recreation office at the town hall lobby for the collection and distribution of current magazines and periodicals.

Residents may drop their magazines in the barrel and take whatever magazines they wish to read in return. In this manner, all residents may have access to a variety of magazines on a lend-borrow-basis.

The more magazines deposited, the wider spectrum of available reading material. Magazines of general or special interest, as well as periodicals are welcome.

COUPON SWAP BOX

The coupon swap box, located outside the recreation office during work hours, is an opportunity to locate coupons for items people need to purchase. Ideally, residents will leave current, unwanted coupons in the box, and take only those coupons they need. Again, the success of the coupon swap is dependent on individuals leaving, as well as taking coupons. Care should be taken to check coupons for expiration dates before leaving them in the box.

Bates outlines vital sewer issues

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Lot Bates, 42, of 56 Red Gate Lane wants to serve on the sewer commission to help insure a bright future for the town of Cohasset.

"I guess it came to my turn to serve the town," he said modestly when asked why he had decided to seek the office. "I've heard a lot about the sewer system and I'm interested in the sewer project.

"I've seen what the other sewer commissioners have been doing," he added, "and I don't agree with everything they're doing.

"I think their main objective seems to have been to control the growth of the town and not take care of parts of town that need help right away," Bates said. "Controlling growth in town is not part of the sewer commission's job."

A 24-year resident of Cohasset, Bates noted "I'm in favor of controlling growth to a point, but when it comes to taking care of problem areas in town we shouldn't be dragging our feet."

He cited the Hillside drainage, which runs into wells at the bottom of the hill and the veterans project, which sewers into Lily Pond as problems which deserve immediate attention.

Bates said he is qualified to serve as sewer commissioner because he has worked with a Cohasset contractor installing sewer treatment plants and connections.

Discussing the proposed Ward Plan, he commented, "I disagree with the part of the plan regarding repairs to on-site systems.

"I'm against spending the taxpayers' money to fix up a system that has in the past had thousands of dollars spent on it, just to fail within two years," he explained. "We would have to keep repairing a system that would not accept water, like the one on Hillside which was fixed, and a week later was flowing out just like it was before it was fixed."

Bates noted, "I support part of the Ward Plan; I support going to Hull if they will accept more than 300,000 gallons per day.

"We need to send 500,000 to 600,000 gallons per day to take care of the needs of the town," he said. "If we only take care of part of the town, we will have to start all over to take care of the rest of the town. If it is economically feasible to go to Hull, that's good."

With regard to the Hull connection, Bates explained Cohasset must be able to maintain some control over what rates the town will pay to Hull to treat the sewerage.

He said he has some suspicions about the plan. "I think there are a lot of things going on that they are not telling people. People don't know they will have to have tanks in their yards to collect solids. These sewers will only take away the wastewater and it will cost the average homeowner $400 to take away his water. The average homeowner pays only $100 per year to acquire water."

Bates suggested hitching up larger than a four-inch pipe to Hull and pumping everything to Hull.

The candidate declined to assess the current operation of Cohasset's sewer plant because of pending litigation.

Broad Cove chorale

Seniors are cordially invited to a free preview performance of the Broad Cove Chorale's Spring Concert at Broad Cove House Friday, April 3 at 10:30 a.m.

Please call Sandy Kent at Hersey House in Hingham (749-0582) or Phyllis Burns in Marshfield (834-6259) if you plan to attend and for directions to Broad Cove House.

Fitness class for women

A program for women will begin Wednesday at 6:45 p.m. at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, 379 Gardner St. in Hingham. The program, under the direction of the Relief Society (women's organization) will meet weekly and is planned as an aid to achieving greater physical fitness through improved eating habits and increased exercise. Women of the community are welcome to join the group. No registration fee.

Glastonbury auction

At the fourth annual auction to benefit Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham Saturday, April 4, participants will have an opportunity to bid on antique pieces.

An authentic barber shop chair will add a touch of whimsy to your decor, especially if you also win the bid on a barber shop pole to go with it.

An 1800s accountants desk of solid oak would be just the thing for organizing your home office. Or, perhaps a Victorian "what-not shelf" to hold your treasured collection will catch your eye.

For that touch of pizazz, how about a primitive copper water jug with a beautiful hand tooled design? From an old-fashioned country store comes an antique display case made of oak with a slanted glass front.

Boating enthusiasts will have a chance to bid on a day's sailing cruise on a 42-foot Baltic. Baseball fans will discover Red Sox tickets waiting to be claimed. Weekend resorts in Maine, New Hampshire, the Cape-just choose the place you'd enjoy relaxing.

Art collectors will be delighted at the lovely originals and prints that have been donated by various artists! These must be seen to be appreciated!

Plan to spend Saturday, April 4, at the Hingham Armory on Central Street. The preview and afternoon auction begins at 2 p.m. with John Roselle a professional auctioneer, beginning at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Both catalogs and admission are free, so come and browse, register for a paddle number and then enjoy a lively and spirited evening.

All amateur photographers who would like to see one of their favorite photos on the cover of the Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Kingston or Hanover phone book should enter a photo contest sponsored by the H.R. Manning Company.

Any person may submit a photo for any cover. The photo will appear on the cover of the town in which it was taken.

The photographer does not have to live in the town. There is no age limit. The photo should be recognizable of the area.

All photos must be in color. Any size will be accepted, but you should keep a negative handy in case another print has to be made. No Polaroids, sandwich, montages or multiple prints are allowed. No people are allowed in the photo.

Each winner will receive a plaque plus credit in the Phone Book. The good part of this is that there is no fee and you may enter as many photos as you wish. All entries must be sent to Rudolph Mitchell, 93 Maple St., Scituate, MA 02066 with a self-addressed envelope, including cardboard and proper postage. The Contest is sponsored by H.R. Manning Co. publisher of the Little Phone Books. Neither the company nor Rudolph Mitchell is responsible for loss or damage to any of the entries.

If you have any questions, call Mitchell at 545-2137. Start checking your photo files or take time out and do some shooting. The deadline is May 14.

Easter bunny lunch

The Cohasset Community Center will present "Lunch with the Easter Bunny" at the Deer Hill School Saturday, April 11 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Easter Bunny will arrive at 11:45 a.m. Hot dogs, salad bar and dessert will be served. Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Tickets must be purchased in advance at the Center's office from 9:00—1:00 or by calling, 383-0088.

Road race to be televised

The Community Television Departments of American Cablesystems present its fourth year of award winning coverage of the Cohasset Rotary's Cohasset Road Race by the Sea on Sunday, April 5.

This event will be seen on the American Channel, channel 12, in the towns of Cohasset, Hingham, Hanover, Hull, Norwell and Scituate.

The third year of live coverage will commence at 12:30 p.m. Sunday from the starting line on the Cohasset Common. As the race progresses coverage will be transferred live to Sandy Beach, Rocky Beach at the junction of Jerusalem Road and Forest Avenue and then back to the Common for the finish. "Viewers will only see three live locations, however other locations will be taped including North Main Street at Forest Avenue and weather permitting, a camera in an airplane," (Airplane provided by Shoreline Aviation) said Jeffrey A. Rhind, Cohasset Community Television Program Director. "This is the biggest event that community television videotapes. Video equipment and over thirty volunteers from the south shore area are consolidated to bring this prestigious road race into our subscribers' homes."

Tom Connors and Bill Modestino of Scituate and Bill McColgan of Hingham will be the commentators.

In the past three annual Community Television Golden Tape Awards, sponsored by American Cablesystems, the Cohasset Road Race has won one second place and two first place awards for "Best Event Coverage."

Be sure to tune in for the 11th Annual Cohasset Road Race by the Sea Sunday, April 5 at 12:30 p.m. LIVE from the Cohasset Common on Channel 12.

FOR THE CARE OF YOUR LIFE.

A PROUD HERITAGE.

On May 22, 1922 - flush with a $14,000 mortgage loan from one of its 12 founding fathers - Weymouth Hospital opened its doors in the H.B. Reed Estate with an operating room, a delivery room, a nursery, an X-ray machine and 20 patient beds. Today, the 280-bed South Shore Hospital has a total service area of more than 20 towns with nearly 400,000 residents. With 1,600 employees, it's one of the largest businesses on the South Shore. Its emergency room - the third busiest in the state - handled more than 45,000 visits last year.

Between then and now, numerous milestones have helped make South Shore Hospital the area's leading health care institution. It pioneered group insurance. It saw our area through the Depression and World War II, concerning itself with making people better and less with how or if patients could pay. It went through countless additions; implementation of new technologies that kept it current; and an on-going "boot strap" philosophy that kept it solvent and contributing, where others had failed. It had a nursing staff that was always preeminent in care and concern; and it brought over 75,000 new friends and neighbors into this world - perhaps the best gift of all.

From this proud and involved past, South Shore Hospital today is stronger than ever - and poised for future growth and innovation that will aid all of us.

A SOUND DIRECTION.

People are the backbone of any successful institution or business. In its first 65 years, this has always been the case at South Shore Hospital. The staff, physicians, trustees, members of the Corporation, volunteer groups such as the Friends of South Shore Hospital, Inc., and others all serve as both advisors and concerned partners. Tapping this wealth of resources is a leadership that welcomes positive change; a leadership that realizes its success comes about only when it assesses daily the needs of its community. South Shore Hospital and its parent company, South Shore Health & Educational Corp., seeks your continued help and scrutiny as it continues planned expansion of quality health and wellness-related services in southeastern Massachusetts.

PROGRAMS NEEDED TODAY.

Never has more been demanded from hospitals. And only those that recognize this will continue to function in the manner called for by society. South Shore Hospital and South Shore Health & Educational Corp., recognizes this with services and technology as diverse as a state-of-the-art full-body CAT scanner and a home communications system for the elderly. With a critical care unit ranked among the tops in the nation; a trauma room to ease the strain on emergency facilities; and a birth defects and genetic counseling clinic. With a walk-in clinic in Marshfield and an outpatient surgical and diagnostic center in Weymouth – current examples of a hospital's need to grow outside its walls as it takes its services to its community. With hospital tours for children to ease their anxiety before admittance and with free, courtesy coach transportation to and from the hospital to aid those on fixed income. With teletypewriters for the hearing-impaired and important wellness programs such as occupational health for businesses and nutrition counseling for all of us.

South Shore Hospital is healthy today. Because it has been ever aware that its constituencies must be healthy tomorrow.

EXCITING PLANS FOR TOMORROW.

Thank you for allowing us to care for your life. We will continue to view this as a sacred trust. As we perform 10,000 surgical procedures and receive some 80,000 outpatient and ambulatory visits annually. As our volunteers contribute 75,000 hours a year. As we continue on-going efforts to reduce the length of patients' stays and remain both economically responsive and responsible. As our revenues and our fundraising is directed toward physical expansion, capital equipment, medical technology and physicians programs aiding all of us. As we continue innovation on home health care, elder services, diagnostic capabilities, sports medicine, cardiac rehabilitation, cancer therapy, stroke prevention and treatment, and countless other programs and services.

So there is much that is new about South Shore Hospital, including our new logo. But although the care we provide has changed, the caring is the same as it was 65 years ago. Total, and committed.

South Shore Hospital. For the care of your life.

Heights landfill comes within a vote of shutdown

Michael Bliss explained the town received about $27,000 between July 1985 and June 1986, when there was an average monthly collection of about 4,500 tons of trash at Cohasset Heights.

Since then, Cohasset has received about $24,000 and the tonnage has gone up to about 5,300. Over that same period, legal bills have cost the town $106,000. "We have spent a lot of money," Bliss commented, "and our debit is higher than the credit side. That is why the board is interested in increasing the tipping fee."

The board previously considered raising the fee to only $2, while Selectman James Gallagher suggested a $3 charge based on what he predicts the town will spend on Cohasset Heights in the future.

Antone Moehrke, attorney for Cohasset Heights Ltd., asked the board to hold its vote until it heard his proposal, which he said included a provision for sharing costs. But the board did not wait; Sharon Becker moved for an increase to $2 per ton and her motion was amended by John Burns to $2.50.

Some of that money may go to pay for another engineering study to determine the extent of flows toward Lily Pond. Ralph Prebble of Camp, Dresser and McKee (CDM), the board's engineering firm, said the job of ascertaining where the "divide" is as well as "certain additional analytical work" will cost Cohasset $15,000.

Prebble said current estimates show 10 percent of flows from the landfill go in the direction of Lily Pond, but added testing will not give the board 100 percent certainty of how much of the ground water actually flows toward the town's water supply.

"We would welcome a study that holds some probability of being definitive." Moehrke commented, "and we would be happy to participate in the cost with the town.

"A lot of time and money has been spent on engineering," he said, "but the results have been inconclusive."

There was previously an incident, Moehrke charged, where a groundwater divide established by CDM was changed so the landfill was included erroneously within the watershed.

"The issues of solid waste disposal are important," Moehrke said. "Perhaps we should broaden our view and look at the operation of the town's Cedar Street landfill." He suggested the two dumps be judged on an equal basis. The comment elicited boos and hisses from the crowd.

"Our first concern is the drinking water of Cohasset," said water commissioner Ronald Goodwin, "and we're not for letting the leachate go into the great swamp either." He noted, a previous CDM study estimated 30 percent of flows were going toward Lily Pond. "I don't know where this '10 percent' came from."

"Volatile organics were found at Test Well #9," Michael Sullivan of Fair Oaks Lane told the board. "If one percent gets into Lily Pond it will be contaminated. You should not allow such an operation."

"If we suspect there is a threat to the water supply we can close it down," Bliss said. He said the board has not had enough evidence to stand up in court and defend such an action.

The board expects to learn the specifics of CDM's proposed study April 13. Leon said he believes getting more accurate data would help support the board's position in court if it decides to order a suspension of operations at Cohasset Heights.

"It seems to me the board has three options," suggested Senator Golden. "It could keep the landfill open and continue performing tests, it could close the landfill based on available information, or it could impose a moratorium pending additional information about the impact on the town's water supply.

Golden told the board a written report, which is to be released Thursday, April 2, reveals levels of volatile organic chemicals in air samples taken over the leachate collection tank at the landfill. He cited four parts per billion benzene; 120 parts per billion toluene and 145 parts per billion xylene among other readings.

"Those are the same chemicals you would encounter when you go to a gas station," Bliss commented.

Next, William Baird of 55 Red Gate Lane showed the board a videotape he and some other concerned citizens recorded in the woods and swamp abutting the landfill.

"This videotape shows a preponderance of evidence that Cohasset Heights threatens surrounding waters," Baird said, "including Lily Pond and the great swamp, which flows into the Weir River, an area of critical environmental concern.

"I've been in many chemical plants and refineries in my time," he added, "but the odor up there made me want to run."

The videotape showed foaming water, "brown scum," a lagoon at the edge of the landfill which Baird said was unlined, and a swale funneling the dump's effluent into an abutting swamp.

Baird noted no fence or signs were present to warn Whitney Woods hikers of the dangers in the area and to keep them from trespassing at Cohasset Heights.

Finally, the camera panned down to a shot of a raccoon track in a patch of black muck. "Obviously that raccoon doesn't know what he's in for," Baird said.

He suggested the board require Cohasset Heights to construct an impermeable barrier to keep flows from leaving the site.

Disgusted by what she saw, Becker moved to put a moratorium on landfill operations "until these things are settled..."

Burns said he had spent time looking at the dump area "and my observations were the same as yours," he told Baird.

Moehrke reminded the board, the agenda did not provide for suspension of the site assignment, but merely for its amendment.

Due process of law, he said, requires that Cohasset Heights be given proper notice of such action, so its consultants can review the allegations. The customary time frame is two weeks. So, the board set another hearing date for April 13.

At that time, the board will review its evidence and determine whether it can shut down the landfill.

The question of insurance will be central to the board's review.

While refusing to divulge certain elements of the policy review, "because they may have a bearing on litigation or potential litigation between the town and Cohasset Heights," Leon said the $10 million policy issued to Browning-Ferris Industries "does not specifically insure C.H.L., because the dump has no legal relationship with BFI.

"It does not present a great deal of comfort to us that it covers the town of Cohasset," he added. "We also are not sure BFI will have the ability to renew this policy in the future and whether that $10 million is a face amount or an aggregate. There is no reason to believe that all or any part of that money would be available to the town in the event of a claim."

He concluded, "This policy does not provide a particularly strong level of comfort and security for the town."

While establishing a hearing for April 13, the board

Landfill dispute heats to a boil. . .

also voted to amend the landfill's site assignment.

Along with a raise in the tipping fee to $2.50 per ton, the board stipulated Cohasset Heights must bulldoze the swale which funnels effluent into the swamp, put in an impermeable barrier to control flows, and submit specifications and plans for a fence.

Paul Barry, owner of the landfill implored the crowd to calm down. "I live in town with all of you; I have children, a wife and myself. We're running scared," he said. "There's no need for that."

He claimed salt from an adjacent DPW garage has contributed to the landfill's problems.

"Salt in the long term can be bad for you," Baird retorted, "but the chemicals coming out of that landfill are carcinogens. Your problems managing the landfill should not become problems for the town of Cohasset.

"You should not be allowed to contaminate Lily Pond or the Weir River," he added. "I have no problem with you operating a landfill as long as it does not pollute the outside; your pollution should not go one foot off your property."

The next hearing is expected to be held in a room larger than the rotary hall, because of the overflowing crowd in attendance Monday night.

Moehrke was incensed by the crowd's "lack of decorum." He was interrupted and told to "shut up" several times during the hearing by a zealous few. And he demanded that security be present to avoid a similar "mob scene" April 13.

The board assured Moehrke the Cohasset Heights group will be provided security, at least during the hearing.

Fishing vessel safety legislation proposed

Legislation to improve safety on fishing vessels and provide compensation to fishermen for work-related injuries was introduced in Congress last week by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Cohasset, and several other bipartisan congressmen.

The bill is intended to help commercial fishermen to obtain adequate and affordable insurance for their vessels by establishing minimum safety standards for fishing vessels, Studds said.

"High insurance costs are crippling the ability of American fishermen to compete successfully in the international market," he said. This bill is intended to stabilize insurance costs and encourage industry-cooperatives and specialized insurance companies to enter the fishing vessel insurance market.

The new legislation would do the following:

- require commercial vessels operating in northern waters to carry a survival suit for each crew member on board.
- require fishing vessels operating at sea to have lifeboats or rafts, visual distress signals and emergency radio equipment.
- require testing for stability of newly constructed or substantially altered fishing vessels.
- guarantee that fishermen suffering a temporary injury will receive full medical costs plus 80 percent of lost wages as a result of the injury.
- bar litigation in most temporary injury cases.
- require the insurance industry to provide information to the government regarding casualties involving commercial fishing vessels.

Sweater Sampler Workshop Revolutionize your sweater knitting. This intensive four week workshop offers experienced knitters freedom from pattern reading. The sampler takes you through design possibilities and the basic construction for seamfree garlan sweaters that may be knit of any yarn, in any style, to your own guage. This class meets Wednesdays beginning March 17 from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. The cost is $50.

Yoga This 8 week course will start on Monday, April 6 from 7-8:30 p.m. Hatha Yoga is an ancient system of exercise performed slowly in co-ordination with deep and controlled breathing. This non-competitive discipline emphasizes the experiencing of each position rather than the perfection of it. The course will include some of the basic yoga postures, stretching, breathing, relaxation, and meditation techniques. Cost is $48.

CPR Emergency resuscitative techniques for cardiac and respiratory arrest are covered in this course, as well as procedures to alleviate airway obstructions. Upon successful completion of this four hour course, you will receive a certificate of completion set up by the standards of the American Heart Association. Class meets on Wednesday, April 8 from 7-11 p.m. Cost is $10.

Cut-And-Pierced Lampshades At the end of one Saturday's labor, you will have a 5x8x6" lampshade ready for use. This class meets Saturday, May 2, 9:30-3 p.m. and costs $30.

Flower Arranging This is a one day workshop where you will make a special arrangement for your Easter table. Bring a placemat, a container, a piece of your china, and a bunch of flowers to co-ordinate with your color scheme. Go home with a lovely centerpiece for your dining table. Class meets Thursday, April 16 from 9-12 in the morning and costs $10.

Stencilling Course covers cutting stencils, layouts, a variety of stenciling techniques, mixing colonial and other paint colors. This class will be offered on Wednesday evenings from 7:30-9 starting April 15 for four weeks. It will also be offered on Thursday mornings from 9:30-11 starting April 16 and costs $26.

We are also taking registration for new gymnastic programs which begin on April 6. These classes run for 8 weeks and cost $28. Call 383-0088 for information on times.

New Bowling classes start April 7, April 9, and April 10. These classes run for eight weeks and cost $16. These will continue on the old schedule, but must be pre-registered.

Chess Children in third grade and up will learn basic chess or improve their skills. Chess starts Saturday, April 4, 11-12, $18 for six weeks.

Student art exhibit at the art center

Young artists from the Scituate school system will exhibit their work in a special show at the South Shore Art Center during the month of April.

Each year, the Center at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset, invites the school children from a South Shore community to participate in an exhibit at the Center in the invitational gallery. This gives the youngsters in grades kindergarten through twelve an opportunity to exhibit their work.

This year's young artist exhibit will open with a reception on Sunday, April 5, 4 to 6 p.m. and the exhibit will continue through the month of April. The Center opens its gallery as an opportunity to encourage and support the arts education in the schools. The Scituate art department will work with its teachers and students to collect and hang the work and provide refreshments for the opening.

This children's exhibit is just one phase of the many offerings for young artists at the Center and at its satellite locations in Norwell, Hull, Hingham and Scituate. The Children's Department offers classes for all ages and ability levels and vacation drop ins which allow for developing artistic ability in an informal atmosphere.

Parents and friends are invited to come to the Center for the young artist exhibit. Viewing hours are Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. For further information please call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

KOKO ISLAND RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
Locally Owned & Operated By Billy Lee
Alan Lau - Manager

Located at 151 King Street & Route 3A in Cohasset, phone 383-1505, the KOKO ISLAND RESTAURANT & LOUNGE is one of the most original places in the entire area. When the owner, Billy Lee, opened it's doors, it was with the idea and concept that a first class Chinese restaurant should combine excellent food and cordial service with a delightful atmosphere. The popularity of this fine eating place has proved the value of this concept. Their clientele grows daily. Luncheon specials and exotic cocktails are featured.

Specializing in authentic Chinese and Szechuan food, KOKO ISLAND's menu also features some of our standard favorites. We'd like to mention the special Moo Shu Pork, served with thin steamed pancakes and fresh plum sauce, shrimp with lobster sauce, Szechuan beef, cashew chicken, lo meins and chow meins - all very fresh, succulent, and delicious. Take-out services are available, and they feature Friday and Saturday night entertainment.

The Publishers of this 1987 Richardson Report would like to give our complete endorsement to this truly excellent Chinese restaurant. Come in today, say hi to Billy and staff, and discover how friends are truly received. They're open daily, 11:30 AM to 12:45 AM, until 1:45 AM Friday and Saturday, and from Noon to 12:45 Sunday and Holidays. Visa, MasterCard, American Express, and Discover cards are honored.

No surprises in test results state educators say

By Rebecca Nevers
Mariner Staff

While state education officials are praising basic skills test results, local school officials say the scores were not surprising and children identified by the tests already are receiving remedial assistance.

The basic skills test, given for the first time last fall by the state Department of Education to students in grades 3, 6 and 9, was designed to identify and assist students deficient in reading and math skills.

"The good news is that the great majority of students passed the test," State Commissioner Harold Raynolds said last week.

Of the 171,000 students who took the test, 90 percent scored above the minimum hypothetical standard in reading and 83-97 percent passed the writing test. Passing percentages on math tests reflected variations in grade levels, from 97 percent for grade 3 and to 89 percent for ninth graders.

Two levels of hypothetical standards were developed for this round of tests. Permanent standards are expected to be decided upon sometime this year by the state Board of Education.

With a minimum of 60 percent as a passing grade, eight out of 10 students passed the test. With a higher standard of 80 percent as a passing score, six of 10 students passed the test.

That means, under the 60 percent standard, 141,000 students passed the test. Under the 80 percent standard, 106,000 students passed.

And state officials are pleased with the scores.

"It indicates that there is generally good achievement," Raynolds said. "It means children can read, write and do mathematics."

However, bad tidings came with the good tidings.

The bad news, according to Raynolds, is that children who come from "disadvantaged" backgrounds did not do as well on the tests as children who came from "advantaged" families.

Minorities and children from low socio-economic backgrounds did not score well on the test, he said.

"The key factor is the advantage or disadvantage of the children's background," Raynolds explained. "We try to offset those backgrounds.

"Every district faces these problems," he added. "They are our problems and it reaches into parental involvement."

Raynolds said about 90 percent of the children identified through the test already were known by their schools to need remedial assistance and are now receiving help.

"But for those not identified, this test helps find them," he added.

Several South Shore school administrators agreed with Raynolds and said the students identified by the test are receiving the special attention they require.

Hanover School Supt. Robert Fox said the test results held no surprises for administrators or teachers.

"All of our youngsters are receiving help," he said. "They were getting specific help before the tests."

Fox said students are identified through teacher evaluations and comprehensive achievement tests.

"We've been doing it for 15 or 20 years," Fox explained. "The teachers know better than any kind of test we can devise."

Fox said all surrounding school systems, such as Cohasset, Hingham, Marshfield and Scituate evaluate their pupils in a similar manner and have been testing for years.

"The work we've been doing here in Hanover is well ahead of any of these standards," he stated. "Our scores are going up, but not because of the tests.

"Neither of these tests told us anything we didn't already know," Fox added.

Fox said the students receive help through special classes or tutoring. Hanover does not receive any state funds for those programs.

Education commissioner Raynolds said the tests will become valuable tools. The state will allocate funds to those communities that show the highest need for remedial assistance funds.

However, he said the most important factor is trying to involve parents, particularly those in lower socio-economic areas of the state.

"We have to go after those parents and involve them," he said. "It is our problem. It is a community problem."

Men of Harmony present barbershop concert

The South Shore Men Of Harmony, (a barbershop chorus made up of 102 South Shore resident's will present their 36th annual show "Vaudeville, Barbershop Style" Saturday (2 and 8 p.m.), April 11 at Hingham High School Auditorium, 41 Pleasant St.

Featured will be the quartet "The Boston Consort," formerly known as "The Boston Common", an international barbershop quartet champion in 1980.

The group, in various forms, has appeared in 46 states, 5 foreign countries, on several network radio and TV shows (including NBCs Today Show, the CBS A.M. America program, Irish TV, West Germany's WDR, BBC-TV and radio and Canada's CBC-TV) and many local and regional radio and TV programs.

The group has appeared at New York's famed Carnegie Hall, Rockefeller Center, Chatauqua, Canada's National Arts Center, on several Caribbean cruises aboard the QE II, and performed as back up to a major recording artist (Chip Taylor's album "Some of Us", Warner Brothers).

The "Saturday Night Revue", 1986 Division IV Champions and Northeastern District Finalist quartet, will perform with the Men of Harmony's own chorus director Phil Carter, (a 23 year barbershopper), singing lead.

In addition to the quartets listed, the South Shore Men of Harmony's own chapter quartets (former Div IV Champions) will perform.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Manny Dias at 335-3468 or Ernie Krabisch at 878-6061 or by contacting any of the chorus members.

Tickets prices are $6 for the 2 p.m. show (senior citizens and children $4); evening price for all tickets at the 8 p.m. show is $7.

The South Shore Men of Harmony always welcome all male singers as guests to their rehearsals every Thursday evening at 8:15 p.m. in the Hingham Community Center, 70 South Street Hingham. Age is no barrier. The youngest member of the group is now 15 years old (he joined at 13) and the oldest member is a young 85.

Annual general conference

Members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and friends will have an opportunity to "attend" the 157th Annual General Conference right in their own chapel in Hingham.

The Conference which originates from the Tabernacle on Temple Square, Salt Lake City, will be beamed to over 400 satellite dishes throughout the nation to church Stake Centers. The local center is located in Hingham at the Gardner Street chapel.

Five two-hour sessions of talks and inspirational music will be held over Saturday and Sunday, April 4 and 5, starting at noon. A half hour of music by the Tabernacle Choir will precede the talks at 11:30 a.m. Sunday. Church President and Prophet, Ezra Taft Benson, will preside and offer words of counsel to the members.

Beechwood services

The Beechwood Congregational Church welcomes everyone to worship Sunday mornings at 10:45 a.m. The pastor is Stephen S.J. Hall. Child care is provided.

The Sunday School meets from 9:30-10:30 a.m. Children in grades K-8 are invited to attend. Friends are always welcome.

Youth fellowship for grades 7-12 meets at 7 p.m. Sunday evenings. This week's meeting is a sleepover Friday evening. For information, call Pastor Hall, 545-3810, evenings.

Tuesdays at 8 p.m. is ladies night out. Come to the church for an hour or two for conversation and coffee. All friends and neighbors are welcome.

This year's Election Supper was another success. Many thanks to Ruth Mitchell and crew for the superb meal. Candidates and voters alike had a wonderful time.

Office hours: Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon.

Quincy Crisis Center: clothing and non-perishable food drive is nearly complete. Lots of items have been brought in - many thanks. Do remember that the Crisis Center in Bates Hall will be an on-going collection base for food and clothing.

Annual Spring Cleaning: of the church will be Saturday, May 16, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. All church members are encouraged to volunteer some time to this project. Inside and outside tasks are available.

Deacons: will meet Thursday, April 12 at 8 p.m. at Margaret Bates', 365 Beechwood St., (383-1129).

Youth News: Confirmation Sunday is getting close! Palm Sunday, April 12, thirteen of our eighth through tenth graders will be confirmed during the regular service. A special reception will follow in Bates Hall.

For the Visually Impaired: The "Upper Room" is making available at a reduced rate, multiple copies of their devotional booklet in a large-print addition. If you are interested in receiving one of these, please call the church office and, if the need is sufficient, we will order several. For the home-bound, someone could bring a copy to you as they are received. Do give us a call if a large-print "Upper Room" would be of interest to you.

First Parish services

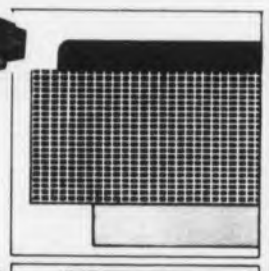
Parish News: Liliane Verdier and E. Shawn Worster signed the membership book this past Sunday morning. We extend a warm welcome to them.

Introducing the Canvass Committee: Campaign planning Committee - Bobby Leary, Campaign co-chairperson; Jack Martin, campaign co-chairperson; Bill bell, parish committee; Eric Klutz, financial planning committee; Ed Atkinson, minister; Ken Wilcox, treasurer; Jim Hamilton, special gifts chairperson; Roger Whitley, general gifts co-chairperson; Madeline Olney, general gifts co-chairperson; Millie Mitman, special events chairperson.

Special gifts vice-chairpersons: David Whipple, Priscilla Long, Marilyn Hobson; General gifts vice-chairpersons: Galt Grant, Tim Marsac, Dick Wheeler, Barbara Bliss, JoAnne Chittick, Jim sandell.

Recruitment of canvassers is underway. A training session for canvassers is planned for Sunday, April 5 at 5 p.m. Remember to save the date of the Canvass Dinner, April 11. Invitations will be in the mail soon.

Easter lilies: It has been our custom in the past to display Easter lilies on the chancel table on easter Sunday morning. If you are interested in donating a plant at a cost of $10 for our Easter Service of Worship, please call the office at 383-1100. The plants may be brought home after the service. Payment should be sent to the church office with a notation that it is for the "lilies."



Religious education news: The play rehearsal is progressing. The average attendance is about half of the cast. Please remember that Thursdays from 6 to 7:30 p.m.. is rehersal time. We need the players there.

Why play games with your retirement nest egg?

Your IRA is too important to juggle from "hot" investment to "hot" investment.

Opening an IRA at The Hibernia Savings Bank gives you plenty of choices—12 different Term Certificates that guarantee your return for anywhere from 31 days to 60 months. And because we're members of both FDIC and DIFM, your entire IRA is protected from loss—whether it contains $500 or $5 million.

So bring your nest egg to The Hibernia Savings Bank. And the next time the market swoons (or bonds bomb) you'll be sitting pretty—while everyone else is scrambling.

type of audience they will perform to there. If these kids are not entertaining, people will walk right by. The kids must be visually as well as vocally interesting. They must be entertaining beyond their music - that's the challenge. In this setting, it's 60 percent music, and 40 percent energy. And that's a shift from what they expect from me. But I must say they have been responsive. I hope they feel confident about themselves because they'll need that."

excellence.So I view our acceptance as doubly exceptional."

It was, according to the weary director, an extensive application process. Disney World required a video tape, and an audio recording of the group, along with a three-page application. "They wanted news articles, past programs, letters of recommendation and accomplishments of the group for the past two years," he recalled. It took the director a month to complete the process.

Choral director Bryan Marks puts the CHS chorus through yet another rehearsal in preparation for their performance at Epcot Center. (Kathy Perlow)

The group that will perform in Florida includes the school's show chorus, as well its choral group. Although they will perform in their staid blue robes, underneath they will be wearing costumes appropriate for their show tune numbers.

Once the kids are down in sunny Florida, performing in front of hundreds of spectators, Marks feels the reality of their hard work and talents will finally sink in.

"I'm nervous," he admitted earlier this week. "But I"m also confident. I feel we finally reached the place where we should be musically, and the students know they can do an excellent job. I'm just nervous about the magnitude of the thing, because I'm in charge of all these kids! I just tell myself not to be too nervous, because I've always heard such good reports on how well run everything is there.

"I'm nervous before we go on, but once we're there, we should all relax and enjoy our performance. If you're too nervous, it shows. All my energy has gone into the preparation of this and now it's just a matter of details. I want to make sure the kids relax and have fun. Their biggest asset is their talent, their energy and their vitality. That will determine their success," he noted.

After months of fundraising for their trip, most students will only have to pay $350 for the four-day trip; a price that includes air fare, hotel, food, transportation and two days of fun at Disney World. Through the sale of greeting cards, refreshments at school functions, and a raffle, the students and their parents have raised an average of $100 per student.

"They have worked really hard for this trip. They have earned all the fun," the weary, but contented music director stated. "I want to thank all the wonderful parents and staff members here at Cohasset High who have given us their support for this trip. Especially, thanks to Mary McElroy, a parent who has been involved in the coordination and organization of all our fundraising efforts. She's really done a terrific job for us, and deserves a lot of credit.

"Through the efforts of many, many people, these 31 kids are really going to have a trip they will never forget. I've told them that, but I'm not sure they'll believe me until it's over," Marks added.

Cohasset Mariner

Vol. IX, No. 28 | 383-6731/545-7060 | Thursday, April 9, 1987 | 2 Sections | 35 cents

Majority of voters back Town Hall addition

An overwhelming majority of Cohasset voters hoisted high their little yellow cards Monday, calling for the construction of a $1,096,450 addition to the town hall.

Although lengthy debate and two proposed amendments preceded the vote, residents voted 169 to eight in favor of the project.

According to architect Brett Donham, the expansion will double the size of the present facility, allowing Cohasset to consolidate its municipal departments under one roof. The project also will provide required vault space and access for the handicapped.

Ironically, the same project was vetoed at last year's town meeting. Construction costs have risen 15 percent since then, said Benjamin Blake of the town hall study committee.

The whole process began 60 years ago, Blake noted, when the town acquired the parking lot area for town hall expansion. During the 1950s, the town studied ways to get more efficient use of its facilities and the installation of an intermediate floor was considered and rejected.

The genesis of the plans which the voters accepted Monday night began in February, 1984. The plans provide a matching white clapboard structure similar in size to the existing town hall. It will feature offices, conference rooms, facilities that can accommodate the handicapped, vault space and an updated sewerage system.

Since last year's rejection, Donham commented, the project's cost has increased by 25 percent, $240,000. He blamed a strong construction economy and thriving private development for the escalation.

Despite the hike, Donham predicted Cohasset taxpayers will benefit from the greater efficiency of their town government.

"There was no more economical way to put this project together," he added. "The alternatives all were more expensive."

In the selectmen's endorsement, member Clifford Mittman noted the town would have to spend a minimum of $370,000 to reach compliance with state requirements. He said he hopes the bids come in lower than the projected cost.

The advisory committee agreed with the selectmen, but the capital budget committee said it was "neither for or against" the project.

Edwin Tebbetts, chairman of the capital budget committee told town meeting, "It is important to note that of seven items on the town's priority list, the town hall addition ranks fifth. If you approve this project, you should approve all four items on the list above it."

Tebbetts assailed Donham's budget figures, saying

Vast majority support field plan

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

To many people attending town meeting Saturday, it wasn't a matter of money. Despite a clear warning of the exorbitant costs, voters overwhelmingly supported plans to renovate the Milliken athletic fields.

Before a tally of the votes was completed, supporters applauded and signaled their approval of the warrant article which appropriated $16,761 for final engineering designs.

Kenneth Ekberg, chairman of the Milliken Field improvement committee, said the increased participation in community and recreational life in Cohasset necessitated the upgrading and rehabilitation of the town's playing fields. The additional $16,761, he said, was necessary to complete the engineering plans for Milliken and Lillard fields. Special town meeting in June, 1986, appropriated $20,000 for the design, but as landscape architect Francis Spinks continued the plans, he alerted the committee that the costs would exceed the appropriation. The intial estimate of $20,000 for the plans, Ekberg emphasized, were based on inaccurate projections made by the town's former building inspector.

Spinks told town meeting that while he was drawing the master plan, he realized the all weather running track would best be located at Lallard Field, behind the high school. A toilet and locker room facility would also be located there. Spinks said he is devising a

Town to enforce court ruling: CHL applies for permit

The town will be in court again this week, attempting to enforce last week's court decision which prohibits refuse from being dumped into the commercial landfill.

The state land court last week upheld a previous ruling by the town's zoning board of appeals which prohibited the dumping of refuse in Cohasset Heights Ltd. The landfill's attorney, Anton Moehrke, is appealing that decision in the state Appeals Court.

While the landfill is in the midst of a court appeal, Moehrke said he will be questioning whether the commercial dump can continue to accept the refuse debris. "We haven't concluded our analysis yet," he said this week, "but it appears to me that there is a provision in the law allowing an automatic stay of the land court ruling while we are appealing."

Moehrke also said the landfill will be filing an application with the zoning board of appeals for a modification of the special permit approved by that board in 1976.

The town's special legal counsel, Michael Leon, said he will fight a stay of the land court's decision. An appeal of that ruling could take up to nine months, resulting in a reversal of the court's intent if refuse is permitted in the landfill during the appeal process.

"We'll be going to court the end of this week, or the beginning of next week, seeking to enforce the land court's decision," Leon said. The land court upheld a decision made last year by former building inspector Edward Poskus, who determined the landfill was exceeding the zoning board's special permit granted in 1976. The Cohasset zoning board later sided with the building inspector and ruled that the permit was exceeded. Cohasset Heights then took the matter to the Massachusetts Land Court.

As of this week, no refuse is being allowed within the commercial landfill. The only material permitted under the special permit is demolition debris, which includes stumps, rocks, bricks and building refuse.

In its 1976 special permit, the zoning board ruled that any other refuse would not be allowed within the dump.

Atty. Moehrke said the general refuse comprises a

Runners hot in Sunday's rainy race

By 2:30 Sunday afternoon,there were few clues that 500 runners had just sped by.

The large digital clock, blinking out the finishing times of the racers, was dismantled. The ropes that had sternly protected the finish line were untied and stored away for next year. The crowds that lined the front steps of Town Hall were gone, or redirected to a local restaurant for bit of revelry.

The 11th annual Roadrace by the Sea was history an hour after it began. The only thing that lingered was the smell of hot dogs which had been served under brightly-colored umbrellas. And the rain, which obediently remained within the dark, threatening clouds, finally exploded late that afternoon.

Earlier Sunday morning, about 50 people showed up in front of Town Hall to participate in the third annual 10K walk. More than 150 had registered for the walk, but many were intimidated by the spitting, cold rain and the winter-like temperatures. At 10 a.m. the gun sounded the start, and the walkers, dressed in various weather-resistant garb, began the course which wound around Elm Street, Atlantic Avenue, Jerusalem Road, Forest Avenue and North Main Street. By the time the last walkers hobbled across the finish line, it was time to proceed with the race which began promptly at 1 p.m.

As BAA official Will Cloney fired the starting gun, a sea of about 500 runners poured through the tiny road

Cohasset's week . . .

Food delivery restricted

Cohasset voters overwhelmingly agreed to amend the general bylaws restricting the sale or delivery of foods in town between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Delivering the advisory committee's endorsement, member Betsy Millard said, "We feel this amendment will protect the residential nature of the town and preclude out-of-town traffic.

The new rule will prohibit the planned 24-hour operation of a new Super Stop & Shop being built at the corner of Route 3A and Sohier Street.

The bylaw will affect the sale of "any article or commodity, however stored or packaged, intended for human consumption, including alcoholic beverages to be consumed off the premises at which they are sold, unless any other law or permit or license granted to the seller shall otherwise provide."

The bylaw will not apply to to the sale of food or alcoholic beverages to be consumed on the premises at which they are sold, when such sale is by a licensed common victualer.

Furthermore, stores which sell such products may not be open for business or accept deliveries between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Anyone found guilty of violating the bylaw will be fined $50 per offense, with each separate sale or delivery regarded as a separate offense.

Selectman Diane Sullivan noted, the rule will not affect drug stores which happen to sell food, because the sale of food is not the establishment's principal business.

Robert Davenport said he believes the fines are heavy compared with the treatment package stores receive under similar circumstances.

"If it comes out in a hearing that someone has violated a liquor license, the establishment in question is closed," Sullivan retorted. "That's a stiff fine."

Ward plan postponed

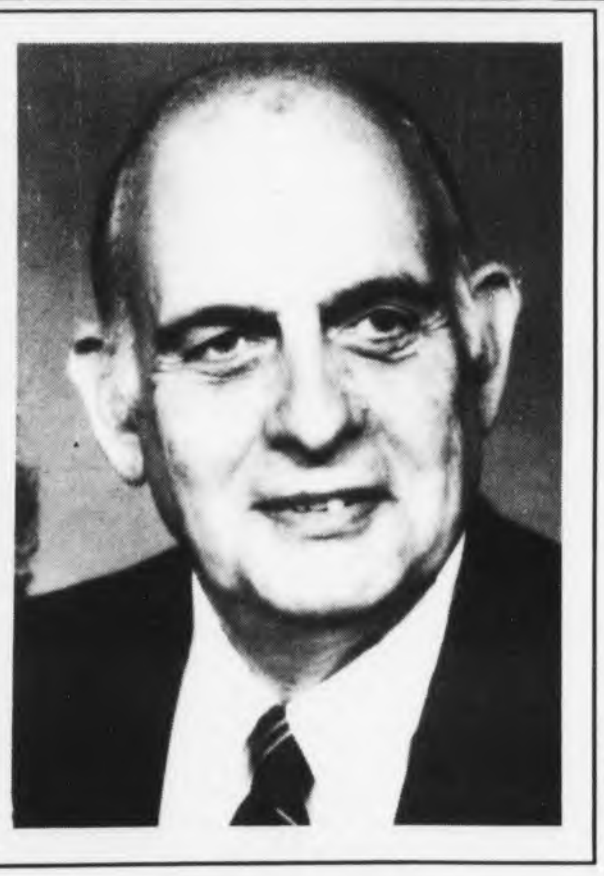
Voters agreed Monday to postpone indefinitely a proposal to adopt and implement the "Modified Ward Plan" at an additional cost of $360,000.

Article 44 proposed an amendment to the June, 1984 special town meeting's authorization for the preparation of plans for a wastewater management and disposal system. The amendment would have brought plans into compliance with those authorized by the state and required the appropriation of $360,000 more.

"The towns of Cohasset and Hull must live with this agreement for 30 years," Charles DeSantis, chairman of the sewer commission told the town meeting. "Neither town will move for ratification until both sides are completely satisfied with the agreement.

"We have gotten much closer to an intermunicipal agreement and we will keep working until it is complete," he added. "We began negotiating two years ago and the state Dept. of Water Pollution Control finally blessed the plan in February; it was not until that point that Hull took Cohasset's proposal seriously.

"Since that point," DeSantis noted, "there have been earnest negotiations, but unfortunately we were unable to conclude the document in time for town meeting.



"We will have to live with the document for at least 30 years," he reiterated, "so we do not want to rush into it."

DeSantis read part of a letter from John Struzziery, chairman of the Hull sewer commission in which the commissioner commented, "It is the intent of Hull to enter into a finalized intermunicipal agreement based on the (negotiated) criteria in the fall of 1987, and shortly thereafter it is our hope to commence design and construction of this project."

While Hull town meeting is expected to deliberate on this issue in September, Cohasset may act sooner or concurrently depending on when negotiations are completed, according to DeSantis.

Awards were presented last week to eighth grade winners in the D.A.R. essay contest. The students are in Mr. Kelly's class at the high school. Winners include: Travis Coley, silver medal; Kristin Martin, bronze medal; Michael Cisneros, certificate of award; Steven Almeida, certificate of appreciation; Peter Smith, certificate of appreciation; Jennifer Plante, Certificate of appreciation; Amy O'Rourke, certificate of appreciation; Robert Lawrence, certificate of appreciation; Kay Long, certificate of appreciation. Tupelo Road, Rte 3A intersection to be closed

Despite stiff opposition, town meeting voted 137 to 74 to close the intersection of Tupelo Road at Route 3A.

Neighborhood citizens signed and submitted a petition to have the road blocked off to traffic there. In recommending the article, selectmen said the move would help prevent serious accidents at the uncontrolled intersection.

The advisory committee disagreed with the selectmen and recommended the road be kept open. "We felt we might be setting a bad precedent," said Chairman Fred Koed. "Besides, five members of the committee use that road on a daily basis. We don't feel we have enough information and we recommend keeping that road open."

Arthur Rasmussen of 33 Tupelo Road told the meeting, "Tonight, we have an opportunity to prevent a tragedy.

"There is a tremendous flow of transient traffic through our neighborhood and egress and entrance at that intersection has proved to be dangerous. If you vote for this," he told the meeting, "you could be saving a life."

David Weltman of Gammons Road told the town he believes a traffic study should be performed before closing down an east-west thoroughfare.

"When you close off Tupelo Road," he commented, "there will be more people on Pond Street and Sohier Street. It's a selfish act."

Selectman Rocco Laugelle argued that Tupelo Road is the most dangerous of the three east-west access roads, because the intersection there is not governed by a traffic signal as are the other intersections.

With regard to the closure he suggested the town spend some money to erect a "proper" barrier.

"We should grass it over and not just put down pieces of ledge," he said.

Janet Lahive of 25 Tupelo Road noted, "When the three-street cul-de-sac was built, it was opened by the one person who didn't sign the petition. It was designed to be closed.

"Since there is no light at Tupelo Road," she told the voters, "drivers cut through there to avoid the other light."

Louise Flint of 21 Clay Spring Road added, "My husband Gordon and I were almost killed in an accident there. I hope you close that dangerous intersection."

Peter Laugelle, head of the town's tree and park dept., argued against the closure. "That's our one good access to that area," he said. "There's a hill on the other side and in the winter it can be tough to get in there.

"I don't believe it's any worse than the other roads; I can remember only one accident there in the past few years. Can you prove there are a lot of accidents there?

"If we close it off," he added, "what will that do to the kids who walk to the high school on Pond Street, which has no sidewalks?"

Bruce Edmonds of 76 Pond Street agreed. "Check the accidents on Pond Street," he said. "Two boys were killed on Pond Street just a few years ago; there are many more accidents there."

"Why not make it one-way?" suggested Robert Beggan of 4 Sankey Road.

"We discussed that," Selectman Laugelle said, "and we felt this is the best way to go." The voters agreed.

Town meeting voters reject commercial landfill closure

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Despite strong arguments, town meeting decided not to support a resolution calling for the closure of the commercial landfill.

Based on advice from town counsel, voters at Saturday's session of town meeting voted against a resolution calling for town officials to "aggressively seek" the shutdown of Cohasset Heights Ltd.

Article 35 of the town meeting was a citizens' petition. Selectmen motioned for the article to be indefinitely postponed. And in a clarification, Town Counsel Richard Henderson told the voters that the article was an attempt to legislate the closing of a business, which is legally the authority of a town board or court. It was not, Henderson advised, an appropriate subject for town meeting to discuss.

After the motion to postpone the article was approved by voters, Beechwood Street resident Frederick Laidlaw spoke to the meeting. He offered a resolution, which has no legal binding effect, to the town meeting voters. The resolution was, in effect, a rewording of the warrant article which called for the closure of the landfill. Laidlaw said the resolution would provide a forum to express the collective opinion of the townspeople.

"Unfortunately, ten years ago, had we been more informed at that time, we would not be faced now with this imminent fate and closure costs. It seems likely the town must now bear those costs," Laidlaw stated.

Brian Lipsett of Pond Street noted that "All over the world, citizens are calling for homerule. This vote will affect citizens all over the country - to tell selectmen and the board of health to enforce the existing site assignment and the Wetlands Protection Act."

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle and James Gallagher said selectmen would not support the resolution, and called for a quick vote on the matter.

William Baird of Red Gate Lane said the town boards must remain completely objective in the matter, adding, "Anyone at the Board of Health meetings realizes the outrage of our citizens." He urged town meeting not to support the resolution, noting, "Clearly we have a wetlands violation and our conservation commission can take strong action along with the water commission and the board of health. But these acts must be impartial. Any resolution would be a political resolution and would take away the impartiality the boards must have."

By a voice vote, the resolution was defeated.

In other action Saturday, voters supported an amendment made by Joseph Hamilton of the water department, which will give non-union town employees a five percent wage increase. Although the warrant article recommended a 3.5 percent increase over the current salaries, Hamilton convinced voters that town employees deserved the higher rate. "In the past," he said, "we have received less than the cost of living. When the cost of living rate got to 12 percent, we got six percent." The increase, he calculated, will cost the town an extra $17,910 and will affect 42 permanent full and part-time employees.

A warning was sounded from Selectman Cliff Mitman, who explained that in addition to a 3.5 percent wage increase, town employees receive annual step raises in their particular positions. Adding a five percent pay hike to their step increases will give town employes between an eight and ten percent salary hike.

Patricia Walsh, secretary to the sewer commission, noted that the lowest salary increase given to union employees this year was 5.5 percent. The police will be anticipating a 7.12 percent hike in July. The fire chief is guaranteed an eight percent increase in his contract, she stated.

By a hand count, Hamilton's amendment to the article was passed, granting a 5.5 percent salary increase to non-union town employees, effective July 1.

Following that vote, selectmen recommended that the town's elected officials, the town clerk, the treasurer-collector and the highway superintendent, be granted five percent pay increases for fiscal 1988. The amount of $4,609 needed for the increase will be taken from surplus revenue, which is an available resource, according to Town Accountant Jo-Ann Whittemore.

Selectman Mitman explained the three officials should be treated the same as the other town employees.

Earlier, town meeting defeated an amendment to the budget proposed by selectmen to correct the classification of a position in the selectmen's office and to increase the budget allocated to that position. Selectman Diane Sullivan asked that the position not be paid back wages, but that it be paid correctly in the future - as an administrative coordinator, not administrative secretary. The salary increase would amount to $1,733, she stated.

But Personnel Committee Chairman Jan Daggett spoke against the position change, saying the personnel consultant hired by the town recommended the secretarial title to the position, based on an outline of the duties performed.

Selectmen also requested that shades be purchased for the North Cohasset fire station. The amendment to the budget failed by voice vote, and the recommended town operating budget of $10,361,754 for fiscal 1988 was approved.

Reserve fund alarm not sounded

Town meeting voters reached deep into their pockets Saturday, and found enough money to finance several new purchases and projects.

With the tally ringing up, Town Accountant Jo-Ann Whittemore said she would surely alert voters when the town's reserve fund began to run dry. But by the end of Saturday's all-day session, the alarm had not been sounded.

By the end of Saturday's meeting, Whittemore said there would be a cushion of $45,787 available even if all the capital projects were approved by town meeting. That excluded a renovation project to the police and fire station which was indefinitely postponed, and the final cost of a new firefighters union contract.

In a financial status report to the town meeting, advisory committee chairman Fred Koed said the town's debt service, which comprises 2.5 percent of the overall budget, decreased by $115,000 this year to $400,000. The town's free cash fund, which requires a town meeting vote to use, is set at $600,00 and the stabilization fund, which provides the town with a reserve for capital expenditures, is set at $218,000.

Koed warned town meeting to postpone some of the "big money" articles, and suggested $160,000 in expenditures be delayed for another year. Koed said a program of phasing in necessary expenditures should be established. That would leave $208,000 in the town's free cash and stabilization funds. He suggested that the town set aside four to five percent of the operating budget for capital expenditures. More importantly, he emphasized, the town must implement a program to improve and maintain municipal buildings and equipment.

The school committee presented three capital expenditure requests to town meeting, all of which were pared down prior to the presentation to voters.

Residents approved $80,000 to purchase buses as part of the school department's on-going program. Three smaller buses will be used to transport athletic teams and students involved in intra-school activities.

School Committee Chairman Joseph Nedrow explained that a complicated state program will result in a 60 percent reimbursement to the town for the equipment purchases.

When asked if the buses are equipped with seat belts, Nedrow answered negatively. Studies have shown, he said, that most bus-related injuries occur outside the vehicle. The latest designs provide an extra measure of passenger safety inside the bus. There is a state commission studying the issue of mandatory seat belts in school buses, but he noted, "the jury is still out." There are no studies to date that suggest that an inconsistency between wearing seat belts in the car and non-useage on the school bus, is endangering the lives of young people.

Bus coordinator Janet Figueiredo told town meeting that providing the belts may cause more harm than good. The padding and closer seats provide the riders with a significant measure of safety, she stated.

The request was unanimously approved.

Town meeting also approved a request for $110,000 for the repair of windows in the front east wing of the high school. Nedrow said the committee will be back next year with a request to finish the work at the school.

The school facilities committee endorsed all three capital requests made by the committee. The capital budget committee also supported the amended articles.

The final school-related article which received support from town meeting was a $140,000 appropriation for the renovation of the high school science labs. The updating of science facilities is necessary, Nedrow said, "to provide a really meaningful learning environment" and to keep Cohasset in compliance with new laws regarding the storage of chemicals in the school.

Town meeting also approved a three and a-half percent water rate increase and an eight and a-half percent increase on the town's rental rates for water hydrants. The board of selectmen were split in their support of the rate hike, according to Selectman Diane Sullivan. One official thought the increase was too much, one felt it was too small, and Sullivan said she did not think the new rates were proportionate with the higher rates charged by Hingham to the North Cohasset users.

Water commissioner William Montuori said the new rates would bring in an additional $20-$25,000 in revenue next year. The residential rate will now be $27 per cubic foot, which is about a three percent increase. The additional revenue, Montuori said, will be used to offset the water department's debt to the town. He said that by the early 1990's, the water department should start to operate in the black.

Plenty of purchases by voters

Plans to renovate the police and fire station were postponed because "we weren't quite ready to answer all the questions and the architect is trying to change the plans to reduce the costs," Selectman Sullivan explained. "Presently, a rough estimate is $1 million. The plans should be ready by special town meeting."

A request to appropriate $19,000 to improve a drainage system on property belonging to Samuel Cross of Beechwood Street was indefinitely postponed Saturday. Cross, a Braintree resident, owns land on Beechwood Street that his wife inherited from the James' family. Because the land is constantly flooded, he is not permitted to build on it. He asked the town's help in providing the highway department a ten-foot easement so the water runoff can be redirected off his property. Cross said the land in its present condition is a health hazard - a breeding ground for mosquitos in the summer.

Lot Bates, an abutter to the property, said the flooding is caused by runoff from a natural brook, and opposed the town's assistance in making this land more profitable for a private landowner. Cross maintained the land is flooded by water running off other properties.

Highway Superintendent Harold Litchfield said there are 12 catch basins that run through to his property. After reviewing the situation, he suggested establishing a 19-foot easement to install a pipe, catch basin and manholes.

Although sewer commissioner Charles DeSantis argued that the flooding appeared to be caused by the town, and not by a natural water basin, Maxwell Pounder of Stockbridge Road suggested voters postpone a vote on the article. Town meeting approved the suggestion and no action was taken.

Voters okay Town Hall addition his $110 per square-foot cost, including the cellar, was $10 per square foot higher than what a high quality building ought to cost.

Wayne Sawchuk of 152 King Street queried whether Donham's plans will meet new requirements set forth by the state architectural barriers board.

The selectmen's office and two restrooms would remain inaccessible to the handicapped, he noted, because they are separated by two staircases.

"The state law requires the building to be accessible," Donham said. "They could come down anytime and order you to do that, even if you held off on the possible action of town meeting to renovate."

Max Pounder of 48 Stockbridge Street offered an amendment to Article 33, which will require Donham, at no cost to the town, to redesign the town hall plans to meet the project cost, if the construction bids exceed the amount appropriated for the project by town meeting.

"It is my opinion," he told the crowd, "that on all capital projects, budget estimates must conform to our vote. We must make sure they come in at that budget. Whether you are in favor of the project or not, you ought to vote for this amendment and establish a precedent, so our agreements have teeth in them. This will tie his hands down to meet that cost."

Pounder's amendment met with cheers and applause as the voters unanimously adopted the measure.

Seeking to strike Article 33 altogether, Sawchuk proposed another amendment which called for only $59,000 worth of work, including the installation of a septic system, repairs to the electrical system and restrooms, and the installation of ramps for handicapped access.

Town Archivist David Wadsworth reminded Sawchuk the state has been pressing Cohasset for six years to provide adequate vault space at town hall.

Town Treasurer Elizabeth Ripley told the voters, "My recommendation is to fund the debt (on the town hall project) this year, because the rates are very low. I don't know when we'll see them this low again."

Sawchuk's amendment went down in flames as the voters opted to build the proposed addition.

☐ Joanna K. Fone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Fone, has been named to the Faculty Honors list for the fall semester at Trinity College. To earn this honor, a student must achieve a semester grade point average of A- or better with no individual letter grade below B-. Joanna is a senior intercultural studies major, and studied at the Trinity College / Rome Campus during her junior year. She is a 1983 graduate of Cohasset High School. Trinity, founded in 1823, is one of the nation's leading independent liberal arts colleges. It maintains a rigorous curriculum founded in the liberal arts and sciences to help students discover their strengths, develop their individual potential and prepare themselves for lives that are both personally satisfying and valuable to others.

☐ A vote of appreciation is due the 44 students and 4 adults who participated in the American Red Cross Bloodmobile held at Cohasset High School Gym last Monday, March 30th. A special thanks to Mrs. Corinne Cahill, RN, who supervised the days' operation, and to the Student Co-ordinator Kathy-Ann Haase and her staff of aids.

☐ We sure hope that Dick Fessler is feeling better; also, want to wish Shirley Watters a speedy recovery from her recent surgery. With Pete and Todd going down to Florida soon, they are bound to help her on the road to recovery with their cheerfulness!

☐ How about that Michelle Hartley! Michelle is only a freshman, and was chosen for the Quincy Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Gymnastic Team. We are sure to hear more from Michelle in the future, and hope that she keeps us informed of her activities.

The Newcomers Club of Scituate and Cohasset held a successful fashion show last week at the Barker Tavern. Club officers gathered at the event, including: Linda Coyle, president, Ray Langham and Judy Wyks, chairmen of the show.

☐ Congratulations to Lillian M. Murray, who was selected as one of the "Outstanding Young Women of America for 1986". Lillian was selected from many nominees submitted by respected business and civic leaders, and was recognized for "giving her time, talent and unselfish service to enrich the quality of American life."

☐ Doug Bennett and Liam Stanford finished their wrestling careers at Cohasset High in grand style, they were both named to the Quincy Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Team. Great work guys!

☐ Susan DeMichele has an exhibit of her landscapes and abstract paintings at Simmons College's Trustman Art Gallery. Her work is inspired by coastal Cohasset, and her exhibit includes landscapes in oils and abstracts in acrylics. Susan has exhibited at Symphony Hall, the South Shore Conservatory, and at the Prudential Group Show. Go and see this fine exhibit, see what Cohasset scenes you recognize.

☐ Be sure that you answer your phone with a "yes" when the PSO calls Monday night, looking for your pledge to help fund activities planned for the 1987-1988 school year. The PSO promotes programs and activities than enhance your child's school education, and they do a grand job. Your pledge will be greatly appreciated.

☐ How about Margery Dougherty, Abigail White and Tamsin E. Elliott, who appeared in the 95th Vincent Show, "Tonight at 8" held last weekend at the New England Life Hall in Boston. This show is an annual production of the Vincent Club, and all proceeds are donated to the Vincent Memorial Hospital, the Women's Division of Mass General Hospital.

☐ Sure was nice to watch the Road Race by the sea on cable, for all of us "fair weather fans" who didn't want to venture out in the rain and cold! Congratulations to all of the runners they are to be commended! And to all of the men of the Rotary Club who sponsored the race.

☐ We hear that Susan Neer, Julia Jordan and Sue Yake were a smashing success at the 95th Vincent Show that was held last weekend!

☐ Now that strawberries are in season, be sure to buy them by the plastic pint, that way you can give the container to the Osgood School for a project they have planned.

Town Commitments

- Declared supporter of the Ward Plan-sewerage tie in to Hull
- Pledged to work to revoke the Cohasset Heights Landfill permit
- Elected official of the Cohasset Recreation Commission (attended 86% of the meetings)
- Appointed member of the School Facilities Board
- Active soccer, baseball, street hockey coach for town programs over the past 12 years
- Organized and managed Village Fair Chowder Bar for 5 years.

Determined to work to preserve the natural beauty of Cohasset, keeping "the future in mind when making decisions today."

Paid for by Committee to Elect Bob Beggan

around town

☐ Hurrah for Chip Anderson, who competed recently in the Eastern Mass District Championships. He came in 6th overall in the backstroke, and his relay team came in fifth in the free relay. Keep up the good work Chip.

☐ Cindy Spooner and Marge Murphy are also among the top talent on the South Shore, in the girls basketball team action. These gals were both named to the Quincy Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Team and we congratulate them!

☐ Little old Cohasset sure made the South Shore stand up and take notice of us, with all of the stand-out teams and individuals, we should all take the time to thank the teams and their coaches for all of their efforts.

☐ Lillian M. Murray of 28 Margin Street, has been elected as one of the "Outstanding Young Women of America for 1986."

Murray was selected for the honor from among thousands of nominees submitted by respected business and civic leaders from throughout the country, according to Margaret Long Arnold, Chairman of the Board of Advisors of Outstanding Young Women of America.

Arnold said Murray was recognized for "giving her time, talent and unselfish service to enrich the quality of American Life."

Presently a political science student at the University of Massachusetts, Boston Harbor Campus, Lillian graduated from Cohasset High School in 1975.

She attended Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy and received an Associate Degree from Aquinas Junior College in Milton.

She has served in numerous school and community organizations. She was a member of the Student Advisory Committee to the Cohasset School Committee. Murray was also a junior member and fundraiser for the Cohasset Community Center.

☐ John Kalishes of Cohasset has been named co-manager of Ken & Dave's Manufacturers Marketplace store at Shaws Plaza in Raynham.

Kalishes joined Manufacturers Marketplace just as the company was expanding its operation to the South Shore. He has been sales and assistant manager of the chain's Hingham location since it opened in September 1984.

☐ Proud grandparents are plentiful in Cohasset! Mrs. Mary G. Reardon and Mr. and Mrs. William G. O'Brien are the new grandparents of Terence Michael Reardon, who was born March 7 at South Shore Hospital. Terence has a three and a half year old brother Daniel, and a two year old sister, Lauren at their Hanover home.

☐ Edward F. Goff Co., Inc. of Cohasset, MA has won an "Award of Distinction" from the Vinyl Siding Institute for outstanding workmanship in the creative application of vinyl siding products. The award was announced March 24 at the VSI's annual meeting in Miami, Fla.

☐ Patrick Broderick, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Broderick, 20 Buttonwood Lane, Cohasset was named to the Admiral's List at the State University of New York Maritime College. Patrick earned more than 3.5 grade average for the fall semester.

☐ Carla Lucas, Class of '89; Amy Elizabeth Urmson, Class of '87; and Julie May Hoogeveen, Class of '88, were named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Wheaton College.

☐ William E. Roy, a native of Cohasset attending Wentworth Institute of Technology, has been awarded a $3,000 scholarship to study building construction at the undergraduate level. Roy was one of 79 recipients of annual scholarships presented by The Associated General Contractors of America (AGC) Education and Research Foundation. The 1987 scholarship recipients were announced at the recent AGC Annual Convention in Washington, D.C.

Cast your vote

Town meeting, all seventy-plus articles, are now history.

Throughout the past week, voters debated the merits of a Cohasset Heights Ltd. resolution, which was defeated; and a bylaw limiting the hours of operation for Stop and Shop, which was approved. The Milliken Field project is once again underway, Tupelo Road will be closed at the Rte. 3A entrance, and town employees received a larger-than-expected pay hike for 1988.

We now look forward to the second process of our annual municipal obligations. This Saturday is the town election, and we look forward to some interesting results.

There are, as you are well aware, six candidates vying for two positions on the board of selectmen. As many of you have seen and heard, they are all solidly-qualified candidates.

At the very least, each of these people deserves your consideration. And two of them most certainly deserve your vote.

Perhaps we in Cohasset, more than most other communities, realize the importance of every vote in an election. None of us would like to relive the 1984 election which ended in a tie between two candidates. What followed was often harsh, bitter and upsetting in a small community. We lived through that time, perhaps more acutely aware that everyone's vote does hold value and significance.

There is also a contest between an incumbent sewer commission and one opponent. It's been a long time since a sewer commissioner has been challenged, and it's good to see some effective dialogue between the two candidates. Voters have indeed had ample opportunity to listen to two clear opinions on the controversial sewer issues.

Although we are fortunate to have one eminently qualified school committee candidate, it's always disappointing to have no other residents involved. There are certainly many interested parents in this community, but for many reasons, we suppose others considered Nancy Sandell the best choice, or they decided they could not provide the considerable time it takes to serve on such a committee. We wish Nancy the best of luck as she accepts her new responsibilities on the school board.

William Baird will be a welcomed addition to the health board. An engineer, he comes to that board with a wealth of environmental knowledge and experience. He is a man of eloquence and clarity and will serve the town well.

To all our newly-elected officials, we offer our congratulations. Never lose site of your first priority - to serve the people who selected you for that position.

And to all our retiring board members, we give you our gratitude. Being a public official in today's society is not an easy task. It is time-consuming, and often unrewarding. We believe our town has been bettered by your representation, and we look forward to your continued assistance.

Now it's onto a new slate of officers and a year filled with more challenges and goals.

Little League tryouts

Little League tryouts for the major league teams will be held on Saturday, April 11, at 9 a.m. at the Little League field. The rain out date is Sunday, April 12.

For those who can not tryout on Saturday an alternate tryout will be held on Sunday, April 12, at 1 p.m.

All 10, 11, 12 year olds must try out if they were not on a major league team last year.

comprehensive plan which can be excuted in phases as money is available.

The running track and varsity soccer field will cost about $550,000 he estimated.

Advisory committee member William Lean said the problem arises from the appropriation request for a plan.

"I thought those funds ($20,000) were to be used to scope out the project for plans and estimates - to allow for good, quality cost estimates, so town meeting would take an informed vote and not nibble at this a piece at a time," Lean said. The 126-122 majority vote to fund the initial plans last year was substantially less than the two-thirds majority needed to finance the project, he added.

Lean advised voters not to support the latest request, which he warned, is more realistically their endorsement of the entire $550,000 package. "It will be costly to proceed to the final engineering drawings before town meeting votes on the project itself," he stated. "Why aren't we voting on $550,000 today?" Lean said a vote on the plans is not the fiscally responsible move for the town to make.

"You're really not voting on a $16,000 article, but a $550,000 investment for the town," he warned.

However, Town Counsel Richard Henderson explained that he advised the Milliken committee to obtain a complete set of plans before presenting it to town meeting for full appropriation. "I advised the Milliken committee that the best way to proceed was to get the plans completed before we know the exact cost of the project," he stated.

The Capital Budget Committee handed town meeting voters a prioritized list of the town's requested capital expenses. As chairman Ned Tebbetts stated, "it has been our experience that the numbers (estimated project costs) tend to grow and grow."

The lowest priority was given to the Milliken Field request by members of the capital budget committee.

Tebbetts said the town should delay the project. "If you authorize a $550,000 project, we're going to have to vote on a Prop. 2 1/2 override. I am not necessarily opposed to an override, but I don't think the community is prepared," Tebbetts stated.

The school committee and selectmen endorsed the Milliken Field project.

Several residents, including Gary Vanderweil of Jerusalem Road, Patricia Walsh of North Main Street, and Peter Laugelle, superintendent of the Tree and Park Dept., supported the project.

Despite the warnings from advisor Lean that "if you vote in favor of this, you're voting in favor of a bigger expense," town meeting approved the appropriation by a 225-53 margin.

Special town meeting voters also approved $20,000 for special legal counsel costs involving the town's litigation with Cohasset Heights Ltd. When asked what the town received for the legal expenditures, Selectman Cliff Mitman replied, "Cohasset Heights Ltd. is a very serious case, and the town needs special counsel, Hopefully we are using this money as wisely as we can," noting that selectmen are in close communication with the health board regarding the court case.

Mitman told the voters there is currently no provision that will guarantee the recapture of any legal costs expended. Town Counsel Henderson explained that part of the town's negotiations involve the bonding, capital and environmental costs to the town if the landfill is ordered closed. Some of the legal costs will be reimbursable, he said, specifically those regarding civil court cases.

Without discussion, town meeting quickly approved appropriations of $12,981 and $15,500 for sewer department contract services.

Voters also approved the transfer of $8,000 for engineering studies of the Hillside neighborhood. Health board chairman Dr. Michael Bliss said the request was in response "to a desperate plea from the people of this area and their failed (septic) systems. What can we do? This might be the solution to improving the drainage so the septic systems are not overloaded with water in the ground. It may be a moot point if this area is sewered, but in lieu of that, it would be most sensible if we spent the money to look at this."

Both selectmen and the advisory committee did not support this article, stating that the Hillside area is in the first area designated for sewering under the Ward plan.

A final article, requesting an appropriation to seed and cap a portion of the Cedar Street landfill was indefinitely postponed. The health board will investigate whether this state-mandated project can be financed by the government.

Guest homes bylaw rejected by voters

Cohasset voters rejected a zoning bylaw change which would have restricted the use of guest houses in town.

The planning board wanted to restrict guest houses to special permit zoning status in residential districts, but the townspeople refused the restriction.

According to Robert Sturdy, a member of the planning board, a guest house is a dwelling which is used only intermittently and without remuneration. "They really are something of a bygone era."

Sturdy said the board was pressing for the bylaw change because many people have used the guest house classification to get around town zoning bylaws.

The bylaw change was designed to give the town more muscle in enforcing its regulations. But the voters saw the move as a threat against their liberties.

"This article concerns me," said Harbormaster Harry Ritter. "I want to build a so-called guest house, sell my home to a family member and spend the winters in Florida and live in the guest house here during the summer."

Selectman Diane Sullivan argued, "I'd like to remind Harry Ritter that that would still not be allowed; you couldn't use it three months out of the year, because that would be regular use."

"Before a previous ruling which pushed area regulations up to 60,000 square feet," Davenport commented, "Harry could have built a house on the adjacent property."

The motion required a two-thirds vote and fell four votes shy of passage, 64 to 40.

Candidate Davenport runs for selectman

Robert Davenport

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Robert Davenport is running for selectman because he wants to get the townspeople informed and involved in their government.

"After watching the meetings of different boards over the past 15 years," the Sohier Street resident explained, "I decided it was time for the townspeople to get involved."

Davenport said he believes the group that has been running Cohasset has been giving the people "one-sided opinions.

"The townspeople ought to be more informed," he said. "More meetings should be on cable T.V. because many issues are debated only when board members are there and the people are then told at town meeting what has been decided. I feel the townspeople should be involved."

The candidate said he believes the local newspapers do not provide accurate coverage of municipal affairs. "Sometimes I read the newspapers and wonder whether (the reporters) were at the same meeting I was at," he said. "What I read doesn't always sound like what went on."

Davenport said as selectman, he would commit himself to answering people's questions "by telling both sides of the story, not just my answer.

"When the townspeople have to make a decision," he explained, "they should not have just my opinion."

"Last week, I asked if the contract between the Hull and Cohasset sewer commissions was a privileged document," he noted. "The town counsel's opinion was that it is not. The sewer commission said it would call the secretary of state's office to find out whether or not parts of it are privileged.

"They already know it's not a privileged document," Davenport said, "but the 10 days it takes to get a response puts it past town meeting. I think it's a ploy to not let people know what's going on. I've seen a lot of that.

"The townspeople have a right to know what's going on," he said.

Of his qualifications, Davenport commented, "The biggest after 15 years of going to meetings off and on, is that I see how it's run - not on the inside, but from outside. I can imagine how it's run on the inside."

As selectman, Davenport said he would work to see that the townspeople learn all sides of an issue. "If we can't get people to meetings, we'll get the meetings on T.V., so they can see what's going on if they want to. I just want to get the taxpayers involved."

Davenport noted, his business is in Cohasset, so he is around town all the time.

"The sewer connection problem is our number one priority," he said in assessing the important issues facing Cohasset. "We need to do what's best for all the town, not for just a few. For the public health and welfare, we're considering the area's worst offenders, but we're not considering other areas.

"In the area around Lily Pond and on Sohier Street there have been no complaints, but anyone with common sense knows sewerage has been leaking there," he explained.

Davenport said he believes sewerage of Cohasset has been slow to develop because it has been used as a means of controlling growth.

"Twenty years ago, people were saying there was no land left," he commented, "but people are still building today."

Davenport said as selectman, he will address what he considers the board's biggest problem under its jurisdiction - the harbor department.

"There must be some way to free up the harbor and create more space," he said. "It needs to be better run; we need better rules and regulations and once a change is made, we need a strong board of selectmen to back it."

Davenport also expressed concern about the handling of town employees.

"Town hall is run on emotion," he said. "After something happens, the board of selectmen tries to correct it. Personalities get involved. I believe employees should be judged on job performance only. Everyone has the right to his own opinion and it should not affect his job."

Davenport said he will make a difference because, "I think anybody who knows me and my past reputation, knows I know the right questions to ask to get information out. It sometimes has been held against me to make it look like I cause trouble, but the questions I've asked, I've asked in the best interests of the whole town. If I have a problem with something, I'll go directly to the source, I won't just listen to other people's say so."

Candidate Churchill stresses environment

Thomas Churchill is running for selectman because he wants to help conserve the environment and preserve the quality of life in Cohasset.

Focusing on the Cohasset Heights landfill situation, the Bound Brook Lane resident noted, "Even though we've won a court decision, which means they can't dump anything but stumps, construction debris and so forth, and we seem to be winning the battle, I don't know if we've won the war with them.

"It was a good decision to try to close the landfill," he added. "That's the number one priority."

Churchill said he also is concerned about controlling Cohasset's growth. "In trying to keep our small community preserved," he said, "I look at Route 3A and I'm a little discouraged with the growth rate up there. Anybody who goes home between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. knows about the traffic problems we have there.

To deal with the problems facing his town, the 42-year-old Cohasset native seeks to "streamline" the town government. "I want to run the government as a business; I'm in favor of restructuring town hall to make it accessible to everyone in town.

"If Cohasset is to be a competitive, well-organized town," he explained, "there must be a well-organized government with a good, computerized system."

Churchill said his basic qualification for the public office is "being a concerned citizen who cares.

"This is all new for me," he admitted, "but the longer into the battle for selectman, the more interested I get in working to protect the community I've lived in all my life and maintaining the ideals our forefathers set forth.

"We're a small town that has become a very popular place to live," he explained. "The problem, as I see it, is that there is no affordable housing for people who have lived in town for generations; they no longer can afford to live here because of the popularity. It's hard to make an issue out of the standard of living.

"My belief," Churchill said, "is that we need more residential growth than commercial growth. I'm happy to see many things being resolved; the Ward plan is going forward and I hope it's not a band-aid approach. The main concern is to satisfy the state until an overall sewer plan can be worked out.

Thomas Churchill

"The present sewerage plan, I think, will allow more growth in Cohasset," he added. "Future residential growth can be expected as sewerage is completed in this town.

"I don't want to rush into overdevelopment, because I'm afraid the town might lose its identity," Churchill said. "I like the quaint atmosphere of Cohasset and I'd like to keep it this way; that might be a difficult job."

The candidate said he believes that how much time a selectman puts into the job determines how good a job that selectman does.

"We need a good, active five-member board of selectmen," Churchill commented. "I plan to put forward a great amount of energy, because there will be many important decisions to make over the next five to 10 years. We need to make common sense decisions, because they will determine which way the town will go.

Churchill said he believes he can learn the job of selectman because he is interested, concerned and has the time to be involved in the process of making such decisions.

"I don't know if I can be a major force in decision-making," he added. "but I'm interested in being involved in molding the way the town goes over the next few years.

"There is an attitude here of progression and staying the same. We don't want the town to change, but we know it has to change," he said. "I just want to represent the people and do what the people want.

"The role of the selectman is very simple," Churchill commented; "he represents the people - period. As a leader of the town, he protects the people and sets an example.

"A selectman should take ideas from all the boards," he added, "and formulate them into what the board finds feasible, cost efficient and best for the people of Cohasset.

"The selectmen must stand behind the decisions that are made by the people under their jurisdiction.

"Protecting our way of life," Churchill said, "is the most important thing we have to do. Conservation is important and we need powerful organization to keep an eye on things, because we don't want to outgrow ourselves."

Town elections, Saturday 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Meet selectman candidate Martha Gjesteby

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Hers is a grassroots campaign. Selectman candidate Martha Gjesteby has walked door-to-door, talking with residents about their concerns, soliciting their opinions.

In her campaign for a three-year seat on the board, Gjesteby has walked through most of Cohasset's neighborhoods, sharing her thoughts with hundreds of residents.

A Cohasset resident for 24 years, she and her husband, Arne, have four grown children - all graduates of the Cohasset school system. Gjesteby was a member of the school committee for six years and was a planning board member for one term. For two terms, she was a member of the Capital Budget Committee.

Gjesteby said she decided on a candidacy for selectman "because I like to serve the town. Right now I am serving on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and we are looking into many issues that are applicable to Cohasset, including regional planning and transportation. It's very important to discuss issues on a regional level - sharing ideas with other communities. Cohasset should be doing that, and we are.

"I live here. I like the town and I think it's so special that I want to continue to help. There really is no other reason than that. It's always been my reason for running for any committee. I have no grand design beyond the town of Cohasset, even though I serve on committees outside the town of Cohasset."

Her qualifications, the Old Pasture Road resident stated, include several memberships on various town committees. Gjesteby has gone beyond the town, which she said provides her "with a well-rounded perspective of the issues affecting Cohasset." She is currently chairman of the MAPC and belongs to several subcommittees of the organization. She has been Cohasset's fulltime representative on that planning agency since 1981 and was an alternate since 1977.

She is serving on the Joint Regional Transportation Committee which reviews transportation projects and votes on improvement plans. As a member of the national committee, Gjesteby was involved in the regional impact of issues such as the Deer Island plan, the Fan Pier, Central Artery and third harbor tunnel projects. Gjesteby was also appointed a member of the citizens' advisory committee, which is conducting a feasability study of the environmental issues affecting the proposed Old Colony railroad.

Martha Gjesteby

She said through her involvement with these agencies, she has met many state officials. "Our local legislators have been very helpful and have been very responsive to their constituents. I also know a lot of people at the Department of Public Works and many transportation people at the state level."

Gjesteby said her door-to-door campaign has convinced her that the majority of residents are deeply concerned with a variety of issues. They include Cohasset Heights and its effect on the water supply, drainage in new and established developments, solid waste disposal, housing, and moorings.

The candidate believes that Cohasset Heights is the most important issue facing the town today. "I was always opposed to the landfill because of its proximity to the water supply, and I'm on record as opposing it when it received its permit from the zoning board. I was, and still am concerned with its effect on Great Swamp. Being a scientist (she has a Bachelor's degree in chemistry from Simmons College), I have always been concerned with pollution."

If elected, Gjesteby said she can make a difference "by bringing a lot of background to the board. I like to exchange ideas - I like to encourage dialogue among the members and other boards. That's what I'm used to doing at MAPC.

"I'd be accessible and always receive calls at my home. Another thing I'd really emphasize is the need to publish some sort of manual, listing all the different permits, and where people should go to obtain them. Sort of a question and answer book. I'd also encourage residents to volunteer for town committees and boards. There are a lot of people who'd like to volunteer, but they fear the rejection. It would be the responsiblity of the selectmen to balance each board with expertise and interest."

The duties of a selectman, she explained, include the appointment of members to various municipal boards and committees. They are overseers of the town meeting warrant, and must make recommendations on the articles facing town meeting voters. Selectmen's weekly agendas include hearings on employees, disputes dealing with the leash law, issuance of permits for various businesses throughout town, and "generally being the town fathers," she stated.

"I don't think there is one overall responsibility," she continued. "At town meeting, residents look to their advisory committee for financial advice, and to the selectmen for recommendations. Selectmen grant many permits, and appoint study committees and special groups such as the Cultural Exchange Committee and the Constitution Bicentennial Committee. There are many, many duties and responsibilities of a selectman."

Meet selectman candidate Robert Beggan

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Robert Beggan said he is running for selectman "because I'm concerned, I care and I'm committed to the town.

"When I was involved on the recreation commission as an elected official," the 41-year-old Sankey Road resident recalled, "I attended the meetings of other boards and I felt a need for stronger leadership and more unity in light of the sewerage and landfill issues.

"I think I can give the town that leadership," Beggan said, noting he has been active in the community in both municipal and extra-curricular endeavors.

The candidate has served as an elected official on the recreation commission and as an appointed member of the school facilities board.

Beggan also has contributed to the community as a coach in various town athletic programs and as an organizer and manager of the Village Fair chowder bar for five years.

A homeowner and taxpayer in Cohasset for 16 years, he commented, "We're here to stay."

Regarding his qualifications for the selectman's post, he said, "I think with my business background and style of management as a sales representative for Bicknell and Fuller will help me in my performance as a selectman," Beggan said.

"I won't wait for things to happen," he explained. "As a selectman, I will go out and make things happen. I want to bring that experience to the town."

The candidate commented, "We should be looking at the future now. Town officials shouldn't wait for things to happen before they get a grip on them.

"I think the Cohasset Heights landfill is the most important issue facing the entire town," he said, "because we all drink the water.

"I think Cohasset Heights has the potential to destroy our water supply at Lily Pond.

"I took a walk around there last week and saw the leachate draining out of that area into the swamp," he added.

Beggan indicated such action will be indicative of his leadership style as a selectman.

"I've done my homework and researched the issues," he said. "I'm not relying on people telling me their side of the story; I'm going to the sources that can provide me the right information."

Beggan commented, "If I could legally, justifiably shut down Cohasset Heights, I would. I'm committed to doing that with the board of selectmen and board of health.

"As a selectman," he said, "I will be accountable for my decisions; on major decisions, I will tell the voters why I decided to vote the way I did."

He explained, "I want to help create an atmosphere where the other boards will look to the board of selectmen for advice, strength, leadership and new ideas."

"I have the time to commit to the town," he added, "and I'm willing to be a hands-on person when need be.

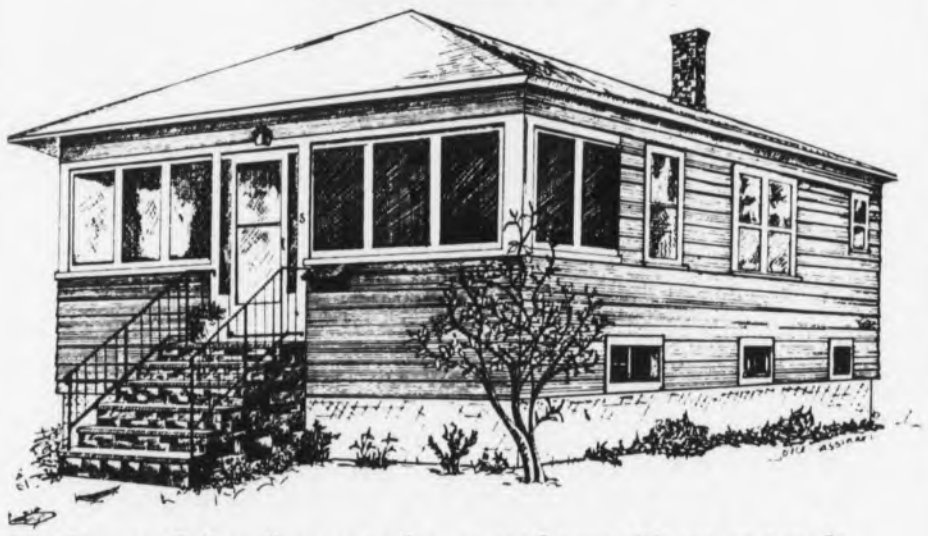
Robert Beggan

"I will be a strong leader in protecting the environment because I'm dedicated to the quality of life in this town."

Beggan said he believes 90 percent of a selectman's job involves the day-to-day running of the town.

"As a town leader and policy maker, I will make the day-to-day decisions along with the rest of the board members," he said.

"The board of selectman is the first place the people come to when they have a problem," Beggan noted. "It is the ears and eyes for the voters of the town.



"I think the board of selectman should be able to choose capable people to appoint to the various committees and as advisors for their areas of expertise.

As a hands-on representative of the people of Cohasset, Beggan said he believes he has the strength and foresight to make the decisions which will preserve the natural beauty of Cohasset.

Selectman candidate Murray says it's a matter of osmosis

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Lillian Murray says it's a matter of osmosis. As a member of a family with a long tradition of public service, Murray said it was just a matter of time before she joined their ranks.

Now that she is a full-time student at the University of Massachusetts, Murray says she has more time to devote to her hometown, her friends and neighbors.

After graduation next year with a degree in political science, Murray intends to continue her education in law school. Ultimately, she plans a career in municipal law and town government.

One of the reasons she decided to become a candidate now is her concern with the increasingly exorbitant legal costs to the town. "I believe what is going on now is little communication between the town boards. We need open communication. I would like to suggest quarterly meetings with all the town boards and department heads - so the right hand knows what the left is doing," she stated.

One example of less than open dialogue may have resulted in a lack of information to various town boards regarding the Cohasset Heights landfill, she said. "Maybe this could have been nipped in the bud by now if there had been increased communication between selectmen, the board of health and the water commission," Murray noted.

The commercial landfill, and its potential detrimental effect on the town's water supply is a serious concern of candidate Murray. "I've gone to a lot of these meetings about the landfill, and I can see how effective a board becomes when pressured by townspeople. But I strongly believe that town officials are there to serve the public. It shouldn't take pressure for a board to react. Sometimes, I think town officials think they are there only to serve themselves, and that is wrong," she added.

Murray said she had intended to run for local office a couple of years ago, but was temporarily disuaded by her parents, Philip and Mary Jeanette Murray. Her mother is Cohasset's longtime state representative and a former Cohasset selectman.

Now that she has the time, Murray decided this would be the opportune time to campaign and serve on the board of selectmen. Always active in local politics, Murray was taken as a young child to various political meetings with her mother. She recalled helping residents of 60 Elm Street move into their new residence when that dwelling was constructed. "During my campaign I got to meet many of the same people again - a lot of whom remembered me. It was wonderful to talk with them again. The elderly people of this town are wonderful - they have such insight and wisdom about town issues," she stated.

Lillian Murray

In high school, Murray was a member of the student council and served as its representative to the school committee. She was a varsity athlete and participated for many years in dressage events throughout the state.

Murray said she has always maintained a keen interest in the town where she was born. "I'm never going to leave," she promised, adding that "people who know me know I love to serve. It's something inate - something that was bred in me by my family."

Selectmen, she said, are the overseers of the town. When major issues are affecting other town boards, selectmen should be aware and encourage dialogue between them.

Appointments to town committee and to the police and fire departments is an important facet of their duties, she continued. Another important part of being a selectmen, Murray continued, is accessibility to the residents of the town. "My experience with my mother has shown me that if someone has a broken water main, they don't call the water department. They call their selectman and ask them for help. You have to be available, willing to help, and know how to help. I have that ability," she said.

It is her personal background - of involvement with her community - that Murray said makes her a qualified candidate for the office of selectman. "I will draw upon my upbringing and my sense of total commitment to the townspeople. I am concerned and I care about everyone in this town. Whatever I need to do, I will do it. That's the way I've always been. I guess it's just a matter of osmosis now. In my house it's always been, when the phone rings, you get to work."

Murray said she owes no 'political favors' to anyone, and most people understand that "I have a mind of my own," she stated. "If I don't agree with you, I will let you know. I'm responsible to every individual in this community, not just a few. I will be there to represent them all, and I realize that you can't make everyone happy. But I can handle that. People who know me know that I do what I feel is right - I will represent the whole town, not just one group."

Looking toward Saturday's election Murray was "cautiously optimistic," she said with a smile. "I feel good, but I could also follow the tradition set by my mother and grandfather who both lost in their first political campaigns."

GET A 1986 IRA TAX DEDUCTION BEFORE SOX SEASON STARTS.

OR WATCH YOUR LAST GREAT CHANCE SLIP BY.

If you think the new tax laws have fouled up 1986 IRAs, think again.

For tax year 1986, nothing's changed. The same eligibility and deductibility rules apply as in previous years. You can still get the same great tax benefits. But only if you make your 1986 IRA contribution by April 15. (That's about the time Sox Manager John McNamara starts getting a few more gray hairs.)

As for tax year 1987, it's a whole new ballgame. We've put together a free booklet that explains the changes, and helps give you a winning edge on your 1987 IRA.

Meet selectman candidate Burt Pratt

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

With an eye toward more efficient administration, Burtram Pratt will seek to review the way Cohasset's government operates if he is elected to the board of selectmen April 11.

"This year we've got a more issue-oriented race than in the past," he noted. "Some of our previous elections have been popularity contests, but I think people are more interested in issues than ever before because we've got some serious ones."

Pratt, a 67-year-old Cohasset native said he believes the selectmen's office and its appointive departments must be studied "so we can be sure the town is getting the executive and professional leadership it deserves.

"A lot of our people have despaired of the town meeting form of government and don't participate anymore," the Ripley Road resident commented. "It's intersting that when the quorum was lowered from 200 to 100, participation in town meeting picked up because people were scared that any 51 people could control what happens in town.

"Now, the town meeting is fairly well attended," he added, "if you consider 200 to 300 a good representation of 4,600 residents. That's questionable."

Pratt said he believes the town meeting's new lottery system is a positive step to keep pressure on special interest groups which go to town meeting for their causes and leave after their votes.

Such checks on the way town government is run will help Cohasset solve the major issues it faces, according to Pratt.

"The issues," he said, "range from solving the problems associated with a troublesome private landfill to solving our sewerage problems to refurbishing our public buildings and athletic fields. I believe our advisory committee and capital budget committee are coming around to better prioritizing of issues.

"When we look at the issues facing us," he explained, "we should consider three major initiatives: maintaining fiscal responsibility; protecting the environment; and preserving the character of the town and the quality of life which we all enjoy here."

Pratt said he agrees with the advisory committee that the town should spend a greater percentage of its budget each year on such capital outlay items as building maintenance, rather than falling behind and paying huge amounts of money for major repair jobs.

"We should spend five percent of our budget on capital outlay items which keep our housekeeping up to date, and save the big whacks from hitting the budget.

"I'm running for selectman basically because this is my hometown," Pratt said. "My family has been here for eight generations.

"I have 40 years of experience working in both public and private institutions in town," he added, " and I think I can make a contribution."

Pratt's previous contributions include a stint as secretary of a committee which planned the veterans development on the old town farm land off Pond Street.

He also served as editorial chairman of the committee on town history and authored "A Narrative History of Cohasset, Vol II," which he described as "an in-depth study of the political, social, economic and demographic trends in the town for the first half of this century."

Burtram Pratt

Pratt served two terms on the Cohasset planning board beginning in 1955, one as secretary and one as chairman. He noted, "This was the first planning board which deviated from the routine duties of subdivision regulation and rubber-stamping plans not requiring approval and moved into the area of master plan studies."

Developing a capital budget master plan "so we stop making mistakes" is one of the candidate's chief goals for the selectmen's office.

Pratt also has served as fence viewer for nine years, as chairman of the bicentennial committee and as chairman of the board of registrars, from which he recently resigned to run for selectman.

It is the job of the selectmen, he noted, to install "good, qualified people on boards that are not elected by the people. That's difficult when people don't participate.

"There's a difference between the person who has a desire to serve and the person who is qualified to serve and it is difficult to find good people to get involved in government."

Pratt hopes and believes the voters of Cohasset will find him qualified to serve on their board of selectmen.

Bates outlines vital sewer issues

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Lot Bates, 42, of 56 Red Gate Lane wants to serve on the sewer commission to help insure a bright future for the town of Cohasset.

"I guess it came to my turn to serve the town," he said modestly when asked why he had decided to seek the office. "I've heard a lot about the sewer system and I'm interested in the sewer project.

"I've seen what the other sewer commissioners have been doing," he added, "and I don't agree with everything they're doing.

"I think their main objective seems to have been to control the growth of the town and not take care of parts of town that need help right away," Bates said. "Controlling growth in town is not part of the sewer commission's job."

A 24-year resident of Cohasset, Bates noted "I'm in favor of controlling growth to a point, but when it comes to taking care of problem areas in town we shouldn't be dragging our feet."

He cited the Hillside drainage, which runs into wells at the bottom of the hill and the veterans project, which sewers into Lily Pond as problems which deserve immediate attention.

Bates said he is qualified to serve as sewer commissioner because he has worked with a Cohasset contractor installing sewer treatment plants and connections.

Discussing the proposed Ward Plan, he commented, "I disagree with the part of the plan regarding repairs to on-site systems.

"I'm against spending the taxpayers' money to fix up a system that has in the past had thousands of dollars spent on it, just to fail within two years," he explained. "We would have to keep repairing a system that would not accept water, like the one on Hillside which was fixed, and a week later was flowing out just like it was before it was fixed."

Bates noted, "I support part of the Ward Plan; I support going to Hull if they will accept more than 300,000 gallons per day.

"We need to send 500,000 to 600,000 gallons per day to take care of the needs of the town," he said. "If we only take care of part of the town, we will have to start all over to take care of the rest of the town. If it is economically feasible to go to Hull, that's good."

Lot W. Bates

With regard to the Hull connection, Bates explained Cohasset must be able to maintain some control over what rates the town will pay to Hull to treat the sewerage.

He said he has some suspicions about the plan. "I think there are a lot of things going on that they are not telling people. People don't know they will have to have tanks in their yards to collect solids. These sewers will only take away the wastewater and it will cost the average homeowner $400 to take away his water. The average homeowner pays only $100 per year to acquire water."

Bates suggested hitching up larger than a four-inch pipe to Hull and pumping everything to Hull.

The candidate declined to assess the current operation of Cohasset's sewer plant because of pending litigation.

Talent program awards given to seventh grade

Shahrod Hemassi, Rebecca Kirk, and Maureen Smith, seventh graders at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School, have been selected to receive awards for their achievements in the Talent Search Program sponsored by John Hopkins University.

Cohasset High School has participated in the CTY Talent Search for the past four years. Talent Search is a program sponsored by John Hopkins University's Center for the Advancement of Academically Talented Youth. The goal of the program is to identify the most academically talented seventh graders, offer those students summer educational programs, and provide them with recognition at state and regional ceremonies. Each year for the past four years the Cohasset Public Schools has received a John Hopkins Certificate for Distinction in this competition.

School news

Phone-a-thon

Volunteers from the PSO (Parent School Organization) will telephone every family in the Cohasset public school system on Monday, April 13 from 7 to 9:30 p.m., asking them to make a pledge to help fund activities planned for the 1987-88 school year.

Here's a list of a few of the programs and extra curricula activities funded and/or provided by the PSO:

- The school calendar
- METCO host family program
- Fall "Back to school" meeting
- Publicity via newspaper, TV, posters
- Artist-of-the-month program
- High school career lecture series
- Disability awareness programs
- Great books programs
- Book fairs and guest speakers
- The teacher grant program (alloting funds directly to specific teachers for class projects)

These "extras" make the Cohasset school system special in the state of Massachusetts. Please show your support for the many programs and activities that enrich your child's education by making a generous, tax-deductible pledge. Your phone will ring. Support your schools.

Dates to remember

Thursday, April 9 — PSO meeting, CHS, 8 p.m.

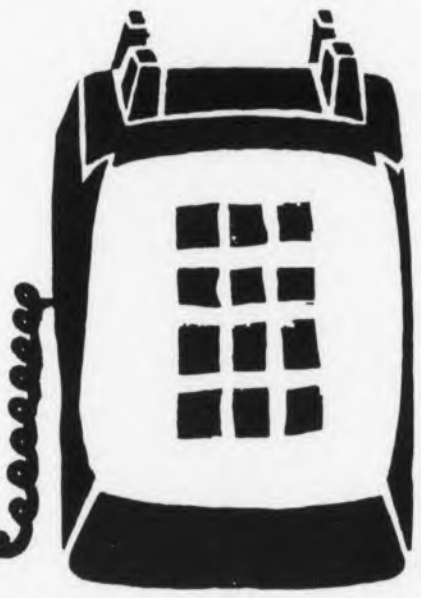
Friday, April 10 — Masquerade Ball, Grades 10, 11, 12, CHS, 8-11 p.m.

Saturday, April 11 — Town Election Day: Little League tryouts for 10, 11, 12-year olds, 9 a.m., Little League Field.

Monday, April 13 — PSO Phone-A-Thon, 7-9:30 p.m.

Tuesday, April 14 — An Evening of Art and Music, CHS, 7:30 p.m.

How about that? The faculty is in great shape — Mike Weydt, Ray Levine and Frank Deakin finished the Cohasset Race-by-the-Sea in less than one hour!



And bravos to Andy Collins and Ryan Sawchuk, Osgood third graders, who completed the race in fine style. Also congrats to runners from Osgood and Deer Hill: Gret Schultz, Toby Horn, Dawn Meehan, Becky Bolden, Courtney Schultz, Sarah Kirk, Maria Kierce, Ben Redfield, David Nothnagle, Allegra Snyder, Martina Snyder, Stephen Harrington, John Maynard, Joey Andrade, and Brian Pattison (who went by scooter).

Some hockey champs!

Cohasset students on the Seahawks Mite B "Gold" Hockey Team: Nicholas Esposito, Brian Riley and Anthony Wigmore captured the first place trophy in the South Shore Conference Hockey League, Sunday, April 5 in a close game victory over the South Shore Eagles.

In March, the Seahawks, aided by the skating and scouting expertise of Esposito, Riley and Wigmore, won two out of three games against Canadian youth hockey teams in Montreal.

Congratulations future NHL stars!

Pinewood Derby

Congratulations to: Matt Conley, second place; David Hansen, third place; Greg Schultz, third place; Chipper Moore, fourth place; who represented Cohasset Cub Scout Pack 38 in this year's District Championships of the Pinewood Derby. Good show, cubs!

Evening of art and music

A multi-media collaboration between the music and art departments at the high school will be presented Tuesday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m.

The concert will be held at the Cohasset High School auditorium, featuring over 60 CHS artists and musicians.

"Arthur" is coming

If you have ever seen and laughed at "Arthur," the movie, or if you have never seen "Arthur" now you have your choice of three languages in which to see "him."

You're invited to Room 150, CHS at any of the following times.

Come on down!

English: Monday, April 6; Tuesday, April 7; Thursday, April 9; Monday, April 27; Tuesday, April 28; and Thursday, April 30, 2 p.m.

French: Monday, April 13 through Thursday, April 16, periods, 1, 2, 3, 7.

Spanish: Monday, April 13 through Thursday, April 16, period 6.

Young blood

The students and staff of Cohasset High School donated forty pints of blood during the Red Cross Blood Mobile Drive held at the high school on March 30. The following students worked hard to insure the success of the Red Cross efforts: Maria Cahill, Maureen O'Leary, Kristin Contis, Leanne Ward, Kathy Haase, Margo Nedrow, Anne McKenna, Maureen Farren, Carolan Hurley, Sue Camardo. A big thank you to the generous donors.

Essay winner

Mary McElroy is a winner in the Mass. Marine Educators Essay contest. Her story entitled "One More Piece of Garbage Couldn't Possibly Hurt" took second place. Congratulations, Mary!

substantial portion of Cohasset Heights' business.

"It would be financially detrimental and would place the landfill in a substantial hardship if it was not allowed to accept general refuse," he stated. "It would hurt the company and be very burdensome to the business. If forced to, Cohasset Heights could modify its operation. But that is a substantial decision that we are not considering at this time."

Atty. Leon said he will file a separate complaint in the state Appeals Court, seeking immediate enforcement of the land court's order. He will also request the decision be stayed while Cohasset Heights' appeal is pending.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see an appeal take between six and nine months," Leon said. "And we would definitely not want to see this decision reversed while that appeal is taking place."

At town meeting Saturday, Beechwood Street resident Frederick Laidlaw warned voters that even demolition debris could possibly harm the groundwater surrounding Lily Pond. Laidlaw said demolition debris includes asbestos which is a danger to the quality of the air. Building debris may also include lead paint, which can leach into the surrounding groundwater from the landfill. "In some ways," he said, "there are less restrictions placed on the dumping of debris. There can be hazardous substances in that debris that will contribute to the well pollution in this town."

Riding Club honors junior members

The Riding Club recently held their annual banquet and awards night to honor their junior members who have participated in 4-H activities over the past year.

Pins were awarded to the following girls who completed their first year as 4-H members: Liz Buckley, Carrie Ripley, and Meka-Marie Laugelle.

Members receiving certificates to mark the completion of their second year were: Abby Barrett, Martha Curran, Jillian Green, and Shelby Woodmancee.

Meg Cosman, Michelle Hart, Jen McKenna, an Julie Nussdorfer were presented certificates and pins for completing their third year.

The fourth year awards went to: Lisa Harris, Jen Powers, Cindy Spooner, and Tanya Stein.

Three girls have completed five years of 4-H participation. They are: Jill Hamilton, Anne McKenna, and Erin Powell.

Level 1 awards went to: Martha Curran, Sarah Douglas, Meka-Marie Laugelle, and Carrie Ripley.

Level 2 awards: Liz Buckley, Jullian Green, Jen McKenna, Julie Nussdorfer, and Tanya Hamilton.

The adult members voted on a few special awards. Most Improved Horse — "Moshe" owned by Jill Hamilton; Most Improved Adult Rider Sue Piepenbrink; Most Improved Walk-Trot Rider Abby Barrett; Most Improved Open Rider Julie Nussdorfer.

Cohasset's role in the U.S. Constitution

Two centuries ago, in the spring of 1787, the new United States, weakly governed by an increasingly ineffectual Congress under the framework of the Articles of Confederation, set about to remedy the ailments in governance which threatened the existence of the fledgling nation. During the latter months of the previous year, a regional convention of mid-Atlantic States, called at Annapolis to smooth out certain problems arising between them, ended by calling for a nationwide convention for the purpose of examining the entire structure of government. The call for a Constitutional Convention first issued at Annapolis was echoed in February of 1787 by the nation's highest governing body, the Congress of the Confederation, sitting in New York. During spring months of 1787 the 13 states began selecting delegates to represent them at the Constitutional Convention due to open in May at Philadelphia's historic Independence Hall.

For the previous seven years, since March of 1781, the framework of government in the United States had been a formally ratified but, as time had proven, less than effective constitutional document called the Articles of Confederation. Adopted by the 13 original States, the Articles provided for a loosely-knit confederation of individual and sovereign States whose common bond was defined as "a firm league of friendship with each other..." There followed a list of specific circumstances and situations in which the States were bound to cooperate as a single, unified nation, represented by the authority of the elected Confederation Congress. However, each State was to retain its "sovereignty, freedom and independence," and "every Power, Jurisdiction and right, which is not by this confederation expressly delegated to the United States in Congress assembled" was retained by each State. The intent of the framers of the Articles had been to establish a loose confederation of states cooperating with each other for their common good, and working together in time of need. The Confederation's elected Congress was instructed to meet on the first Monday in November, in every year, "for the more convenient management of the general interests of the united states." This was a far cry from the new American Constitution that would emerge from the Philadelphia Convention of 1787 to found a strong national Republic. However, in fairness to the dedicated and sincere framers of the 1781 Articles of Confederation, it perhaps should be recalled that theirs was the very first try, the beginning experiment, in the building of a nation where, until but a short time before, government had consisted of a distant King and Parliament and their Colonial administrators. Some of the signers of the Articles of Confederation would participate in the framing of the Constitution of 1787 at Philadelphia, including Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts, Roger Sherman of Connecticut, and Gouverneur Morris earlier of New York later of Pennsylvania.

Weaknesses in the framework of the Confederation of 1781 became increasingly evident as time passed. Conflicting regional differences were made the worse by individual state rivalries and mutual antagonisms. Cooperation, often voluntary in nature, was difficult to obtain, and of the individual Articles, some were unenforceable. To top it all off, Congress found it nearly impossible to collect taxes from the individual States, and the new nation's already formidable debts multiplied. By the mid 1780's a deepening economic depression had gripped tradesmen and farmers throughout the country, while sparing the wealthier mercantile interests of the urban centers. In western Massachusetts the farmers' plight led to Shays' Rebellion.

Even in Cohasset, early records show that the town's amassed Revolutionary War debts remained unpaid for a matter of years and the town's Clergyman had to forego his annual salary for want of public funds. When the call came for a solution of the new nation's worsening problems, two choices became evident. The first choice would have been to attempt a drastic revision of the existing Articles of Confederation, the second was to replace the Articles with a wholly new frame of government. It was the second choice which most discerning American minds came to favor, though there was far from unanimous agreement about the degree to which the nation's government should be centralized. That particular issue would be debated and settled, along with numerous others, at Philadelphia during the forthcoming Constitutional Convention of 1787.

Cohasset vote establishes new land bank fund

In a squeaker, Cohasset became the third town in Massachusetts to establish a land bank fund, whereby revenues from real estate transfer fees will go toward the purchase of conservation land.

Following the lead of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, Cohasset voters agreed 113 to 90 to petition the Masachusetts General Court to enact legislation which would authorize the collection by the town of a land transfer fee not to exceed one percent of real estate purchase price excluding $100,000.

According to the advisory committee, which also backed the plan, such a fee would raise about $270,000 per year for the purchase and preservation of open space in Cohasset.

Town officials rejected establishing the two percent charge in effect on the islands.

The conservation commission will hold the purse strings of the new land bank fund; however any purchase over $50,000 must be approved by the board of selectmen, said Town Counsel Richard Henderson.

"This is a terribly unfair tax on new residents of the town," said Kevin O'Donnell of Fair Oaks Lane. "If you want to buy conservation land, you should come before town meeting and ask. If it's valid, we'll vote for it."

O'Donnell warned that Governor Dukakis has recommended an amendment to the law which allows land banking.

The amendment, he explained, will decree that at least half of the monies in a land bank fund go toward housing.

"It will be 50-50 except in towns where there is limited low and moderate income housing," O'Donnell noted, "so in a town like ours, the state would require us to spend even more on low and moderate income housing.

"Another problem," he added, "is that this will result in a decrease in state aid, which will affect our police and fire services. We'll be giving control to the state, which will tell us how to spend the monies. I recommend we back off because we will lose local control.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle argued, "If we vote tonight, the town of Cohasset would be grandfathered in."

"We originally considered this as a means of buying land around the water dept." said Robert Davenport of 135 Sohier Street. "Say later on, we want to buy land for a soccer field or for elderly housing - could we use the money for things other than conservation land?"

"It would be legitimately under conservation commission control," Henderson said, "You couldn't do that without their permission."

Wet weather never dampens a great race

into Cohasset Village. For five minutes, spectators gazed as this multi-colored unit pounded in uneven steps down from Highland Avenue to Elm Street. By 1:05 p.m., there was not a single runner left in the Village. By 1:15 p.m., the first racers were probably nearing Jerusalem Road.

Race organizer Roy Fitzsimmons said about 700 runners registered for the Cohasset race. "The weather probably put a damper on things," he said, wiping the drizzle that fell from the visor of his cap. "We can't take more than 800 runners on our streets. Earlier this afternoon, there were only a few runners around. Then all of a sudden, right before the start, about 500 people came flurrying around.

"Some runners like this sort of weather. Some say it's ideal, as long as there aren't heavy winds off the ocean," he added.

First place winner, Tom Cash of Braintree, said the weather was great for running, and the winds were never a problem during his first Cohasset roadrace.

"I liked it," he said, several minutes after he had crossed the finish line about 1:33 p.m. "I was really happy with the way I ran, especially since I took last week off. I'm training for the Boston Marathon, so this was a good training run.

"I was kind of disappointed to see they don't have mile splits, but otherwise it's a perfect race. It was a nice course, and very scenic. I felt like I was running well."

The first female finisher in Sunday's roadrace was Sheila Barry, 29, of Milton. Moments after she crossed the finish line, Barry was smiling, pleased with her estimated race time. "I've run this race a lot of times," she said. "But I know this is the best time I've ever had. It's definitely the first time I've ever finished first." Barry finished the 6.2 mile course in about 36 minutes, way ahead of many of the male runners.

"It was a little cool out there today," she said after her finish. "But it's actually a lot more comfortable to run the race than to watch it in this type of weather."

After the first-place runner crossed the finish line on Highland Avenue, many more soon arrived in groups, making it difficult for checkers to spot the runners in sequence.

The Cohasset Rotary Club sponsors the race each year, providing computerized times for each runner. A tee shirt is handed to each registered runner, and free hot dogs, chips and soda await the participants.

"The first few years of the race," Fitzsimmons recalled, "a group of us would manually take down the names of each finisher, and another would be taking the times and we'd have to coordinate everyone. It took us until midnight to get all the right times matched with the runners. Now we have it all computerized and is saves us a big headache."

A lot of the runners, he noted, remain in Cohasset long after the race is completed. Runners, often noted for their ability to imbibe, will attend private parties, or travel to one of the local restaurants for conversation with their competitors. "The local businesses like The Red Lion and Hugo's do very well after the race," Fitzsimmons said. "This race succeeds because of all the cooperation from local businesses, organizations and from the community."

Participants in the hilly 10K course include the young and not-so-young. The Deer Hill School was well represented at the Rotary race. Ben Redfield, 9, a fourth grader, and another fourth grader, Ryan Sawchuk, 9, both finished the race with ease. Looking almost rested, Ben said he had never run the race before. His father, Bucky, a well-known Cohasset jogger, had practiced with Ben for the past few weeks. When Bucky was taken ill Sunday, Ben decided to run the course without him.

Sunday's race was the farthest Ben had ever run. He said without hesitation that he will run it again. Ryan has been practicing every day for the past five weeks - he finally reached six miles just days prior to the race.

Both boys finished about an hour after they began .

Fifty-four year old Thomas Flatley, president of the Flately Co. of Braintree, finished the course in about 45 minutes. His company sponsored a 20-member team, many of whom challenged 'the old man' to join.

Originally from Ireland, Flatley said Sunday's damp weather reminded him of home, where he used to run regularly. "I've run this race four or five times with a friend of mine from Cohasset," he said. "I had given up racing, but once challenged, I shall not be denied."

His sons, Dan and John, joined him on the Flatley team. Dan finished in 43 minutes, which he considers a good time. "It was a little chilly out there," he said. "I like to run in warmer weather."

Clinics offer mammograms

The Cohasset Board of Health Nurse would like to call the attention of area women to the following information regarding Mammography screening clinics.

The American Cancer Society has made breast cancer determination its educational priority for 1987. As part of that effort, the society's Massachusetts discussion will sponsor a screening program, "Mammography: The Breast Test," at cancer centers and hospitals across the state in April and May.

The program will offer low-cost mammograms to women over 35, who have never had a mammogram and are not pregnant or nursing. A mammogram regularly costs between $50 and $250. Under the program, the x-ray tests will cost no more than $50.

Appointments can be made through a toll-free hot line 1-800-752-8999, from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. April 29 to May 1; and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 2 and May 3. The hotline will be answered by women only. Callers will be directed to the center closest to them after it's been determined that they are eligible for the program.

Participants will also be taught the self-examination technique.

The public is cordially invited to this free concert.

Eastern Edison Scholarships

Three $1,000 scholarships will be granted to graduating high school seniors by Eastern Edison Co., announced Arthur A. Hatch, president.

"We are pleased to announce the availability of these scholarships to minority or handicapped students living in the communities served by the Brockton division of Eastern Edison," Hatch said.

Applications must be accepted to a recognized two- or four-year institution of high learning and major in electrical engineering, computer science or accounting. Scholarship awards will be based on financial need and the student's scholarship record.

"We are happy to be able to assist qualified residents of our communities in realizing their ambitions for higher education," Hatch said.

Eastern Edison has supplied application forms and parental financial statements to all high school guidance offices in communities served by the company. Completed applications must be filed with Eastern Edison's employee relations manager, Harold P. Ruscetta, by April 15.

Eastern Edison Co. provides electric service to more than 160,000 customers in the Brockton and Fall River, Mass., areas.

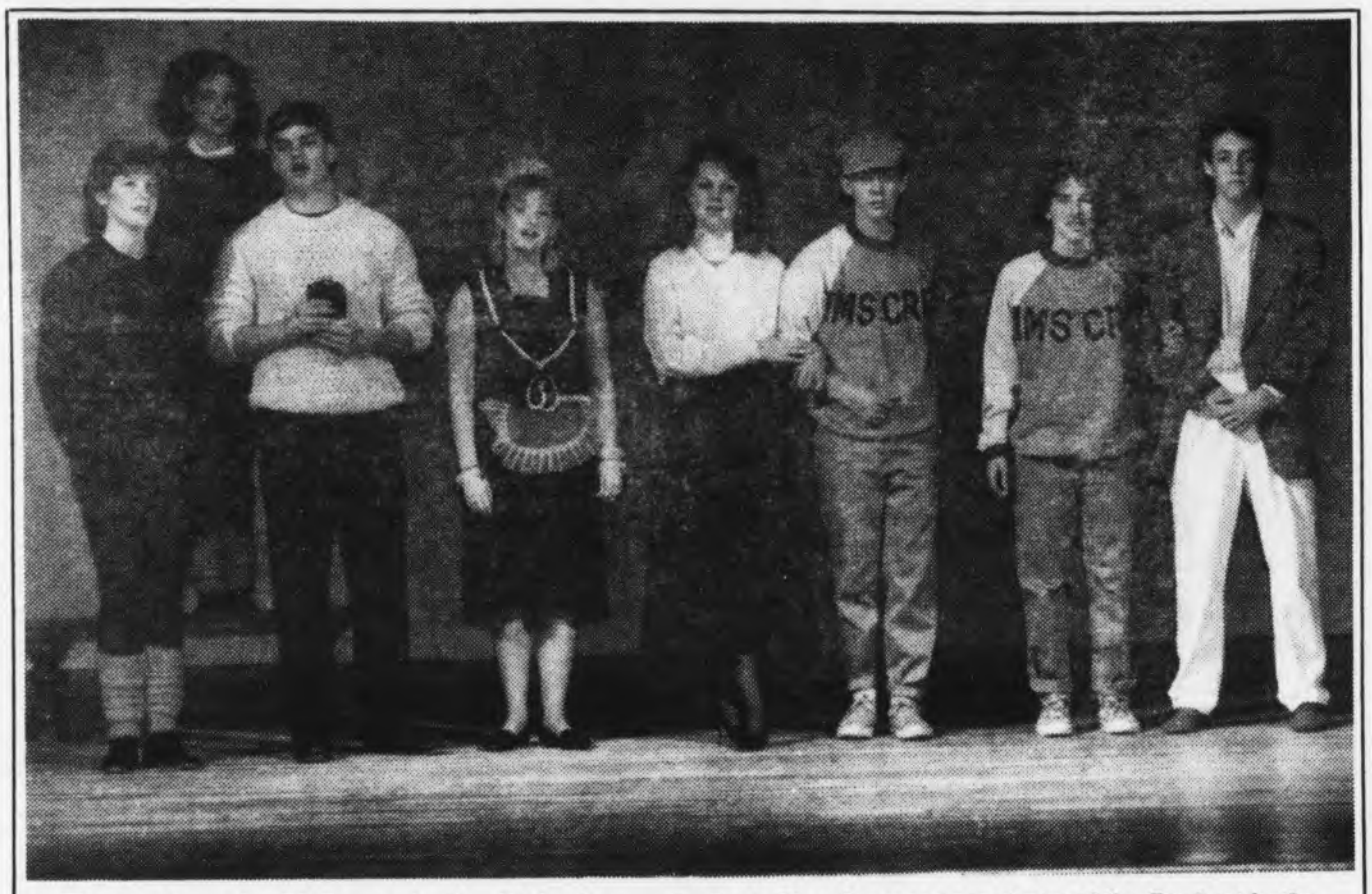
'Twelfth Night' cast returns with three acting awards

Director Ron Emmons was ebullient upon his return to Cohasset. The cast members of his original adaptation of "Twelfth Night" returned from the Boston Globe Drama Festival finals with three individual acting awards.

The final competition was held this weekend at the John Hancock Hall. And although Cohasset High School was not selected as one of two schools to compete in the New England finals, it was, Emmons admitted, "one of the top five in the state. What place we achieved I can't quite say until the list is made public."

Arriving home Saturday, Emmons and his 17-member crew were exhausted, but thrilled with their achievement. After months of rehearsals and three rounds of competition, the play was completed and everyone could now rest.



"I am so pleased with what these kids did," Emmons said. "They gave a really good show. Only two schools received as many individual acting awards, and only two schools were selected for the New England finals."

Cohasset's Jenna Emmons was honored for her performance as Maria the maid; Joe Mazza was honored for his role as Malvolio, the geek; and Karin Anglin won honors for her performance as Olivia.

"It was," Emmons said, "as good a performance as these kids ever did. They really had to play it close to the chest, because the school right before them was disqualified for going 30 seconds over the 40-minute limit.

"We played before a huge audience of 1,300 and they got a great reception. I was afraid that with such a large audience, we might add time to the play. The rap at the beginning, and then Joe's Motley Crew routine really got huge laughs. Comedy is riskier to do because if we went over the time limit because of the sustained laughs, we would have been disqualified."

It took a lot of refining and rehearsing to ensure that Cohasset would not go over their alloted time. In a special performance two weeks ago in Vermont, the play continued for 39 minutes and 11 seconds. Assistant director Lisa Shumaker was instructed to dim the lights and shut down the performance if the actors were again threatened by time.

The cast from the CHS entry in The Globe Drama Festival. The play was named one of the five best in the state.

Last week brought more good news to director Emmons. The play, his original contemporary adaptation of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" is about to be published by the prestigious Baker House publishing company in Boston. The contract is in the mail to Emmons, who eagerly awaits joining the elite company of playwrights Michael Scanlon, author of "Voices" and Peter Dee, whose work Cohasset has previously performed.

Emmons does not expect to get rich from the publication, but that matters little. "The whole idea is that I'll be in print. I sent it to them in August, and they finally got around to telling me they loved it."

It was a good week for Cohasset High's honored actors. And Emmons is thrilled that at least Joe will be returning ("thank God") next year as a senior. Jenna will graduate and next year attend Emerson College. Karin, also a 1987 graduate, does not yet know what college she will attend next year.

Health board orders cleanup, continues hearing

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

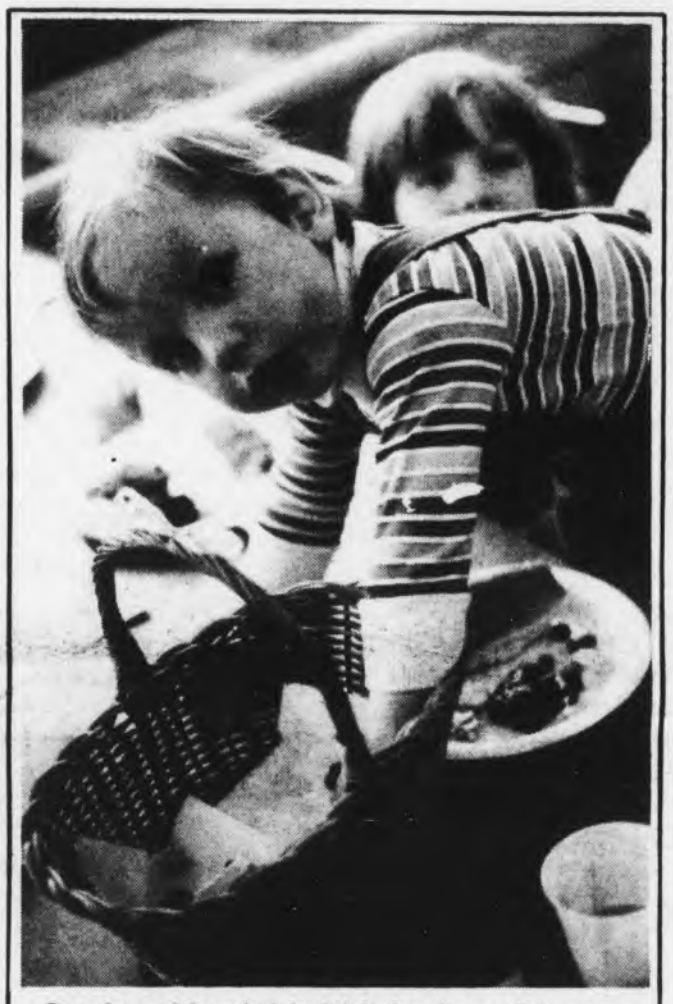
The threat of a shut down continued this week to hang over the heads of John and Paul Barry, owners of the Cohasset Heights landfill on Crocker Lane, as the board of health continued its hearing until Wednesday, April 15.

The board is seeking to determine whether the dump presents a nuisance or a danger to the public health. If Cohasset heights is found to present a nuisance or a danger, the board will either order the dump closed, impose an indefinite moratorium on the dump's operations or amend its site assignment.

At Monday's session, the board ordered Cohasset Heights to remove and test discolored water found in an adjacent swamp belonging to the Trustees of Reservations.

The board's engineers Camp, Dresser & McKee also will test the water to determine whether the discoloration stems from natural causes or from the introduction of leachate from the landfill.

Cohasset Heights' representatives objected to the order, saying the water ought to be tested before a decision is made with regard to removal. But William Baird, himself an engineer and the board's newly-elected member, said he believes the condition does not occur naturally in the swamp.



"I want it removed," he said. "It is off your property and it is not something we would drink or want our children exposed to."

After touring the landfill and environs last Saturday, the board concluded there is a relationship between Brass Kettle Brook and an area of low wetlands abutting Cohasset Heights.

"It appears there is off-site contamination from leachate flows and litter coming off the landfill," said John Burns, the health board's new chairman. "Whether it is hazardous or not, we aren't sure; we didn't test it. But there is pollution off-site."

The board noted recent rains carried "milk chocolate-colored water" across Boulder Road, opposite Sohier Street. "As we walked down toward Lily Pond," Baird commented, "we saw the effects 100 feet beyond the road. Beyond that, we did not see the effects of siltation. I can't see that they have done any grading to control erosion and siltation into the wetlands."

Soccer boosters look to Deer Hill

The Cohasset Soccer Boosters are proceeding with plans to create a soccer field on town property near Deer Hill School.

After much debate, voters at town meeting last week denied the boosters their first choice for field location, the sand pits off North Main Street. But the voters overwhelmingly approved the motion to offer another parcel of town-owned land for a soccer field.

"We're delighted to have the support of the town," said John Kinchla, the boosters' spokesman, "and we thank the boards for their support."

Kinchla said the boosters have no objection to the proposed Deer Hill School site, though they would have preferred a spot in the sand pits.

He explained, the Deer Hill site is wet and will require more work and more money to complete the project.

"We would like to have fill from the sand pit site," he said. "That would be the best of both worlds."

He noted, the advantages of the Deer Hill site are that there are restroom facilities and parking available and it is a large, safe, open space.

The boosters will work with the Army Corps of Engineers to determine whether it is feasible to try to fill the wet patch at Deer Hill.

"If we put it close to the existing field," Kinchla commented, "we might be able to get a good, safe playing surface.

"Our program is dependent on being able to accommodate the other teams in the league," he said. "Pembroke is building three fields. Of course, they have been at it for three years; we hope to do it quicker."

The boosters' original proposal to build a soccer field at the North Main Street site was rejected on the town meeting floor at the behest of Highway Supt. Harold Litchfield, who stores equipment and materials on the property.

Litchfield told the town, "If this proposal is passed as is, I will be back asking for funds for a new storage area."

If the original proposal had passed, Kinchla was predicting the field would be ready by the end of this summer. Now, he predicts the field will not be ready until 1989 or 1990.

Kinchla said he has spoken to neighbors of the new proposed soccer field site, residents of Old Pasture Lane who will be able to see the field through the trees. "The response from most," he said, "is they're delighted. Of course, they knew it was school property when they moved there.

"We appreciate the positive comments we've gotten," Kinchla said. "I hope it wasn't perceived that we were feuding with anyone at town meeting. We wanted to get full input from the town."

Right into fire for new town officials

There wasn't much time for introductions as new town officials took their places this week, only days after Saturday's election.

Newly-elected candidates have already taken their seats on many of the town boards. Selectmen have two new members, the school committee met Monday with one new member, and the health board held an important hearing with a new colleague in attendance.

In the selectmen's race, Burtram Pratt of Ripley Road and Martha Gjesteby won the two, three-year terms on that board. Pratt was the candidate with the most votes. In his fifth attempt at public office, he gathered 27 percent of the vote, or 1,065 ballots.

The other successful candidate from a field of six was Gjesteby. In her second try for the selectmen's seat, Gjesteby earned 21 percent of the total vote, or 841 ballots.

The next highest vote-getter was Lillian Murray with 769; Robert Beggan with 702; Robert Davenport with 290, and Thomas Churchill III with 185.

After finishing her first official meeting Monday night as a selectman, Gjesteby commented that her telephone has yet to stop ringing. Her husband has suggested installing a second line into the household, she said.

Her first priority, Gjesteby commented, is to seek a resolution regarding the Cohasset Heights landfill. Long interested in that situation, Gjesteby opposed the permit issued to the commercial landfill in 1976.

"For now, I just want to look at our town government and see how it's running. First I have to see

Mariner names Winter All-Stars

By Mike Berger
Mariner Staff

The following winter sports all-star team is a first for Mariner Newspapers because it represents an attempt to recognize the top winter athletes from five separate high school leagues in an all-star format.

Mariner Newspapers span 13 separate communities: Pembroke, Kingston, Marshfield, Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham, Norwell, Hanover, Weymouth, Braintree, Holbrook, Randolph and Canton.

High School athletes either play in the Old Colony, South Shore, Mayflower, Bay State or Hockomock Leagues.

There are a few caveats to naming the all-star team.

First, boys and girls basketball, hockey, wrestling and gymnastics were picked as the winter sports. Some but not all teams had winter track teams. These athletes will no doubt also go out for the spring outdoor track seasons and will be chosen when the spring all-star team is selected.

Second, we did not select those athletes who played for private schools. None of our sportswriting staff reported on private school sports throughout the winter for any consistent period.

Cohasset's week . . .

Laugelle named chairman

One of the first priorities established at Monday night's selectmen's meeting was the reorganization of the board.

Cliff Mitman was voted vice chairman of the board, and longtime member Rocco Laugelle accepted the chairmanship.

Laugelle stated, "I want to thank the members for giving me this great honor. It's a tough job, whether anyone realizes it or not." The new chairman said he will accept telephone calls at home from any resident of the town who wishes to discuss an issue or concern. But, he emphasized, under no condition will he accept a call from a member of the media.

Executive Secretary Donald Andrew added that he will do everything he can to make the transition easier for the new chairman.

Whitney Woods cleanup

Selectmen congratulated the Trustees of Reservations for initiating plans to clean up Whitney Woods. "It's only been four years since we started," Selectman Rocco Laugelle stated. "But we should congratulate them."

In addition to the clean-up, the trustees terminated the use of a drainage swale on the Whitney Woods property by Cohasset Heights Ltd. In a letter to the landfill owners, trustee board members stated that throughout the past several years, CHL has allowed windblown debris to litter the property. In addition, fill has spilled onto the property and a catch basin has been installed without permission, and failure to provide the trustees on a regular basis with copies of all water analysis test results.

The trustees noted, "It is, however, the new evidence that contaminated groundwater is entering (trustees) property from your landfill that has led to our action at this time." The January tests indicated traces of benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene and xylene were all found in monitoring well No. 9 which is located on the CHL-trustees boundary.

The trustees then demanded that steps be taken by the commercial landfill to prevent further runoff from leaving the landfill through the swale, and that the swale be filled with material.

In addition, the trustees demanded that CHL submit a detailed plan for eliminating the contamination of groundwater on the trustees' property by May 21.

Deputy Director William Clandaniel stated in the letter to CHL, "if the actions I have described are not forthcoming, we will act to protect our property and seek recoverey of all of our costs, either against the bond which you have posted or directly from you."

Are negotiations open?

Executive Secretary Donald Andrew will discuss with Town Counsel Richard Henderson whether the negotiation documents between the Cohasset and Hull sewer commissions can be made public.

Robert Davenport of Sohier Street told selectmen that the sewer commission had said on April 10, after conferring with town counsel, they would release the documents regarding the negotiations between Hull and Cohasset for the acceptance of Cohasset's wastewater into Hull. The negotiations have not been completed, and the documents have never been released to the public.

But on April 13, the commission wrote a second letter, stating that because the negotiations "relate to litigation, re: Cohasset versus the Attorney General, the commission is awaiting further clarification from town counsel" before releasing the documents.

"I think somebody should make a decision in this town," Davenport told selectmen Monday night.

Selectmen instructed the executive secretary to ask town counsel about the latest clarification, and to inquire when the documents may be released to the public.

Committee vacancies

Selectmen encourage all residents who would like to serve on town committees and boards to submit their names and resumes to the selectmen's office. All interested residents should apply, they stated.

Currently, two representatives are needed to the South Shore Coalition's sub committees on transportation and waste water.

There is also a vacancy on the U.S. Consitution Bicentennial Committee. Monday night, selectmen accepted the resignation of member Agnes McCann. All interested applicants should apply to the selectmen's office.

Patriot's Day holiday

All post offices will be open on Monday, April 20, Patriot's Day, but state, county and local municipal offices will be closed.

Retail stores, supermarkets and liquor stores, as well as the stock market, will be open for business. Banks, town hall offices, schools and libraries will be closed.

Landfill closed

The Cohasset Board of Health advises the residents of the town and licensed trash haulers that the Cedar Street landfill will be closed Sunday, April 19 due to the Easter holiday.

The landfill's days of operation are every day with the exception of Mondays and Wednesdays. Please plan for the two day closure of Sunday and Monday of that week for trash deposition.

Happy Easter

Soccer boosters pursue plans for new field

Kinchla said he agrees the open pipes stored at the site might have created "an attractive nuisance" and Deer Hill "will be fine."

In fact, the boosters may ask the highway dept. for assistance in clearing and preparing the Deer Hill area for field construction.

Kinchla noted, boosters in the town of Kingston agreed to pay highway workers' overtime for their cooperation on such a project.

Because the project will cost more than at first anticipated, Kinchla said he is "not sure whether we will be able to raise the money for the field there, but we'll try.

"We're going to push forward with the Deer Hill site. We'll push forward with this whether they (Army Corps of Engineers) like it or not."

Kinchla noted, "We don't seek exclusivity over this. We just want a good, safe place to play our games. It's important to keep up the athletic facilities in town."

The boosters will consult with various town and school boards, seeking their approval for the project and an agreement which will allow the Army Corps of Engineers to work at the site without the threat of liability.

The boosters also will be busy trying to raise the extra cash which will be required to construct a soccer field on the watery parcel at Deer Hill.

New spring courses begin at Community Center

Mariner names it's first-ever All-Star team

Fredericks, Bill Modestino, Patty Hanlon, Bridget Kelley, John O'Donnell, Dave Warren and Mike Berger picked the first all-star team, coaches and honorable mentions team based on coaching recommendations, statistics and caliber of league competition.

Bryan Edwards

The toughest choices were girls basketball and hockey and in particular hockey. Many hockey players selected for honorable mention, in any other year, would have made first-team. The excellence of South Shore hockey talent was evident in the forward selection. Many of the statistics were so close, we decided to pick more than a number one team.

We congratulate these athletes and coaches for providing fans an exciting winter. May you continue your excellence in the spring.

And without further adieu, the winning first-team envelopes please.

Boys Basketball: Center Bill Coffey of Braintree, Forwards Allen Jones of Weymouth and Brendan Mosher of Silver Lake and Guards Bryan Edwards of Cohasset and John Cawley of Weymouth. Coach of the Year was John Fleming of Weymouth South with an honorable mention to Eddie Minelli of Cohasset.

Girls Basketball: Center Tracy Bobo of Marshfield, Forwards Terri Ahlstrom of Weymouth South and Cindy Spooner of Cohasset, and Guards Paula Murphy of Canton, Adrian Mitchell of Norwell and Jackie Sones of Scituate.

Coach of the Year was Warren Searfoss of Marshfield with an honorable mention to Judy Schneider of Hanover.

Hockey: Goalie Fred Abraham of Silver Lake, Defensemen Mike Delay of Hingham and Steve Moran of Canton, Forwards Bubba McNeice and Marco Crugnale of Canton, Jim Geary and Don McNeill of Randolph, Jeff Ray of Hanover and Sean Canavan and Lenny Cinquegrano of Hingham.

Co-coaches of the Year went to Don Smith of Canton and Jim Sylvia of Hanover. Honorable mention coaches are Garrett Reagan of Hingham, Rick Mills of Silver Lake and Bob Murray of Marshfield.

Wrestling: Mike Murray of Braintree was selected in the 100 pound class; Fred McGovern of Hingham, 107; Dave Coyne of Hingham, 114; Doug Bennett of Cohasset, 121; Brian McGurty of Braintree, 128; Dave Shane of Hingham, 134; Larry Grant of Randolph, 140; Sean O'Donnell of Weymouth North, 147; Rob Liggett of Marshfield, 157; Jeff Platt of Marshfield, 169; Mike Myers of Marshfield, 187 and Eric Foley of Marshfield in the heavyweight division.

John Putnam of Marshfield was named Coach of the Year with an honorable mention to Bill Barges of Hingham.

Gymnastics: Named to this team were Dayna Curran of Hanover, Kathy Blake of Braintree, Sandra Falzone of Weymouth North, Michelle Noble of Scituate, Julie Kantaros of Canton, Aimee Barron of Braintree and Gretchen and Kristen Fryling of Scituate. Coach of the Year is Bob Keefe of Scituate.

Leading off the Mariner's All Star team for boy's basketball is Bryan Edwards.

The junior guard just completed his fourth year on the varsity team at Cohasset High, having played since he was an eighth grader at the school.

The six-foot, one-inch Edwards was Cohasset's leading scorer this year, averaging 24 points per game. He, along with senior Tom Larson, who received an honorable mention from the Mariner, were the leaders of the 1987 Eddie and the Cruisers.

"These two boys lead by example," Coach Eddie Minelli stated. "They were our captains and the only starters left after last year. They really carried this ballclub as the team's veterans."

Edwards is described by his coach as a "great player." He was named for the second year to the All State team and to the Nike High School All American team. Edwards was also honored by Street and Smith, and Converse as an All American. He was named player of the year two years in a row by the Boston Globe.

"Bryan was clearly our best player on this team," Minelli said. "The rest of the team persevered through injuries, and they all combined to make a successful team. There weren't a lot of stars."

Larson, a senior forward this year, will be attending Southeastern Massachusetts University in the fall. Minelli described Larson as a "courageous player" who averaged ten points and seven rebounds a game, despite playing with injuries throughout most of the season.

Larson is the only starter on the team who will be leaving this year.

Coach Minelli was given an honorable mention for his efforts during 1987. CHS varsity coach for the past six years, Minelli has a record of 98 wins in that time. He took a team this year that lost four starters, and three big 'stars' and went all the way the semi-finals of the Division Three South Sectionals. The team lost in triple overtime.

Doug Bennett

This year's impressive record was acheived despite not having a player over six-feet, four-inches. As one fan stated, "he got the most mileage out of this team. That's what Minelli is noted for - making every kid on his team, not just the stars, better players."

Newly elected officials take their places

if there are any problems, before we set out to fix anything," she added. Some of the issues of concern by residents, including their confusion with the municipal permit process, were discussed by Gjesteby during her first meeting as selectman Monday night.

Pratt recalled that as a "cocky young man" he was unsuccessful in four tries at public office in Cohasset. "Now, when I'm old and cocky, I got elected," he laughed.

Burt Pratt

Pratt commented that his campaign was the first all-electronic technology campaign ever waged in the town. With help from a campaign worker, Pratt put the names of all the identifiable Pratt voters into a computer. They also tabulated who would be likely to vote in the election, and who would not. Telephone calls were made to the more stubborn voters, he said.

When election day arrived, campaign workers watched intently for "Pratt Positives" and made telephone calls to those indentified voters who had not yet shown up at the polls. "The secret is out," he said. "The technique works."

The priorities of the new town officials "are pretty much those stated by all the candidates in this campaign," he continued. "To maintain fiscal responsibility, to protect the environment, and to preserve our quality of life here." Pratt agreed with advisory committee chairman Fred Koed who at town meeting said the town has too long neglected its buildings and equipment and a maintenance program should be established.

"There are also many capital budget items the town hasn't even looked toward, including more cemetery space, a garage for town vehicles. There's a whole laundry list that needs the consensus of the entire town," Pratt stated.

Nancy Sandell was unopposed in her first bid for public office, a three-year seat on the school committee. She was not undaunted by the lack of competition. "It was sort of nice not to have to worry about it," she said this week. "I liked focusing in on the issues and concerns and having the time to think about them without the anxiety of a heavy race,"she said. "Having worked with so many people in the past, I know there are a lot people concerned with education. It certainly wasn't a matter of apathy. I think a lot of people are concerned with education, but they don't have the time. I figured it was my time to put forth the issues I believe are important."

In the next few years, Sandell said, the school committee will have to tackle issues and make difficult decisions, while maintaining the quality of education. In addition to continuing a review of curriculum, and assessing the needs of a school system with a declining enrollment, Sandell said the schools must look at social concerns and health issues.

"I'm also concerned with the morale of the teachers," she added. "It's important the way they are viewed by the community and the respect they get. We have an outstanding group of people who work very hard. We have a well-seasoned staff, and when they retire, I'm concerned with the quality of teacher we can attract into out system."

Martha Gjesteby

Sandell noted that one of her primary goals as a member of the school committee will be to increase communication between the taxpayers and the community, perhaps through a committee newsletter.

Following Saturday's election, Town Clerk Frances Marks could breathe a bit easier. The vote were tallied within an hour of the closing of the polls. Many of the campaign workers remained around town hall, waiting until the votes were counted and the results were prepared.

Forty-five percent of Cohasset's registered voters participated in the town election. Marks was just slightly inaccurate in her earlier predictions, saying that about 50 percent would cast votes. "It was probably such a great day, many people were doing the yard work they had neglected for so long," she surmised Monday morning in her town hall office.

In the only other contested race, sewer commission incumbent Edward "Ted" Guild won over opponent Lot W. Bates by a 54 percent to 45 percent margin. Guild, who emphasized his need to oversee the completion of the Ward sewer plan, received 1148 votes compared to Bates' 968.

Chamber wants June premiere of 'Witches'

Although its rating is in doubt, selectmen supported a request from local businessmen to hold a benefit premiere of "The Witches of Eastwick" this summer.

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce has written to Warner Brothers in Hollywood, Calif., requesting that the movie, portions of which were filmed in Cohasset last summer, be loaned to the businessmen for a special benefit viewing.

Donald Staszko, an organizer of the project, explained Monday night to selectmen that proceeds from the showing would be used toward the renovation project at Milliken and Lillard fields.

The Chamber received a reply last week from Warner Brothers national publicist, Carl Samrock, who stated the premiere of the movie starring Jack Nicholson, Cher, Susan Sarandon and Michelle Pfeiffer, will premiere June 12. "Your request is under consideration," he said.

The Cohasset premiere, which would include a six-course meal at Hugo's for a $50 ticket, would take place after the national premiere. Staszko explained that the black tie gala event would include a shrimp and lobster dinner at the restaurant and a special showing of the movie at the high school auditorium. Because the auditorium only holds between 350 and 400 people, there may be two dinners scheduled the same night, Staszko said.

The Chamber has requested that Warner Brother loan the movie to the businessmen, "as a sign of your appreication." The Chamber will have to rent a special projector and certified projectionist to show the film. Staszko said he will ask the school department for use of the school auditorium.

When Chamber Vice President Staszko made the request to selectmen Monday night, Chairman Rocco Laugelle commented that a friend of his was in California and had viewed the unreleased film. Laugelle commented that several of his family members were selected as extras in the movie, but warned, "Do you realize what the rating of this movie is going to be?"

Staszko said he was unaware of the rating, which is used by the film industry as a guide to moviegoers, specifying whether there is harsh language or nudity contained in the film."All I know is what my kids told me, about the language they were using in the film. They didn't understand it, and frankly, neither did I," Laugelle commented.

Staszko said whatever the rating, the Chamber will abide by the rules which prohibit young people from viewing restricted films. He said benefit premieres of films are done regularly in California. Just recently, Staszko explained, a Boy Scout troop in California held a benefit premiere for the latest Clint Eastwood film.

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, Senator William Golden and the Cohasset Recreation Commission have already sent letters of support to Samrock in Hollywood. Selectmen agreed "for whatever weight" it may carry, they would also send a letter to the publicist, supporting the request.

The Art Center is also planning to hold a benefit showing of the film. Selectman Laugelle stated, "for all that the Chamber of Commerce has done for this town, I think it would be great."

Warner Brothers selected Cohasset as a primary location for shooting "The Witches of Eastwick" last summer. For seven weeks, film crews crowded into the Village and side streets where Hollywood stars acted out their scenes.

Part-time dog officer is named

William Quigley, assistant dog officer in Hingham, was named Cohasset's part time dog officer by selectmen Monday night.

Quigley, 18, a senior at Hingham High School, currently serves under that town's animal control officer, Paul Murphy. Quigley plans to continue working part time in Cohasset after graduation, while pursuing an education in law enforcement at Massasoit Community College.

Quigley was the only applicant to apply to selectmen's advertisement for the position.

If the personnel committee approves, the position will pay on an hourly basis, at $6.70 per hour. Former Dog Officer Richard Yokum was paid on a salary basis with an annual income of $3200. Executive Secretary Donald Andrew said the dog officer will likely work an average of ten hours a week, and never more than 20 hours per week.

The personnel committee must first approve the job reclassification before Quigley is officially appointed, but selectmen made the conditional appointment Monday night.

In other action this week, selectmen will request a second list from Civil Service of qualified candidates for police patrolman. There has been a vacancy in the police department since the retirement last year of Officer John Rhodes. Although selectmen were given a Civil Service list last fall, they were deadlocked, 2-2, and appointment was not made. Because they could not agree on a candidate, the list was cancelled.

Selectmen requested that Eexecutive Secretary Andrew make a request for another list immediately. It usually takes between three and four weeks to obtain a list, but selectmen said they would like to have the new patrolman attend the May session of the police academy. Andrew said the list will likely be the same one sent by Civil Service last fall.

Mariner's Winter All-Stars

Doug Bennett as a "very dedicated athlete" who puts a lot of effort into the sport.

A junior, Sweeney is one of the strongest competitiors on the South Shore in the 121-pound category. He was 10-0 this season, and 20-2 overall, including tournament competition. Sweeney was named champ in his weight class at the Marshfield Christmas tournament, and for the South Sectional finals. He finished fourth in the Division II state tournament.

"He's a year-round wrestler," Coach Sweeney said. Bennett competes in YMCA tournaments and in summer tourneys. "He's very competitive," Sweeney noted. "He'll probably be the state champ next year. He'll definitely be better than he was this year. He's very strong, very powerful, and I look forward to his return next year."

Cindy Spooner

Coach Sweeney is also a big fan of Liam Stanford, a 157-pound wrestler who compiled an impressive 15-0 record this year. One of those wins was against Robert Liggett of Marshfield, the only loss this year for Liggett.

Stanford was given honorable mention status by the Mariner. The CHS senior will be attending Bridgewater or Springfield State College, where he will major in child psychology.

Stanford was the champion in the Marshfield Christmas tournament for the second year in a row. He finished second in his weight class at the South Sectional tournment, and was captain of the wrestling team for the past two years. He is also an exceptional football player, Sweeney said. "He's a very strong individual and uses his leverage and knowledge of the sport. He's well-rounded athlete and a very nice kid."

Teammate Glenn Froio was also named to the honorable mention list. The 147-pound junior finished second in the Marshfield Christmas tournament, and second in the South Sectionals. Froio finished fifth in the state finals and ended the year with a 14-2 record. Coach Sweeney said Froio, another powerful wrestler, will be a valuable addition to the team next year.

Girls Basketball

Coach Bill Fallon had nothing but praise for his outstanding team forward, Cindy Spooner. The CHS junior was the best inside player on the 1987 league championship team. She lead the team in scoring, averaging 13.4 points per game and her rebounding stats were also high, according to Fallon. Spooner was named to the the Patriot Ledger's All Scholastic team, and was a league all star two years in a row.

"Cindy gave us the offensive balance we needed on this team. We had two outside shooters and Cindy made it a lot tougher to defend us by making the shots from the inside," Fallon commented.

The five-foot, ten-inch player has been a member of the varsity team since the eighth grade. She figures to be a big part of the team next year.

"She's very valuable and very consistant," Coach Fallon said. "She'll play a big part in next year's team." Spooner is also an All Star player in field hockey.

Congratulations All-Stars!

☐ Jennifer Jackson, 13, of 9 Woodland Drive, swam in the New England Age Group Championship meet at Brown University. The meet started on March 26 and ran through March 29. The events which she swam were the 2650 yd. freestyle, 1000 yd. freestyle, 500 yd. freestyle, 200 yd. freestyle, 50 yd. freestyle, 400 ind. medley, 200 yd. backstroke and 100 yd. backstroke. She laced in the top ten in New England for her age group. Upon completion of the Age Group Meet, Jennifer was selected to represent New England in the eighth Eastern Zone Championship Meet. This year the meet is in Buffalo, New York at the State University. Swimmers at the meet will be coming from all states East of the Mississippi. Jennifer will be swimming the 500 yd. freestyle and the 200 yd. freestyle. Good luck to you Jennifer, be sure to let us know how you make out!

☐ Marge Dougherty is one happy gal, and with good reason! She entered her first flower show recently, and came home with a huge winning trophy to show for it. Her entry was a Christmas Cactus in full bloom and huge . . . Marge grew it from a baby that she purchased and it has gotten too big for her home, that's how large it became. Congratulations, Marge.

☐ Tracy Fitzpatrick, a sophomore at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., was awarded her second varsity letter in basketball at the college. Tracy played in all of Wesleyan's 19 games and averaged 13 minutes playing time. She scored 66 points and grabbed 42 rebounds, had 17 assists and stole the ball 16 times. Tracy is the duaghter of Pat Fitzpatick of Sohier St.

☐ Congratulations to Kathy Harris who won the Coaches Award in skiing at Thayer Acadmey's winter sports awards.

Stella Nardo helped Community Center nursery school student Emily Coyne with her Easter egg project at the school. (Kathy Perlow)

☐ Did you see the beautiful picture of Mary Lagrotteria in the recent issue of Town and County magazine? She was one of the prettiest brides on the page, and it sure was nice to see a Cohasset gal pictured!

☐ Laura Cook of our town was in a recent National Magazine, when she wrote about the death of one of her grandfathers and how it affected her life with her remaining one. Wonderful story!

☐ The Seventh Annual competition for the Cadet Richard A. Haskell Memorial Swim trophy was recently held at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy. Teen United States Naval Sea Cadet and League Cadet Units from Mass., Rhode Island and Conn. competed for the sea Cadet Trophy and the League Cadet Trophy. Matthew Fitzpatrick swam for the F.B. Battle Division (which is out of Scituate) and Ian Fitzpatrick swam for the League Cadet Trophy. Both boys did an admirable job, continue your great skills!

☐ Here's hoping that Bob Durkin's recent back surgery is a complete success, and that he is able to get up in time to join the "Mass Exodus" of students going away for the Spring vacation. Will there by any teens left in the town?

☐ Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark were spotted Around Town recently . . . although their home is officially New Hampshire, a part of their hearts certainly remain here! Wonder if he still misses the town elections, and the important part he took in them for so many years.

☐ Mary McElroy was a second place winner in the Mass Marine Educators Essay Contest, and we sure want to congratulate her for her efforts.

☐ Ten United States Naval Sea Cadet and League Cadet Units from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut recently competed for the Sea Cadet Trophy and the League Cadet Trophy.

Swimming for the F.B. Battle Division was Sea Cadet Matthew Fitzpatrick and swimming for the League Cadet trophy was Sea Cadet Ian Fitzpatrick.

A look back - how Historical Society formed

By David Wadsworth, Curator

The Cohasset Historical Society, a volunteer organization of some 400 members, maintains three old buildings dedicated to preserving and presenting the history of our town. On Elm Street at Cohasset Center the Capt. John Wilson House (Cohasset's first historical museum) is an 1810 sea captain's home built by housewright David Nichols for one of the town's early merchant captains. Next door to the Wilson House is the society's unique Maritime Museum, an 18th century ship's chandlery and counting house built for the fishing fleet of shipowner Samuel Bates. the Historical Society's ownership of the Wilson House dates from 1936 and of the Maritime Museum from the mid-1950's. A more recent addition to the society's holdings, and symbolic of its continued growth, is the Caleb Lothrop House, an 1821 home built by a Cohasset merchant. The Lothrop House is the society's headquarters, houses its extensive library and archives of local history and its administrative office. The two museums at Cohasset Center contain large collections of artifacts, artworks and documents relating to the town's general and seafaring history; the Lothrop House is a 19th century well-to-do Cohasset home with authentic antiques and furnishings.

Since its founding in 1928 the Historical Society has gathered under its protective mantle a truly impressive number of historical items, ranging from early housewright's tools to Indian stone tools, from shipwreck relics and ship models to household furnishings and early gowns. Artworks, prints, old documents and maps relating to Cohasset's history abound in its museums and archives. Each item has a particular and unique story to tell, and each represents a bit of the town's historical heritage as a New England seacoast community and its people.

The motivation to collect and preserve objects from the town's past antedates even the society's founding in 1928. Before 1900 the municipal Committee On Town History began to accumulate artifacts, maps and documents donated from the old homes of the town, as the committee prepared to write Cohasset's history. The Rev. E. Victor Bigelow's landmark "Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset" was issued by the Committee On Town History in 1898, followed by George and Eilzabeth Davenport's "Genealogies of the Families of Cohasset" in 1909. The Committee's first historial collections were stored and exhibited in the Town Hall and the Public Library.

On July 16, 1928 the original Committee On Town History became the founders of the Cohasset Historical Society. On that date, at the North Main Street home of Dr. Oliver H. Howe, across the street from the town's historic Common, a group of nine of the town's citizens gathered to formally organize and incorporate a new society. Its first officers were Dr. Howe, President; George W. Collier, Vice President; Charles W. Gammons, Treasurer; and Mary P. Tower, Secretary. A board of nine directors was chosen. Adopted the same evening was a set of by-laws which would chart the course of the new Historical Society for years to come; "to develop interest in the history of Cohasset and to preserve information, documents, relics and landmarks relating to the history of the town." Annual membership dues were to be $1, and life memberships $50. The directors were elected for terms of three years; the officers for one year. Joining with the members of the original Town History Committee at a meeting held on September 17, 1928, were members of the Women's Historical Committee, and both memberships voted to consolidate their efforts within the new society. By October of that year a membership list of 114 names had been drawn up, representing a cross section of the town's population, and by the end of that month another 20 names were added. Chosen as the society's first curator of collections was Miss Charlotte S. Tower, great-aunt of today's senior curator. Almost immediately, the Society engaged speakers to present talks relating to diverse topics of historical interest. Among the first was a Mr. Tuttle, of the Massachusetts Historical Society, who spoke upon "The Bay Charters and the Early Settlements of Massachusetts." A number of evening meetings followed, devoted to such subjects as "The Development of the Clipper Ship," then talks by Dr. Howe titled "Colonial Lamps and Lighting" and "Early Division of Lands and Early Roads in Cohasset." In June of 1929 members of the society held a "field meeting" to visit a number of Cohasset's historical sites. By mid-1930 the society had adopted an offical seal, designed by Mrs. Jerome Wadsworth and her father, society member Edward Nichols. In April of the following year historian Gilbert S. Tower gave the monthly talk, titled "The Visits of Henry D. Thoreau to Cohasset." September of 1932 saw longtime Cohasset summer resident Ellery H. Clark recount personal

Editorial

Thanks for service

Our annual spring business is now complete. The town meeting is finished, and elections are now history. New members have been seated on their respective boards, and have already settled into the business at hand.

William Baird, on his first night as a board of health member, was cast right into the fire as the board held another public hearing on Cohasset Heights Ltd. That meeting was continued from Monday to Wednesday, with a shutdown of the dump a real possibility.

Baird replaced chairman Dr. C. Michael Bliss on that board. Bliss served throughout this landfill controversy and with two health agents. No one ever said being a board of health member was easy, and Dr. Bliss would surely agree. Week after week there always seemed to be some article of importance on their agenda. Whether it was approving a septic system repair, rejecting new home developments, or supervising the town's landfill, Dr. Bliss was there in the town's behalf. Being a board of health member held little glory, but Dr. Bliss served the town well. We wish him luck in the future and hope his biggest concern now is how to spend his spare time.

Another board member will be sorely missed by residents throughout town - former planning board chairman L. Christine Bassett. Chris didn't like to make a lot of noise. She just went about her business - very well - and accomplished things in her traditionally quiet manner. She is knowledgeable, aware and intelligent. Chris was helpful to applicants, kind to everyone who came before that board, and even-handed with all developers. The town was well served by Chris, and we wish her a wonderful and prosperous future.

Longtime school committee member Richard Conley has left that board after six years. Conley will be remembered most for his traditional appearances at all athletic events. Whether it was basketball, football or soccer, Conley could usually be found in the crowd. He loves kids. Period. Conley cared little for the politics of municipal government. He wanted the best education for the kids of Cohasset, and that's why he continued to serve. He was instrumental in arranging some impressive scholarships for the students. Conley served the students of this town, and that's how his tenure on the committee will be remembered.

And last we come to former selectmen chairman Diane Sullivan. To say she was accessible is an understatement. No matter what time of day, Diane would accept a phone call from anyone and try to solve a problem, or simply listen to a concern. She attended nightly meetings the way some of us turn to the television after supper. If there were serious issues affecting the town, Sullivan was aware, prepared and in the midst of the battle.

She is a caring person, intelligent and possesses a great sense of humor - a necessity, she would say, to serve on any town board. The town will miss the untiring services of Diane. We thank her for the time she gave us.

NEWS ITEM — Cohasset: Spring is official. Town Meeting is history. Majority of voters back $1,096,450 addition to Town Hall. Voters also overwhelmingly support plan to renovate Milliken athletic fields. 'It wasn't a matter of money.' Coincidentally, Little League tryouts held. 10, 11, 12 year-olds try out if not on a last-year's major league team

"...Our Lester is trying out for shortstop and these are his agent and lawyer, respectively, looking out for his endorsements and the free-agent schtick..."

Congratulations to all the candidates in Saturday's election

Gjesteby says thanks to town

Letters

To the editor:

I wish to thank all the people who supported my candidacy for selection in this election. It has been invaluable for me to meet so many of our townspeople, and I wish I could have visited with all of you and exchanged ideas and concerns.

Congratulations to Burt Pratt who also won, and all the other candidates for their zeal and good fun in a positive election campaign.

Lastly, I especially wish to thank my family for their constant support. I look forward to the next three years with the present members on the board, Rocco, Cliff and Jimmy as well as Burt.

Bates remains concerned about issues

Dear Cohasset voters:

I would like to thank those many voters who supported my candidacy to the Board of Sewer Commissioners on Saturday April 11, 1987. I am still very concerned about the sewer issues which remain unsolved. I will continue to attend all meetings and hearings regarding these issues and keep you well-informed. If you have any questions or concerns regarding these issues, please contact me at 383-6476. I will be happy to discuss them with you.

Once again, thank you for your support.

Important to assess flood damage

By Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray

Some of the worst flooding to hit Massachusetts in 50 years was experienced by many sections of the state earlier this week. With the rains finally over and things drying out, now begins the long process of assessing damage and recovery.

It's important for communities and individuals affected by the flooding to begin the damage assessment process as soon as possible. There are several places where help may be gotten. People may be eligible for financial help through homeowners and flood insurance policies. If the state gets federal disaster status, there may be help available from Washington. And, depending on the extent of the damage to homes or businesses, there may be eligibility for some tax breaks.

There are a number of steps that should be taken to make sure individuals or businesses qualify for the financial help that's out there. First, call the insurance agent. He or she can give specifics on filing claims. The call will actually get the claim process moving.

Make a list of the damage to home, business, or property. Take photos of damaged buildings and articles and gather receipts of damaged property and goods.

A call should be made to the city or town agency handling flood assistance or to the local civil defense office to report damage. Because a state disaster has been declared in Massachusetts, civil defense teams will be visiting flood-damaged areas to assess the damage and to build the case for federal money to U.S. government officials. Locally generated damage reports will help civil defense people build their case for the federal declaration. If Massachusetts gets a presidential declaration of disaster, then low-interest loans for towns, small businesses and individuals will kick in.

If emergency help is needed, calls should be made to the local Red Cross or Salvation Army office. Centers have been set up in parts of the Commonwealth hardest hit by the flooding.

Finally, careful records should be kept of damage assessments. Flood damage qualifies as a casualty and can be deducted from federal income tax.

After years of demands from communities, the Department of Mental Health is considering regulations to give communities notification of plans to establish residential group homes for the mentally ill in their area.

According to DMH Assistant Commissioner for Policy and Planning Steven Day, the department is still reviewing policy drafts and he is not sure when the final decision will be made, but it will include proper notification and public forums will all community abutters within a certain area of a site determined viable by DMH.

The regulation proposals come at a key time as the governor's budget this year calls for an increase of $65 million for DMH residence programs over the next five years and would open up 2,500 additional slots. Also, the Senate Ways and Means Committee mid-April endorsed a DMH capital outlay package to provide $38 million for community residences outside Boston and $3.6 million for residences within the city. The House has already passed its own version of the capital outlay.

Cohasset Heights shut-down threat continues

Cohasset Heights attorney Antone Moehrke makes a point during Monday night's session before the board of health.

Burns added, "It seems to me, there is a concentration of water in the swamp which flows toward Lily Pond and there is definitely a change in the color of the water in the swamp in comparison to Brass Kettle Brook."

The board conceded Cohasset Heights has installed hay bales and there has been some construction in the area of the leachate collection tanks to help alleviate the problem.

The landfill owners also have addressed a safety concern which was raised two weeks ago, the board said. They erected a snow fence around a lagoon on the property and posted "No Trespassing" signs.

Antone Moehrke, attorney for Cohasset Heights Ltd., took exception to the board's notions of "nuisance" and "danger."

Determination of the threat, he said, "must be based on expert decision. There has to be the kind of evidence everyone on the board can relate to.

"I thought at some point the board would go to its engineers about these concerns. For instance, when you talk about the reddish discoloration, many times that is caused by iron and manganese deposits called swamp iron."

Moehrke called the previous session March 30, "a trial by innuendo with videotapes and photographs as evidence." The attorney presented his own packet of photos depicting a similar siltation situation at the town's Cedar Street landfill to that discovered by the board at Cohasset Heights.

"We're not talking about our landfill," Baird said.

"When you are judging the impact of our landfill," Moehrke retorted, "you ought to judge it within the context that any landfill will produce leachate. When you take this case out of context, you make it look like this is the only landfill where this happens. It's not true."

Moehrke noted, the town's engineers produced a study Nov. 1984, which established that most of the flows around the landfill do not impact the town's water supply at Lily Pond.

"We should be dealing with the changes that have occurred since then," he told the board, "and there has been no change in circumstances with regard to flows since 1984.

"We're not dealing with something that has jus happened," he added, "we're dealing with the status quo. I don't understand why we're talking about a nuisance-danger situation.

"I'm sensitive to the term 'threat' because the land: was closed for six weeks after the board cited it as a threat to the public health," Moehrke noted. "The town agreed to a lawsuit settlement Feb. 26, 1985, after the DEQE determined there was no detrimental effect on the town's water supply by Cohasset Heights.

"Threat is a dangerous concept when not backed up by expertise," he said.

Mochrke added Cohasset heights should not be considered guilty until proven innocent. "The burden of proof is on the board of health.

"Cohasset Heights Ltd. will bring forth four or five experts," he said. "CHL has no pre-trial problems; we have substantial evidence."

Bill Norman of GHR Engineering, the firm employed by Cohasset Heights Ltd., told the board a study by his firm agreed with the findings of the 1984 CDM report.

"Our analytical data shows that the water has not been affected by any landfill generated constituents," Norman said. "Tests taken south of the landfill show the water meets all primary and secondary drinking water standards. Upgradient tests have shown contaminents, but they were not generated at Cohasset Heights, but up on Scituate Hill."

A state Dept. of Public Works garage sits atop Scituate Hill, as does the leachi field for Webb-Norfolk Conveyor.

The CHL representatives argued that volatile organic chemicals found in area test wells may not all be attributable to the dump.

Former building inspector Robert Dennis cast further doubt on the origins of some of the chemicals when he told the board of an incident involving an oil spill at what is now the Webb-Norfolk Conveyor site.

The DEQE removed and tested as many barrels as it could find, he noted, but no one could know whether there are more barrels there without digging up the whole site.

Dennis suggested some of the traces of benzene found in monitoring wells upgradient of the landfill may have originated from those barrels.

"Last Saturday, the board observed water colored like a chocolate milkshake," Norman noted "[illegible] reason for this is there is no vegetation to prevent soil erosion in a heavy rainstorm; particles of soil, silt and clay were suspended in the water. it was uncontaminated."

Baird suggested GHR and CDM take samples after a rainfall to determine what contribution the landfill makes to siltation. "You agreed that these sediments have flowed south, over Boulder Lane. Could it be that some other constituents got into that water?"

Dan Ostrye, director of the GHR laboratory said turbidity studies have shown most of the siltation generated from the landfill primarily involve truck disturbances on the roadway.

Baird questioned Ostrye whether he believed variances in the PH balances of test samples were significant.

"Not in my judgment," Ostrye replied.

"I guess it depends on your definition of significance," Baird said.

The engineers conceded volatile organics are present t the landfill, "but we have found no other compounds, such as heavy metals or PCBs. And we are not seeing any volatile organics in the wetlands."

They also conceded there are "seepage breakouts" from Cohasset Heights, but added, "There are no landfills in the state without these." And they submitted two test samples, which they said were from Cohasset's Cedar Street dump, which showed evidence of volatile organics.

Moehrke said the volatile organics which "break out" of Cohasset Heights disappear before they reach Boulder Road.

"That's the benefit of having wetlands as a dilution source," Ostrye commented.

According to Mochrke, the state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering calculated the risk level attributable to CHL effluent at such a rate that "if someone drank two liters of the area water 365 days per year for 70 years, he would have a one in 100,000 chance of developing cancer."

Baird retorted, "Would you like to go up there and drink some of that water Mr. Mochrke?"

"That's not the issue," the counselor shot back. "We're talking about quantifying this in terms of nuisance and danger to the public health."

Despite pleas from the public for immediate action, the board opted to continue the hearing. They were expected to deliberate Wednesday night on the issues of landfill spotter, liability insurance coverage and further controls to abate off-site pollution.

South Shore Republicans meet

Bernadette Hermanson of Pembroke, who is active in the Standish Humane Society, will be the featured speaker at the South Shore Republican Club meeting on the Patriot's Day holiday, Monday, April 20, at 12:30 p.m.

Hermanson will talk on the work of the Humane Society which is dedicated to the care of lost and abandoned animals in Plymouth County.

The meeting will be held at the First Parish Church hall, River Street, Norwell Center.

A noon social hour will be held with members from Abington, Hanover and Rockland as hostesses.

Villa Maria yard sale

The sisters of Divine Providence of Kingston, will be holding a yard sale at the Villa Maria Convent, 136 Border Street, Saturday, May 2 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Proceeds will benefit the Missions of the Order.

Anyone wishing to donate articles to the sale may contact sister Florita Rodman during the day at 331-5194

Articles will include furniture, white elephants, housewares, miscellaneous.

Easter Egg Hunt

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct the 10 annual Easter Egg Hunt, for children ages 3 through 11 years of age, Saturday, April 18, at noon at Deer Hill School Field.

This year there is again the distinct possibility that the Easter Bunny and helpers will be on hand. There also will be live animals at this year's hunt, as well as the other attractions.

Children will be divided into three separate chronological groups: Group 1, age 3 and 4 (with parent); Group 2, ages 5-7; Group 3, ages 8-11.

Please gather around your designated area sign before 12 noon. Bring a small paper bag or container for your candy.

Individually wrapped chocolate eggs will be scattered about the designated areas. In each group some of the eggs will be wrapped with masking tape that will have a number on the tape. Should you find one of the numbered eggs, hold on to it as you will receive a prize from the Easter Bunny.

This year's program sponsors are: Cohasset Rotary Club, American Legion Post #118, the Cohasset Police Association, and the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

Rain date will be Saturday, April 25, at noon, Deer Hill School Field.

Diet Workshop at CCC

It's time to think about getting back into shape, new clothes and new programs. With that in mind, The Diet Workshop is offering an exciting eight week weight-loss program at the Cohasset Community Center, beginning Tuesday, April 21 from 10:30-11:30 a.m.

The program will focus on current nutrition concepts, the importance of regular exercise and safe, healthy weight loss. The cost will be $56 for the eight weeks.

Helen Emmett, a Diet Workshop instructor for seven years, will conduct the program. All are welcome. Please call Kathy Bryanton at the Cohasset Community Center (COA) to register — 383-9112.

Elderly volunteers

A weeklong training program for volunteers who work with the elderly will be offered from April 27 to May 1 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House in Cohasset.

Sen. William Golden, D-Weymouth, said the session, which will be presented through the cooperation of local council on aging directors and the state Executive Office of Elder Affairs, will train counselors for implementation of the SHINE program.

SHINE is an acronym for Serving Health Information Needs of Elders. It is a new state program which is being introduced on a pilot basis.

Towns participating in this course will be Weymouth, Scituate, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Duxbury. Marshfield already has a trained SHINE volunteer.

Volunteers will be trained to counsel elders on health care services, including Medicare/Medicaid and HMOs, veteran's benefits, SSI eligibility and how to assist in completing necessary insurance forms and applications.

They will also be trained to assist families of elderly parents who may have questions on insurance coverage and costs to meet their parents' health care needs.

For those who wish to volunteer some time to their local council on aging to assist in establishing this program should call Kathy Bryanton, director of the Cohasset Council on Aging at 383-9112.

Amateur Gardeners meeting

The annual election of Officers will be held at the April 21 meeting of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset. The meeting will be at 1 p.m. at the home of Ruth Briggs with Aylsa Goodrich assisting as co-hostess.

Shadow Box

The Cohasset Dramatic Club's Spring presentation is Michael Cristofer's "The Shadow Box."

John Kuhn, '86-'87 President of the Club now in its 66th year of continuous service to the community, reports..."I am grateful that the plays this season, and in particular "Shadow Box," have brought many new members or people who had allowed their membership to lapse and now have rejoined. This new blood, which gives us a good sized membership of over 180, will freshen the Club and give it new life."

Harry Heineman, directs the play concerning three people — Joe, Brian and Felicity, who are terminally ill, and how they and their families cope.

Other cast members and their respective roles are...

Susie Lawler is Maggie; Jay Staunton acts the part of Steve; Eddie Fee plays Mark; Virginia Dowling is cast as Bev; Celia Tyll portrays Agnes; Tom Pierce takes the role of the Interviewer.

Bob Julian is Associate Director. Production Manager is Mary Donovan.

The dates and performance times at the Cohasset Town Hall are May 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. and May 3 at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $4 and may be purchased at Flemings in Cohasset Center or at town hall.

If I lived on the South Shore, how do I find a good bottle of wine— a simple answer!

Visit us at The Wine Press South, at the junction of Routes 18 & 53 in Weymouth.

We do not represent that we have the largest selection or the greatest number of cases of wine in the area. There are larger shops with more floor space, more racks, and more bins. However, there is not another wine store with our commitment. Simply stated we preshop for you and offer you only the best. The best available wines at the best prices, taking into consideration wines at important price levels for the wine buyer.

For example:

If $5-$6 California Cabernets or $7-$9 French Chardonnays are of particular interest to you, we offer you only the finest quality and the best value. If there is nothing available in the marketplace to fill these important areas, our racks will remain empty.

We buy only current offerings: wines that are drinkable now or will be at their maturity.

We will be happy to assist you in making your choices. Come in and browse.

St. Stephen's services

Maundy Thursday Instructional Eucharist

Just as Jesus instructed his disciples at the last supper, the Eucharist on Maunday Thursday, April 16 at 7 p.m., will be filled with teaching. An altar will be moved close to the congregation so that all can see. Children may wish to gather up close.

After communion we will retire to the choir room for a sparse Agape Meal where we enact Jesus' admonition: "For who is greater—the one who sits at table or the servant who waits on him? Surely the one who sits at table. Yet here am I among you like a servant." (Lk. 22:27)

The evening concludes in the church with the stripping of the altar. All who wish may remain in the church afterwards to sit in quiet contemplation and to pray.

Good Friday—Centuries of Meditations

The Good Friday Liturgy, April 17 at noon, which recalls the hours Jesus spent on the cross will be punctuated with mediations from Christian writers over the centuries. Julian of Norwich, St. Ambrose, among others will be featured. The Rector will share reflections on each of the writings.

Good Friday can be seen as an extension of Maundy Thursday—the conclusion of the Eucharist that night—so no additional communion will be offered.

A special children's service will take place at 2 p.m. Through crafts and hands-on activities children will experience the Jesus story from joyous entrance into Jerusalem to the cross and the hope of Easter.

Easter Eve—Candlelight and Baptisms

The Easter Eve Service begins at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 18, with the church in darkness. There is a lighting of the Paschal Candle, symbolic of the light of Christ, and then from that the lighting of each person's candle in the congregation. Then at the singing of the Gloria with organ (heard for the first time since Lent) all the lights come on, "Christ is risen!"

Easter Eve is also a traditional time in the church for baptisms and this year we will baptize Richard and Mary Slowey's son, Brendan Broderick, as well as Frank and Linda Talluto's daughter (George and Cynthia Peters' granddaughter) Meghann Allison.

After the service there will be a reception in the Bartow Room of the Parish House.

Easter Day—Welcome Happy Morning

Easter Day services are at 8 and 10 a.m. in the church. The music, the flowers, the sun streaming through the stained glass make this a joyous affirmation of new life. The choir will be present for both services on this most holy of mornings.

Vestry to Meet on Second Monday

The Vestry will meet Monday, April 13 at 7:45 p.m. This change will allow members to attend Town Meeting should it carry over to Monday night, April 6.

Walking on Good Friday, April 17

Sharing, Inc.is the non-profit corporation that administers a walk which generates money for independently chosen missions, hunger relief, and development projects in this country and abroad. The walkers are asked to obtain pledges of money from friends, relatives, and neighbors. In 1986, St. Stephen's walkers raised $4,500.

If you are interested in joining the walk, call John Seavey (383-1782) for sign-up forms. Walkers begin their trek at South Junior High School, 1103 Main St., Hingham (Rte. 228 next to Tomasi Nursery). The suggested starting time is 7-9 a.m. There will be a short worship service at 7 a.m. to start everyone off "on the right foot".

Greek Orthodox services

The Nativity-Assumption of the Virgin Mary Greek Orthodox Church at 817 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, will hold the following series:

Holy Wednesday Evening, Service of the Holy Unction, 7:30 p.m.

Holy Thursday Morning, Divine Liturgy, 6 a.m.

Holy Thursday Evening, Service of the Holy Passion, 7:30 p.m.

Holy Friday Morning, Service of the Royal Hours, 9 a.m., Service of the Unnailing from the Cross, 2:30 p.m.

Holy Friday Evening, Service of the Lamentations, 7:30 p.m.

Holy Saturday Morning, Divine Liturgy, 8 a.m.

Holy Saturday Evening, Resurrection Service, 11 p.m.

Resurrection Divine Liturgy, 12 midnight.

Cohasset Worship. . .

First Parish services

Easter Activities:

April 16 - 7:30 p.m. at the Meeting House, Maunday Thursday Communion Service. This service is a simple symbolic memorial in remembrance of Jesus' final meal with his disciples. The service is read from the front portion of the red hymnals, "Hymns of the Spirit" and is proceeded by ten minutes of music for meditation. The service will conclude at 8 p.m.

April 19 - 5:50 a.m. Daylight Savings Time at Sandy Beach. The sun rises at 5:57 a.m. For the past several years a hearty group of nature worshippers from First Parish have gathered at sunrise with a few brief readings and a hymn. Should there be inclement weather, this service will not be held.

April 19 - 10:30 a.m. Easter Sunday Service at the Meeting House

Bellringers: April 26 at 11:45 a.m.

St. Mary's Church census

St. Mary's Parish in Hull includes families in Cohasset residing on Black Rock Road - Spindrift Lane - Jerusalem Road (from Forest Avenue to Hull Street) - and Hull Street to Fisher Road.

Parish census cards will be distributed by volunteers the end of April and will be picked up Sunday, May 3.

If you are Catholic, we thank you for taking the time to complete the census cards. If you are not Catholic, we ask for your understanding and apologize for any inconvenience.

Volunteer Census Takers names will be forthcoming. If you would like to help us - or if you need further information, please call St. Mary's Rectory in Hull at 925-0680 or Cohasset Area Captain - Maria A. Plante at 383-9263.

Saint Anthony's parish

Rev. John J. Keohane, Pastor, rectory: 383-0219; Sister Mary F. Hurld, S.N.D., Minister of Music, 749-4727 (after 3 p.m.); Jean Lennon, CCD Coordinator, CCD Office: 383-0630, Tues. & Fri., 9 a.m.-12 p.m.

Sunday Masses: 8, 9:30, 11:30 a.m., Saturday: 5 p.m.; Effective April 26, the 8 a.m. Mass will be changed to 7 a.m.; Daily Mass: 7 a.m., Saturday: 8 a.m. followed by Novena & Rosary.

Banns of Marriage: Katherine McArthur-Paul Lemieux.

CCD:

This will be the last week for classes with the following exceptions: High School Youth Group will not meet this evening; Grade 6, Classes will also meet the week of April 26 to prepare for the Mass planned for Tuesday, May 3; Grade 7, No classes on Holy Thursday (Wednesday class will meet); Grade 2, Classes will continue until First Communion on May 9; Grade 1; Last class will be May 14.

Holy Week

Masses on Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday at 7 a.m. Confessions: Wednesday from 4-5 p.m. & 7-8 p.m.; Holy Thursday — Masses at 7 a.m. & 7 p.m. Adoration: 8-10 p.m.; Good Friday — Liturgy, Veneration of the Cross: 3 p.m. (Fast and abstinence). Confessions: 4-5 p.m. Holy Saturday — Easter Vigil and Holy Mass: 7 p.m. Confessions: 4-5 p.m.

Easter Sunday Masses at 7, 8, 9:30 & 11:30 a.m.

Collection for the Shrines of the Holy Land will be taken up on Good Friday. Your contribution enables the Church to maintain those many shrines so sacred to us as Christians. We must preserve for generations to come those places where Jesus lived and preached. Your help will also enable priests in that area to continue their pastoral work. Your generosity is appreciated.

Easter Egg Hunt —next Sunday after the 9:30 Mass on the rectory lawn. Please bring your own basket for eggs and prizes.

St. Stephen's Church presents choral music by Gabriel Faure, Sunday, April 12, at 3 p.m. Stephen John Lee, Music Director, will conduct chorus, soloists, and orchestra in Faure's Requiem. The public is invited to this free concert.

Mormon Easter services

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints of Hingham will celebrate Easter Sunday along with Christians around the world. The first Easter, the resurrection of our Lord and Savior, is the greatest and most significant miracle of all time, Church leaders say. He brought to every person who ever lives the privilege of once again having a body, of living again, for He said that all mankind would be resurrected.

A special Easter service will be held at 9 a.m. at the Gardner St. chapel. There will be sacred music sung by the choir, the Young Women, the Primary children and the Steven Graves family of Norwell. Robert E. Chatfield, former Hingham bishop, will deliver the sermon: "Christ's Greatest Gift."

The public is cordially invited to the family worship service and to the Bible classes that follow.

Senior center news . . .

FROM THE DIRECTOR:

"Statistics indicate that the fear of crime is greater than the actual occurrence of crime against elderly. The Executive Office of Elder Affairs has developed a booklet, 'Deterring Crime,' to help provide elders with information to prevent victimization.

The purpose of the booklet is to offer elders measures that can be taken so that they can feel more secure both in and outside their homes. The practical tips contained in the book include personal safety, protection of one's home, and protection against con games and consumer fraud.

It provides the reader with emergency telephone numbers, including the Executive Office of Elder Affairs Information and Referral Hotline: 1-800-822-2003.

Additional copies of Deterring Crime is available by calling the Senior Center at 383-9112.

UP AND COMING

May 13, Cohasset will hold its THIRD Annual Health Fair from 12 to 3 p.m., at the Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave. Sponsored by the Social Service League — Council on Aging, & Board of Health, over 25 health care providers will be participating in this year's Health Fair. Blood pressure screening, glaucoma screening, height and weight measurements are only a few of the many services that will be available at the Health Fair. Please note: the monthly blood pressure clinic that held at the Senior Center will be combined into the services offered at the Health Fair. Transportation will be available this year to the fair. Please call the Senior Center if you need a ride.

COHASSET SENIOR WALKING CLUB NEWS

The Cohasset Strutters will meet at the Senior Center on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 10 a.m. to set out for the walking site of the day. These Spring walks will begin at 10 sharp! Leaders suggest you dress in layered clothing and use your own discretion with regard to the weather.

You, too, can enjoy the benefits of a regular walking program. Join us on any of the days noted . . . or come to our First Anniversary Party on April 22 at 9:30 a.m. You will get to meet the other walkers and find out why they have been involved for a year now. "Walking is man's best medicine." — Hippocrates.

MEDEX OPEN ENROLLMENT

Forms are now available at the Senior Center for the Medex Program stop-by or call 383-9112.

TRAINING PROGRAM

We are currently looking for people who would like to be trained as volunteers to help other senior citizens with questions about insurance, Medicare, Medex, and HMO's selections, and to assist them in filling out claim forms. Mr. Chris Mitchell from the Executive Office of Elder Affairs will be the trainer for this very worthwhile program. Please call the Senior Center 383-9112 before April 24 — to sign up.

VOTER HALL OF FAME WANTS SENIOR VOTERS

COHASSET — If you have a 50-year untarnished record of voting in every election where you've been eligible, then there is a place waiting for you in the Massachusetts Voters Hall of Fame.

Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly has announced that, again in 1987, his office will recognize the long-time voters of the Commonwealth by inducting them into the Massachusetts Voters Hall of Fame.

The application should be submitted between March 1, and Aug. 1, '87.

All applications are available at the Cohasset Council on Aging, 3 North Main Street, Cohasset.

Recreation Dept. programs

Tuesday afternoon, April 21, at 1:30 to 3 p.m., the Cohasset Recreation Department will present a feature presentation of the edited version of the Disney film "Treasure Island" and cartoons, in the town hall auditorium.

Pre-registration is not necessary and a donation of $1.50 per person will be collected at the door. The films will begin at 1:30 p.m., and children who are dropped off should be picked up at 3 p.m.

Because of budget constraints, the recreation department will not be able to offer vacation week game programs for children as originally planned.

Kickball — grades K-3

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for grades K-3 kickball program to be held directly after school Wednesdays, starting May 6.

The program will meet for a five-week period from May 6 until June 3, weather permitting. Should the weather be inclement, the program will not meet but extra sessions will be added at the end if time allows.

The fee for the program is $6 per participant. Registrations will be accepted by calling the recreation office at 383-6791. Children will stay after school and the program will begin at 3 p.m. Children must be picked-up at 4:30 p.m. sharp. Registrations will not be accepted after Monday, May 4.

Youth Jobs

The Cohasset Recreation Department has been operating a youth job opportunity program for the past eight years. During the past two or three years, there have been far more jobs than youth to fill the jobs.

Again this year, there are a large number of residents who require various types of assistance with yard work, lawn care, garage cleaning, babysitting, etc. etc. If you are over 15 years old, and are looking for some intermittent work please call the recreation department office at 383-6791. For anyone who may be interested in, or have experience in gardening, we have a fairly long-term, intermittent job available for the spring and summer.

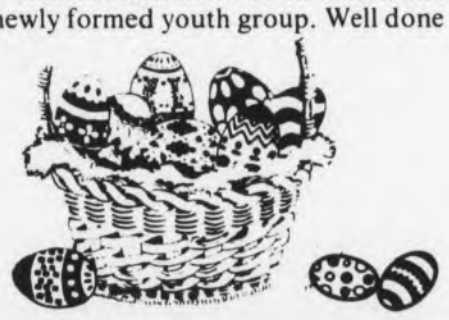
Current Programs

If you are interested in any of the following current programs or program registrations please call the recreation department office at 383-6791; Open Gyms (Tuesday and Thursday evenings, 6:30-8:30 p.m. at CHS), Furniture Refinishing (classes not set but will be during the next three weeks), Youth Job Opportunity Program, Creative Dramatics, various aerobic exercise classes, Summer Soccer Camp (week of August 17, but must register now), Kickball, (grades K-3), Game Times (grades K-5), Dog Obedience Training, and applications for employment.

Announcements for golf lesson registrations will be made in early May.

Beechwood Church Services

The Beechwood Congregational Church invites everyone to worship on Sunday mornings at 10:45 a.m.



The pastor is Stephen S. J. Hall. Child care is provided.

Easter sunrise service will be held at Lighthouse Point in Scituate at 6 a.m. Breakfast follows at Scituate Methodist Church. There will be no Sunday school this week. All children are asked to bring their families with them to church.

There will be no youth group Easter Sunday. Come to the Maundy Thursday meager soup supper Thursday at the church at 6:30 p.m. followed by the communion that Jesus shared nearly 2000 years ago.

The next Beechwood Buffet will be chicken a la king served April 24 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The cost is $3.99.

The Palm Sunday brunch served by the jr. high class was another successful event. About fifty parishioners enjoyed the meal and the class was able to donate the proceeds to the newly formed youth group. Well done kids!

ONE OF THE NATION'S FINEST GOURMET SHOPS IS IN HANOVER

If you enjoy cooking and good food, you will love Barnstable Grocery. The aroma of fresh roasted coffee beans greets each and every customer of our store. The shelves are filled with specialty foods from around the world. The cheese case is packed with aged cheddars, goat cheeses, and blues. Fresh pate, fresh caviar, and smoked salmon are available every day.

I love to cook! I teach cooking classes on a regular basis. I only sell cookware that I believe in, the name brands that I know are well built, and that my customers will enjoy using for years.

We are very proud of our new store on the South Shore. Come in, sniff, taste and browse.

CHS career lectures

The month of April for the Career Education program was dedicated to social studies. Guest speakers, who were recruited through the efforts of the CHS Guidance Department and the PSO, included: Joseph Condrick, probation officer; Beverly Adamonis, Eastern Edison Co.; Richard Soden, attorney; Don Andrews, Executive Town Secretary; Selma Ingles, social worker; and Leah O'Leary, program director P.S.S.

Many thanks to these professionals for donating their time to this valuable endeavor.

Law day

Four Cohasset High School seniors will take part in Law Day ceremonies at Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham Friday, May 1.

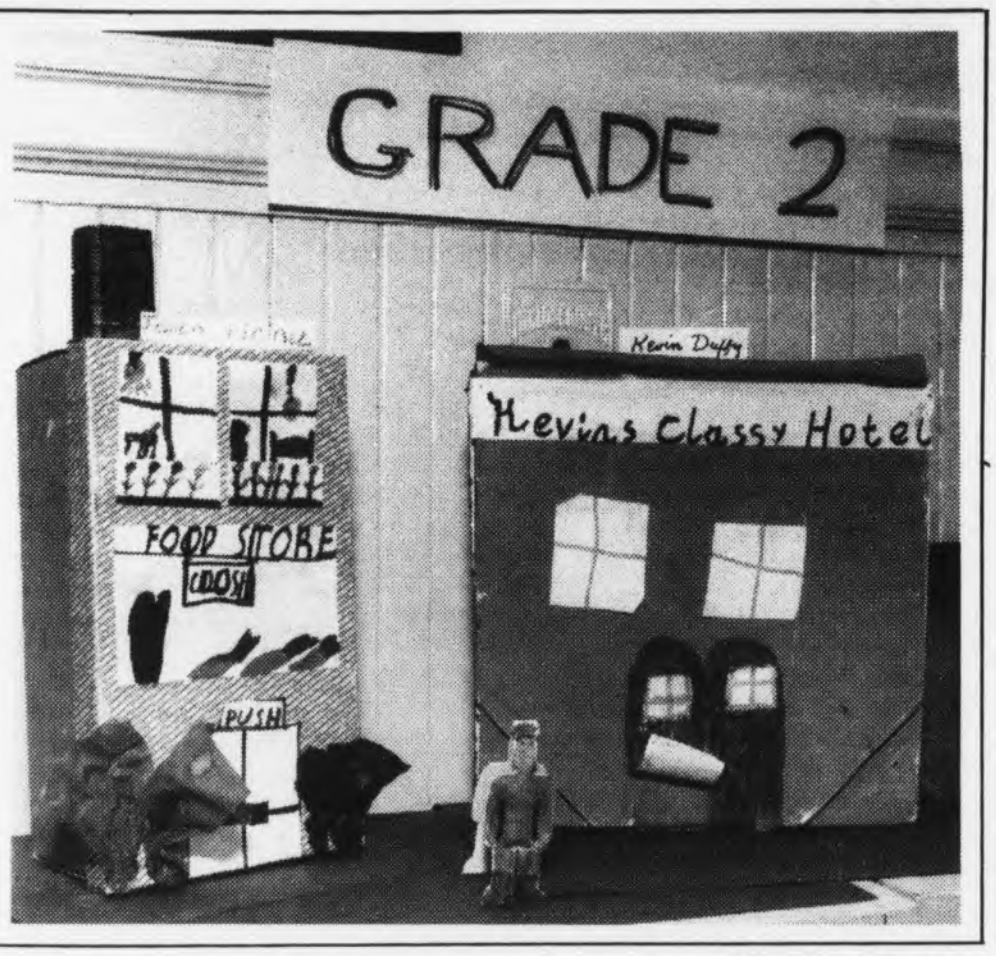
The seniors, all members of Mr. Edward F. Sheehan's Law Course, are Nicole Canst, Patrick O'Connor, William Lean and Wayne Warren-Young.

The Law day is jointly sponsored by the Bar Association of Norfolk County and the Norfolk Superior Court. The program is designed primarily for high school students in their senior year from schools throughout Norfolk County. It has been organized to introduce these students to the state court system and our system of justice.

During the day the Cohasset seniors will observe a demonstration of a criminal trial. The student guests will serve as a jury on a case prosecuted by the Norfolk District attorney's staff.

At 12:45 p.m. a buffet lunch will be served the students and host attorneys from their towns.

Cohasset students have participated in this program for the past several years. They have enjoyed the Mock Trial and the rare opportunity to meet informally with local attorneys.



This year the key address at the Law day proceedings will be given by Mr. Dick Flavin, well-known television commentator and satirist.

Anne Frank exhibit

Here's a great idea for a valuable educational experience for you and your children for the school vacation.

The Boston Public Library in Copley Square, is presenting a free show called, "Anne Frank in the World 1929-1945." The show opened April 10 and runs through May 4.

Organized by the Anne Frank Foundation in Amsterdam and presented by the Facing History and Ourselves National Foundation, the exhibit includes 800 photographs that examine the Frank family and the Holocaust. Exhibit hours: Monday to Thursday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Telephone 536-5400.

Using boxes of all shapes and sizes—from gift boxes to tissue boxes—Jean O'Malley's art class created a unique 'Box City' at the Osgood School.

Save those symbols

Deer Hill School PSO asks that everyone save the UPC or bar codes from any Prince food packages. The Prince (Spaghetti) Company is having a contest to celebrate its 75th birthday and is giving prizes for bar codes.

Deer Hill is hoping to get a GE Camcorder color video camera for 25,000 proofs of purchase, to be used for and by the students.

Please collect UPC bar codes as proofs of purchase from the following products and send them to school with your child or put them in the PSO mailbox at Deer Hill:

Prince pasta products, dinner products, cheese products, sauce products, Dutch Maid noodles or Goodman's Egg noodles.

The deadline is February 29, 1988, so there's lots of time—but then again 25,000 boxes of spaghetti is a lot of noodles.

Hallway artists

Students at the Deer Hill School recently witnessed the talents of two local Cohasset artists: Woodcarver, David Hassan, who demonstrated the carving of a wooden American eagle; and, Dudley Bryant, CHS student cartoonist.

These demonstrations were arranged by the PSO Curriculum Enrichment Committee. Many thanks to these creative young artists.

Phone-a-thon-Thanks

Many thanks to the hundreds of Cohasset families who pledged donations in the PSO's fourth annual Phone-a-thon fundraiser last Monday night.

Special thanks to the following realtors who let the PSO use the phones in their offices to make their calls: Gallery 360, Hunneman, Coastal Country Properties, Hallmark 100, Century 21, Jack Conway, Dwyer and Mullin, and Eugene Price.

Special Dates

April 17, Good Friday; April 19, Easter; April 20 to April 24, School vacation; April 28, 29, 30, Artist of the Month at Osgood.

Deer Hill exhibit

All parents are invited to view an exhibit of children's artwork. As a finale to the the Artist of the Month series, the Deer Hill school will exhibit some of their projects from April 13 through the end of the month in the hallways.

This year the artists covered were: Edgar Degas, Joan Miro, Georgia O'Keefe and Advertising Art, one of the practical arts. The mothers who participated were: Yvonne Prisble, chairperson, Mary Varisco, Lee Jenkins, Karen Murphy, Joan Pyfrom, Kyle Lubitz, Joanne Lennon, Sue Reardon, Kathleen O'Leary, Corrine Leung, Sue DeMichaels, Joane Bruns, and Amy Golden.

Blood drive a success

A vote of appreciation is due the 44 students and 4 adults who participated in the American Red Blood-mobile held at the Cohasset High School gym on Monday, March 30. A special thanks to Mrs. Corinne Cahill, R.N. who supervised the days operation and to Student Coordinator Kathy-Ann Haase and her staff of aids.

CHS reps at Math Day

Cohasset High School was one of 35 high schools represented at the Sonia Kovalevsky High School Mathematics Day held April 6 at Simmons College in Boston.

Teachers Clare Brady and Maureen Lalumiere, and students Melissa Shea, Sally Hurtig, Susan Riley, and Debbie Hartley were among the participants in the half-day program.

The program was held to introduce young women to a variety of careers in mathematics and related sciences. Students participated in a problem-solving contest, and attended such workshops as: "Bet on Random Numbers and Win," "Chances: Putting Probability to Work," "Computer Network Protocols," and others.

Teachers discussed the applications of mathematics, shared resources, and attended such workshops as: "Electronics, Head Start, and High School Algebra," "Women Mathematicians," "Problem Posing and Problem Solving: Doing It and Teaching It," and more.

Osgood School needs

We are looking for a donation of an old electric typewriter for the Special Needs Classroom; and use of, to be returned, a Texas Instrument printer or any Dot Matrix printer that can be used with the TI-99/4A computer. Mrs. Schadhauser's third grade class needs to borrow or visit an office than can print out their special computer graphic project. Please call the school office if you can help.

Art workshop

Wednesday April 29 at CHS there will be a workshop for art curriculum open to the public. Jean O'Malley and Colleen Lucas along with Dr. Ed Leary, head of the Visual Arts Dept. at B.U., invite all interested art supporters to attend. Please call 383-6100, Colleen Lucas, for more info.

Young artist spring classes

A new session of young artist classes begins at the South Shore Art Center during the last week of April and beginning of May.

Classes will meet in Cohasset at 103 Ripley Road, in Hingham at the Community Center, in Scitate at the Congregational Church and in Hull at the Temple. Advanced registration is required for all the young artist courses.

Painting and Drawing I for ages six to eight will meet in Scituate on Tuesdays beginning April 28 from 4-5:30 p.m. and in Cohasset on Thursdays beginning April 30 from 4-5:30 p.m. Serena Brundige will teach in Scituate and Lynn Rizzotte will teach in Cohasset.

One session of Moms and Tots, a series of creative projects moms can reproduce at home, will be taught by Nancy Connolly in Hingham on Fridays, May 1 from 10-11 a.m. Connolly will also teach a session of Sculpture for ages nine to fourteen in Cohasset on Fridays from 4-5:30 p.m.

Lisbeth Koopman Wyman will teach Painting and Drawing II for ages nine to twelve in Cohasset on Tuesdays starting April 28 from 4-5:30 p.m. and in Hingham on Mondays starting May 4 from 4-5:30 p.m. This is an intermediate level course which includes mirror drawing, basics of landscape and use of acrylic paint.

Mixed Media taught by Connolly will meet in Cohasset on Mondays starting May 4 from 4-5:30 p.m. and in Hull on Thursdays, starting April 30 from 4-5:30 p.m. Clay, cardboard, wood, recycled materials will be used to create 3-D art work. This course is for ages six to ten. Connolly will also teach Child's Art Workshop on Tuesdays starting April 28 from 4-5:30 in Hingham. The class is for children ages eight to eleven.

Child's Clay for ages six to twelve will be taught by Syma in Cohasset on Wednesday starting April 29 from 4-5:30 p.m.

For registration or information please call the Center, 383-9548. The South Shore Art Center is supported in part by a grant from the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Look back at Historical Society experiences in a talk titled "Memories of Coot Shooting in Cohasset." By mid-1935 the Society had established a room at the Town Hall for exhibit of its collections, open to members each day and to the general public each Friday afternoon.

In June of that year the Society sponsored an exhibit of maritime objects at the Unitarian Parish House as part of the annual summer carnival at the Common, noted as having been "one of the most interesting features of that event."

1936 saw a major change in the activities of the Historical Society as at the Annual Meeting, June 11, it formally accepted the gift of the old Capt. Wilson House at the Center from William Hamilton McGaw. The Wilson House, for many previous years a tailor's shop run by the Monteiro family, was presented in memory of McGaw's late wife Priscilla Lothrop (Collier) McGaw. Following careful renovations and repairs, the 1810 Cohasset Sea Captain's home was formally opened as the Society's headquarters and museum on September 25, 1937. In that year, Dr. Oliver H. Howe, the society's president and guiding hand since its inception nine years earlier, retired from office, to be superceded by his son, Dr. Henry F. Howe. At the end of the 1937 season, the society's secretary, Miss Mable E. Bowman, recorded that the organization had, in addition to its newly activiated headquarters, $167.29 in the bank and was free from debt. The Historical Society has grown from that time to today's much more visible community-based operation. It continues to play a major role in the town whose history it commemorates.

Spring sports in full swing at Cohasset High

By Allison Reilly
Mariner correspondent

The baseball team got off to a very strong start this year by beating East Bridgewater last week 9-0. Pitcher Sean Corkery had an outstanding game, pitching his second shut-out of the season. Todd Henry also played well, hitting one home run and batting three runs in, as well as Pete Sandblom, who had two hits and two runs in.

Friday, the boys defeated a very strong Sandwich team 3-2 which was a major upset for Sandwich who had been predicted to be one of the top teams in the league. Tom Larson pitched a four hitter game while David Schultz had two hits and knocked one run in. Also aiding the Skippers in their victory were Jim Maguire and Craig Mulcahy who both hit one run in each. Then, on Saturday, the Skippers lost a tough game to Medfield. In the fifth inning, the boys were down 8-1, but came back with seven runs to tie the game 8-8. Todd Henry was a great asset to the team's comeback, hitting a three run homer, as well as Glen Bernstien and Pete Sandblom who both hit RBI singles.

Coach Bill Fallon was pleasently surprised by the team's playing this year and is optomistic that they will continue to play well in the future.

BOYS TENNIS

Friday, the boys defeated Sandwich 4-1. Playing a very strong match, Rich Redick was cited by Coach Amerall as being one of the team's outstanding players. Also, Fred Willshire won his match and played very well. The first doubles team of Steve Myers and Jason Marsac defeated their opponents as well as second doubles team Derek Lacs and Dan Farwell. Playing third singles, Greg Wallingford lost an extremely difficult match but played very well. Other assets to the team's success were strong performances by Frank Willshire and Joel Reidy.

So far, the team's record is 3-1 and coach Amerall is very pleased with the boy's performance.

The Skippers have won all their matches, except for a tough loss to Duxbury earlier last week. The team is expected to have a very good season and hopefully advance to winning the league title.

GIRLS TENNIS

Last Thursday, the girls tennis team played a great match against East Bridgewater, defeating them, 5-0. The entire team played very well, especially Jen Chapman who faced a number one seeded boy, and beat him easily. On Friday the girls played a tough match against Scituate, the top team in the league, and although the girls were not victorious, Coach Sue Dalrymple was very pleased with the overall performance of the team.

Also, the girls lost a tough game to Duxbury, and although the score didn't show it, Dalrymple felt the girls had a very good match and she hopes to beat Duxbury in the future.

Next week, the girls face Hanover who they hope to beat easily. Also, the girls have a tough upcomming match against Abington, but Dalrymple expects a good match.

By Sara Bishop
Mariner correspondent

The girls softball team started off their season with some bad weather. The skippers were kept inside by the rain for a week which delayed them from being able to get some good batting and fielding practice in before Little League Field, weather permitting.

Come and cheer the team on, please. Good luck to the softball team this week!

their games Thursday and Friday.

The girls faced East Bridgewater Thursday and were defeated, 15-6. The girls played a great game and by the bottom of the sixth inning, they were only down by two, (6-4).

Katie Pyle had two hits which helped start the Skippers out. Kristin Ellinger, pitching her first game had a great game. She pitched a fine game and had one hit, two walks, and four stolen bases. Also hitting well for the Skippers was Lisa Shumaker adding a hit and three stolen bases to the team's good effort.

The girls also played Sandwich on Friday and had an excellent game even though they lost, 7-3. Debbie Hartley pitched her first game Friday and was unbelievable, striking out three batters and only walking one. At bat, Debbie was two for four which was a great help to the team. Kristin Ellinger had two hits and two RBI's for the team. Other players who hit well with one hit were Margie Murphy and Kara Mannion. The softball team will face Abington on Wednesday at the

Boys Track

The boys track team started off their season with a great job running against Hull on Friday. The boys, having only seven of the 12 varsity runners and some junior high runners, lost to Hull 91.5-43.5.

Those who ran Friday showed Hull that even though all their teammates weren't there, they could give them a race with their present runners. Ned Chase helped the Skippers unbelievably by scoring a total of 13 points. He won the 110 high hurdles and the high jump and he placed 2nd in the discus. Also having a great day was John Linsley winning the 880, he placed 2nd in the high jump, and 3rd in the javelin. John contributed 12.5 points to the Skippers team. Adding 8 points to the team's total of 43.5 was Jim Reidy. Jim ran away with the mile run, winning first place and he placed 2nd in the long jump. Placing first for the team in the shotput was Rich Hynes who also scored a total of nine points for the Skippers.

Other place winners were: Sean Fitzsimmons, 3rd in the long jump, 2nd in the javelin, and 3rd in the 100 yard dash, Mike Lelecus, finishing 3rd in the 440, and Travis Coley who placed 2nd in the mile run. The Skippers track team did a fine job on Friday and will run against Abington on Wednesday.

Good Luck to the track team!

Girls Track

The girls' track team got off to a good start this year by defeating Hull, 106-30 in their first meet of the season, Friday afternoon.

"It was the first sunny day in a week which allowed the Skippers to race on the track for the first time all week. Jenn Coley racked in the points for the team winning four events: the 100 meter hurdles, 330 yard hurdles, the long jump and the triple jump. Other runners helping the team were Catlin Staunton, winning 440 and 220, and Nancy Riley, winning the shotput, discus, and placing 2nd in the 330 hurdles.

Skippers' Liz O'Leary won the 100 and 880 yard dash and placed 2nd in the long jump.

Greenbush line 'ain't over 'till it's over' — Golden

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

The Greenbush rail line has not been abandoned, it has only been side-tracked.

According to proponent Sen. William Golden, and members of the Old Colony Citizens Advisory Committee, reports of the demise of the Greenbush restoration project have been greatly exaggerated. While the state legislature is now looking at plans to restore a greatly-reduced two-line system from Braintree to Middleboro and from Braintree to South Hanson, the environmental review of the Greenbush line to Scituate will continue as planned.

"We are very much still in the running," Sen. Golden said this week. "I think last week's announcement (of the reduced rail plan) was misinterpreted. I believe that presentation made to the Citizens Advisory Committee was intended to indicate the three-line restoration project will not all proceed at the same stage. The Greenbush line is still under an Environmental Impact review and our investigation will proceed. We do not feel Greenbush will be excluded from the total picture."

Sen. Golden explained that more than a month ago, Ralph Stanley from the Urban Mass Transit Administration spoke to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce regarding the entire Old Colony rail project. It was his impression, as head of the administration which provides the bulk of the financing for such projects, that the state had to get moving on a plan and that the state should show its support by financially backing the project with 30 to 50 percent funding. In order to move the plan more quickly, Sen. Golden said, the state decided to prioritize segments of the plan that could be accomplished more quickly and less expensively. "But I think this prioritization has been misunderstood as an abandonment of the Greenbush line. It is still a critical aspect of the entire project and is still under serious investigation," he added.

Terry Fancher, head of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, agreed with the perceptions held by Sen. Golden. He has been assured by MBTA consultants that the Greenbush process will continue. The Citizens Advisory Committee, which is studying the environmental impact of a proposed restoration, will proceed with their recommendations. Those comments will be submitted to the state as planned, he said, by the end of this year.

Fancher recalled the meeting with UMTA last month at which Stanley warned the Chamber members that

Running a casual kind of marathon

By Rob Tis
Mariner Correspondent

By Tuesday, Kevin McCarthy was back at work. He was "a little stiff," which would be expected, having run 26 miles the day before.

He was "somewhat pleased" with his time of 2:57:50, just under the three-hour limitation he had set for himself.

McCarthy, 39, of Linden Drive, helped round out a field of (approximately) 6000 runners in Monday's ninety-first running of the BAA Marathon. McCarthy, Cohasset's only entrant in the Patriots Day classic, has run in his share of marathons. "Oh, about thirty in all, I'd say," stated McCarthy as if it were an every day event.

McCarthy and his wife Patty have two children, John, a kindergarten student at the Osgood School, and Molly, who will be attending kindergarten in the fall. McCarthy has a very casual attitude toward his running. It is simply just something that he likes to do. This is why he can often be seen combining his training with commuting to his job in Dorchester where he is a vice president at Federal Home Loan Bank. "I like to run into the MBTA station. Sometimes it's a lot faster than taking the car out on the expressway," joked McCarthy.

Running is first and foremost a hobby for McCarthy, one which he is quite adept at. He has participated in nine of the last ten Boston Marathons. "I really just run to stay in shape," said McCarthy. "I like to stay in shape and these races sort of give me something to shoot for. This is the one, however (Boston), that I really point towards."

"I'm slowing down, I don't do any formal training," said McCarthy, who tries to log about 40 miles of training per week. "I like to take one big run of about twelve or thirteen miles each week. Aside from that I usually take it pretty easy."

McCarthy caught on to running in the Navy, before the fad grabbed the country. "I remember running that

Selectmen to talk contract again with SEMASS

Selectmen will contact officials at SEMASS, the Rochester-based resource recovery facility, and indicate a willingness to begin contract negotiations for the town.

Based on a recommendation from the Disposal Area Study Committee, selectmen decided Monday night to pursue a contract for the disposal of the town's trash.

In a presentation to selectmen, committee chairman Priscilla Tebbetts said committee members have researched various alternatives for the disposal of the town's solid waste. Town meeting last year appropriated $5,000 for the design of a transfer station at the Cedar Street landfill, something that will be necessary wherever the town decides to haul its refuse once the landfill is filled.

The committee recommended selectmen begin to negotiate a contract with SEMASS, Tebbetts said, with a limited amount of years and an economical tipping fee. Currently, she said, SEMASS would like the town to agree to a 20-year contract, which the committee feels is too long a commitment. The tipping fee is about $45 to $55, which Tebbetts said is market value and not an especially attractive deal for the town.

"We think the parameters of this contract are rather strict," she told selectmen, "but we are recommending negotiating with them. A 20-year commitment is very long. We're saying the terms suggested in this contract are not favorable to us."

Tebbetts suggested a five-year contract with a negotiable tipping fee may be more advantageous for the town. Committee member Don DeMichele noted that additional resource-recovery facilities are being proposed throughout the area, and as more are built the fees may become more competitive.

Town meeting voted last year to allow selectmen to begin negotiations with SEMASS. But soon after that vote, Cohasset learned there was not enough space within the facility to accommodate communities which had made a late commitment to join.

Tebbetts explained that SEMASS would like town meeting's firm commitment before the cutoff date of July 19. Although Executive Secretary Don Andrews said town counsel informed him the first vote is still valid, Selectman Cliff Mitman noted last year's vote simply authorized negotiations. "Now we're talking different fees and a long term contract. I think we should go back to the town with this," he stated.

And while the SEMASS negotiations are proceeding, Mitman said the committee should still investigate other disposal alternatives, including the proposed Weymouth facility.

In the meantime, Tebbetts said the committee will request about $10,000 at the special town meeting for engineering plans for a transfer station at the landfill. Request for proposals for the station have been sent out

Inching close to a rink

Legislation filed last month by Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset to construct an indoor pool/skating rink facility in Hull has received favorable reaction from a legislative committee.

The Housing and Urban Development Committee studied the bill filed by Rep. Murray and submitted its favorable recommendation to the House Ways and Means Committee. That committee will review the bill and if it decides to recommend it, appropriations for the facility will be included in the 1988 state budget. Cost estimates for the MDC facility range from $2 to $3 million, Rep. Murray said.

"I'm very excited about this recommendation," she said Wednesday morning after receiving the news at the

Stalled sale

Selectmen will attempt to locate an engineer to survey the Independence building on Elm Street so a perspective buyer may purchase the building after a 15-month wait.

Atty. Noel Collins signed a purchase and sales agreement with the town 15 months ago, to buy the town-owned Independence building. It was declared surplus by the town after the Historical Society gown museum was discontinued there.

Collins complained to selectmen last night that 15 months was too long to wait for the purchase of the building which he intends to convert to an office and residence. Selectmen explained that they have been unable to commit an engineer to survey the building and adjoining property.

According to Collins, the assessors' map incorrectly indicates the Independence building includes property which extends into the parking lot at St. Stephen's Church, onto the town common and the duck pond. "I don't want a duck pond and I don't want the common. I want the building I purchased," he told selectmen Monday night.

Executive Secretary Don Andrew said he has located an engineer who has agreed to complete the deed survey. If this attempt fails, selectmen said Collins can contact his own engineer. The attorney also requested that interest be paid on the $10,000 deposit he gave the town 15 months ago. Selectmen explained there was no such provision made in the sales agreement, and Andrew noted the payment would have to be appropriated at town meeting.

Cast members Eddie Fee as Mark, Virginia Dowling as Beverly and Robert Lanctot as Brian, rehearse at the Town Hall stage for the May 1, 2 and 3 performance of "The Shadow Box."

Coalition appointments

Selectmen made two appointments Monday night to subcommittees of the South Shore Coalition.

They had received two applications for one vacancy on the transportation subcommittee. William Parmenter of Reservoir Road talked to selectmen about his longtime concern regarding transportation in this region. Retired four years, Parmenter is a member of the Cohasset Conservation Commission. Selectmen voted to appoint Parmenter to the subcommittee.

They also received two applications for a wastewater subcommittee vacancy. Ted Guild, a member of the town's sewer commission, and Lot Bates of Red Gate Lane, applied for the position. Guild told selectmen about his experience in wastewater management as a vice president of Ionics Inc. Bates explained that for the past 17 years he has been in the business of repairing the septic systems throughout town. He said despite his defeat in the town election, he remained concerned about the sewer issues affecting Cohasset.

Selectman James Gallagher nominated Bates, who had received more than 900 votes two weeks ago for the position of sewer commission. The nomination was defeated. Selectmen then voted 3-2 to appoint Guild to the Coalition subcommittee.

Flag donations

Glenn A. Pratt and Wayne Sawchuk of Cohasset and Gerard J. Stanton, Jr. of Des Moines, Iowa have donated $300 to be used toward the purchase of new flag poles for the Veterans Memorial.

The benefactors told selectmen, "We hope this will help to insure new poles for the Memorial Day celebration."

New Eagle Scouts

Three members of Boy Scout Troop 28 of Cohasset will soon be awarded the rank of Eagle Scout.

Mark LaVange, Michael P. Lelecas and Nicholas P. Lelecas will be honored during ceremonies at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Hall Friday, May 15 at 7:30 p.m.

race they have down in Falmouth when it was just getting started. They had a tough time getting a field together. Now it's getting so complicated down there it's tough to even enter."

McCarthy has quite a list of marathons to his credit. He has raced in the New York Marathon on a few different occasions as well as races in Newport, New Orleans, Florida, New Jersey and Connecticut. "I ran in one Marathon up on Dixville Notch, New Hampshire a few years back," recalls McCarthy, "and we only had about forty entrants."

You might say that roadracing actually brought McCarthy to Cohasset. "I was in the market for a house," explains McCarthy, a native of Dorchester. "I was in town running the Road Race by the Sea. I had never seen such a beautiful course, so after the race I got Patty and we looked at houses in town. Now here we are."

"I'm slowing down," McCarthy repeated. "It's not the easiest course. Heartbreak Hill comes at the worst possible time in the race. You really have to keep it in mind and save a little something extra for it. Once you get near Boston though, it's fun. The crowd can really carry you in."

"The race is run very well," says McCarthy who has qualified for the race with times around two hours and forty minutes. "The BAA has done a super job. There are a lot of talented runners and the support is terrific.

"This is one of the best run marathons, they work hard for the runner.

"I'll finish. That is one thing for sure. Too many people know I'm running now," kidded McCarthy, days prior to the race. "If we continue to get this moist weather we've been having it will be a lot easier for me. It can be tough going up Heartbreak Hill on a humid day."

McCarthy's attitude about the race reflects the true spirit of amateur sports. While some of the top runners are out there battling for the big money prizes that have become an accepted part of the BAA Marathon, McCarthy ran for the challenge of the event—having a good time, in the original spirit of the Boston race.

Service League to hold special luncheon

The Social Service League of Cohasset has provided a wide variety of health, education and welfare programs for area residents since 1912.

In keeping with this tradition, the league will kick-off a celebration of its 75th anniversary with a seminar relating diet and exercise to health, Wednesday, April 29 at 10:30 a.m. in the Walton Rodgers Hall, St. Stephen's Church. Guests include those who have been active in keeping the league a vital force in the community.

Greer Underwood of Hingham, award-winning cookbook author, will demonstrate reduced calorie gourmet cooking. "Gourmet Light," her first cookbook, was honored recently as the Best Cookbook of 1985, Special Diet Category in the Duncan Hines/International Association of Cooking Professionals cookbook competition. Her second book, "The Enlightened Gourmet," liberally sprinkled with nutrition information, was published last November. A member of the Women's Culinary Guild in Boston, she teaches cooking and markets a small line of specialty sauces.

At 10:30 a.m. two experts will discuss the benefits of walking and other exercise programs.

As persons of all ages become more health conscious, walking is seen as an exercise for nearly everyone. There are walking shoes, clothes, clubs, books, videos and even a slick new magazine called "Walking," edited by Bradford W. Ketchum Jr. of Cohasset. Ketchum will speak on the health benefits

CHL questions 'threat' and 'nuisance' charges

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The issues of landfill spotter, liability insurance and further pollution control have forced the board of health to continue hearings with representatives of Cohasset Heights landfill, May 4.

During the second session of health board hearings April 15, engineers for Cohasset Heights Ltd. tried to clear the air of any indications the commercial landfill on Crocker Lane is a threat to Cohasset's drinking water supply at Lily Pond or a major source of an odor nuisance to area residents.

The board is considering three options in determining whether the landfill represents a nuisance or danger to the townspeople: a shut down of landfill operations; imposition of a moratorium on the dump's operations until the threat to Lily Pond has been better defined; or amendment of the site assignment with stricter controls on landfill operations.

In previous proceedings, the board raised the landfill's tipping fee from 50 cents per ton to $2.50 per ton. The landfill takes in about 299 tons of trash per day. The board also required CHL to collect and test discolored water in the adjacent Great Swamp owned by the Trustees of Reservations.

At the opening of the proceedings, Water Commissioner Ron Goodwin said he was "confused as to why the insurance issue was put last" on the board's agenda.

"That provision of the site assignment has not been met," he said. "And if it hasn't, the dump should be closed."

"We're treating the insurance issue separately," explained Michael Leon, special counsel to the health board. "Although the board accepted an insurance package last fall, it is open to reconsider the policy's acceptability."

Leon reiterated his contention that the policy does not adequately cover the town.

"We know it's impossible for anyone in this business to get liability insurance," Board member William Baird commented, "but it may be possible for them to come up with some other type of surety to protect the town."

Chairman John Burns put the matter to rest for the evening, saying he wanted to deal with "safety issues" first.

Concerned residents kept the threats of closure on the front burner.

"Cohasset Heights is committing chemical trespass," charged Michael Sullivan of Fair Oaks Lane; "there is contaminated groundwater flowing toward Lily Pond. It is a threat to the citizens of Cohasset and we should not have to go any further...

"If there is suspicion of threat," he said, "that is justification enough to shut it down. What are we waiting for?"

Brian Lipsett of Elm Street noted, records of trash sources include only truck route numbers, despite the fourth condition of the site assignment, which calls for "specific information regarding the sources of wastes being disposed at the landfill."

"We have a right to know what businesses are contributing trash," he said.

Calling for the revocation of Cohasset Heights' site assignment, Lipsett pointed to amendments in the safe drinking water act, saying the chemicals benzene and toluene are known carcinogens and should be undetectable in parts per trillion.

"The lowest levels of contaminants in the leachate should be considered hazardous waste," he added.

Leon cited condition 12 of the site assignment, which called for the implementation of a surface and ground water monitoring program. "...upon determination by the board that such data indicates surface and groundwater resources of the town have been contaminated, the site assignment is automatically revoked."

"Has enough evidence been submitted to indicate there is a threat to the water supply?" asked James Cody of Jerusalem Road.

"We'll decide that after the hearing," Burns said.

"Look at the facts," implored Anton Moehrke, attorney for CHL. "If you find there is a likelihood that CHL is contaminating the water supply, then take action. But if you find no substantial evidence to that effect, then take no action."

Regarding the board's previous order to remove and sample some reddish water, Dan Ostrye of GHR Engineering reported that the water was discolored because it contained 60 parts per million iron.

"If Camp Dresser & McKee's results agree," said Baird, who pushed for the action, "and it is not a health threat as previously considered, we will lift our previous order."

The landfill operators have been busy filling the landfill's liner with sand to help reduce leachate breakouts. The Barry brothers said they also plan to re-grade the road leading into the dump, so that it slopes toward the landfill's collection tanks.

Baird expressed concern regarding seepage along a rock wall at the site. If the seepage problem won't be cleared by work on the road, perhaps you should put a sump pump at the base of that wall."

"At any given time, there are four million gallons of of water under the landfill," said Bill Norman, a GHR engineer. "There are 21 million gallons upgradient of the landfill. The ground water upgradient also contains benzene and other volatile organics."

Norman suggested trying to keep groundwater out of the site by installing interceptor wells and pumping it off into the trustees' swamp. "Unfortunately," he added, "since it has volatile organics and salt in it, CHL wouldn't be allowed to do so."

Moehrke introduced Brian Murphy, formerly an investigator with the federal Environmental Protection Agency to discuss physical probability that CHL could have endangered Lily Pond.

"I have concluded, based on available data," he said, "that this landfill poses no threat to the town's water supply.

"I selected the highest level of each volatile organic substance discovered at the landfill and beyond," he explained; "the reading for ethyl benzene was 15 times lower than EPA recommendations for landfills; the toluene level was one-twelfth the recommended maximum level and xylenes were a factor of four below EPA recommended maximum levels. These readings were taken at the edge of a landfill, not from your drinking water."

Murphy Noted, the only volatile organic levels found

CHL tries to clear the air

higher than EPA recommendations were those for benzene.

There is a dispute between GHR engineering and CDM with regard to the presence of vinyl chloride.

CHL representatives also argued that other sites on Scituate Hill, such as the Dept. of Public Works garage and the Webb-Norfolk Conveyor property have contributed to the contamination of waters around the Cohasset Heights landfill.

"To realize how small parts per billion is," Murphy said, "you could fill your living room with uncooked rice and look for one black grain.

"Drinking two liters per day every day of your life out of Well #3," he said, "it would take 175 years, two-and-a-half generations to see an illness result. Benzene is not exotic; you have it in your home already.

"In fact," he said, "you breathe in twice as much benzene per day as you would get from drinking two liters out of Well #3."

Moehrke said the well readings Murphy used "are like taking an air sample in the exhaust pipe of a car.

"It only would be dangerous if you got your nose stuck in the pipe," he said. "Let's talk about the danger to the public."

Baird said he "feels it is incumbent on CHL to put in a trench or interceptor wells to keep chemicals from leaving the landfill."

Murphy agreed. "Putting in a trench would not be unreasonable," he said. "Volatiles would volatilize with exposure to the atmosphere very rapidly.

"I know some people are thinking they will be threatened by breathing it in the air," he added, "but the dispersion properties of air are so great, there would be absolutely no threat."

"I want to hear from Mr. Prebble, the board's representative from CDM," Moehrke said. "I think he should tell us how conditions have changed since CDM's report of November 1984, in which his agency stated it was satisfied that there was no pollution threat from the landfill to Lily Pond."

Leon retorted, "Mr. Prebble is our dark horse and we will bring him out at the appropriate time."

Finally, David Gordon, an engineer who specializes in air pollution control was retained by CHL to determine the source of odors in the area of Route 3A.

He concluded there are three sources for the area odor: CHL's leachate collection tanks; the site of an oil spill on the Williams property; and an open sewer line which discharged into swampland behind the KoKo Island Restaurant.

The resulting anaerobic decomposition in area swamps, he explained, generated a sulfide-type swamp gas, "which in our opinion is the major source of the odor."

"The leachate tanks do stink, no doubt about it," Gordon commented. "If you put your head inside one of those tanks, you'd probably have an OSHA violation."

But he discounted the possibility the leachate tanks could be responsible for odors as far away as Fair Oaks Lane. "It would be an impossible situation from a technical point of view," he said.

Gordon recommended the installation of a vacuum ventilation system on the leachate collection tanks to prevent odors from escaping.

The health board told the audience it is addressing the problems at the other two sites.

The remaining issues involving Cohasset Heights will be discussed when the hearing resumes, May 4.

Wompatuck committee drives toward study

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

The Wompatuck State Park advisory council has narrowed the field of engineering firms from 29 to five, from which it will choose to conduct a traffic impact study.

"They have all worked with the Dept. of Environmental Management," said Jack Lash of the DEM's division of planning and development Thursday, "and we feel good about the teams of people each company comes with."

The study will inform the DEM as to the possibility of another access road into the park. Also, such a study will answer long-standing questions regarding existing traffic patterns near the park, and whether or not Wompatuck is a major cause of traffic congestion on any local roadways.

"We have described the Wompatuck situation to them and have discussed the changes we are planning for the park," Lash added. "The firm that submits the best proposal will be chosen."

The advisory committee plans to contact the towns of Cohasset, Hingham, Norwell and Scituate for their input into the final selection of an engineering firm. The following companies remain in contention: Vanasse Hangen Brustlin Inc.; Louis Berger & Associates Inc.; PARE; HMM Associates; and TAMS Consultants Inc.

Chairman Robert Garvin of Hingham said he believes the study will not affect most towns; "it will primarily impact Hingham."

But Lash commented, "What we're mainly after, is to find out whether a second entrance is feasible - and if so, where it should go. Whatever they suggest is bound to impact somebody.

"I don't think we're going to spend $50,000 just to have them say nothing and have it stay the same," he said.

A "mandatory" part of the study, according to Lash, will be traffic counts on Free Street in Hingham. Much of the traffic into and out of the park flows through Free Street to and from Route 228. A neighborhood association has formed there to address the problem and it has put pressure on the park to deal with the issue.

The group fears traffic problems may be compounded when the park expands its offerings.

The biggest project planned for Wompatuck is the addition of a swimming area to the campground. From beginning to end, the project is expected to take three years. DEM engineer Paul Botello told the committee the phases of study, design, review and putting out to bid could take 18 months before construction is under way.

"What the (heck), it's taken us eight years to get this far," Garvin said, noting "If we push swimming here before the traffic study is done, we'll get a lot of flak."

An engineering firm will be selected by April 30 and a traffic study should be completed by December.

Hingham officials have informed the park that if services are to increase there, the town will request either money for services rendered, or a sharing of responsibilities with the other three surrounding towns.

"At the DEM, we feel that building a swimming area does not mean more traffic. We believe campers will come in and stay, instead of making day trips in and out of the park," Lash said.

If the park is opened for group use and day use as planned, according to Lash, Wompatuck will draw primarily from Hingham and Weymouth, towns which used to depend on the harbor for water recreation. The harbor is too dirty for such activities now.

Another project which will be completed more quickly, he noted, is Wompatuck access to Cohasset's Aaron River Reservoir.

The park will offer parking at Beechwood Street near the spur road to Heron Pond and will allow car-top type boats into the water. Boats without engines, such as canoes and row boats will be permitted, Lash said.

Wompatuck's plans there also have met with stern opposition. The Cohasset board of water commissioners

Park committee presses for waste removal voted 3-1 against allowing Wompatuck in.

According to Lash, the park has made concessions. A boat ramp will not be constructed at the reservoir nor will a picnic area be provided there.

Despite the lack of such amenities, area fish and game clubs will be delighted, Lash said, because the reservoir is "the ideal habitat for pickerel and perch."

Finally, the advisory committee and the DEM are pressing for the continued reduction and total removal of hazardous waste from the 604 acres the park acquired from the federal government.

According to Lash, there is still a problem with asbestos and PCBs at the old General Services Administration barracks.

"The state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering has agreed to inspect the site this month," he said. "It will be a walk-through inspection and they will just recommend to us what to do next..."

Garvin noted, the federal government has exhumed the fuel storage tanks which were on the property. It has tested transformers which are still at the site. But nothing yet has been done with the asbestos.

The advisory committee, under new chairman Larry Mitchell of Cohasset and new vice-chairman Robert Maddux of Norwell, will address the cleanup at its next meeting.

Working to develop the park's management plan, the advisory committee had been meeting every month through 1986. Since the plan was completed, some committee members have been calling for meetings to be held once every other month. With a committee vote Thursday for bimonthly meetings, they got their wish.

Recreation/Historical Society museum tour

The Cohasset Recreation Department and Cohasset Historical Society will present a special tour of the Society's two museums at Cohasset Center at 11 a.m. Thursday, May 21.

For this special pre-season tour the Society's Capt. John Wilson House, an 1810 Sea Captain's home, and the Maritime Museum, an 18th Century ship chandlery and counting house will be open for Cohasset and area residents for a tour lasting approximately one hour, guided by the Society's Senior Curator.

The Capt. Wilson Historical House, Cohasset's first historical museum, was built in 1810 by housewright David Nichols for the Sea Captain whose name it now bears. Owned by the descendants of Capt. John Wilson until 1912, then by William H. McGaw, the unique old dwelling has been owned by the Historical Society since 1936. Today it contains an extensive collection of artifacts and artworks typical of its era and given to the Society from the old homes of the town. The Capt. Wilson House is the only primitive home remaining in Cohasset, remaining essentially unmodernized and retaining many of the features of early Cohasset dwellings. Here, in context, can be seen representative home furnishings, furniture children's toys, kitchen equipment, and household equipment of an earlier age in a setting largely unchanged.

The adjacent Maritime Museum, built by shipowner Samuel Bates in the latter 1700's for his fishing and mercantile fleet, contains a large collection of relics, documents, pictures and prints relating to Cohasset's maritime history. Models of sailing vessels, relics of local shipwrecks, artifacts and pictures relating to the first and second Minot's Ledge Lighthouse, and a collection of equipment from the mackerel schooner fleets of the 19th century are on view, as are examples of scrimshaw, woodcarving, navigational instruments and maritime artwork. The museum's second floor houses a collection of general historical interest, ranging from stone tools of the local Indians, early housewright's equipment, and memorabilia of the Lincoln family (ancestors of President Abraham Lincoln) to early school desks, hunting decoys and the contents of a "fisherman's country store".

To pre-register for this special tour, call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791.

☐ Congratulations go to Ellen Morrissey this week...Everyone knows what a terrific designer that she is, she has a Designer Kitchen for the March of Dimes Benefit.

☐ The Thomas A. Quigleys are a proud couple, and with good reason! Their grandson, Travis, son of Dick and Linda Quigley, competed in the YWCA Championship USA Swim Meet at Bentley College on April 10th through 12th. Travis sure came out a winner, a High Point Winner for the Junior Boys. To do this he earned three first places and one second place. Congratulations to Travis Quigley!

☐ Peter Lawrence has ski news from Golden Colorado. He recently raced in the Junior Olympics at Winter Park, Colorado. A J3 with the USSA he took an eighth place overall in the Rocky Mountain and Central Divisions. There were 54 J3 Boys competing in the Giant Slalom, Slalom and Downhill. He has one more race before he'll take a ski break for a few months, then race camp will begin. In the meantime, he is running track five days a week and discovering track muscles are different from ski muscles!

☐ The Easter Bunny was happy to leave a new basket to Cheryl and Richard Sargent's brand new baby daughter...she was born at South Shore Hospital on April 7th.

☐ Congratulations to Patrick Broderick, who earned a spot on the Admiral's List at the State University of New York Maritime College.

☐ Hats off to Ginny Burbank, host and producer of the Cable TV show, "You are the Light of the World." Ginny and the show celebrated the 100th show at American Cablesystems with a special awards show, having won the Best Religious Program, Best Series, and the American Award for dedication. The show has been on the air in 16 towns over the past two years and is an inspirational Christian show which "gives people of the South Shore an opportunity to tell others how God has blessed them and their families and how, in their trouble, God is there." Ginny's telephone number appears at the end of the show if anyone has any difficulties in their lives, she is there to help. The non-denominational show has reached many people, and Ginny hopes to keep it going stronger than ever. Again, congratulations to a most deserving lady.

Sharing a good laugh (undoubtedly over a 'unique' piece of art) are (l to r) Emily Henderson, Jacqueline Kahn and Cara McKenney at the Art Center vacation drop-in class. (Alan Chapman)

☐ Lisa Peachere made the Dean's List at Ohio State and has been accepted into the Allied School of Medicine. Congratulations to Lisa!

☐ With the elections just behind us, Senior Citizens take note. If you have a 50-year record of voting in every election, you can be in the Massachusetts Voters Hall of Fame. Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly's office is accepting applications from now until Aug. 1st. Applications are available at the Cohasset Council on Aging, 3 North Main Street.

☐ Don't be confused when you go downtown and see that Curtis Compact isn't Curtis but Tedeschi Food Shop this week. That is the only thing they are changing, everything else remains the same.

☐ The Community Center is taking registrations for spring courses, with new ones being offered as was reported here recently Pre-registration is required for the courses, so either mail in your request, drop in at the Center or call on the phone, 383-0088. The office is open from 9-1 weekdays. (If everyone had an Easter dinner like we did, they are also offering a diet workshop for the next eight weeks, for a cost of $56. You can learn nutrition, exercise programs and healthy weight loss. It will be instructed by Helen Emmett, a Diet Workshop instructor.)

☐ Johanna Horn, Karla Kennedy and Courtney Schultz were among the lovely young models in the Neiman Marcus "Easter Parade" at Copley Place this past Saturday. All three study ballet at the Boston Ballet School and at the Children's Ballet Workshop in Hingham. For their fine performance, the girls received a furry little Easter Bunny and an invitation to return for the "Back to School" fashion show next fall.

☐ Thayer Academy Headmaster, Peter J. Benelli, has announced the Honor Roll for the second term for students from Cohasset, Kerri J. Miele, '91, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. King M. Bilton, Jr.; and Stephen R. Izzo, '93, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Izzo.

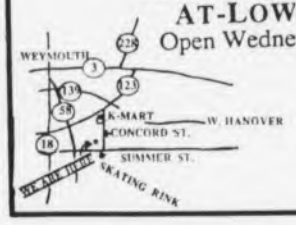
☐ CHS students took part in another program recently, Math Day. Held at Simmons College, Melissa Shea, Susan Riley, Debbie Hartley and Sally Hurtig participated in the program, along with teachers Clare Brady and Maureen Lalumiere.

☐ Finally, if you are looking for a grand way to end this vacation week, why not visit Merchants Row in Hanover on Saturday. At 12:30 p.m., they are presenting a Salute to Spring, with the Kings Point Band from the US Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point performing. The band, in full regalia, will parade through Assinippi from the parking lot of the South Weymouth Savings Bank at the junction of Rtes. 53 and 123, south on Rte. 53 to the Merchants Row parking lot. After the parade the band will perform in the parking area, followed by a reception to meet the public inside. Maybe the sun will even come out for what promises to be a super event for all!



☐ That's the news for this week. Fill us in on your vacation, there should be plenty of news (at least half of Cohasset seems to be missing!).

Editorial

Study continues

A lot of people in town are undecided about the restoration of the Greenbush rail line.

There are good and bad points to be debated and worked out, and that is why the MBTA has appointed a Citizens Advisory Committee. They are the residents of the Greenbush communities who have gathered for more than a year to study the plan in detail, to make comments, and ultimately to submit their recommendations. Their recommendations will be sent directly to the secretary of environmental affairs. James Hoyte will decide whether or not the rail line is an environmentally-sound proposition.

No one can deny there are many environmental issues of concern. The rail line which once flourished along these seacoast towns, has been paved over in sections, while residential and commercial areas have been developed alongside the idle railroad tracks.

Grade crossings which once traveled through lazy, summer- populated towns are now hazards in the midst of bustling, thriving suburbs. People are fearful of the traffic hazards created by activation of the rail line, and justly so.

But that is precisely why the citizens committee was formed. While some may argue the committee is but an extension of the MBTA, its members would surely object. With determined objectivity, the members of this committee have been studiously pursuing the plan, looking at all aspects, questioning costs and discussing locations. Their first responsibility is to the residents of this area, not to the state, and they have kept that mandate clear.

Last week the committee was surprised, to say the least, when they were presented a plan that had escalated in cost to almost $400 million. They were then shocked when told the plan would have to be prioritized and reduced in scale in order to obtain needed federal money. Disappointment is a mild adjective to describe most of the feelings expressed by the committee members.

Many of these members have not yet decided whether restoration is good or bad, necessary or not. And now they have had the rug - the proposed project - pulled from under them.

Senator William Golden, a leading proponent of the railroad project, vows their study will continue. Committee members, pro and con, agree their job remains incomplete. We hope they do continue their task- to ask serious questions and to pursue their answers.

In the meantime, we as voters must decide if we really want the rail line. As Sen. Golden has stated, restoration of the Greenbush service is but one large piece of the South Shore's transportation puzzle. We need additional bus service into Boston and increased capacity of the commuter boats. Together, these components will provide our area with some viable forms of travel into Boston.

Surely the South Shore is asking for no more than we deserve. We can only hope our legislators and the state administration are listening.

Thanks for support

Research details town salaries

Editor's Note: The following is a list of the salary increases for town employees for fiscal 1988. Patricia Walsh of 270 N. Main St. researched these figures which she said were incorrectly quoted in last week's Mariner regarding town meeting's discussion of salary increases for non-union town employees. Ed.

Fire Chief: January 1, 1987 through December 30, 1987 was voted 10.5% increase. According to his contract from January 1, 1988 to December 31, 1988 he shall receive an amount 8% but not more than 13% greater than the annual rate during the 1987 calendar year at the discretion of the Board of Selectmen.

Teachers: 1987-1988 - For the first half year they receive an increase 6.1 percent above the first half of the previous year by contract. For the second half year they receive an increase 7.12 percent above the second half of the previous year by contract. They have 12 steps in addition.

School Secretaries: Contract increase 6 percent. They have steps additionally.

School Custodians: AFL-CIO contract increase 5.5 percent July 1, 1987 through June 30, 1988; and AFL-CIO contract increase 5.6 percent July 1, 1988 through June 30, 1989 They have six steps.

Firemen: The present contract will expire June 30, 1987. They have six steps. It granted both FS-9 and FS-11 a 5.5 percent increase for FY '87.

Town Accountant: Received a raise after eight months(April 1, 1986 to December 31, 1986) of $1000 by contract. For FY '88 the contract provides an amount equal to the same percentage cost-of-living allowance granted to all non-union employees PLUS an additional 3 to 5 percent. For July 1, 1988 to March 31, 1989 (the expiration of the 3 year contract) at 3/4 of the rate paid during FY '88 plus an amount equal to the same cost-of-living allowance granted to all non-union town employees for the 1989 fiscal year PLUS an additional 3 to 5 percent. The extent to which the above 3 to 5 percent increases are above three percent are within the discretion of the Board of Selectmen.

Police Patrolmen: Under the contract the patrolmen have four steps. In addition: effective July 1, 1987 they received a four percent increase for all steps. Effective January 1, 1988 they will receive another four percent increase for all steps. (Average over six percent per year because compounded).

Thanks to town for roadrace

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Rotary Club of Cohasset and myself, I want to express our most sincere gratitude and appreciation to the residents of Cohasset for their support and cooperation in making the eleventh Annual Roadrace an event we can all take pride in. The warm welcome and understanding shown by all created an atmosphere that many runners commented positively about.

Special thanks to the Selectmen, Police and Fire Departments and especially the Park and Highway Departments. Such individuals as Peter Laugelle and Harold Litchfield are town employees who excel at their jobs. Without the assistance of the Sadler family, John Muncey, Don Harrold, Steve Hart and Roy Fitzsimmons and the countless number of volunteers the event would not have been the success it was. The coverage before and after the Race by the Mariner greatly heightened this traditional ritual of spring.

Averting demographic disaster

To the Editor:

World population now stands at more than 5 billion people. If we continue as we are now doing, then by the year 2048, it will have doubled.

Today's shortages of energy, food and housing are only a hint of what's to come unless we act soon. If present trends continue, the world deserts will double by the end of the century, and deforestation will have claimed timberland the size of 40 Californias. Acute shortages of fuel will affect 350 million people by the year 2000. At the present rate of annual cutting, all tropical forests could disappear in 170 years.

It is clear that a finite resource base is unable to support a rapidly growing population.

The week of April 20-254 is World Population Awareness Week, a time for Americans to think about possible solutions for averting demographic disaster. At this time, 38 U.S. governors have recognized World Population Awareness Week in their states. I would like to thank Gov. Dukakis for signing a proclamation to focus attention on this critical issue.

Storms battered lighthouse, but Minot shines

By Mila Dixon
Mariner Correspondent

On April 16, 1851, a wild three-day northeast storm that battered the Atlantic Coast from Portland, Me., to New York, swept the new Minot's Ledge Lighthouse into the sea and with it the two assistant keepers, Joseph Antoine and Joseph Wilson.

The keeper, John W. Bennett, was not at the light as he had gone to Boston the week before to see about getting a boat for the lighthouse. When he returned, the storm was so severe he could not get out to the light, so he went to his home in Cohasset.

He saw the lighthouse still standing at 3:30 p.m. on April 16, but he did not see the light's beacon that night. The next morning, he found the wreckage strewn along the beaches. The body of Antoine was found at Nantasket and later, Wilson's body was discovered in a cleft of Gull Rock, off The Glades.

In this storm, the Marshfield Packet which had just put into Scituate Harbor for safety, broke her moorings and was driven ashore onto Webb's Island, undamaged.

However, there were three wrecks at Scituate. The Russian brig, "Wilhelmina," loaded with salt from Cadiz, was a total loss on Fourth Cliff beach; the crew was saved. The brig, "Elizabeth," headed for Portland from Matanza with a cargo of sugar and molasses, was driven aground at the mouth of the North River; the vessel, cargo and crew except for one were lost. A schooner from Thomaston, Maine, loaded with lime, caught fire and was run aground at the mouth of the North River; only the crew was saved.

Minot's Light, built on Minot's Ledge, is believed to have been named for George Minot, owner of Boston's T-wharf in 1754, who lost one of his ships on the ledge and rocks. According to the late Edward Rowe Snow, nautical historian and author, the political boundary between Cohasset and Scituate places Minot's Ledge and Rock in Scituate and Plymouth County, not in Cohasset and Norfolk County, as sometimes claimed.

Before the first Minot's Light was built, starting in 1847 and put in operation on Jan. 1, 1850, a beacon had been installed near the entrance to Scituate Harbor in 1811. It guided fishing boats safely into the harbor, but other vessels mistook it for Boston Light and kept crashing into the coastline.

Minot's Light

The U.S. Lighthouse Department, at the urging of the Boston Marine Society, decided to build a light on Minot's Ledge. Workmen under hazardous conditions installed eight iron pilings, 10 inches in diameter and 35 feet tall, in a 25-foot circle. The keeper's quarters and rooms for the light were fastened to the frame of the stilts. The new light guided seamen for less than 16 months when the great storm of 1851 toppled it into the sea on April 16.

With no lighthouse on the ledge and only a lightship at the site, vessels resumed crashing into the shore or on the rocks, forcing the government to speed up plans for a new lighthouse.

Capt. Barton S. Alexander of the U.S. Engineers was named to supervise construction of what has been described as the most dangerous lighthouse in America. Actual work on the tower began July 1, 1855, but the iron scaffolding was demolished in another storm on Jan. 17, 1857, when the bark, "New Empire," struck it. In April 1857, work resumed, the Quincy granite tower was built and furnished. The new lighthouse was illuminated for the first time on Aug. 22, 1860.

In 1894, the government installed a new flashing light (1-4-3 "I love you").

In July 1940, the Coast Guard took over Minot's Light and responsibility for its operation was given to the commander of the First Cliff Station in Scituate.

Sometime this spring, according to Cong. Gerry Studds, renovations are scheduled to get underway.

The specifications, dated August 1986, state the contractor is "to remove, save and protect all members of the tower existing above the level of the watch room deck. This will include the metal and glass lantern house, metal railings on the lantern deck, solar power collectors, the stone masonry wall of the watch room, the brick masonry lining the watch room walls, interior metal ladders, watch room doors, windows and frames, and the metal lantern pedestal."

The contractor is then "to construct a new stone masonry watch room wall, using new cut granite stone to duplicate and match the wall removed."

Historical Society features Constitutional lecturer

By Patty Hanlon
Mariner correspondent

With the 200th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution fast approaching, the Cohasset Historical Society sponsored a lecture on the origins of this historic document, featuring Dr. William M. Fowler Jr.

Dr. Fowler is an early American history professor at Northeastern University, a published author and the managing editor of The New England Quarterly, so spare time, for lectures such as this, is a rarity.

This spring dinner meeting was held Tuesday evening at the Unitarian Meeting House with approximately 80 people attending.

"I love speaking to groups like these that really make an effort to learn more," said Fowler. "I think a teacher has a duty to help outside the classroom too." Fowler, wearing a tweed jacket, maroon bow-tie, and a salt and pepper mustache spoke confidently to his audience for about 45 minutes.

"I try and help folks understand the origin of the republic," and that's exactly what he did. Many interesting facts came out of this lecture, like: Why is so little known about the convention, itself? According to Fowler, the sessions were closed and secret. So letters and the private journal of James Madison are the only sources of inside information.

Also the original Constitution is rather vague because the document had to be weak enough to please the autonomous states but strong enough to stablize the nation, as a whole. The biggest issue of the balance of representation was established in the legislative, executive and judicial branches, however, "posterity" was to decide the specifics.

Two key points that pushed the 1787 Constitution through to ratification by all 12 states, was the assumption that George Washington would be our first president and that a bill of rights would be added to the document. James Madison, who later drafted the Bill of Rights, originally opposed its addition to the Constitution because he felt it would place restrictions on it and in turn weaken the original Constitutional document.

"The Constitution is not a democratic document," emphasized Fowler. "It is a counter-revolutionary document meant to tame the forces let loose during the Revolutionary War."

How does today's government compare with the one established in 1787?

"I think the Founding Fathers would be "horrified by the power the Presidency has taken on," said Fowler. "The president was to preside over not instigate legislation." Fowler went on to explain an increasing separation of powers was inevitable because of the growing number of representatives. No longer is sitting down and talking it through with the other branches, a viable solution.

Much will be said and done to commemorate the bicentennial of our nation's Constitution, but perhaps Ben Franklin said it best, when at the end of the convention he said, "We have given you a Republic, if you can keep it."

There were fashions for all at Newcomers' show

By Claire Sheppeck
Mariner Correspondent

Put on a pair of cotton knit straight legged pants or leggings. Coordinate those pants with a matching "fun top", long or short, decorated with any of the following: pieces of denim, glitter paint, jewels, acrylics, rhinestones, studs, pieces of mirror, M & M's, or bubble gum. Top off the outfit with large hand crafted earrings. Voila, ladies! You will have a fun fashion look that will be sported by many new residents of Scituate and Cohasset.

Chaired by Judy Wyks and Kay Langham, the Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club held its annual luncheon and fashion show Saturday, April 4, at the Barker Tavern in Scituate.

At midday, clubmembers and firends started filling the Barker Tavern's new wing to capacity. Although there was no sun available to promote the restaurant's greenhouse effect, a roaring fire greeted all warmly. It was a welcome substitute on a damp day.

Around the fireplace hung four wide brimmed straw hats, gaily decorated in the same pastel pinks, roses and lavenders of the beautiful dried floral arrangements sitting on all tables in straw baskets.

Four lucky ladies, with a program marked with an X took home those hats at the close of the event. A larger than life fashion poster added greatly to the decor and is a credit to Scituate High School students. On every placesetting there sat a beautiful long stemmed pink carnation in its own vial of water. These favors were given by an anonymous donor. The generous gesture added an air of mystery to the event.

Pleasure was doubled when members were treated to two fashion shows. Clubmembers sailed down the aisles like pros to the beat of the popular music provided by Christiane Michels. The theme of the shows was "Mode a La Mer" (Fashion by the Sea). The first show was presented by Bouche, on Route 53, near Friday's Norwell. Catering to children as well as adults, all the clothing and accessories are one of a kind, and handmade. Toni Kerble owner of the shop was the commentator. This show was dominated by "fun tops". The cotton knit tops of various lengths, sleeves, and necklines were punctuated with everything from puff paint, an interesting paint that becomes raised when applied, to laminated M & M's and material that looks like bubble gum.

Although the tops come in sizes S,M, L, and XL, many were One Size Fits All. All are beautiful works of art.

Hospital Friends donate

The officers of the Friends of South Shore Hospital, Inc., presented a check for $125,000 to David T. Hannan, president/C.E.O. of SSH and its parent company, South Shore Health & Educational Corporation during an appreciation luncheon held at the Lantana in Randolph to honor the Hospital's volunteers.

According to Barbara Hamer, president of the Friends, the officers voted at their March meeting to donate the money for the purchase of a new Independent Diagnostic Console for the CAT (computerized axial tomography) scanner. The CAT scan uses a computer to create images of 'slices' of the body, from head to toe. The new console will allow staff radiologists to reconstruct the scan images from floppy disks.

During the past year over 600 volunteers donated approximately 75,000 hours of service to the Hospital. According to Marie Schoonmaker, director of volunteers, the typical volunteer donates five hours a day, once or twice a week.

Persons interested in volunteering at South Shore Hospital should contact the Volunteer Office at 337-7011, extension 241.

Calling all plants!

South Shore Natural Science Center is organizing for its annual Plant Sale to be held Wednesday, May 20, at the Center on Jacobs Lane in Norwell. Proceeds from the sale will help support the Center's educational and conservation programs.

According to the Plant Sale Chairwomen, Lavalie Hoss and Betty Whitaker, the Center would welcome contributions of plants and seedlings to be sold at the sale. Please place plants in pots large enough to fit roots, firm the soil around the roots and water thoroughly. Label the plant and note the flower color if necessary. Plants may be brought to the Science Center during its normal working hours.

South Shore Natural Science Center is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and from 1 to 4 p.m Sundays and most holidays.

Diet Center program

Diet Centers of the South Shore are in the midst of a major exansion due to their successful program for weight loss.

The Diet Center program utilizes good nutrition and daily counseling which insures safe, effective weight loss. The weight loss program offers weight loss that is fast enough to motivate, slow enough to be healthful and also economically feasible.

The program is a natural approach to weight loss which employs no drugs and no injections. The program is designed so that dieters prepare basic foods easily obtainable. The expected results are a weight loss of 17 to 25 pounds in just six weeks. Diet Center works closely with doctors where medical problems are involved. Also Diet Center is tax-deductible in many cases.

April 27, the Diet Center of Cohasset will open at the new facility in the Bay Coast Medical Center, Cohasset Village. This center will accommodate the populations of Cohasset, Scituate, Hull and Hingham Habor.

With the growth of Diet Centers of the South Shore, those individuals who want to experience the last diet program they will ever need, may participate in an approach to weight loss which helps Americans lose over one million pounds per month in 1,300 centers across the country. To obtain additional information about Diet Center, call Quincy, 770-3442; Braintree, 848-9676; or Norwell, 878-4221.

Weekly open gyms

The Cohasset Recreation Department will keep Cohasset High School gym open from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Gary Smith will be the recreation department supervisor in charge of the gym during the designated hours.

The gym may be used for basketball and pick-up games which should be played on half court, or quarter court, allowing for maximum use of space and people. The standard rules for gym use apply to the open gym times. Sneakers must be worn and there will be no food, beverage, or smoking.

The program will be conducted for an eight week period, ending the week of June 1. There is no registration fee or pre-registration required.

Boston Harbor discussion

"Boston Harbor, a Regional Resource at Risk" will be the topic of discussion at the first annual town meeting for Boston Harbor, sponsored by Save the Harbor - Save the Bay, Saturday, May 9, at Clark Gymnasium at the UMass/Boston Harbor Campus.

Registration will be from 10 to 11 a.m. at which time it will convene.

Paul Garrity, president of Save the Harbor - Save the Bay, will be one of the principal speakers and will issue a call to action after discussing the state of the harbor.

A panel discussion will feature Michael Deland, regional director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; James Hoyte, state secretary of environmental affairs, and S. Russell Sylva, commissioner of the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering as well as a representative from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

A citizens' discussion will follow.

For further information, call Save the Harbor - Save the Bay, 3 Joy St., Boston, at 742-7283.

Gardening, Arbor Day sale

Join expert gardener Charlie Morgan for a free talk on raised bed gardening at South Shore Natural Science Center, Norwell. A short talk on the techniques and benefits of raised bed gardening will be followed by an opportunity to visit Charlie's own gardens in Norwell.

In celebration of Arbor Day, the Center will be selling a high quality, low cost assortment of evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs. Some ground cover might also be available. Sunday, April 26. Garden Talk, 1:30 to 3 p.m. Arbor Day Tree Sale, 1 to 4 p.m. The talk is free, but preregistration is required. Call 659-2559 for registration information.

SPRING MYSTERY WALK

"There is a brief period in spring . . . usually late in April when we behold the first quickening of the earth. The waters have subsided, the roads have become dry, the sunshine has grown strong and its warmth has penetrated the sod". . . . We'll travel to a nearby conservation area to enjoy the earth "coming to life again." (Quotes from John Burroughs, Signs and Seasons. Harbaugh hopes to post Victory in Cohasset

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

John Harbaugh has established an orthodox baptist church in Cohasset.

Victory Baptist Church, which holds services 11 a.m. Sunday at Cohasset High School, serves born-again Christians and is based on a literal interpretation of the Bible.

Harbaugh said he "got a real burden for this area" three years ago, when he paid a visit to his dying mother in Holbrook. "I saw a need here," he said. "I noticed a movement away from scripture, a movement toward liberal theology, where people look at human experiences and decide that scripture may not be correct.

"On the theological plane," he explained, "I am a biblical fundamentalist. I seek answers to my questions from scripture."

Harbaugh said he takes the Bible literally because "Satan is slick. He comes in and tries to change the good news."

His "Christ-pleasing church in Cohasset" so far has drawn few parishoners. A recent service plagued by rain and a time change attracted only six souls, including Harbaugh, his wife and three children, and this reporter. But the pastor said he believes more people will find their way to Victory Baptist Church because it offers something genuine.

For that quality, he turns to the Bible and asks his parishoners to be "transformed by the word."

Although his crowds are small, the pastor said he will speak "like there is a crowd of 100 in the room.

"God called me to preach," he said.

The son of a Maryland state trooper, Harbaugh joined the U.S. military at age 17, after dropping out of school in the ninth grade. "The military was a great place to grow up," he commented. "Today many teenagers have lots of rights, but no responsibility. I had a lot of responsibility and no rights, but I did my job and I was treated well. I made a difference."

During his 16-year stint as a communications officer with the Navy, Harbaugh said he spent time in Vietnam, was in Nicaragua in 1978 and patrolled the waters off Iran during the hostage crisis.

Castel Volturno, Italy, was his home from 1981 through 1985, when he retired from the military. There, he became pastor of Victory Baptist Church, president of

Pastor John Harbaugh

Victory Bible Institute and principal of Victory Christian Academy.

Harbaugh said he hopes to begin work toward a doctorate degree in psychology at the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

He said he already has a bachelor's degree in sociology from the University of New York, a degree in educational administration from Boston University and four post-graduate degrees from Biblical University in Kentucky.

Harbaugh's ministry in Cohasset is being supported financially by Victory Baptist Church in Castel Volturno.

The Italian church, Harbaugh said, will donate $500 per month until his church here is self-supporting.

In his ministry, Harbaugh urges his parishoners to look at life from a spiritual point of view, rather than from a carnal point of view.

Mindful of the recent pulpit scandal involving Jim and Tammy Bakker of television's PTL Club, Harbaugh reflected on the issue of adultery.

"Is it scriptural?" he asked the group rhetorically. "No.

"Is it accepted? Yes.

"Is it legal? To some degree, although it is immoral by legal standards.

"I turned on the television today and saw a TV preacher hugging all the ladies in his parish. I think that's poor judgment in times like these."

Harbaugh said he believes Jim Bakker "has disqualified himself" from preaching.

"By his own doctrine," the pastor commented, "he is on his way to hell with that. I would have problems with my relationship with Christ over that, much less over the right to preach."

He called the "high life" which the television evangelists are said to have lived, "wickedness before God.

"Praise the Lord, I don't own a limo!"

Harbaugh said people should support their local church by tithing 10 percent not just of their money, but of their time and talent.

"The pastor should live the average lifestyle of his ministry," he said, "whether it be Beverly Hills or the ghetto. Heritage, U.S.A. was sort of like Disneyland; how can you justify that? It's a ludicrous idea and people have got to get away from such unscriptural concepts."

Harbaugh also lambasted the way TV evangelists ask for money and the charismatic customs of speaking in tongues and laying of hands, though he does believe in faith healing.

"I had diabetes and kidney cancer," he said. "It was shown to be benign. It was impossible, but God healed me. If you are sick because of a sin problem, God will heal you. But it is not by a laying on of the hands."

Harbaugh commented, "People in Europe were praying for God to shut down the PTL Club. They were embarrassed by it.

"I thought it was outrageous when Tammy Bakker said she got mad at God for not resurrecting her dog, Fifi," Harbaugh said.

"And I guess Oral Roberts got his $8 million," he added, laughing when he recalled a joke by entertainer Johnny Carson. "Wrong man-o-phobia is the fear that God will mistake you for Oral Roberts at the end of March."

Harbaugh said he is not jealous of the TV evangelists. "I would be uncomfortable preaching to 400 or more. While some would say they could preach to 4,000 parishoners, 250 would be ideal for me."

That number is still a far cry from his present parish, but Harbaugh said he expected a slow start here.

"It takes knocking on doors and ministering to people," he said. "People don't want to be stroked and they don't want to come to church and see people acting foolish. They will only support something meaningful."

May programs at the Natural Science Center

South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell is offering many programs during the month of May. Here is just a sampling:

ISSUES

This planet's present and future state is dependent on many factors including the human presence. Through readings and discussion participants will join in an attempt to define the issues, find some reasons and envision potential solutions with naturalist, Bill Perkins. Funded in part by the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities, whose funds are recommended by the Governor and the legislature. Mondays, May 4, 11, 18, 25. Prepaid registration required (members/$22; non-members/$24). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

AFTER SCHOOL SCIENCE CLUB

The 6 to 8 year old Science Club investigates the workings of the wild with many types of activities. Join us every Tuesday and see how much fun science can be! The club meets with Elsa Ryberg, teacher, on Tuesdays, May 5, 12, 19, 26 and June 2, 9. Prepaid registration required (members/$35; non-members/$45). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

AFTER SCHOOL SCIENCE CLUB

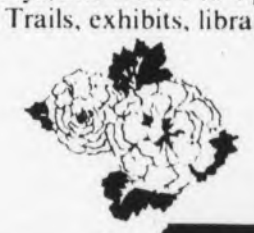
Nine through 12 year olds are invited to explore the wonderful workings of the world around them. Each week, they'll learn about different habitats and the plants and animals that inhabit them with naturalist, Trygve Swift on Thursdays, May 7, 14, 21, 28 and June 4, 11. Prepaid registration required (members/$35; non-members/$45). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

SPRING BIRD WALKS

Search out the early spring migrants. The first three walks will focus on warblers and thrushes. The fourth will emphasize shorebirds. Bring your binoculars and meet at the Science Center. With Expert Birder, Bev Litchfield on Thursdays, May 7, 14, 21, 28. Prepaid registration required (members/$4 per walk or $15 for all 4 walks; non-members/$5 per walk or $19 for all four walks.)Call 659-2559 for registration information.

NATURE NURSERY 4's & 5's

A child's natural sense of wonder is cultivated in our Nature Nursery program. Sensory experiences, walks and activities will develop children's appreciation of nature. Naturalist Barbara Devine leads your child in discovering the wonders of the natural world. Classes meet from 1 to 3 p.m. on Thursdays, May 7, 14, 21, 28 and June 4, 11. Prepaid registration required (members/$55; non-members/$65). Call 659-2559 for registration information.



GREAT ESKER PARK WALK

Walk to the top of the esker for a beautiful view of Boston, Quincy and the Back River! Join naturalist Marshall Katler on Friday, May 8 from 9:30 a.m. to noon and inspect characteristic and unusual plants from beach to woodland. Bring binoculars to keep an eye out for Osprey. Prepaid registration required (members/$4; non-members/$5). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

CHILDREN'S UPSIDE DOWN WALK

What happens when you turn things upside down? You get a new perspective on the world of nature! Come and help us turn things upside down and discover the miniature world of creatures that live there. Barbara Devine leads children age 7 years and older on this discovery walk on Saturday, May 9 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Prepaid registration required (members/$3; non-members/$4). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

Counsel counsels

Richard Henderson, Cohasset Town Counsel, was guest speaker at Edward F. Sheehan's law class at Cohasset High School Friday morning, April 10. The class is one of the senior electives presented by the high school social studies department.

The visiting town counsel who also has a law practice in Cohasset discussed the making of a young lawyer. He advised the seniors to go to a college which will give them a solid, liberal arts program. He especially stressed English skills, reading skills and math and science. Mr. Henderson said that lawyers must possess analytical skills and that science and math training would enable them to be better problem solvers.

While the best paying jobs are with prestigious big city law firms, Mr. Henderson said he chose to practice in a small law firm in a small town. "I enjoy being my own boss and researching a variety of legal cases," he added.

A question and answer period followed. Mr. Henderson's initial formal presentation. This is the third visit Mr. Henderson has made to Cohasset High School to acquaint students about the training for and practice of the law.

Members of the senior elective law course are: Richard Ainslie, James Cooke, Scott Fitzsimmons, Nicole Gamst, Ned Gray, Jeff Hartwell, Deanna Joseph, Bill Lean, Jeff Lydon, Dion Mascart, Nick McDonough, Mary McElroy, Patrick O'Connor, Wayne Warren-Young and John Reidy.

Raise your Kids Right!

This is the title of the best-selling book by psychologist, author and CBS broadcast journalist, Dr. Lonnie Carton, who will be the guest speaker at the Annual Meeting of the PSO (Parent School Organization) Thursday, May 7, in the New Study Hall at Cohasset High School.

After a short business meeting and election of PSO officers for the next school year at 7:30 p.m., Dr. Carton will be introduced by PSO President, Claudia Story. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

The topic of Dr. Carton's informal talk will be, "Raising Sane Children in a World Gone Mad." It sounds heavy, but promises to be very lively, knowing Lonnie Carton's sense of humor from her CBS radio show, The Learning Center.

Mark that date on your calendar now—May 7—let Lonnie Carlton answer your own questions about how to Raise Your Kids Right!

Women in math

Monday, April 6, math sudents: Melissa Shea, Sally Hurtig, Sue Riley and Debbie Hartley and teachers Clare Brady and Maureen Lalumiere attended Sonia Kovalevsky Day at Simmons College. This was a program for young women in grades 9-12 sponsored by the Association of Women in Mathematics Students. The forum was designed to whet the appetite of female high schoolers for the study of mathematics. Teachers attended separate seminars on current applications of mathematics conducted by professors from Simmons and other local colleges.

Greenbush study continues despite plan cutback

federal dollars were drying up, and that the state should show its support of a plan by promising at least 20 percent funding. He also argued that federal money could be used only for resumption of an existing rail service, and that the Greenbush line does not fall into that category.

"I think the state has to come up with the money for the Greenbush line, and that's why Sen. Golden filed legislation requesting $100 million for the project," Fancher explained. But since the latest Old Colony figures have doubled to $387 million, "I don't think the feds are going to look at this with as positive an eye," Fancher continued.

William Grimes of Hingham is a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee. He said the general reaction of the committee upon learning of this new prioritized, reduced rail plan, "was a great disappointment - not just from the Greenbush line people, but from those other South Shore areas that will not be serviced in this new plan."

Grimes described the CAC as "confused. (Transportation Secretary Fred) Salvucci had told us things were definitely going forward, and this seemed to be a total reversal of that. We are trying to find out now just exactly where we stand."

Greenbush, he stated, "is not dead, although that is the impression some people who are working against the restoration would have you believe. There are people seriously concerned with the costs which have doubled, and the environmental complications. But the study will not stop.

"The headlines last week were very wrong, and that makes decisions for people here so difficult. People along the Greenbush line want to know, should they start planning? Should they move here where there will be commuter rail service? Should they move away? "

Grimes said it is up to the MBTA and Salvucci to convince the legislature and the governor that this reduced plan is only a partial solution. "And in my opinion, this partial solution is so unsatisfactory that it may pigeonhole the completion of the entire project. As the saying goes, a poor beginning is worse than no beginning. People have said all along, they don't want that transfer station in Braintree. If the train can't go into South Station, they don't want it. Whatever you do, don't build a transfer station in Braintree," he added.

Grimes sees the disadvantages of the new prioritization. "It may work to kill the momentum of our project," he stated. "There's not that much mass transit money available. At the same time, they're giving money for the third harbor tunnel and the fan pier in Boston, and all of a sudden, that's going to be it for the South Shore. Believe me, restoring the Greenbush line is not only in the interest of the South Shore, but for the city of Boston. The commuter boat can't carry all the people from the South Shore. That's only part of the total mixture of people having to get into Boston every day."

The rail advocate said if the feds fail to come through with the money, the state administration should consider a bonding issue to pursue the completion of the plan. "That's what I'm working for now - that the three lines be restored in full. I don't necessarily believe we can't get what we want here," Grimes stated, adding that this new $387 million figure "was just thrown at us last week. It's very strange, whether you're for or against the project. There is money around, but I don't understand this new figure. It could completely kill the project."

Hingham's other CAC member, Richard Cook, is not convinced the Greenbush delay is a bad move.

"My impression is that what's happening is logical," Cook said. "If the state uses this time to evaluate at a more leisurely pace the entire transportation picture, perhaps by getting together a committee of more objective people, it would be a reasonable way to proceed."

Cook, who has questioned at length the objectivity of the CAC and the MBTA's involvement in its own study, said a more complete evaluation must include an in-depth look at the growth patterns of the South Shore and how all services are affected by that growth in development. Questions regarding water, sewer and solid waste should be addressed alongside transportation, he suggested. The Hingham resident also emphasized the need for a grassroots committee, not a group formed in association with the MBTA or South Shore Coalition. "That type of group runs the risk of being a rubberstamp for the state or being perceived as one," he continued.

Martha Gjesteby is one of Cohasset's two representatives to the Old Colony's citizens' committee. According to Gjesteby, the CAC did not take any action on last week's presentation of the scaled-down rail plan. "It is not fait accompli," she added. "Braintree does not want a transfer station there. What this plan needs is that bridge over the Neponset River into Boston. I think the consensus at last week's meeting was one of great disappointment by the committee members."

Sen. Golden remained optimistic about the chances of activating Greenbush. "Let's put it this way," he surmised. "I don't think we're going to get money for a monorail down Rte. 3 and not get it for the Greenbush line. The key issue now, is for the state administration to match the federal funding for this project. I have appointments to meet with the governor and the transportation secretary. It will be interesting, indeed, critical, to see if this administration will re-affirm their commitment to the South Shore."

Selectmen will again talk terms with SEMASS

by the committee.

Selectmen then decided they will write a letter to SEMASS indicating a willingness to begin negotiations, contigent on the vote at the special town meeting scheduled this summer.

In other action Monday night, selectmen interviewed four candidates for the position of temporary fulltime firefighter. They will make their decision in about two weeks, selectmen told the candidates. There is no vacancy within the department, but this position will assume the responsibilities not carried out by a current light- duty firefighter.

The first interviewee was Francis Mahoney of Hull. A graduate of Cohasset High School, Mahoney is currently a call firefighter in Cohasset, and is a certified EMT. He is also a member of the US Naval Reserve.

For more than a year and a-half, Mahoney said he has attended monthly drills for the call firefighters, and has responded to alarms. He is working part-time with Bay State Ambulance and told selectmen he enjoys that work. In answer to a question from Selectman Martha Gjesteby, Mahoney said he played hockey at CHS and continues to play weekly hockey and basketball games with members of the Cohasset Fire Department.

The second applicant for the position was Barbara Bowen of King Street. A graduate of Northeastern University, Bowen has a degree in physical education. After graduation, she was unable to pursue that career because of the limited number of positions under Proposition 2 1/2. She is a certified EMT and has been a call firefighter in Cohasset for two years.

While at NU, Bowen said she participated in the gymnastics team. She passed the firefighters physical examination two years ago, and continues to run five miles two or three times a week. She is also a certified aquatic lifesaver.

The third candidate interviewed by selectmen was William Sesito of Hill Street. He is currently employed in the auto body business and would like to continue that on a part-time basis, he told selectmen. He is a certified EMT and has attended most of the drills as a Cohasset call firefighter. Sesito is a graduate of South Shore Vo-Tech.

The final candidate for the position was Francis Kiley. He told selectmen he intends to become a Cohasset call firefighter and has been a certified EMT for the past few months. He is currently employed in Marshfield and is attending college.

Selectmen recently received a letter from Roy Fitzsimmons, a member of the now-defunct ambulance study committee. He notified selectmen that according to the town report, the fire department has only five certified Emergency Medical Technicians manning the ambulance, although six are required.

Chief Daniel Brock clarified the point to selectmen by explaining that from a department of 25 men, 17 are certified EMT's. "There are a lot of poeople walking around town who wouldn't be here except for that ambulance," he said. "Our guys do an excellent job on the ambulance. They're very dedicated and concerned. We run a good ambulance."

Hazardous waste sites report

The state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering's division of hazardous waste released its quarterly site list, updating conditions at three Cohasset hot spots.

As of April 15, the J.J. Henry Company at 430 South Main Street had taken initial remedial measures to clean up a spill there.

The problem has been identified and evaluated at J.J. Henry and a feasibility study of remedial action alternatives is underway, according to the DEQE report.

Webb-Norfolk conveyor has begun removal of drums and tanks of spilled oil and contaminated soil from its property at 155 King Street.

Highway Motor Sales at 827 Chief Justice Cushing Highway is slated for investigation by the DEQE. According to the state agency "remedial action may or may not be required" here.

The DEQE will check to see whether or not a hazard exists at Highway Motor Sales.

Coalition discusses impact of Deer Island plants

By John O'Donnell
Mariner Staff

The location of an outfall site, where treated effluent from the proposed primary and secondary treatment plants at Deer Island would flow into the ocean, will impact the South Shore, members of the South Shore Coalition said Thursday.

Members of the coalition applauded the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority's decision to continue its evaluation of potential locations for outfall sites for the Deer Island sewage treatment plant, off Winthrop in Boston Harbor.

Also, members urged that the MWRA consider placing the outfall site as far away from shore as possible to minimize potential impacts of treated sewage that would be discharged into Massachusetts Bay.

The MWRA is studying seven locations for the outfall site, ranging from 2.2 miles to 9 miles away from Deer Island in the ocean.

The closest site to the coast on the South Shore is 2.5 miles northeast of Hull, six miles away from Deer Island.

"This will have a severe environmental impact on us," said coalition member John Silva, a Hull selectman. "Any outfall from that plant will affect the South Shore.

"The thing that concerns me is the MWRA continues to push a Sept. 1 deadline on the outfall selection," he said. "I don't think all of the data will be in by Sept. 1."

The MWRA hopes to have the outfall site study completed by the beginning of September so that a site can be selected to meet a court-imposed deadline of October 1, said Len Cawley, MWRA community relations coordinator.

The MWRA was formed in 1985 as an independent authority to oversee the Metropolitan District Commission's water and sewerage systems.

In 1982 the city of Quincy filed suit against the MDC and other state agencies for polluting Boston Harbor in violation of the state clean waters act.

In 1984 the Dukakis administration filed legislation to establish the MWRA after determining that the MDC, as a state agency, could not finance the harbor clean-up due to structural constraints and the limits of Proposition 2½.

The MWRA, which provides sewer and wastewater treatment services to 43 communities in the Boston area including Randolph, Braintree, Weymouth and parts of Hingham, selected Deer Island as the site for a new primary and secondary treatment facility in July 1985.

The MWRA currently operates primary treatment plants on Deer Island and on Nut Island in Quincy. The Nut Island plant, which serves approximately 18 of the MWRA's 43 communities, would become a residuals facility where large solids are removed from wastewater after the new Deer Island facility is completed.

The new facility will handle all the wastewater in the MWRA region. Construction is scheduled to begin in 1991 and the project is scheduled to be completed by 1999.

The MWRA board of directors authorized up to $1.5 million last week for studying the seven outfall sites being considered, Cawley said.

"Our main concern is what effects the outfall will have on the environment," he said. "It's pretty clear our mandate is to clean up Boston Harbor, not just to treat sewage."

Water quality standards, impact on offshore and shoreline marine resources, effects of other pollution sources, flexibility in responding to future conditions

State House. "I'm very pleased because this bill is very special to me. The cost is high, but to me it will be worth it to keep the kids of Hull, Scituate, Norwell and Marshfield busy and off the streets."

The bill, which was co-sponsored by Senator William Golden, requests financing for the construction of an indoor pool and skating rink on MCD-owned land in Hull. Rep. Murray developed the legislation after receving calls from Cohasset and Hull residents, concerned with the March closing of the Winter Garden skating rink.

"It was a major hurdle for this bill to get through the first committee with a favorable conclusion," Rep. Murray stated, "and now it's up to the House Ways and Means. It could take several months to review, but hopefully it will be included in next year's budget when we begin to review it the end of June."

Conway Company honored

The Jack Conway Company has been cited for outstanding performance serving relocating families, primarily corporate transferees, by RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, Inc. headquartered in Chicago.

The company won the 1986 Peak Producers Club Award for more than $23 million of incoming and outgoing sold referrals, a 64 percent increase over 1985. Other awards included the 1986 Incoming Referral Sales Club Award for more than $11 million in sales to transferees; the 1986 Outgoing Referral Sales Club Award for more than $12 million in outgoing referrals sent and sold; and the 1986 Referral Production Club Award for more than 1,000 referrals sent to RELO members.

Besides sales referred by RELO member companies, an additional $10 million in sales to transferees was negotiated by the Jack Conway Company through other referrals, according to Relocation Department Director Maureen McCaffrey. These included company referrals, corporate referrals and relocation sales generated by the company's reputation, advertising efforts and Classics Division.

During the first two months of 1987, the Jack Conway Company placed third in incoming and outgoing sales of RELO's 1,200 member companies. The nationwide referral network of independent real estate brokers has more than 3,400 offices nationwide with brokers specializing in helping families sell a house in one geographic area and buying a home in another.

Bank stock sale completed

The offering in Cohasset Savings Bank to its depositors of shares of the Bank's common stock has been successfully completed.

Donald E. Bates, president of the bank, said that no shares of stock of the bank are available to the general public in a public offering.

"This is a gratifying show of depositor interest and support," said Bates, "which we interpret to indicate satisfaction with the Bank's performance in the past and confidence in its ability to perform well in the future to the advantage of depositors, shareholders and the community."

Bates said the bank is in the process of determining how the available shares will be allocated among the depositors who have subscribed. He indicated that this was a complicated procedure governed by the Massachusetts Conversion Regulations and that the oversubscription may delay the issuance of the shares of the bank to subscribers for a substantial period of time. He indicated that the bank is working to resolve all the issues to complete the stock sale as quickly as possible.

Hallmark 100 President Chris Ford and member Barbara Froio.

Froio sets sales pace

Chris Ford, President of Hallmark 100 Properties, recognized Barbara Froio for participating in the sale of over three million dollars of real estate in the first three months of 1987. Barbara is an active member of the Plymouth County Board of Realtors, has served on the Board of Directors and is presently on the Professional Standards Committee. Mr. Ford attributes Barbara's success to her good working relationship with fellow brokers and a keen understanding of customer and client needs. Barbara is a member of HALLMARK 100's Cohasset office located on Rt. 3A in Cohasset.

Tis named manager

Robert J. Tis of Cohasset, Boston Edison's District Manager in Plymouth since 1973 and a 23-year veteran of the power company, has been named District Manager of Boston Edison's Southern Division.

Tis will be responsible for Boston Edison's community relations in the Norfolk County communities of Dedham, Needham and Milton, where the company serves an estimated 80,000 customers, and in Weymouth, site of the retired Edgar Station generating plant, an operating electrical substation and other electrical transmission systems.

Tis, 55, joined Boston Edison in 1964 as a sales engineer and was later promoted to head of the Industrial and Commercial Sales Department of the Southern Area Division. A native of Union City, N.J., Tis graduated with a degree in Marine Engineering from the Merchant Marine Academy at King's Point, N.Y. in 1956 and later served as an engineering officer aboard a Navy destroyer based in San Diego.

Coalition reviews sewer plant impact . . .

and the financial cost are factors involved in selecting the outfall site.

Cawley said it would cost approximately $20 million per mile to construct the outfall pipe, which would lead from Deer Island to the outfall site and would have a diameter of roughly 25 feet, about the same size as the Callahan Tunnel.

The pipe would be buried 250 feet into the sea bed, and emerge from the ocean floor at the outfall site, where treated effluent would be diffused into the ocean water.

"I think the September 1 deadline is important to note," said Coalition Chairman Janet O'Brien, a Hanover selectman. "It's very important that they have all the data before making a decision.

"It's very important that they use the most current statistics and criteria available," she said. "If they're using outdated standards, they're not addressing the problem."

"If they're trying to clean up Boston Harbor, they better make sure they don't do it at the expense of polluting Massachusetts Bay," said Silva, who also complained that the MWRA has not invited Hull representatives to meetings on the outfall sites.

Cawley said the MWRA still plans to select an outfall site in September, but added that the outfall site location can be changed even once construction begins.

"Once we start construction, we can begin the outfall without a definite end," he said. "But now is the ideal time for public involvement."

The coalition agreed to try to schedule a public meeting with MWRA officials in June to discuss the Deer Island proposal and its effect on the South Shore.

St. Mary's Church census

Volunteers will drop off a census form at every home within the boundaries of St. Mary of the Assumption Parish next week as part of a parish-wide census.

The purpose of visiting every home is to find out how many Catholics, whether practicing or not, are in the parish, according to Carol Krzywda, co-chairman of the census committee. About 160 volunteer census workers will blanket Hull and parts of Hingham and Cohasset from April 26 to May 2 to drop off the confidential census cards, which can then be sealed inside an envelope.

Volunteers will pick up the cards from 2 to 7 p.m. on Sunday, May 3.

If families in homes visited are not Catholic, they are asked to simply tell this to the census taker. If they are Catholic but attend a parish other than St. Mary's they can indicate this on the card.

Also, if a family resides in the parish for only summer months but does worship at St. Mary's, they are asked to note this on the card.

The census card asks basic statistical information, such as age, sacraments received and interests for each person in the household. It also asks people's opinions on programs and services the parish might offer.

Included in the census cover letter is an invitation to anyone who would like information about the Catholic Church to attend an evening of sharing at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 7, at St Ann's Church, corner of Lewis and Samoset Streets.

The parish covers all of Hull and parts of Hingham and Cohasset. It includes three church buildings in Hull: St. Mary of the Assumption Church, St. Ann's church and St. Mary of the Bay.

The parish needs a more complete update of its members so it can better meet their needs and plan for the future as a community, according to the Rev. Robert Butler, pastor.

Estimates on the number of Catholic families within parish boundaries range from 900 to 1,500 according to the Rev. Kevin Crowley of St. Mary's. Firm figures are not available because the latest census is at least five years old and is incomplete, according to Krzywda, who is coordinating the work with co-chairman Susan Fleck.

Mormons to Washington

A two-day trip by bus has been planned this weekend for the teen age youths of the Hingham Stake. They will travel at night and spend the day doing temple work at the LDS Temple in Kennsington, MD, and return home that night.

Stake leader, Pres. George Dresser of Duxbury, explains that this is not the usual "pleasure" trip but one that will teach the values of "sacrifice."

First Parish news

From the Minister's Study

Every once in a while the elements of a service come together in a way in whch the whole exceeds the sum of the parts. We sometimes call such an event a "happening." For me and I hope for you, last Sunday morning was a "happening" as a rag tag parade of children and adults emerged from the Parish House carrying a huge dove with great feathered wings fluttering in the breeze to join the congregation from the Meeting House on the Common and engage them in dance and song symbolic of the wheel of time and the rebirth of life. A feeling of excitement built as everyone joined the parade to re-enter the Meeting House where the ominous voice of Caiaphas thundered warning only to be answered by Jesus' words of assurance that nothing can stop the celebration of life.

We are very grateful to our new Religious Education Director, Christine DeMers for creating a worship experience so beautifully designed to express the message of Palm Sunday. She brings exceptional dramatic and artistic talent to our religious education program. I am also very grateful to Carolyn Curtis and our choir who brought bells, tamborines and strong voices to swell the music and build a mood of jubilation. Their leadership enabled us to sing our songs with confidence.

Canvass Dinner was a great success!

One hundred and twenty-six people attended dinner after a kick-off speech and wine and hors d'oeuvres at the Parish House. The delicious appetizers were prepared by the able hands of Marianne and Matt White. I would like to thank all the people who helped me: Judy and Peter Keim, Cliff Mitman, Carolyn Contis, Debbie Cook, Sally Atkinson and Carol Martin for giving of a beautiful Saturday to help prepare the meal. Thanks also to our gracious host families: Marie Caristi, Bill and Mary Beth Lean, Woody and JoAnne Chittick, Ned and Priscilla Tebbetts, Rodney and Marilyn Hobson, Dick and Judy Mantz, Wendll and Bobbie Leary, David and Jackie Whipple and Mike and Barbara Bliss. And thank you to Shelley Weier for ordering flowers for hostesses.

Millie Mitman

Canvass News: The Canvass got off to a great start on Saturday night at our Canvass Dinner. Special thanks to Millie Mitman and her crew for the dinner.

People should be looking forward to telephone calls from canvassers who will be making personal visits for their gifts.

Religious Education News: I'd like to thank everyone who participated in and helped make the Palm Sunday Celebration the happy and festive occasion it was. Even the weather cooperated! I'd like to especially thank Gladys Wicklund for preparing the program at the last minute and going through the hassle of getting it perfect. The spirit of sharing was so strong—from the choir to the children again—thank you very much.

A reminder there will be no church school April 26 school vacation week. Classes resume May 3. See you then.

News of the Parish

What an uplifting service we shared in together on Palm Sunday. The children in their costumes calling all of our attention to the pageantry of that special day for Jesus (this time played by Mac Campbell on the pony); followed by a joyous and energetic worship and confirmation service. Many thanks to all of those "behind the scenes" people who very neatly covered the many details: the CE Board and Gail Whitehouse for the parade, and hot cross bun coffee hour, the flower committee for the palms, Ellen Fryling and the choir for the glorious music, to Judy Ritts for the calligraphy work on the Confirmation certificates, and those thirteen exceptional young people for deciding to become a part of our community of faith.

Congratulations to our NEW MEMBERS! Joining the church this past Sunday were: Brooke Anderson, Sara Bishop, Travis Coley, Paul Ford, Pam Haase, Troy Hasse, Rebecca Jordan, Hilary Proodian, Steve Ritts, Brian Shultz, Matt Silvia, Karin Story, Bart Weisenfluh.

Church School: Children, you did a super job on Palm Sunday! Thank you so much to the many people who gave of their time and of themselves to "put together" last week's procession. Wishing all of you a wonderful spring vacation . Gail Whitehouse.

Graduating Seniors: We would like to make sure we know who all of you are! We would like to have an accurate list of all graduating seniors, both college and high school for this coming spring. If both college and high school seniors (or parents) will call the church office sometime soon, we'll be able to share our "fare-thee-wells," too!

Mormons at conference

Members of the Hingham Mass. Stake from Southeastern Mass. will hold Stake Conference this weekend. The Saturday afternoon and evening sessions will be held at the Foxboro chapel, 76 Main St. in Foxboro. The afternoon session is by invitation, and the evening for all adults.

The Sunday conference session will commence at 10 a.m. and will be held at the Hingham chapel at 379 Gardner Street, Hingham. The 2-hour meeting will be presided over by President Robert S. Wood, of Newport, R.I. This is a family conference and all are welcome.

Health board to Cohasset residents: bag it

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Bag it! The board of health voted Monday to require all Cohasset citizens to put their trash in plastic bags.

The order will go into effect June 1.

Trash bagging was among several measures adopted by the board to deal with problems at the town's Cedar Street landfill.

According to John Modzelewski, consulting engineer to the board of health, the issues of pollution, litter, capping and brush have not been addressed and require attention.

With regard to the pollution issue, Modzelewski submitted a proposal for inspections at the Cedar Street dump.

The bi-monthly inspections will include collection of water samples from some newly-installed monitoring wells at the site as well as surface water samples from the landfill and from a "downstream" off-site location. The wells of nearby homes on Forest Avenue also will be tested "just to make sure..."

The water samples will be analyzed for "priority pollutants and metals.

"If Cohasset Heights is any representation, you will find volatile organics," board member William Baird predicted.

The board's engineers also will perform a topographic survey and prepare a topographic plan for the working areas of the landfill site.

With regard to litter, landfill supervisor Joseph Laugelle said the neighboring homeowners are "up in arms."

The combination of 10 tons of newspaper and the landfill's hilltop location has led to a messy neighborhood.

Along with its edict that all Cohasset rubbish be bagged, the board is considering raising the landfill's fences and hiring teenagers to pick up the debris.

Brush, Modzelewski commented, should be chipped every two weeks. If it is not chipped, the brush becomes a breeding area for rodents and presents a fire hazard. "There must be friction between the town departments," the engineer noted, because it hasn't been chipped at the Cedar Street site.

Board member Sharon Becker agreed, "Peter (Laugelle, head of the tree and park dept.) doesn't like to lend out his equipment."

"Chipping brush is expensive," Joseph Laugelle noted, "and we're not allowed to burn it, so what can we

Laura geht nach Deutschland

By Bob Tis
Mariner correspondent

Laura Kuhn has the handshake of a young woman who is going somewhere. And she certainly is—Germany.

Laura, a junior at Cohasset High School, is one of only five people selected in the state by the Congress Bundestag Youth Exchange program for study in Germany.

"The school came to me," said Laura, explaining how students at the top of their classes were offered applications. Laura will be leaving for an orientation with 300 students from all around the country to Washington D.C. in mid July. The orientation will be highlighted by a reception at the German embassy. Then, on July 23, it's off to West Germany.

"Oh, yeah, I'm nervous," says Kuhn, "but I think I am more excited than nervous."

The complete full year scholarship from the German government is organized through the Youth for Understanding exchange program. Laura will be attending a four-week orientation program in Frankfurt. She will be placed with a German family and attend the Gymnasium school, in an as yet undisclosed city. Only 25 percent of German Youths qualify for the advanced programs at Gymnasium. Approximately 50 percent of that number attend college.

"I know a few key phrases but that's about all, right now," said Laura, who will be rapidly brushing up on her German in the oncoming weeks. "I want to be able to speak, read and write German."

Aside from German, Laura will be taking classes in English, Theology, French and Latin. "I want to get as much as possible out of this," she said. "I want to speak as many languages as possible."

Laura is the editor of the school paper and has been a member of the Cohasset Drama Workshop for three years. Recently she has appeared in Ron Emmons's "What You Will" and the heralded production of "Godspell."

Laura has lived in Cohasset for twelve years. She worked this past summer as a clerk at Aveni Cleaners. Currently, she is kept busy with Advanced Placement classes in history and Latin as well as pre-calculus and French. She recently returned from a trip to the Virgin Islands with her parents. "I loved it, the people are very nice and relaxed—it's a different culture," says Laura.

Cohasset health fair for everyone

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

The third annual health fair is not just for seniors, children or teens. Organizers of the event promise there'll be something there for everyone.

A committee comprised of members from the Social Service League, Council on Aging and Board of Health have worked for months, planning a comprehensive health fair that will attract attention throughout the area, and among all ages.

The health fair, which will feature exhibits, screenings, medical tests and talks, will take place at the Second Congregational parish house and in the town hall auditorium. The fair will be held Wednesday, May 13 from noon to 3 p.m.

Committee member and senior center director Kathy Bryanton explained the advantage of the annual Cohasset fair. "Nowhere in this area can you find such comprehensive medical services at no cost or at minimal fees. And it all takes place in a very non-threatening environment which makes it enjoyable for everyone who participates," she explained.

The health fair began on a much smaller scale three years ago. Public Health nurse Mary Anne Hansen organized the entire event, but she quickly realized a subsequent fair would require assistance. Bryanton helped organize last year's fair, which was more extensive than the previous year, and featured many more services.

This year, Hansen said, the Cohasset health fair features more health professionals, tests and exhibits than before. Not only do they require the space within town hall and the next door parish house, but they will use the common to set up special exhibits throughout the afternoon.

The goal of the entire event, they stated, is to promote better health through preventative measures. At this central location, visitors will be able to talk with a nutritionist about their eating habits. Blood pressure can be checked. There will be screenings for glaucoma, and anemia, and testing for tuberculosis, glucose and cholesterol levels. Screenings will be conducted by local physicians for skin conditions, breast cancer and oral hygiene.

Parents will be able to have young children tested,

Meet new planner Alfred Moore

The time was right for Alfred Moore to make a contribution to Cohasset.

The newest member of the Cohasset planning board has lived with his family at 101 Fair Oaks Lane since 1978.

"Since I've lived here in town, I've thought of it," he said. "Everybody should make a contribution; there are many ways you can do it.

"I hadn't considered running for public office before, but I concluded that the planning board is a very active and important part of town government," Moore said.

"It's not like running for the national government, where you have to worry about things like defense, but the planning board is a critical spot.

Moore said he had not envisioned running for the planning board seat, until he discovered that former Chairman Christine Bassett was not running for re-election.

"I admired the way she handled the job as chairman," he said. "I would not have wanted to challenge her."

Moore said he doesn't shy away from a good fight, but felt fortunate to be unopposed in the election.

"I was looking forward to getting involved with the planning board," he explained, "but I was not looking forward to a long, drawn out campaign. Some like the thrill of the election, but I'm not a politician."

Moore said he sees himself as part of a neighborhood, where many are active in various projects and proposals to the town.

Concerned neighborhood residents organized three years ago, he recalled, to stop a proposed auto dealership from going in at the corner of Sohier Street and Route 3A. Subsequently, a Stop and Shop supermarket was proposed and passed.

"I'm thrilled the Stop and Shop issue was settled prior to my becoming part of the planning board," he said. "I have strong feelings about certain types of development - It's not because of where I live.

"Some people have a distorted view of our neighborhood," he explained. "Stop and Shop was not a

Water payments due

The Board of Water Commissioners reminds consumers that failure to pay their water bills may result in the shutting off of their service.

In its continuing effort to address delinquent accounts, the department has reviewed all bills that are overdue. This is essential to maintain the cash flow of the department, which is dependent on its rates and fees to operate.

The law authorizes the department to shut off service in order to collect payment. A fee of $25 will be charged to have a service reinstated.

Telephone donation

New England Telephone's $3,000 donation to the South Shore Art Center will help support the construction of a new building designed to address space limitations at the present facility.

The center has been in operation for 31 years. Since its inception as a locally oriented arts group, the art center has become an organization which offers college credit classes and sponsors regional exhibits that attract students and artists from all over New England.

In 1986, New England Telephone donated $390,000 in contributions and matching grants to cultural and arts organizations.

Special town meeting

Selectmen have scheduled a special town meeting for Monday, June 22.

The main purpose of the meeting will be to give voters the opportunity to decide whether to join SEMASS, the trash-to-energy solid waste disposal facility. The town must provide the agency with an answer by July 18.

In addition to the SEMASS question, residents may also be asked to approve a negotiated agreement to dispose of Cohasset's wastewater into the Hull treatment plant. Although that contract has not been finalized, the sewer commission is hopeful it will be completed in time for a vote by special town meeting.

Voters may also decide the fate of a police and fire station renovation project, and appropriations for renovations to Milliken Field. Also included in the warrant will be fiscal matters which must be completed before July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year.

New coordinator

Fire Chief Daniel Brock this week was named the town's hazardous waste coordinator. As the town's coordinator, the chief will be responsible for supervising the clean-up of any hazardous chemical or oil spills. Chief Brock should be contacted regarding any possible hazardous waste contamination or spill.

New firefighter

Selectmen this week appointed William Sestito of Hill Street a temporary fulltime firefighter. After conducting interviews with four candidates last week, selectmen made their decision Monday night.

Sestito was unanimously approved by the board, although Selectman James Gallagher abstained from the vote on advice from town counsel. A graduate of South Shore Vo-Tech, Sestito is currently employed in the auto body business. He has been a member of the Cohasset Fire Department call force, and is a certified EMT.

More engineering

The engineering consultant services of Camp, Dresser and McKee have been extended by a vote by selectmen this week. The board voted Monday night to allow the engineering firm to continue their well testing at Cohasset Heights landfill. The contract for the consultant services totaled $25,000.

New registrar

Selectmen appointed George Marlette to the Board of Registrars. The three-year appointment was made to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Burtram Pratt. Pratt resigned earlier this year in order to campaign for the board of selectmen.

Resubmit article

Samuel and Margaret DeCross of Braintree informed selectmen this week that they will resubmit a town meeting article to improve the drainage system on their Beechwood Street property. Town meeting voted this month not to appropriate money to improve the drainage system.

According to DeCross, "We do not intend to stop the flow of water on our land, or hurt anyone, we just want the water route straightened out to go inside along our land boundary. If this is done," he continued, "then the land can be built on. At the present time rubbish is being dumped on the land."

At the annual town meeting, DeCross presented information which suggested that several town-owned catch basins in the vacinity contribute to flooding on his property.

Laura Kuhn to Germany

It will be time for college when Laura returns from Germany. She lists Tufts, Yale, N.Y.U. and maybe Oberlin as schools in which she may be interested.

"I'm looking for a strong language program and also a strong curriculum in Theatre Arts," said Laura. For hobbies, Laura likes listening to music, the beach and practicing dance. "I just go down into the basement for a few hours and dance," stated the former counselor at Capeway Dance Camp.

One project Laura knows she will be working on is a major study of political, social or economic relationships between the U.S. and Germany. "It is a goodwill exchange between the two countries, that is why the project was designed," explained Laura.

Laura has a bright future with a lot of options and quite a few things in her favor. "I want to get as much out of life as possible," said Kuhn. "I want to go everywhere and do everything."

Go for it, Laura.

Tax bills mailed - payments due

The second-half fiscal 1987 tax bills were mailed March 13, 1987. This payment must be received in the collector's office on or before Friday, May 1, 1987, at 1 p.m. For any payments received after May 1, interest will be computed at 14 percent from April 1.

A number of property tax bills have been returned to the tax collector's office because of improper mailing addresses. Any property owner who has not received a tax bill should contact the collector's office at the town hall, 383-0611.

Failure to receive a tax bill does not waive payment of the tax and does not excuse the homeowner from interest charges on payments received after May 1.

The town hall hours for the week of April 27 are: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

from 18 months to six years, for lead poisoning. The simple finger-prick method will test for lead contamination in susceptible youngsters. Mary Jean Brown of the childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention program will conduct the free testing.

Dr. Joseph Godzik, Cohasset's health agent, has arranged for a special exhibit entitled, "The Convincer." The apparatus resembles an automobile collision which simulates the violence of a car crash. It is a startling reminder of the overwhelming impact of car crashes, Hansen said. The exhibit will be held adjacent to the parish house on William Long Road.

Nutritionist Andrea Blumberg of the South Shore Hospital will attend the health fair along with a special computer. Visitors will be able to talk to Blumberg about the food they eat. Through the use of a computer, she will be able to immediately tell what nutrients and vitamins are lacking in the diet, and explain how a better plan may be worked out for each individual.

Smokers and non smokers will be able to have the capacity of their lungs tested. And physical education expert Joann Shepherd will be supervising exercise demonstrations throughout the afternoon for all ages.

The Department of Elder Affairs' Keep Moving group will be organizing a half-hour walk from town hall at 1 p.m. All ages will be invited to join the group.

Chiropractor Susan Emmer will talk to visitors about stress management and nutrition throughout the afternoon.

"We see the health fair as an event which will be interesting to people of all ages," Hansen stated. "And it's not just for Cohasset residents. People from throughout this area are invited to attend - good health is important for everyone."

Along with "The Convincer," other outdoor exhibits will include the Cohasset ambulance and the fire department's Jaws of Life rescue equipment.

Bryanton also noted that the Council on Aging will sponsor free transportation to and from the health fair for elderly and handicapped residents. Call 383-9112 for a reservation.

"We really feel that everyone can benefit from this fair," she added. "We'd really like to attract the teenagers because they're at an age when they pay little attention to the foods they eat and the way it will affect them. And elderly people sometimes think it won't matter what they eat now because they're in their later years. But it's actually very important for them to stick to a proper diet - using moderation and a variety of foods in their diet."

Among the professionals in attendance at Health Fair '87 will be representatives from Rockport Shoes. He will explain to teenagers and elderly alike, how important proper sneakers and shoes are to your health and comfort, Bryanton stated.

The South Shore Visiting Nurse Association will be in attendance, discussing the hospice program. South Shore Elder Services will feature the home care program and a representative of the Athritis Foundation will be available to discuss issues and programs with interested residents.

The health fair committee includes Virigina Riley, Judy Collins and Mary Ahearn from the Social services League, Jane Hamilton from the Council on Aging, Health Agent Godzik, Bryanton and Hansen. It is their goal to provide a convenient and comprehensive medical service presentation to residents throughout the South Shore. "It's an outreach to the community," Hansen stated, "to raise important health issues and to promote good health. For the most part, people in this town take good care of themselves. But this fair is intended to reach those people who have not gone to their physician for a checkup, or they have specific questions about certain problems."

Bryanton added,"By offering preventative screening in a non-threatening environment, we hope to make good health more appealing to everyone."

In addition to sponsoring the fair, public health nurse Hansen will review individual screening and test results. If a follow-up examination is deemed necessary, Hansen will contact those individuals. This process will be completed in a strictly confidential manner.

Bryanton added,"We urge everyone to take advantage of this unique opportunity to learn about good health, and to put those good health practices into effect."

Teachers sponsors Bike-a-thon

The Cohasset Teachers Association will sponsor the 16th Annual Ride-a-Bike for Retarded Citizens on Sunday, May 17, from 1 to 4 p.m.

This is part of a state-wide effort by the Massachusetts Teachers Association who support the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens and its affiliates. The M.T.A. dollar contributions have revolutionized services for almost 200,000 mentally retarded children and adults. Your generous contributions have aided passage of Chapter 766; instituting early intervention for newborns; providing respite care; licensing of five state institutions under Title 19; newly-enacted Chapter 688 - "Turning 22"; and independence for mentally retarded citizens living in the community. Over $2 million dollars has been raised over the years through this campaign. These funds help the human, civil, and legal rights of the retarded citizens of the Commonwealth.

Registration forms are available at all three schools: Junior-Senior High School from Mr. Plante; Deer Hill School from Mr. Deakin and Mrs. Gallagher; and Joseph Osgood School from Mrs. Tewksbury and Irene Volpe.

There will be a $25 cash prize for the rider collecting the most money—$25 each for the boy and girl riding the most number of miles. If you wish to participate in the ride, please have sponsors pledge the amount of money they wish to donate per mile.

Anyone interested in participating in the Ride-a-Bike as a sponsor or donating to this worthy cause, may contact the coordinators for further information: Patrick and Maria Plante at 383-9263.

The start and finish will be from the Osgood School parking lot (corner of Sohier and Ripley Road) The Ride-a-Bike route will be published next week.

Golden honored

The New England Aquarium presented Sen. William B. Golden, D-Weymouth, with the David B. Stone Award Monday, for "distinguished service to the environment and community."

Attending the David B. Stone Award ceremonies at the aquarium were Michael Deland, regional director of the EPA; James Hoyte, state Secretary of Environment Affairs; Senate President William Bulger, and other representatives from public and private institutions.

This annual award, established in 1970, pays homage to the principal founder of the New England Aquarium, David B. Stone.

New planner Moore seeks controlled growth neighborhood problem; there are probably some people out there who think I ran for the planning board because I'm an anti-Stop and Shopper. I ran because I'd rather see a well done development than a pile of rusting equipment."

Citing concerns of increased traffic, Moore explained, he believes the Stop and Shop project "is not in the town's best interest."

Defining his role as a Cohasset planning board member, Moore noted, "It's not my business to tell anyone what should or should not be built. That's not the function of any board in town.

"The function of the planning board and its members," he added, "is to go beyond the obvious and to ask, 'Is this project in the best interests of the town? What are the impacts?' It's easy sometimes to slug into a rote approval pattern if you get no public support."

Moore said he believes it is important for all the town's citizens to get involved in protecting Cohasset's way of life.

"Look at the odd amalgamation of businesses along Route 3A," he said. "Hindsight shows us it should not have been done that way.

"Look at the new Bergson Restaurant," Moore said. "It was built with a fine-tuned approach. It's a lovely building, nicely done. If eveybody built with the same degree of care and planning, Route 3A would look much nicer. It's important that those questions be asked."

Although Stop and Shop is out of the way now, Moore sees great challenges ahead for the Cohasset planning board.

"As real estate prices grow," he commented, "there will be more pressure for development in Cohasset and we will have more and more difficult problems all the time. And it won't be just commercial development on Route 3A, but other things as well."

Although Moore has no engineering or architectural experience, he said he has kept himself informed about local issues. Moore said he also has lived in many places before coming to Cohasset, and "saw what worked and what didn't work" in each place.

Perhaps of greater significance, Moore explained, "I'm willing to make the commitment. I've thought about it a lot and in my philosophy, I don't do things half-way. I go all the way."

Moore said his philosophy demands that he be objective and fair. "I don't come down squarely on one side of an issue, but I am capable of making the tough decisions. "It can be difficult when the board has to stand firm against a project and it can be just as difficult when the board stands in favor of a project."

The new member said he is looking forward to the challenges which await him on the Cohasset planning board and hopes the townspeople will turn out to lend him and his fellow board members their support.

"In the old days before zoning regulations," he said, "if someone wanted to slap up an odd looking building in a commercial area, the majority of the townspeople could not have cared less.

"Now, with real estate prices exploding, people are more concerned," he said. "Cohasset is not a little rural town anymore and we have to be more concerned with the quality of life here."

By John Magadieu

Alfred Moore

Social service league celebrates with seminar

The Social Service League of Cohasset has provided a wide variety of health, education and welfare programs for area residents since 1912.

In keeping with this tradition, the league will kick-off a celebration of its 75th anniversary with a seminar relating diet and exercise to health, Wednesday, April 29 at 10:30 a.m. in the Walton Rodgers Hall, St. Stephen's Church. Guests include those who have been active in keeping the league a vital force in the community.

Greer Underwood of Hingham, award-winning cookbook author, will demonstrate reduced calorie

At 10:30 a.m. two experts will discuss the benefits of walking and other exercise programs.

A light lunch featuring some of Ms. Underwood's recipes will be served at 12:30 p.m.

The meeting and lunch is open to the public free of charge. Those planning to attend should make reservations by calling either 383-0771 or 383-0821.

The annual meeting will follow lunch.

Massachusetts has its own gate: Plategate

Commentary

Delegates to the Iowa Presidential caucuses next February probably have already noted that, when confronted by crisis, Michael Dukakis reacts like the general manager of a wounded baseball team.

He fires the manager.

Thus, Alan A. Mackey, the registrar of motor vehicles, bit the dust last week after his agency (read that "team") started losing face (read that "games") at a critical juncture in the presidential (read that"pennant") race over low numbered license plates.

Mackey, of course, denied that he was forced to step down as manager of the registry team. He said he was planning to retire anyway. But didn't Don Zimmer say that when he got the boot as Red Sox manager a few years ago?

What is there about low numbered license plates that holds such fascination for folks in Massachusetts, particularly those who are elected or appointed to public office? And, as it turns out, their friends, too.

The Duke is well aware of it. He gave orders that no low numbered plates were to be given out without his say-so. Then he took off for Iowa or North Carolina or someplace like that seeking presidential delegates.

That's like putting a plate of ice cream on the kitchen counter, telling the kids not to touch it and going next door for a cup of sugar.

The governor was on the road when an elderly lady named Peabody, who lived in Dover, died leaving plates No. 61 and 62 up for grabs. And grab they did.

While Dukakis was milking cows in Iowa or curing tobacco in Carolina, Mackey placed No. 61 at the disposal of Senate President Billy Bulger and No. 62 in the hands of House Speaker George Keverian.

No. 62 wound up affixed to the rear end of a car driven by Needham attorney Thomas Giblin, a friend of Keverian, and when it was taken away from him later on he sued to get it back, claiming that his civil rights had been violated.

This, of course, placed decisions in the Case of the Low Numbered License Plates on a par with Brown vs. Board of Education, the Supreme Court ruling that desegregated the schools in Tulsa, Okla., back in 1954.

That wasn't all.

While the Duke was sampling Cajun cooking in Louisiana, a further investigation uncovered indications that someone in the registry had been playing games with a new issue of commercial license plates.

Guess who had No. 1. Why, Greg Mackey, the registrar's son. Guess who had No. 106. His daughter-in-law. Guess who had No. B-1. His dentist. And guess who had No. I-9. His doctor.

"Plategate," they called it.

The matter might still have been laughed off had not Dukakis, on the campaign trail, discovered an alarming trend.

While Gary Hart was being questioned about glasnost; and Richard Gephardt was being queried on farm policy; the Duke was being asked about low numbered license plates.

Serious presidential campaigns are not mounted on the response to questions like that. Ergo, Alan Mackey had to go.

Of course, there are still those who suspect that it was all a Republican plot.

When was the last time an elderly Democrat named Peabody lived in Dover?

Mass. Audobon Society program

The Mass. Audubon Society's South Shore Sanctuaries at 2000 Main St., Route 3A, Marshfield, will present several programs of interest in the next few weeks.

On Thursday, May 7, a slide show on ants, fleas and termites will be presented. These are insects most people are familiar with and would rather not have as house guests.

Find out how you can safely control these household pests through integrated pest management and reduce the risk of pesticides to humans.

Cost is $3 for members, $4, non-members.

☐ Beth W. Perry, daughter of Mrs. Doris Perry, has been named to the Faculty Honors list for the fall semester at Trinity College. To earn this honor, a student must achieve a semester grade point average of A- or better with no individual letter grade below B-. Beth is a freshman, and a 1986 CHS graduate. Her college, Trinity, was founded in 1823 and is one of the nation's leading independent liberal arts colleges.It maintains a rigorous curriculum founded in the liberal arts and sciences to help students discover their strengths, develop their individual potential and prepare themselves for lives that are both personally satisfying and valuable to others.

☐ Our hats are off to Sharod Hemassi, Rebecca Kirk and Maureen Smith, seventh graders at Cohasset junior-senior high. They will receive awards for their achievements in the Talent Search Program sponsored by the Johns Hopkins University.

☐ Make your plans to join the Bound Brook Artisans Co-op this weekend, as they celebrate their fifth anniversary. They are holding a two day celebration including refreshments, a $25 gift certificate giveaway, and 10 percent off all of the items in the shop! This gala will be held May 2 and 3 (Saturday and Sunday). They are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and are located on Chief Justice Cushing Highway.

☐ News from Honolulu Hawaii, from Kathy (Andrews) and Scott Muir. They became the parents of a baby girl, Teri Andrews Muir, on Friday, April 17. Teri weighed in at a hefty 6 lbs. 9 ozs. Grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Migliaccio and Rev. and Mrs. Muir (who now reside in sunny Florida) are thrilled over the grand event. In fact, "Granny Migliaccio" is planning a trip to Hawaii in a few weeks so that she can "spoil little Teri rotten."

☐ Congratulations to our local anthropologist Jean Dittrick, who recently published a simple method for determining the sex of a prehistoric human skeleton from a single long bone of an arm or leg. Thanks to her method, all that is needed are a small sliding caliper and a table of measurements compiled by researchers! She and her associate, Judy Myers Suchey, had their conclusions published in the American Journal of Physical Anthropology.

☐ Maureen A. Buckley, daughter of John and Cleida Buckley, sure gets a round of applause this week! Maureen, a senior at Bates College, has been named to the Dean's List with a quality point average of 4.0 (that's a straight A average!), and she was one of 16 students in the whole college to do so (out of 1,496 students) Maureen is a 1983 CHS graduate.

☐ Maureen Buckley, daughter of John and Cleida Buckley of 26 Old Coach Rd., will travel to Kenya as part of a short term unit offered by Maine's Bates College, where she is a senior.

Led by Victoria Bernal, assistant professor of anthropology, seven Bates students will spend four weeks learning about Kenya's attempts to improve its economic performance and provide education, health care, and other services to its population. Visits are planned to different regions of the country to learn about the contrasts between urban and rural life.

☐ Attention all of you hort i culturists, the South Shore Natural Science Center is looking for your plants! They are holding a sale on May 20 and would welcome contributions of plants and seedlings to be sold at the sale. They ask that you place the plants in pots large enough to fit the roots, firm the soil around the roots and water thoroughly, label the plant and flower color, then bring it to the Science Center on Monday-Friday, from 9-4, Saturday 9-4 and Sundays 1-4. Help support their educational and conservation programs.

☐ This Friday is May 1, and as a wise man once said, "Hurray, Hurray, first of May . . . enjoy it!"

☐ Congratulations to Robert J. Tis, who has been named District Manager of Boston Edison's Southern Division.

☐ That's all there is for this week. Let us know what you did over the spring vacation, hopefully you had more sun than we did in Cohasset!

Their son Dana Doggett, received his Master's in Computer Science, and is married with two small children, and working as a software engineer for Novell.

Dana's brother, Peter, arrived from Seal Beach, CA to join in the family celebration.

Nuke bill gets vote

The Legislature's Joint Energy Committee voted last week to give a favorable report to major new legislation dealing with nuclear power, including one that would prohibit the operation of any nuclear power plant in Massachusetts until a highlevel radioactive waste disposal site has been developed, approved and licensed by the federal government.

The bill S. 335, filed by State Senator William Golden (D-Weymouth) would effectively mothball any licensed nuclear power plant in the state until a radioactive waste site is developed or until such time as the Energy Facility Siting Council declared a need for such a plant to return to service.

The measure, if enacted would be the first of its kind in the nation because it would shut down nuclear power plants that are currently licensed, as opposed to a statute in California which has declared a moratorium which is limited to non-licensed facilities only.

The Energy Committee also voted to give a favorable report to another piece of legislation dealing with nuclear power, which includes calling for a 50-mile emergency response planning zone around nuclear power plants both inside and bordering Massachusetts.

Also, the bill contains language from another bill filed by Golden, which calls for the Department of Public Utilities to assess the operators of nuclear power plants for the costs associated with the research, review, development or implementation of state and local emergency response plans incurred by state and local governments.

Our responsibility

With the plight of Cohasset Heights in the forefront of our thoughts and headlines, we tend to forget we have our own landfill to supervise.

The board of health, taking an advantage of a temporary respite in the CHL controversy, decided to clamp down on regulations at the town dump.

After perhaps too long a wait, the board decided to take sanctions against the landfill - assuring it is a clean operation for the environment and surrounding neighborhoods.

For too long, litter has found its way out of the dump and onto adjacent lawns and backyards along Cedar Street. Following the lead set by Scituate, the local board voted this week to require all trash to be contained within bags. Although it is debatable how biodegradable plastic containers are, this will at least eliminate most of the loose litter which constantly flies from the back of open pick-up trucks and car trunks on their way to the landfill.

And while we are in the process of reviewing the operations of CHL with a fine toothcomb, we must in good conscience, do the same with our municipal dump. Is our leachate as clean as we expect from the local commercial dump? It would indeed be embarassing, if not criminal, if we castigated CHL for its unsafe operation, while ignoring our own degradation of the environment.

It is only proper that we turn some attention and focus onto Cedar Street. For surely we are not immune to the problems for which we angrily accuse Cohasset Heights.

But we taxpayers are the owners of this landfill, and the responsibility for its proper and safe operation is ours. The new testing regulations put into effect by the board of health are long overdue but nonetheless welcome. We must be willing to put our money where our mouth is, and enforce the same stringent rules equitably.

We applaud the board members for their action this week. They did the proper thing despite possible opposition from residents who don't want to spend more money on a landfill with limited life expectancy. Although we may not use the dump for many more years, it will always be there. Whatever is constructed atop the landfill, will have to rest there comfortably - confident that it is not resting upon an environmental disaster area.

And the neighbors along the road to the landfill are taxpayers, too. They should not have to deal with the tons of litter which flows onto their property from uncaring depositors.

While we are carefully investigating CHL, we should continue to acknowledge our own responsibility. The town of Cohasset must be careful not to portray ourselves as hapless victims, if we are indeed the 'bad guys' adorned in black hats.

Old Colony must go to Boston

To the Editor:

Recent media accounts on the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority's (MBTA) report of a proposed scaled down reestablishment of commuter rail transportation for the South Shore has prompted this response.

The County of Plymouth, which is comprised of 26 towns and one city and has a population of nearly 500,000 residents and represents a geographical area of 1/14th of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, is being sorely cheated.

On or about the 1960's commuter rail transportation to the aforementioned South Shore communities ceased to operate and forced the local folk on the South Shore to revert to the automobile.

For the next 27 years, Plymouth County residents, many of whom work in the city of Boston and beyond, have made the daily pilgrimage along Route 3 to their places of livelihood, only to be confronted with an ever-increasing volume of vehicles.

For years, the North Shore has been catered to under the transportation umbrella. As soon as a problem existed in the commuter rail bridges on the northern side of North Station, the State Legislature and Governor reacted in unison to rectify their "serious commuter transportation problem," while South Shore residents huddled in crowded masses along Route 3.

And yet, almost 30 years after the abandonment of commuter rail transportation, the MBTA has recommended that a "scaled down" version of rail transportation be instituted. After exhaustive studies, the MBTA has taken the position that the South Shore commuting "public" would be better served by dumping all Plymouth County commuters from two rail beds at the Braintree MBTA station for the long, overcrowded and stressful trip to the city of Boston, along the already crowded Red Line.

Letters

It appears, the city of Quincy has indicated its concern on "allowing" passenger rail service to pass within its boundries. Our law books and court dockets are full of laws and case laws which refuse municipalities from standing in the way of the public convenience and public safety. Certainly, the care and concern of approximately 500,000 residents of the county of Plymouth should be above the concerns and objections of the mayor and city council of the city of Quincy.

The old saying "politics is the art of compromise" should prevail in this matter. The County of Plymouth currently has three rail beds, the Boston to Plymouth line, the Boston to Middleborough line, and the Boston to Scituate line. The study has shown the residents along the Boston to Scituate line are opposed. Perhaps this would not be an advisable line to rectify. However, the other rail beds are in place with overwhelming support for direct lines to South Station.

Certainly, a trade-off or eliminating the Boston to Scituate line in exchange for the rebuilding of the Neponset River Bridge seems a fair compromise. This would allow direct commuter rail-transportation from the County of Plymouth to South Station.

In order to have a serious spark for reestablishing commuter rail, direct lines to South Station must be maintained. South Shore commuters will not seriously travel along commuter rail only to switch to the MBTA at Braintree for the trip to Boston.

The future of the South Shore is at hand. Our hope is to prevail upon the members of the General Court and his excellency, the governor, for their intervention.

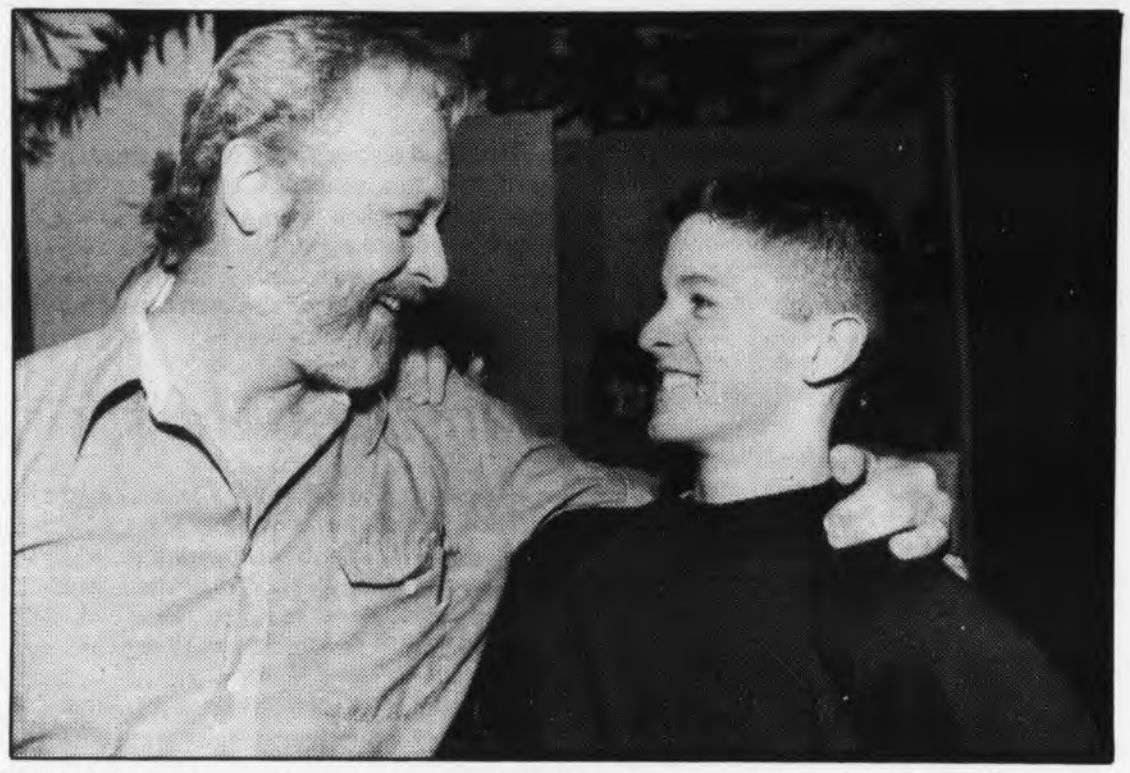
Kevin R. Donovan, Chairman
Plymouth County Commissioners

Why must we fight landfill fairly?

To the editor:

The Cohasset Mariner has lately informed the citizens of Cohasset that we must fight fairly with regard to Cohasset Heights. We have been told by the editor of the Mariner we must be patient with engineering studies and lawsuits. In fact when I offered information to a Mariner reporter I was told the story would be going on for some time and there was no hurry to get that information.

Just to set the record straight. Nationwide the operative principles are Greed, Heresy and Rhetoric. Greed because the lawyers and engineers want more money before they do or say anything. Heresy because the engineers and lawyers are advocating the release of toxic carcinogens into swamps and air as a safe sensible disposal method. Rhetoric because these people will talk nonsense forever and do nothing.



This is what the Mariner should be paying attention to, not our behavior as citizens. The citizens of Cohasset should recognize that few if any of the Mariner's reporters live in Cohasset, drink the water, or have equity in Cohasset property.

Brian Lipsett
Pond Street

(Although some staff members do not live in Cohasset, that does not preclude our active interest in the commu . We have a great stake in this town, Mr. Lipsett, and serve here with a sense of responsibility and privilege.

On frequent occasions, we have also quenched our thirst with a glass of your Cohasset water. — Ed.)

Dramatic Club presents 'The Shadow Box' this weekend at Town Hall

Hal MacLaughlin embraces his son played by Jay Staunton in the Dramatic Club's production of Michael Cristofer's "The Shadow Box."

Virginia Dowling (Beverly) finds Eddie Fee (Mark) in her home. The production begins Friday at 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

'Massachusetts Miracle' may be poisoned

Letters

To the editor:

The "Massachusetts Miracle" is in danger of severely backfiring due to the irresponsible production, handling and treatment of hazardous waste. The high tech computer, plastic, printing and plating industries with their great success are all beginning to sink under the quantity and expense of their waste production and treatment flow. When improperly handled or discharged into a waterway or landfill, one drum of benzene contaminates fifty-five million gallons of water to the one part per million level that the medical community now considers unsafe. One bad barrel can spoil a landfill that might have had years of life ahead of it. Since printing inks and used motor oil cost more to dispose of than to purchase and since plastics manufacturing produces twice its weight in hazardous waste, the continued "miracle" doubles our waste nightmare.

The list of eastern Massachusetts towns that don't have a water or air hazard from a solid waste landfill or hazardous waste treatment site is far shorter than the list of towns that do have a problem. By November of next year we will have a presidential candidate riding an economic miracle to Washington D. C. while his former constituents are considering evacuation plans.

It's a contradiction that the Massachusetts administration wants state control over the federal nuclear regulating body while the same administration wants to override towns' home rule in order to site landfills without local interference. Maybe they should think more imaginatively and consider converting the Seabrook and Pilgrim sites from nuclear-fueled plants into trash-to-energy plants fueled by the state's unrecyclable rubbish, with smoke filtration and ash containment.

Landfill operators and municipal coordinators can't see everything coming into a landfill, route drivers can't see everything coming out of a dumpster bin, dispatchers and fleet owners can't control the pressures to make unscheduled stops on otherwise safe routes, the state and federal agencies aren't afforded the manpower to monitor the overall waste flow statewide, and still the growing need to dump it somewhere overrides the glaring need to dump it safely. Even householders who know better than to mix an ammonia with a bleach in the kitchen go ahead and throw the two together in the same dump.

We are all responsible parties to the damage done by poor solid and hazardous waste treatment. Vigilance and response will help if unobstructed by endless scientific debate about our projected half-life, by legal maneuvering to avoid adherence to the laws, or by state court delays in allowing towns to seek enforcement of their local board's rulings. Only when every citizen says not in my backyard at once will the producers be forced to face their waste instead of expecting the haulers and the state to hide their problem in somebody else's backyard. With three-quarters of this state's landfills due to close after three years and new sites hard to find, very soon the only safe dumping will be no dumping at all. Hopefully by then we will have returned to a full recycling and reuse of raw materials—the same program that this country employed to win World War II.

Bring your binoculars and meet at the Science Center, on Thursdays, May 14, 21, 28 from 9 a.m. to noon. Prepaid registration required (members/$4 per walk or $15 for all 4 walks; non-members/$5 per walk or $19 for all 4 walks). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

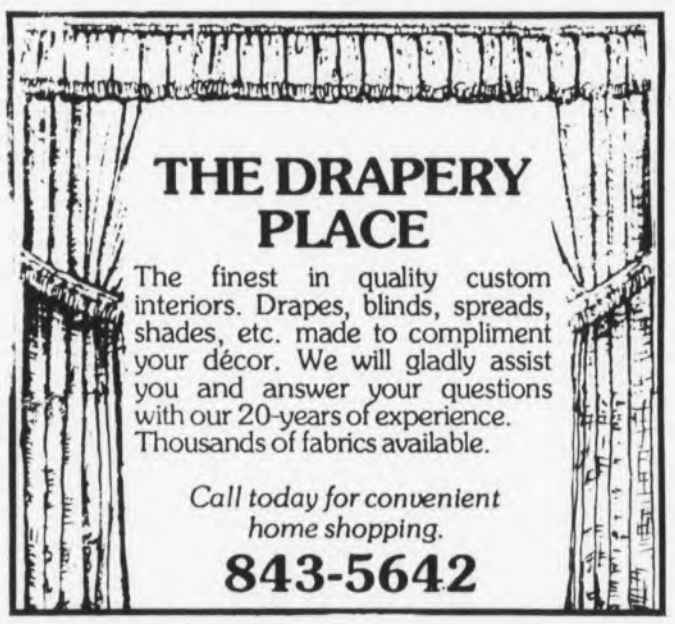
WINNIE LOU'S FLOWER WALK

Look for wildlings with Winnie Lou Rounds, expert gardener and wildlife sleuth. Destinations will be decided on the basis of what's blooming, on Friday, May 15 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Prepaid registration required (members/$5; non-members/$6). Call 659-2559 for registration information.



HUCK FINN FISHING

Fishing the old fashioned way! Make your own pole and try catching some of the local fresh water fish. By observing your catch learn how a fish can live in his underwater environment, with Tryg Swift, on Saturday, May 16 from 10 a.m. to noon. Prepaid registration required (members/$4; non-members/$5). Call 659-2559 for registration information.

BIRD SEED SALE

All remaining bird seed is on sale now at the Science Center. There is still a good selection.

South Shore Natural Science Center is on Jacobs Lane, Norwell, and is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays and most holidays. Free admission. Trails, library, exhibits, gift shop.

Special museum tour May 21

The Cohasset Historical Society and Cohasset Recreation Department will hold a special guided tour of the Society's Capt. John Wilson Historical House and Maritime Museum at Cohasset Center Thursday, May 21 at 11 a.m.

For this tour, the two historic Cohasset buildings will be open to Cohasset and area residents in advance of the Historical Society's regular summer museum season which runs from mid-June to the end of September. The Capt. John Wilson Historical House is an 1810 Cohasset Sea Captain's home, furnished with antiques, home furnishings, children's toys, early kitchenware and artworks representative of the early and mid-19th century, found in the old homes of the town. The Wilson House itself is the remaining example in Cohasset of an early home close to its original condition, largely unmodernized and retaining many of its early features.

The Maritime Museum, adjacent on Elm Street, was Samuel, then John Bates' Ship Chandlery and Counting House, and was part of one of the town's 18th-century fishing and mercantile seafaring ventures. Originally located near Bates' Wharf on Border Street, the old Chandlery building was moved to its present location during the 1950's when it was presented to the Historical Society. Today, the Maritime Museum contains an extensive collection of artifacts, relics, ship models, documents and artworks relating to Cohasset's maritime history. Also found there is a large collection of general historical interest, ranging from Indian stone tools to early housewright's equipment and a "fisherman's Country Store" of the latter 19th century.

The special May 21 tour will be accompanied by the Society's Senior Curator, and will meet at the Maritime Museum. To pre-register for this unusual event please call the Cohasset Recreation office at 383-6791. There will be a $1 donation requested at the time of the tour, to benefit the Historical Society.

Cohasset Worship . . .

First Parish news

Rev. Edward T. Atkinson, Minister, Parish House, 23 N. Main, 383-1100.

Canvass news:

A significant number of canvassers are in progress. If you have not yet heard from a solicitor to set up a personal visit, you should expect a call no later than this weekend. The Canvass Committee asks that each Parish member reflect on his or her gift decision before being called on by a canvasser and that each member consider a generous gift which reflects our belief in the needs of First Parish.

Jack Martin,
Campaign Co-Chairperson

Community Outreach Program Committee:

A Community Outreach Program Committee has been meeting on a regular basis following the worship service each Sunday. As many as ten Parish members are now attending the meetings. We welcome ideas from anyone in the Parish as to possible projects we might support. You can talk to us at one of the meetings after church or send your suggestion in writing to the church office.

Catholic outreach

Inactive Catholics and those of other faiths interested in learning more about the Catholic Church are invited to an evening of sharing at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 7 at St. Ann's Church, corner of Lewis and Samoset streets in Hull. The evening is sponsored by St. Mary of the Assumption Parish; for information, call 925-0680.

Census continues

Volunteers will collect census forms left with each family in Hull and within the boundaries of St. Mary of the Assumption Parish in Hingham and Cohasset on Sunday, May 3, between 2 and 7 p.m.

If you cannot be home to give the form back to the census worker, please leave it in your mailbox or mail to to the church rectory, 58 Nantasket Ave., Hull.

Beechwood Church services

The Beechwood Congregational Church invites everyone to worship at 10:45 a.m Sunday mornings. The pastor is Stephen S.J. Hall. Child care is provided.

The Sunday school meets from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. for grades K-8. As always, friends are welcome.

We would like to thank the family and friends of "Ted" Ludwin for their generous gift of a VCR donated in his memory. Already the Sunday school and youth group has put it to good use.

Youth group will meet at the Church Sunday at 7 p.m. Light refreshments.

Sunday, May 3, parishoner Janet Pratt of Scituate will join the 18th annual "Walk for Hunger." This is the nation's largest single walking event and is expected to draw 25,000 participants. Janet will be walking the 20 miles from Boston Common to Brookline, Newton, Cambridge and back to the Common. The entire congregation will be with you in spirit, Janet. Those who signed up to sponsor her had better be prepared to pay up as Janet walked the full 20 miles last year!

Sunday, May 10, we will have a memorial moment for Cpl. William C. Laidlaw and Pfc. Peter Cogill, members of the church whose lives were ended in service to their country in Viet Nam. We have not forgotten, we will not forget.

We are still looking for voices to fill out the choir until June. Feel like singing? See Alan after church.

Family living discussion

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints of Hingham is sponsoring a lecture Friday, May 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the LDS chapel, 76 Main St. in Foxboro.

The speaker, dean of the College of Family, Home and Social Sciences at Brigham Young University, is Dr. Terry D. Olson. He will speak on the subject, "Family Dilemmas: a Gospel Solution."

Have you sometimes felt burdened by the demands of modern living? What if dilemmas which seem to trap us were of our own making and totally unnecessary? How could we be free of them? Prof. Olson will discuss how the Savior's offer to an easy yoke and a light burden can apply to family living.

The talk is open to the public and tickets (at $4) will be available at the door. For details call Polly Doggett 383-1847.

Ken Coleman of Cohasset recently celebrated a birthday along with 32 years of Red Sox broadcasts. Coleman can be heard on radio station WPLM.

Sixty plus club to party

Cohasset Sixty Plus Club has a special program scheduled for Thursday, May 21. Lunch is at noon with a short business meeting to follow.

This is also annual reports month. Officers be ready with your reports.

Cohasset High School chorus will entertain at 1:30 p.m. This group of young people, just returned from an exciting and top singing performance for Epcot at Florida's Disneyworld. Let's have a large audience to show our appreciation.

Tenants at 60 Elm St., will enjoy a pot-luck supper, Wednesday, May 20 at 5 p.m. at Harbor View Hall.

The cuisine will be by the fine cooks, at the complex. All tenants come, bring your specialty or make a donation.

More dates for your calendar - Wednesday, June 17 will be Sixty Plus Club's annual gala party at Hugo's Lighthouse.

There will be a social hour before dinner, including a punch bowl. Hugo's special cuisine will be announced later. There will be a musical program after dinner.

This is the Club's thirty year anniversary. Anyone who has any notes or pictures of past presidents or special events, contact your publicity chairperson at 383-0744.

Plans are still pending for a bus trip to Cape Cod, with a two hour boat trip on the canal. A possible date is Friday, June 26. Lunch would be at Harbor Lights Restaurant in Onset. Details will follow.

The Adirondack Adventure, scheduled for June 23-25 will travel by deluxe motorcoach to Lake George and onto the Georgean Resort for exciting entertainment. The club must have an immediate deposit of $25. Twin occupancy is $209; single is $259 and triple $199.

Call Connie only, 545-3349, for reservations and information.

A baseball trip may be scheduled for Saturday, July 25. The Red Sox take on the Seattle ball club. All details will follow.

Road Rally

"Explorer" Post 28 will host a Road Rally, May 3 at the Cohasset Music Circus. The rally will take place from 11 a.m. - 5 p.m.

The schedule is as follows:

11-11:45 a.m., Registration, car inspections; 12-3 p.m., Road Rally ; 3-4:30 p.m., Gymkhana, demonstrations; 4:30 - 5 p.m. Awards ceremony.

SOME BANKS BUILD EXECUTIVE DINING ROOMS FOR THEIR TOP BRASS. WE'D RATHER INVEST THAT MONEY IN A RESTAURANT AND TELL OUR EXECUTIVES TO EAT THEIR HEARTS OUT.

Not that we don't like our executives.
We just have better things to do with our money. Mainly, investing it in things like small businesses, home improvements, new mortgages, second mortgages, car loans and even a new computer system to improve and expand our services.
So if you need a bank you can work with, come to Rockland Federal Credit Union. We have everything you'll find in a big bank. Very often more.
It's only our executives who get a little less.

Save the harbor

There will be a rally/presentation April 30 from 7 to 9 p.m. by the Hingham chapter of Save the Harbor -Save the Bay featuring talks with Senator Bill Golden and writer Ian Menzies.

Save the Harbor is a non-profit organization of people commited to one goal - cleaning up the Boston Harbor. Thursday night at 7 p.m. at the Wompatuck State park the staff at Save the Harbor and members of it's Hingham Chapter will discuss what has happened to Boston Harbor, why it's been cited by the Environmental Protection Agency as the most polluted in the nation, and the hopes for it's future.

The organization encourages everyone to ask questions or give suggestions about this issue. Join Save the Harbor in its effort to put an end to the pollution that plagues Hingham harbor. RSVP if you can. For information and directions call the local Hingham Chapter Committee member or Save the Harbor at 742-7283.

Cohasset Little League parade

The Cohasset Little League will open the 1987 baseball season with the annual little league parade beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday May 2. All little leaguers will gather at 9:15 a.m. at the Red Lion Inn.

The Cohasset Fire and Police Departments will lead the parade along with the Deer Hill School band. The parade will proceed from the Red Lion Inn down Main Street to the little league field where award presentations will be made to 1986 little league champs, Yankees.

Immediately following the presentations opening game will be played between the Mets and Braves. State representative, Mary Janette Murray will throw out the first ball.

Come to opening day festivities and support the kids.

The rain date is Sunday, May 3; gather at 1:15 p.m. at Red Lion Inn.

Studds at CO-OP 6 meeting

Congressman Gerry Studds will be the guest speaker at a brunch Sunday, May 3 at The Barnside Tavern in Hanover, sponsored by CO-OP 6, and hosted by the Hingham Democratic Town Committee.

CO-OP is made up of the Democratic Town Committees of Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Scituate and Weymouth to encourage participation in the Democratic Party and to promote cooperative activities among South Shore Democrats.

Tickets for the brunch may be purchased from Marguerite Cartwright, Chairman of the Hingham Town Committee.

Music Theatre's 'Evita' a smashing success

By David Johnson
Mariner Staff

The British invasion of American theater continued last weekend at Hingham High School with the Hingham Music Theatre's smashing production of "Evita."

The award winning musical is one of a string of hits from British composer Andrew Lloyd Webber and writer Tim Rice. They also wrote "Cats" and the current Broadway hit, "Les Miserables."

But of course "Evita" (Little Eva) is not about England, but Argentina and the illegitimate peasant girl who became the most powerful woman in Latin America.

The tumultuous life of Eva Peron is a classic rags to riches tale. In her short 33 years she did more living than most who survive to old age.

The music theater wisely followed the Broadway play, creating a polished production that captured the specatular rise of this fascinating woman, regarded even today by Argentina's masses as a national saint.

After a poverty-stricken childhood in a provincial slum, Eva bullied, schemed and slept her way to become a top radio star.

She married Colonel Juan Peron, helping him win the presidency on a socialist platform of higher wages, better working conditions, nationalization of industry and vote for women.

A consumate politician and showman, Eva used her background to secure the fanatical devotion of the working classes, the descamisados or "shirtless ones."

The Hingham Civic Music Theatre did an outstanding job, worthy of being called professional. Down to the smallest detail, this was polished, enjoyable theater.

The production was especially impressive because Donald Capen, the director, had to replace one of the leads, Gregory Bouchard, who got appendicitis last Thursday.

Capen was a marvelous Che Guevara, the narrator/antagonist. This reviewer saw the entire performance without realizing it was a stand-in playing Che. Capen should be commended for upholding the theater tradition of putting on the show, no matter what. How he perfected the role, with its many solos, in just one day, is remarkable.

At the beginning, however, Che and the rest of the cast seemed a bit unsure of themselves. At times it was hard to hear them, but they appeared to grow in confidence and in volume as the performance progressed.

Norwell's Donna Milani Luther was a lovely Evita, with a perfect voice. Like others, she was not loud enough at the opening, but her performance quickly improved, reaching a crescendo with the moving death scene at the end.

Eva Peron was a complicated, almost schizophrenic, woman, a saint and a prostitute all at once. While Luther easily captured the feminine, helpless Evita, Senora Peron the bitch could have been stronger.

Heavier make-up would help — thicker lipstick, longer eye lashes, a beauty mark — would make Evita just a bit tougher.

At times, Luther could also have been more emotional. Remember, Latins lean toward the dramatic.

Eva (Donna Milani Luther) is lifted by Doug Trudeau during the dance number, "Buenes Aires."

For example, there is real pathos in the song, "The Actress Hasn't Learned the Lines You'd Like to Hear." Throughout her life, Eva was humiliated by Argentina's arrogant aritocrats. Luther could have been more emotional here, although in "High Flying Adored," she did capture Eva's pathetic side.

Overall, however, Luther did a grade A job.

Timothy Fitzgerald was an excellent Peron, doubting and wooden, almost a backdrop for his effervescent wife.

Although he handled his role to perfection, Fitzgerald didn't look old enough. Peron was 48 when he met Eva, 56 when she died. Some gray at the temples or facial lines would have helped.

As Magaldi, the travelling tango singer who "discovered" Eva, Perry St. Louis was also quite good. His voice sounded flawless.

Again, however, the character seemed too young and innocent. St. Louis looked more like an appealing teen star than a third-rate degenerate, sleeping with teenage girls. An ounce or two of vaseline on his hair would work wonders. St. Louis might also consider a more leering expression.

Another beautiful voice belonged to Brenda Chase, who played Peron's teenage mistress whom Eva dumped into the street.

"Evita" was as fun to watch as it was to listen to.

The enormous supporting cast darted on and off stage without a hitch. Their authentic, colorful costumes and props moved the story along.

Perhaps the best in the chorus was the group playing the upper class. All in black and white formal clothes and equipped with cigarette holders, pearls and a champagne class, they periodically glided about the stage in a group, singing nasty things about Evita.

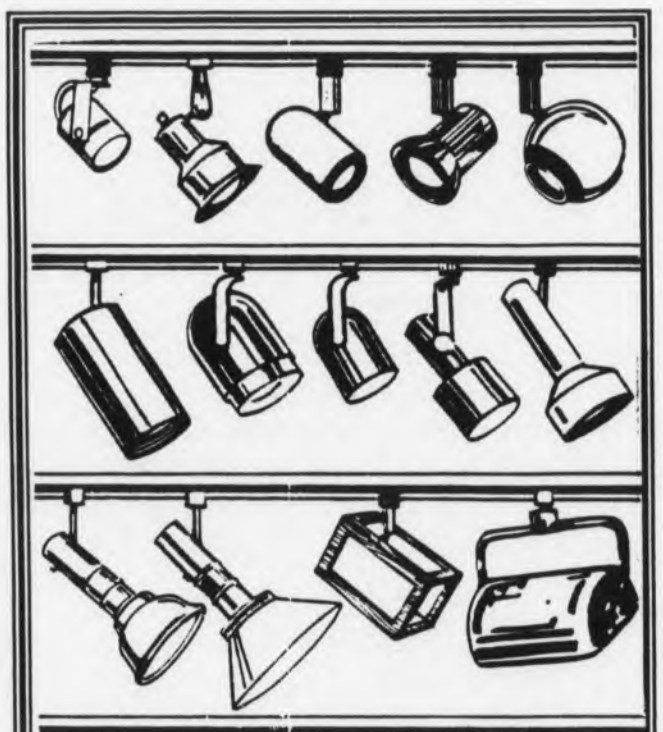
Another nice touch was the soldiers, all wearing black moustaches and sunglasses, marching about with comic precision.

However, the entire chorus, the "People of Argentina," did a splendid job, both singing and dancing.

The ten children, Jared Baker, Emily and Karen Bartholomew, Caroline and Kate deLima, James McGonnigal, Kim and Scott Seroll, Sarah Snyder and Claire Whitner deserve special applause for their pleasing voices and well executed candle scene.

The orchestra, under the capable direction of conductor Margo Euler, and the pit chorus, all did a splendid job.

Director Donald Capen should be congratulated for an organized, carefully researched, well executed show. Everyone involved with "Evita" should be proud of his work.



The show opened last Friday to one of the largest first night crowds ever seen by the Hingham Civic Music Theatre. Saturday, the Hingham High auditorium was filled to capacity.

"Evita" continues May 1 and 2, at 8 p.m. Call Sandy Baker at 749-0867 for tickets — a bargain at $6 ($5 for students and senior citizens, $7 at the door.)

See "Evita." The performance does full justice to a wonderful play and great story.

Cohasset trash - it's in the bag do? We can't just have it sit there.

"Torch it!" he suggested. "I'm speaking as a taxpayer."

Laugelle explained, it would cost the town $15,000 to move the brush from where it is at the landfill to a place where it could be buried there. Also, much of it is "beyond chipping;" it is matted and decomposing.

"Could we close the landfill to brush?" queried Becker. "People should burn it on their own properties."

"We would have brush dumped all along the roadways," health agent Joseph Godzik commented.

Laugelle lamented, "I guess we'll have to take it and bury it in the landfill."

The health board will approach the advisory committee for funds for the brush burial, while Modzelewski confers with the state.

While he is conferring about brush, Modzelewski also will question the state about its new landfill cover material requirements.

The new requirements recently imposed by the state are more stringent with regard to the permeability of cover material.

Modzelewski noted, the board's early plan to put on a thicker layer of the material presently used, rather than switching to the less permeable, more expensive material now required by the state would be no good because the newly required material is less permeable by a factor of 10.

"In Braintree, they're using a geotextile fabric," Baird noted. "An impervious barrier and stone side-slopes would take care of it."

Modzelewski told the board there has been "some serious settling" of older capped portion of the landfill, yet no leachate was coming from the older cap despite Laugelle's driving over it. Laugelle told the board he is considering building a road across the cap.

The fill used in the old cap was supplied by the Barry brothers, owners of the embattled commercial landfill on Crocker Lane.

The problem Cohasset has with the new requirement is that fill impermeable to the new state standard can only be found in western Massachusetts, making it harder to get and more costly.

"I wonder what other landfills are doing," said John Burns, health board chairman.

"Ours is the first landfill they're putting this regulation on," Godzik said.

While Modzelewski chats with the state, the board will test the permeability of its material again and look into other methods of coverage.

Health board meets with CHL's neighbors

The board of health Monday sought to give and receive information regarding potential neighborly impact on test results at the Cohasset Heights landfill.

Meeting with representatives from Webb-Norfolk Conveyor and the state Dept. of Public Works, CHL's "upgradient" abutters, the board hoped to determine what, if any contributions were made to the dump's well test results from neighboring properties.

The meeting precipitated from testimony by GHR Engineering at recent hearings on the site plan of the commercial landfill on Crocker Lane.

GHR testimony indicated levels of salt and benzene emanating from the two neighboring sites have contributed to the high levels of those substances discovered in the analyses of monitoring well samples from the dump.

William Handrahan of Webb-Norfolk Conveyor told the board a thorough cleanup followed an oil spill at the site. "We dug back to bare rock and found 11 or 12 empty, rusty drums which were used by the previous owner.

"Monitoring wells were installed," he added, "but they were ruled inappropriate for ground water sampling, because there was no ground water."

With regard to the elevated benzene levels in the upgradient wells, which GHR attested to, Handrahan noted, "The only solvents we used were in painting; it was a closed system. The solvents were removed by Clean Harbors.

"It seems unlikely to me that any of their upgradient wells could be contaminated by Webb-Norfolk Conveyor," said health agent Joseph Godzik.

Cohasset heralds bicentennial of Constitution

Two hundred years ago more than fifty delegates from 12 of the original states prepared to journey to Philadelphia to discuss, debate, and hopefully to solve the problems besetting the new United States.

Under the nation's first frame of government, the Articles of Confederation, written in 1781, the newly independent American Confederaton was not so much a nation as a loosely-knit association of small, sovereign states more often quarreling and less often cooperating with each other. They were unified only by a Congress which lacked the power to act decisively. By the spring of 1787 a call had gone out for a nationwide Constitutional Convention, and 12 of the 13 states had responded.

During the months prior to the Convention a lively debate flickered across the length and breadth of the land, from New Hampshire to Georgia, as citizens expressed their concern for the welfare of the nation and sought solutions to its worsening problems. By the mid-1780's eleven states had written their own state Constitutions. Three of those state Constitution's appeared exceptionally effective, Virginia's (1776), New York's (1777) and Massachusetts (1779). State governments varied in their degree of both centralization and balance of power. Those having stronger executive branches appeared the most effective. Most American's by 1787, seemed to agree that a more centralized national government having separate Executive and Legislative branches was necessary if a more unified and cohesive nation were to be established. Elected but separate Executive and Legislative branches of government were seen to provide avenues for effective government while providing checks and balances needed to prevent excessive concentration of power. Of the third branch of today's govenment, the Judiciary, there may not have been as much agreement, but at least John Adams of Massachusetts felt the need of an independent Judiciary, appointed, and having tenure of life. Later, during the Constitutional Convention, Virginia delegate George Mason would note the "evils of our republican system as the majority oppressing the minority and the mischievous influence of demagogues".

Thus, in 1787, not only was the need for a stronger government being recognized, but also the need for constraints upon its power. It seems to have been the general view of most Americans that the ultimate power of government should reside with the citizens of the nation. However, there was not always common agreement as to exactly which citizens one meant.

The degree to which national government should be centralized was a part of the general discussion, and there were two schools of thought, labelled "nationalist" and "anti-nationalist". Of the former, Federalists such as James Madison and George Washington sincerely believed in the need for a high degree of central authority, while oponents such as New York's Robert Yates and John Lansing, Jr. and, to a lesser extent, Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts distrusted such a government. They argued for more state's rights. Anti-nationalism in its most extreme form existed in Rhode Island, which failed to send a delegation to Philadelphia at all.

As the various state delegations prepared for the Constitutional Convention which would formally open on May 25, 1787, there appeared to be few who supported the alternative course of simply patching up through revisions the existing Articles of Confederation. It has been speculated that the Articles, if merely repaired and strengthened, might have led the United States into a Parliamentary form of government. That, however, was not to be the case, as the spirit of nationalism flourised in the minds - then triumped in the votes - of Americans from all walks of life.

Recreation Dept. accepting registrations

The Cohasset Recreation Department has application forms for the fifth annual Senior Olympic Games to be held in Quincy, the week of May 11. All entries must be received by May 1, with a $6 registration fee, which provides the entry with a T-shirt and lunch, Saturday, May 16.

Age groups are as follows: 55-59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-74, and 75 Plus. Competition includes: golf tournament, swimming, bowling, 3 mile walking race, standing long jump, basketball free throw, javelin throw, running long jump, half-mile walk, one mile run, one mile walk, shot put, (6 lbs shot), half mile run, softball throw, and softball game.

If interested, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791, for more details and/or registration.

Golf Lessons

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for beginner and intermediate golf lessons to be taught by Patrick McNamara, assistant golf pro at the Cohasset Golf Club. Classes are scheduled to begin Monday and Tuesday evenings, May 11, and 12, 1987.

Beginner class will meet from 6:30-7:30 p.m. Monday evenings, and the intermediate class will meet Tuesday evenings, from 6:30-7:30 p.m. Both classes are six weeks and the fee is $18 per person for the six-week session.

To register, please call the recreation department office at 383-6791. Non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis.

Kickball-grades K-3

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone registrations for grades K-3 Kickball Program to be held directly after school on Wednesdays, starting May 6 through June 3, weather permitting. The Program will not meet in bad weather: extra weeks will be added at the end if time allows.

The fee for the program is $6 per participant and registrations will be accepted by calling the Recreation office at 383-6791. Children will stay after school, and the program will begin at 3 p.m. Children must be picked-up at 4:30 p.m., sharp. Registrations will not be accepted after Monday, May 4.

Open Gyms

The Cohasset Recreation Department will keep Cohasset High School Gym open from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday evenings, beginning Tuesday, April 14.

Gary Smith will be the recreation department supervisor in charge of the gym during the designated hours.

The gym may be used for basketball and pick-up games which should be played on half court, or quarter court, allowing for maximum use of space and people.

The standard rules for gym use apply to the open gym times. Sneakers must be worn and no food, beverage, or smoking in the gym. The program will be conducted for eight weeks, ending the week of June 1. There is no registration fee or pre-registration required.

Simmons Club meeting

The annual dinner meeting of the South Shore Simmons Club will be held Thursday, May 14, at 6:30 p.m. at The Hollow, 516 Adams St., Quincy.

Guest speaker will be Robert Gilman, a weather forecaster for radio station WJDA and WATD in Marshfield. He also writes for The Patriot Ledger.

Gilman's background includes work with the geological and meterological departments of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission where he was concerned with the evaluation of sites for safety and environmental impact.

His company, New England Weather Science, provides hourly weather forecasts for specific cities and towns throughout Massachusetts.

His topic will be "New England's Unpredictable Weather".

Reservations by mail must be made by Monday, May 11, with Mary J. Clark, 106 Greenleaf St., Quincy, MA 02169. Indicate choice between turkey at $10.65 or baked, stuffed shrimp at $12.10, tax and gratuity included. Guests are welcome and your check should be sent to Mary Clark with your reservation.

Health board meets with CHL's neighbors

Baird suggested testing surface water on the Webb-Norfolk Conveyor site."I have no problem with the testing," Handrahan said. "because we have cleaned it up."

Donald Mastrow of the DPW told the board, "We have taken action to stop anything further."

Of concern at the DPW site are two 8,000 gallon fuel storage tanks.

One of those tanks could not be found. The other contained a couple feet of residue.

"The three old missile silos at the former NIKE site "are the greatest potential problem," Mastrow said. "They are filled with water and there's no telling what's at the bottom of them."

The board will ask the U.S. Army to "define what's in there."

Mastrow told the board, the DPW used "small amounts" of toluene 10 years ago in painting road lines. High levels of toluene were discovered at one of Cohasset Heights' monitoring wells.

The board indicated it suspects contributions of tetrachloroethene from "something based at the NIKE site," most likely some type of solvent was involved.

Mastrow predicted the Army will respond "in about eight months." The board hopes to recruit its help sooner.

Public Notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 87P0959E1

Estate of THOMAS G. CHURCHILL late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK.

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that CELESTE CHURCHILL of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK and G. WILLIAM McLAUGHLIN of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executors named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on May 27, 1987.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the fourteenth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and eighty seven.

Tropicana-Drano demonstration sends landfill reps home early

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

Cohasset Heights landfill representatives stormed out of a health board hearing in protest Monday night, objecting to a Tropicana-and-Drano demonstration by Brian Lipsett of Pond Street.

The hearing began calmly, with a proposal from the landfill's engineers to deal with the issue of off-site pollution.

But tensions mounted along with criticisim by the board and by the public of CHL's response to their concerns and a brouhaha erupted midway through the proceedings.

As the board and its audience at the high school cafeteria debated the merits of soliciting proposals for the analysis of risk to Lily Pond and to the area surrounding the landfill, Lipsett commented, "I wish I had a nickel for every time I've come to one of these hearings and listened to these so-called experts predict the risk to our water supply." He then produced a glass of orange juice and a can of Drano.

"You're out of order," board chairman John Burns protested.

"No Mr. Burns, you're out of order," Lipsett retorted. He proceeded to pour the Drano into the orange juice.

"I know you love your daughter," he told the chairman; "how many of these crystals would you allow her to drink?"

Anton Moehrke, attorney for the landfill objected. "Where is the security you said you would have here?" he asked the board, pointing to Lipsett. "He should be thrown out. If you are not going to control this hearing, we are going to leave."

And they did.

But before CHL's representatives left, the two sides managed to review the proposal and discuss differences.

Opening the evening's activity, William Richmond of GHR Engineering explained, the proposal calls for a trench to be dug around the lined portion of the landfill.

The trench will be excavated down to the sand layer of the landfill's collection system, he said, and filled with a very pervious sand, thereby draining any leachate which breaks out of the dump's side slope into the collection system.

Two new 2,000 gallon tanks will be added to the collection system to hold the material collected from the trench, according to the proposal.

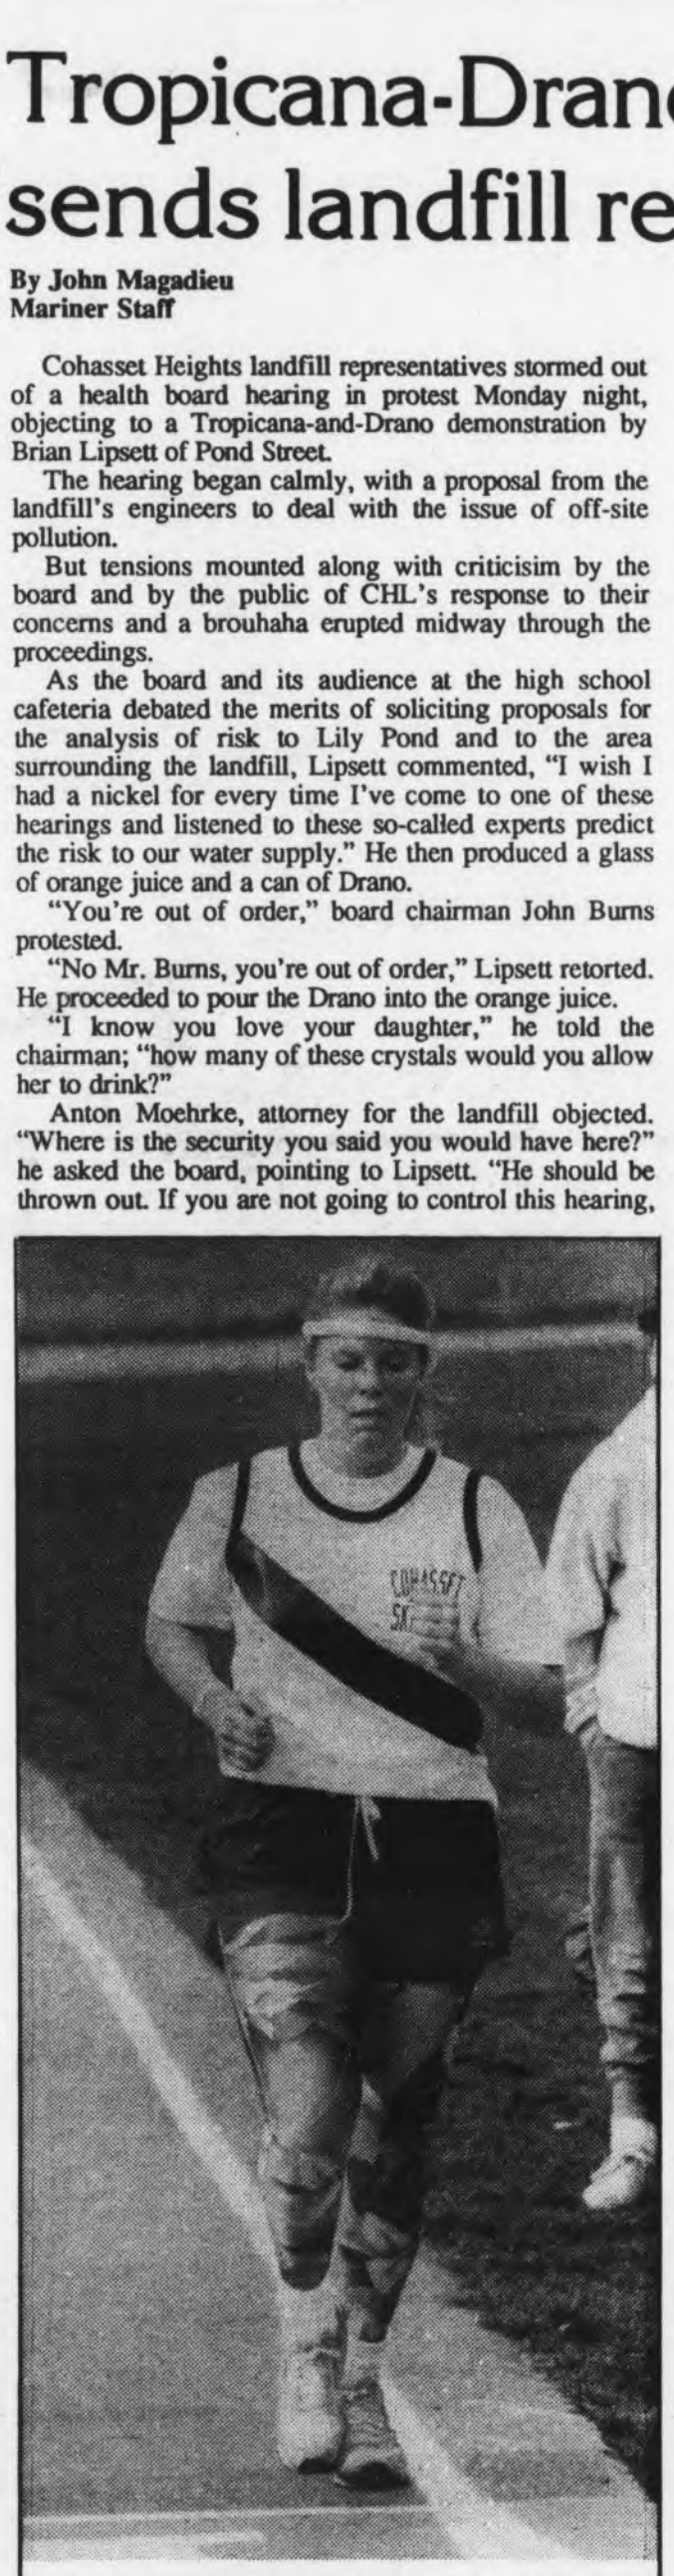
"Personally, I'm pleased you have gone ahead with this as aggressively as you have," board member William Baird commented.

Currently, an average 15,000 gallons are collected and trucked off to the Greater Lawrence treatment facility. John Burns, chairman of the health board questioned whether Cohasset Heights will be able to have the extra collected leachate trucked off-site.

"Yes," responded Paul Barry, owner and operator of the embattled commercial landfill on Crocker Lane. "We have had to truck off three loads per day during the past month, but that is because this abnormal weather we've been having has contributed to the problem.

"I think during normal periods of rain, we can handle it," he said. "I think we'll be fine."

Along with the trench and tanks, CHL proposed to re-grade the road around the landfill and put in a culvert so that any silt or leachate that falls out of the trucks will drain into the landfill, rather than away from it.



Barry said the trench will be dug within seven to 10 days and the entire project will be completed by July 1.

The board requested plans of the project for review. "I'm anxious to see what they do beyond monitoring well #9 outside of the perimeter," Baird told fellow members Burns and Sharon Becker.

Town meeting date awaits change

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Selectmen voted this week to delay a special town meeting, but a date will not be confirmed until SEMASS establishes a deadline for participation.

Priscilla Tebbetts of the Disposal Area Study Committee told selectmen Monday night that SEMASS, the trash-to-energy disposal facility, has decided to reconsider its deadline in which towns must indicate whether they will participate. That date had been set for July 18.

Selectmen last week scheduled a special town meeting date of June 23, when voters would have to decide whether the town should participate in the SEMASS plan. But Tebbetts said the study committee would like to have more time to progress in negotiations with SEMASS before bringing it before town meeting. And if the deadline was moved from July 18, the town would not have to decide as early as the June 23 special town meeting date. Tebbetts requested that selectmen reconsider moving the date as close to the July 18 deadline as possible, noting there is the possibility that the deadline may be set back even further.

Selectmen agreed that SEMASS was the most important reason for scheduling a special town meeting this summer, and there would be no significant problems in changing the June 23 date. Executive Secertary Donald Andrew said fiscal matters can be resolved without town meeting, and the sewer commission's negotiations with Hull will likely extend to the fall.

Selectmen voted to rescind their vote of last week, setting a June 23 special town meeting date. A date for

Rail station proposed for Rte. 3A

The MBTA project manager for the Old Colony Rehabilitation Project has requested a meeting with selectmen to discuss a proposed Cohasset station site along Rte. 3A near the former Winter Garden property.

The meeting has been tentatively scheduled for June 1 at town hall.

Stephen Polechronis, project manager of the Old Colony plan, said commuter rail station sites have been proposed and reviewed in Cohasset and the final recommendation will be included for detailed environmental analysis in the Draft Environmental Impact Report.

According to Polechronis, the discussion with selectmen will include a proposed station site on Rte. 3A. A conceptual sketch of this site has been developed and will be presented for discussion at that meeting, he said.

Polechronis suggested the planning board and conservation commission join the discussion scheduled with selectmen.

According to the MBTA official, in response to concerns about traffic and parking impacts expressed by selectmen, town officials and residents, the proposed stations at the Music Circus parking area and in Cohasset Center are no longer under consideration.

The MBTA's citizens' advisory committee is proceeding with an environmental review of the proposed Old Colony rail service. Their report is scheduled to be completed in the fall and will be submitted to Environmental Affairs Secretary James Hoyte at that time.

Drainage reconsideration

Charles DeSantis of 260 Forest Street revised his comments made at town meeting regarding improvements to a drainage problem on Beechwood Street, and stated that he now opposes the town spending any money to correct the problem.

Mr. and Mrs. DeCross, who own property on Beechwood Street, asked town meeting to appropriate money to improve a drainage problem there. They said the flooding on their land is caused by several town-owned catch basins on the street. At the April town meeting, DeSantis said he believed the flooding was caused by the town catch basins, and that voters should endorse the DeCross' request.

But the day following town meeting, DeSantis visited the property during a heavy rain. "It was apparent to me," DeSantis wrote to selectmen last week, "that by far the greater cause of water run off onto this property was caused by the natural brook which crosses under Beechwood Street and then on to this property. Additional runoff is caused by the catch basins which connect to the pipe which crosses under Beechwood Street. However, this run off is insignificant compared to the natural flow from the brook."

DeSantis said it would be unwise for the town to improve the drainage on this lot because the town is not responsible. The Forest Avenue resident apologized for any confusion he caused for the remarks he made at town meeting.

Town meeting voters denied the appropriation, but the DeCross' informed selectmen they intend to request the money at the next town meeting.

Timely finance reports

The acting director of the state Department of Revenue, Bureau of Accounts, congratulated Cohasset's treasurer and accountant on their timely submission of financial reports.

Mariellen Murphy, acting director of the state bureau, stated in a letter to selectmen their appreciation of "the level of professionalism that your officials have demonstrated."

In separate correspondence to Treasurer Elizabeth Ripley and Accountant Jo-Ann Whittemore, the acting director stated ," I fully understand the tremendous amount of time and effort it takes to complete these financial reports. Because of your timely reporting, you can be assured that the most accurate information is being used to evaluate your communities fiscal needs. I greatly appreciate the work you have done in submitting these reports and look forward to your continued porfessionalism in bringing the best service to your community."

Thanks to scouts

Town Clerk Frances Marks forwarded the town's appreciation for the work by Explorer Scouts Post 28 during the April town election. Mrs. Marks noted that the Scouts worked before and after the election by assisting in the preparation for the election, assembling and dismantling the voting booths.

Need for parking signs

A Scituate woman wrote the the Paul Pratt Library trustees, suggesting that 'no parking' be designated on two spaces at both sides of the exit driveway on Main Street.

Sarah S. Duffield wrote to the board of trustees, explaining how she was involved in an auto accident April 18 while exiting from the library driveway. Because of the lack of visibility, Duffield said she was hit by a car travelling north on Main Street. No one was hurt, but her vehicle was totalled.

She noted that there are no speed limit signs or any signs warning motorists that the driveway exiting from the library is a blind drive. She also explained that there are no signs warning motorists from either direction that people are entering or exiting from a public building. "No signs of any sort seems very dangerous considering that the library is at the top of a hill, making a left hand turn into the library almost as hazardous as trying to exit the driveway," she wrote.

Duffield suggested that at the very least, the two no parking designations be implemented immediately.

Town hall update

Based on advise from town counsel, selectmen will authorize an independent review of the preliminary design for the town hall renovation project prepared by architects Donham and Sweeney. If the review is satisfactory, town counsel ruled that selectmen may contract with those architects to complete the project without putting it out to competitive bidding.

Executive Secretary Don Andrew asked Town Counsel Richard Henderson if the town could hire Donham and Sweeney to provide design services and oversee the renovations to the town hall project without bidding the project. Donham and Sweeney were previously awarded a contract to conduct a feasibility study of the project, and provided the town with preliminary sketches on which to base the cost estimates.

According to town counsel, a designer appointed to conduct a feasibility study may not be hired for the design services phase of the project. But if an independent review of the firm is completed and selectmen are assured of the adequacy of that firm, state law allows the board to contract with the firm without the bidding procedure. Selectmen decided Monday night to proceed as quickly as possible with the independent review.

The architects provided selectmen with an estimated timetable for design and construction. According to the plans, construction plans will be bid out by July 9 and will be due back to the building committee by August 13. The construction contract will be awarded Sept. 1 with completion scheduled for July, 1988.

Firefighters, town keep mum

By John Magadieu
Mariner Staff

As Mother's Day approaches, the personnel board and the Cohasset Permanent Fire Fighters Local 2804 are steadfast - Mum's the word.

The two sides have been negotiating silently for about six months and by all accounts will continue to bargain "in good faith" behind closed doors.

The present firefighters contract expires June 30 and both sides have expressed, amid "no comments," an interest in getting things resolved by that deadline.

A couple of obstacles have hardened the road to a quick resolution this year.

First, there is a file folder-full of new faces at town hall. Wholesale changes in the personnel committee took place in December.

And the board of selectmen went through a drastic transformation in the past few weeks.

Second, lawyers have gotten into the fray recently to help both sides deal with new changes in public employee pension laws, occupational sick leave and injured on duty statutes as well as new case law interpretations.

Basically, the 23 union members are looking for a raise in pay, for better protective clothing and equipment, and for increased statutory benefits for those injured on duty.

Looking at the past two negotiations, 1981-82 was resolved quickly, before the previous contract expired.

The 1984-85 contract negotiations dragged on past the expiration date and Cohasset firefighters worked for some time without a contract.

It is illegal for firefighters to strike in Massachusetts.

The collective bargaining agreement of 1984-85 between the town and Local 2804 was approved at a special town meeting June 17, 1985.

It called for the appropriation of $58,722 to fund increases in wages and salaries.

Both parties indicated they will work for a resolution before June 30, when the present contract expires.

If for some reason, the two sides are unable to come to an agreement of their own accord, the negotiations will go to mediation, employing a mediator from the joint labor management committee.

VFW wants building

Selectmen will consider a future request from the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post to obtain the lease for the Bates Building.

In a letter to selectmen, Post Commander Ralph Perroncello suggested that if the town-owned building is declared surplus in the future, the Post would be interested in obtaining the building for its headquarters. For future reference, Perroncello outlined the Post's interest in obtaining a lease agreement for the Elm Street building.

Once the town hall is renovated and the addition is completed, selectmen intend to consolidate all town offices into the Highland Avenue building. Currently, the sewer, planning and board of health departments are located in the Bates Building.

Policeman's Ball

The Cohasset Police Association will sponsor the Annual Ball, Friday, May 8 at Hugo's Lighthouse.

Music will be by Rene and Maria Rancourt Orchestra from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. Tickets for the event are available from members of the Association.

Committee denies leave, accepts resignations

The school committee voted unanimously "with regret" Monday not to approve a one-year leave of absence without pay for science/math teacher David Magnussen.

"We felt it would be unfair to a new teacher coming in," explained committee member Nancy Sandell. "We would have to hire someone for only one year if the leave were granted; it would be difficult to attract the best teacher available to fill such a position. Our kids deserve the best teacher we could find."

She noted, "Math teachers and science teachers are a diminishing pool and it wouldn't be fair to spend the time and energy interviewing and training someone who would be here just a short time.

"I'm hoping he does not decide to leave," she added.

According to Supt. Stephen Hart, Magnussen is still employed at Cohasset and can continue teaching here if he wishes. "It wasn't an easy decision for the school committee to make and we would like to retain him."

If Magnussen does decide to leave, Hart added, "we would be willing to have him return when a space opens up."

Next year, two teachers will be on leave. One will be on maternity leave, while the other will take a leave similar to that which Magnussen had requested.

Patrick Plante, an industrial arts teacher who has been with the school system for 29 years ,will take a year off without pay. His position will not be filled with a replacement next year, Hart said.

The committee also voted "with regret" to accept the resignations of three faculty members. Eileen Mills, director of the METCO program in Cohasset, Jane Hamilton, an activity aide at Osgood School and Joan Foley, a social studies teacher at Cohasset High School since 1971,will not be returning next year.

Sandell, who served as METCO host family coordinator alongside Mills,said the director "has done a fine job and is well thought of by the students, faculty and staff. She is a fabulous person!"

Mills is leaving for what Sandell called "the best reason - to take care of her own child," a new daughter.

"We will miss her very much, because of her dedication to the METCO program and to the students," Hart added.

Sandras Barnes, who came in on an interim basis in September and stayed to help after Mills returned to school, may be a candidate to replace the director.

"I hope she will stay," Sandell commented. "She is good with kids and she's a dynamic person.

"We're losing some good people," Sandell said of the three resignations. "It's sad when you have to say goodbye to some fine teachers."

In other business, the committee approved the 1987-88 school calendar. School will open September 9 and end June 23, 1988.

A two-week break during the Christmas holidays was implemented. At the suggestion of committee member Diana Kornet, the possibility of having school on Good Friday and adding a day to April vacation is being taken under advisement.

On a bright note, choral director Bryan Marks and two of his students, Michelle Mazza and Amanda Sweeney thanked the school committee for its support of their recent trip to Florida.

Last month, the choral group performed at Epcot Center and Sea World.

"The trip went off without a hitch," Marks said. "The students behaved admirably and performed wonderfully."

Finally, the committee awarded a contract for two new school buses to Carey's of Whitman. The vehicles will cost $30,600 each. Town meeting allotted $80,000 for the purchase of buses. The committee will use the remaining $18,800 for the purchase of a mini-van, as noted in the warrant article.

Abandoned tanks still not removed

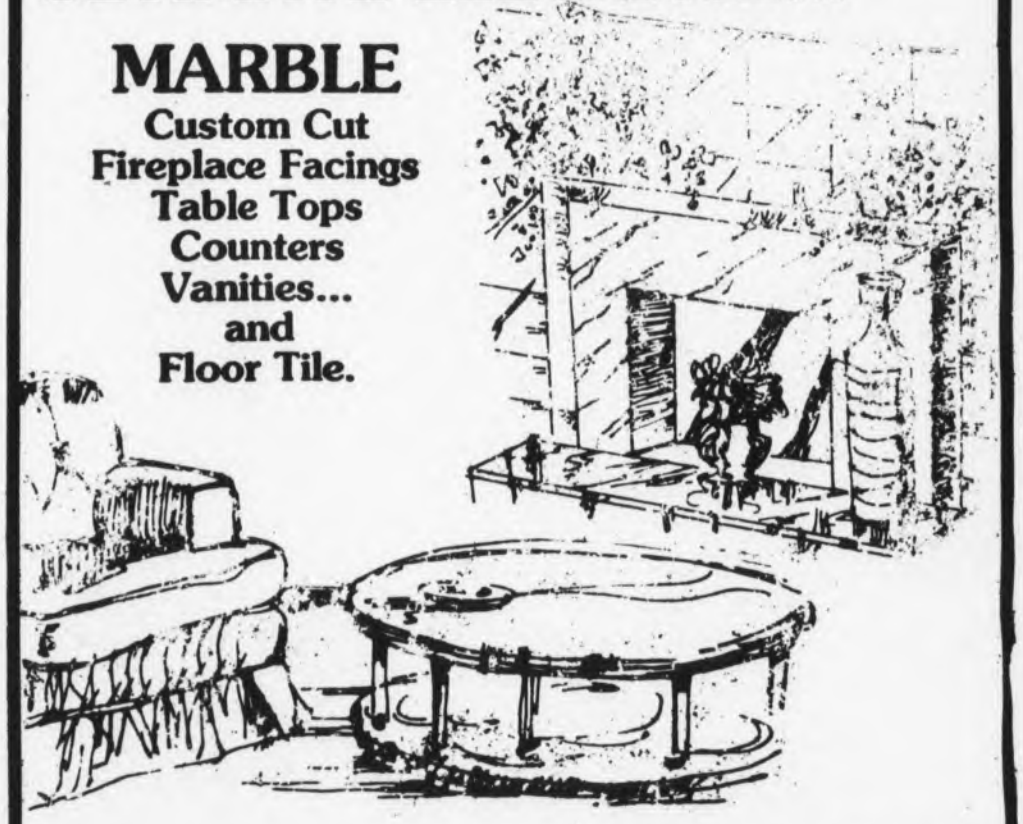
Three abandoned storage tanks on property along Rte. 3A have not been removed despite an order issued April 6.

Fire Chief Daniel ordered the owners of the property along Rte 3A, north of Crocker Lane, to dispose of the two oil tanks and one gas tank stored underground there. The property is owned by the Theresa L. William Trust and had previously been leased to Anderson Oil Co. of Scituate.

The deadline is passed for the removal of the three, 10,000 gallon tanks, the fire chief stated, although he was notified the owner is having trouble finding a company to accept the tanks. Executive Secretary Donald Andrew told selectmen this week that the matter may require a hearing if the tanks are not quickly taken away. If a deadline imposed by the fire chief is not met, selectmen may retain jurisdiction over the disposal of the abandoned tanks.

Health Agent Joseph Godzik said it is not clear whether the tanks are leaking. The state Department of Environmental Engineering reviewed the site a month ago and no leaking from the tanks was observed. The state officials installed booms to absorb any possible leaks and to catch any oil that may be progressing from the abandoned tanks toward the wetlands.

Dr. Godzik said that officials from Anderson Oil tested the site when they vacated the premises and no leak was detected.



Chief Brock said the tanks are located on land near the pumping station on the Williams' property. He said it has been a couple of years since the tanks were used. tThe chief said he was unaware if the tanks were leaking, but it is under his jurisdiction to order the removal of any abandoned storage tanks. The chief said the property owners have requested an extension of the deadline while the tanks remain in the same Rte. 3A location.
